COUNTY COURT-PROBATE DIVISION
Order and Notice of Hearing on Petition for Probate of Will and Appointment of Personal Representative in Supervised Administration and Notice to Creditors
In Re: Estate of Lillian M. Lappi, Deceased.
TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

It is Ordered and Notice is hereby given that on the 14th day of December, 1983, at 10:30 o'clock A.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the formal probate of an instrument purporting to be the will of the above named decedent, dated February 28, 1983, and for the appointment of Shirley Efteland Ruud whose address is Gatzke, Minnesota as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration, and that any objections thereto must be filed with the Court. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses, and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

AGRI-GROWTH REPORT!

by RUSS SCHWANDT

The recent shooting down of an unarmed Korean airliner by the armed forces of the Soviet Union was one of the great and unspeakable tragedies of our modern age. As you will recall, within hours of the announcement of this horrendous act, government leaders were calling on the President to cancel the just-signed grain sales contract. It appeared that, once again, the American farmer and his harvest would be used as a weapon for international punishment.

The Russians, realizing that they were capable of such international outrages, made sure the new grain sales agreement took those possibilities into consideration. They didn't want any opportunity for the U.S. to back out of the deal once it was signed.

What a lot of people hadn't realized was the Russians, during the recent grain sales negotiations, thought the U.S. might use an old "escape clause" to break this new contract in just such an instance.

In the previous grain agreement, there existed a provision allowing the United States to reduce or suspend deliveries to the Russians in case there was a commodity shortage. There was, however, no similar provision permitting the Russians to back out of the deal.

State Department negotiators have now let it be known that the Soviets insisted that no such clause be included in the new contract. They felt that that provision had been used by President Carter to institute the painful 16-month grain sales embargo that followed the Russian invasion of Afghanistan.

In testimony before the Senate Ag Committee, an official connected to the U.S. Trade Representative's office said: "Clearly, the embargo and the reliability of America as a supplier was the major issue discussed by the Soviet side. They thought they couldn't depend on this country for delivery of products," the diplomat concluded.

We in American agriculture ought to be very grateful that the American negotiators saw their way to eliminating this old "escape clause." With the passions running high in the wake of the Korean airliner shooting, and with the U.S. government's hands being virtually tied in terms of the level of their response, it is certainly possible that, had the "clause" still been in the new contract, there would have been a heavy push to cancel the grain sale.

Russ Schwandt is a farmer, agribusinessman, former Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's and President of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations and companies in the state's agriculture industry.

LEC Lists 17 Cases Nov. 8

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, November 8, listed 12 cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and five cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department, by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

November 1 — Dental office personnel for Dr. Thomas P. Dimich, 310 Red Lake Boulevard, reported that approximately $50 damage had been done to one of their windows sometime during the previous week.

November 1 — Roger Solberg, Thief River Falls, reported that two hubcaps, value $200, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked at his residence the previous evening.

November 1 — Lois L. Green, Thief River Falls, was driving north on Horace Avenue, and James Gummerson Jr., Medford WI, was driving west on Second Street when they collided. Damages were estimated at $1,200 to the Gummerson vehicle and $300 to the Green vehicle.

November 1 — John Larson, Thief River Falls, reported that the mailbox, value $20, had been stolen from his residence on Centennial Drive.

November 2 — Linda Lowell, Thief River Falls, reported that two pairs of binoculars and a sweatshirt, value $90, had been stolen from her vehicle while it was parked at the VFW Club.

November 2 — Paul Williams, Thief River Falls, reported that several stereo tapes, value $30, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked at the American Legion Club.

November 2 — Drew Vroman, Thief River Falls, reported that a 10-speed bicycle, value $100, had been stolen from the back yard of his residence. Bicycle was later recovered.

November 2 — Lee Gehrls, Thief River Falls, reported that his pickup had been vandalized, with theft of tools, a toolbox, an AM-FM receiver, equalizer, speakers and cassette tapes, value $1,900. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

November 4 — Alvin Klemmetson, Thief River Falls, was backing out of an alley onto LaBree Avenue when he apparently touched the accelerator instead of the brake, causing the vehicle to cross the street and collide with a parked vehicle owned by Irene Ellingson, Thief River Falls. Both vehicles then traveled onto the sidewalk and struck the Northern State Bank building. Damages were estimated at $1,000 to the Klemmetson vehicle and $600 to the Ellingson vehicle, with only minimal damage to the building.

November 4 — Thief River Falls resident reported that a storage shed had been broken into and two chrome bicycle wheels, value $20, stolen.

November 4 — Vern Cleven, Thief River Falls, reported that a gas can and a tarp strap, value $25, had been stolen from his pickup while it was parked behind the law enforcement center.

November 7 — Mrs. Emil Clausen, Thief River Falls, reported that a pail of candy, value $4, had been stolen from their porch on Halloween night.

Cases handled by the Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

October 23 — Liza M. Nelson, Thief River Falls, was driving north on County road 74 at approximately 1:30 a.m. and lost control while attempting to turn east on Highway 1, rolling the vehicle. Damages were estimated at $800 to the car. No injuries were reported.

October 25 — Earl Swenson, rural St. Hilaire, reported that approximately $50 damage had been done to a window on their camper while it was parked in their yard during the previous evening.

4,197 People Enroll In MN Jobs Program

Minnesota's new jobs program has enrolled 4,179 people as of November 1 and is on schedule in its effort to employ between 12,500 and 14,000 people by June 1985, when the program ends, Coordinator Joe Samargia announced recently.

Samargia had set an enrollment target of 4,000 people by November 1. Workers in the program are hired by private and public employers.

Statewide, 24 per cent of those working are employed by the private sector. Samargia expects private sector jobs eventually to account for 40 per cent of the total jobs in the program.

Program statistics show that as of November 1, 30,679 people applied for the state jobs program and 63 per cent of them met eligibility criteria. Samargia expects that at full capacity, the program will enroll between 5,000 and 6,000 people at any one time.

For each individual employed under the program, the state will subsidize up to $4 an hour in wages and up to $1 an hour in fringe benefits, for up to 1040 hours over 26 weeks. Time can be extended to 52 weeks for workers also enrolled in a job training program. Public and private sector employers use their funds to increase the hourly wage rate.

To participate, a person must be a state resident for at least one month, unemployed, ineligible for either unemployment insurance benefits or workers' compensation and available to work for the duration of the job.

The 1983 legislature appropriated $70 million for the two-year program under the Minnesota emergency employment development act.

Archaeologists In North Carolina Search For Colony

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian news service

Somewhere at Roanoke Island, NC, perhaps near water's edge underneath an umbrella of pines and old oaks laced with strands of Spanish moss, were the first homesteads that Britain backed in America during the age of discovery.

There is no doubt that English adventurers planted small colonial settlements on this sandy island between 1584 and 1587, settlements that substantially predate those at Jamestown, Va., (1607) and Plymouth, Mass., (1620). But precisely where the colonists built their homes — and precisely what ill fate befell the last of those souls, among them the first child of English ancestry born in America — continues to intrigue historians and archaeologists.

John Ehrenhard, a national park service archaeologist whose enthusiasm for finding the exact site percolates through his carefully measured words, allows that 400 years have blurred to faint traces the evidence needed to pinpoint the colonial dwellings.

Yet Ehrenhard and his field team, aided by a battery of advanced technology, are confident they have found the right spot, the one beneath the oaks and pines. "I really think it is here," he says. "I think this is where the settlement is."

In part, this is a story about how the team has reached that conclusion, but it also tells how one generation, whether digging up the earth or searching through historic documents, passes along valuable research data to the inquisitive of the future.

Story behind Ehrenhard's work begins 400 years ago — on July 13, 1584 — when a party of English explorers claimed for Queen Elizabeth I what is now eastern North Carolina. A year later, a party of 108 men sponsored by Sir Walter Raleigh, who had inherited a claim to explore and colonize in the New World, arrived on North Carolina's outer banks — now a summer playground for thousands of Americans.

But in 1586 there was nothing but hardship, and, after 10 months, the men disbanded and returned to England. Raleigh, however, though he never came to Carolina himself, was determined to found a settlement in America, and in 1587 he sent a venturesome second party of 115 — the ill-fated "lost colony." These folks had grave problems from the very beginning: They arrived too late to plant crops for that year's harvest, supplies were very limited and the friendly natives turned hostile.

To relieve the supply situation at least, the colony's governor, John White, returned to England, only to learn that his ship could not leave port again: All English vessels were urgently needed for war with Spain.

Finally, after England's 1588 victory over the mighty Spanish Armada, White sailed for Roanoke Island, arriving in 1590. He found little trace of the colony — only some remains of the fort established on the island's northern edge, a few pieces of armor and the word "Croatan," a neighboring island, carved on the trunk of a tree. No trace of a signal, prearranged to indicate distress, was found.

"None of the many theories concerning the fate of the colonists can be either proved or disproved," historian John Neville, executive director of America's four hundredth anniversary committee, says, adding, "Though neither of the colonies was permanent, they were the spiritual beginnings of the English American which became the United States."

In his attempt at least to find the site, and maybe some information about how the first colonists lived, Ehrenhard, like archaeologists passing this way before him, owes a lot to one Richard Hakluyt, an erudite 16th-century English chaplain, who realized that outside of shipping circles little was known about the New World discoveries.

Hakluyt set to work in the 1580s, compiling a historical record that he also thought of as a travel guide for future transatlantic explorers and settlers. These invaluable documents, accompanied by drawings of natural and native life — the first to give Europeans a look at North American resources — are filled with intrigue, idealism, drama, a bit of backbiting and lots of practical information.

The documents also are quite frank, particularly as the explorer-scientist Thomas Harriot examines why the soldiers and gentlemen of the 1585 colony were in so much haste to leave; he concludes that they were not settlers at all but fortune hunters. "After gold and silver were not so soon found," Harriot reveals, "they had little or no care of any other thing but to pamper their bellies. . . ."

In another report, John White describes the second colony's arrival in 1587 at the site where the first group had encamped. This information is a valuable guide for Ehrenhard's team: "When we came thither, wee found the forte rased down, but all the houses standing unhurt. . .," White writes, noting that he gave orders "to make other newe Cottages, for such as shoulde neede."

Though these documents are priceless, as far as they go, they leave unanswered the question of exact location. Search for the site is based on the premise, Ehrenhard points out, that the fort established by the first settlers on the northern side of the island, and mentioned in the accounts, is the one located and fully reconstructed by archaeologists in the 1940s. Hard by that site, a few yards directly west, is a small but so far lucrative "activity area," possibly the settlement.

Ehrenhard's team didn't just stumble upon this spot. In 1982, working from the fort information and location, the team conducted remote sensing tests with a proton magnetometer, a device that electronically sniffs for buried iron, masonry and other cultural fragments, and a soil resistivity meter. By charting the flow of electricity through the soil, the meter indicated changes in the resistance of sub-surface materials: charred wood, for example, recorded less resistance than drier soil around it. Information was then fed into a computer, which printed out topographic maps that, when read by the team, indicated features worth excavating.

Using small trowels, but as often as not their cupped hands, the team combed the research area for clues. Patience was their watchword. "Just collecting the samples is difficult," Ehrenhard says. "The lumps in the soil that may turn out to be remains of nailheads," he adds, "have a tendency to break into dust."

But there have been rewards, evidence on which the archaeologists are basing their assumptions and constructing interpretations. The area has yielded ceramic shards, pieces of crude plaster, nail traces and charred fragments confirmed to be house-post remains. Radiometric dating of the fragments place them in the colonial period. Additionally, 15 to 20 post stains have been found along a straight line, indicating a man-made structure. "We won't know exactly what the structure is," Ehrenhard says, "but I feel confident that it is a rectangular building."

"Though the evidence is weak," he continues, "you can rule out a number of possibilities. There are no markings, in the site, suggesting that no one was living in it and that no one was cooking there. It could have been a storage shed, rather than a principal building, and its relationship to a large charcoal pit indicates that it might possibly have been a blacksmith's shed."

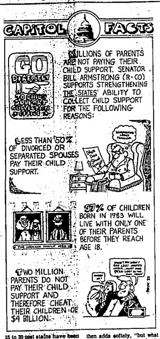
These discoveries had escaped earlier archaeologists, who, unequipped with the scientific tools needed to unearth such ephemeral evidence, paradoxically were limited to hunting for bigger game — skeletons, utensils and the like. But in Roanoke Island's acidic soil, bones and other large samples of organic matter would have decomposed long ago. Furthermore, if the poorly equipped colonists left the island, as is generally assumed, it is unlikely that they would have left metal and other man-made items behind.

In constructing history from the ground up, archaeologists are not only trying to solve intriguing mysteries, they also are trying to draw a picture of long-ago everyday life often ignored by historical documents. For example, old wells located on property once belonging to middle-class families of Alexandria, Va., often are filled with layers of dishes and other objects, helpful for understanding earlier times.

Among that debris, whole vessels have been unearthed, some of which will go on display in 1984 in a new Smithsonian exhibition, "After the Revolution: Everyday Life in America," organized by Faith Ruffins of the National Museum of American History. Yet "the retrieval of objects that can be exhibited is very rare," she says.

In far greater abundance are the fragments that will never be displayed, objects that, nevertheless, are of tremendous value to archaeologists. On Roanoke Island, however, even this material is scarce. "We're looking at the traces of a culture," Ehrenhard says, then adds softly, "but what we've found is pretty nice to have."

CAPITOL FACTS



GO DIRECTLY TO CHILD SUPPORT COLLECTION

MILLIONS OF PARENTS ARE NOT PAYING THEIR CHILD SUPPORT. SENATOR BILL ARMSTRONG (R-CO) SUPPORTS STRENGTHENING THE STATES' ABILITY TO COLLECT CHILD SUPPORT FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

LESS THAN 50% OF DIVORCED OR SEPARATED SPOUSES PAY THEIR CHILD SUPPORT.

37% OF CHILDREN BORN IN 1983 WILL LIVE WITH ONLY ONE OF THEIR PARENTS BEFORE THEY REACH AGE 18.

TWO MILLION PARENTS DO NOT PAY THEIR CHILD SUPPORT AND THEREFORE CHEAT THEIR CHILDREN OF $4 BILLION.

Senator Would Stop Diversion Of Great Lakes

Senator Rudy Buschwitz of Minnesota has joined Senator Charles Percy of Illinois in introducing a bill that keeps water-hungry states from diverting water from the Great Lakes for their own purposes.

"The Great Lakes are as important to the midwest as the sun is to many western and southern states," Sen. Boschwitz said.

"The Great Lakes water diversion act" would prohibit the diversion of Great Lakes water for use outside the Great Lakes states, unless approved by all Great Lakes states and the international joint commission (a U.S. and Canadian body) and prohibit the federal government from studying the possibility of such projects.

"The Great Lakes are a tremendous resource which serve as a vital transportation link, drinking water supply, environmental and recreational resource and energy source for the eight states and two Canadian provinces that border on the lakes," Boschwitz said. "But it would be a mistake to assume that this supply of water is almost limitless.

A 1981 study said that to divert Great Lakes water away from the Great Lakes basin would lower water levels and available water supply, as well as cause significant economic losses to important Great Lakes users. The study, commissioned by the international joint commission, also cites serious environmental consequences of such an action, including reduction of wetlands and fish spawning areas.

"The diversion of Great Lakes water would promote competition from areas receiving the water. Certain regions of the country have resources available to them that serve to promote industry and economic growth. Unfortunately, the midwest, by contrast, suffers from an economic downturn caused by both declining resources and competition from other regions that have natural advantages, like the sun. We must protect our resources, particularly our water, because these resources may be our best hope of future growth," Boschwitz said.

NEWFOLDEN . . .

Monday evening this past week the Milton Ericksons visited at the Loren Moen home in West Fargo and also with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith.

93rd Birthday

On Sunday evening, Oct. 30, Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Bakke, Pearl Boe, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Knutson, Kristy and Mark and Alice, Knutson and Leroy brought over a delicious pot luck lunch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knutson in honor of Albert's 93rd birthday. God bless you on your birthday.

Tom and Wendy Blazejewski left last Saturday morning for a cabin at Waubun, where they enjoyed horse back riding. Neighbors at the cabin Doug and Bonnie Irish took them on the many trails. Amanda stayed with grandpa and grandma Swenson. They came home Sunday evening enjoying the weekend.

Sunday dinner guests at the Lawrence Seidel home were Jim Seidel, Danny and Paul, who also spent the afternoon there.

MANHATTAN FROM A MANHOLE

Make sure you are seeing life in the right perspective. Nothing ever looks right when viewed from the wrong vantage point.

Of course there are reasons men descend into manholes—good reasons that contribute to the health and happiness of the community. But viewing skyscrapers isn't very satisfactory from a manhole.

When you look at the many problems that beset mankind, seek first a Christian perspective. God meant each of us to contribute something to making this a better world.

So view the state of civilization as a challenge to constructive living, to sound religious principles, to frank awareness of the spiritual hungers that plague men.

The way to see Life clearly is to look with the eyes God has given you . . . standing at that point in time and place to which God has brought you . . . and knowing His Way makes the difference!

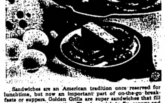
A Great Grilled Sandwich



Sandwiches are an American tradition once reserved for lunchtime, but now an important part of on-the-go breakfasts or suppers. Golden Grills are super sandwiches that fill the bill for anytime eating. They're quick to fix, savory and substantial. Hard-cooked eggs, ham and Swiss cheese are the base of the filling. Pickle relish, a dab of mayo and a little onion add the zip. And you can keep the filling on hand in the fridge for spur of the moment spreading on rye bread and grilling.

Why not hard cook a dozen eggs right now, so you can stir up Golden Grills, and still have some on hand for snacking or devilling.

Golden Grills

6 sandwiches

6	hard-cooked eggs*, chopped	1/4	cup shredded Swiss cheese
1/2	cup chopped cooked ham	2	tablespoons sweet pickle relish
1/3	cup finely chopped onion OR 1 1/2 tablespoons instant minced onion	2	tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
		1/2	teaspoon salt
		12	slices rye bread
			Butter

Thoroughly combine all ingredients except bread and butter. Butter 1 side of each bread slice. Place 6 slices on griddle, baking sheet or in skillet buttered side down; spread each with approx. 1/2 cup filling. Top with remaining bread slices buttered side up. Grill on griddle or in skillet until toasted on both sides OR bake in preheated 400°F. oven about 5 to 8 minutes or until golden brown. Turn; bake an additional 5 to 8 minutes.

*Hard-Cooked Eggs

Cover EGGS in pan with enough WATER to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover, bring rapidly just to boiling. Turn off heat; if necessary remove pan from heated unit to prevent further boiling. Let stand covered in hot water 15 minutes for large eggs — adjust time up or down by about approx. 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller. Cool eggs immediately and thoroughly in cold water — shells are easier to remove and it is less likely you will have a dark surface on yolks. To remove shell: Crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell; then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Mrs. Alfred Solem, Rt. 2, City, 681-3897

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe were Sunday evening visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dobias of St. Hilaire. Alvin Anderson of Thief River Falls was also a guest at the Dobias home.

Solem-Vacura Wedding

Among the many who attended the Roger A. Solem-Judy Vacura wedding Saturday afternoon at the Redeemer Lutheran church were Mrs. Clara Jaennette, Mr. and Mrs. Curt Johnson and Sheryl, Mrs. Ethel Moe, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Halvorson, Mrs. Bert Kron, Mr. L. A. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson, Emily Lokken, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Halvorson and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe.

Mrs. Irene Rausch, Mrs. Olive Rondorf and Mrs. Rebecca Solem attended the last session of a series of five lessons of "Friendship Bible Coffees" at the home of Mrs. Linda Fimrite Tuesday afternoon last week. Others present Tuesday afternoon were the guide, Mrs. Kathy Campbell, Mrs. Gloria Kruchowski, Mrs. Marlene Olson, Mrs. Adeline Sletten and Mrs. Judy Dupree.

Mrs. Clifford Jorde was among the guests at a product party at the home of Mrs. Curtis Bottem Monday evening.

House guests at the Alfred Solem home from Friday evening to Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Solem, Mike and Craig from Grand Rapids, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Nelson, Kari and Kent from Spring Lake Park. They all came to attend the Roger A. Solem-Jody Vacura wedding Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at the Redeemer Lutheran church and the reception that followed. Rev. and Mrs. Kermit Solem, Aaron, Cassy, Arlen and Carson from Rothsay also attended the wedding and reception. Craig Solem was the miniature groom and Mrs. Kathryn Nelson was a coffee pourer.

Fund Raiser For Leukemia Victim

Mrs. Clifford Jorde and Mrs. Curtis Bottem and Chad attended the spaghetti supper at the Redeemer Lutheran church Tuesday evening sponsored by members of Black River Lutheran church of rural St. Hilaire and Redeemer Lutheran church. Bruce Van de Streek has leukemia and spent most of the summer in St. Luke's hospital in Fargo and this fall will head for Seattle, Wash., where he expects to have a bone marrow transplant. It is hoped that this fund-raising event will help the family with part of the expenses.

Pastor Bernard Lewellin and a group of members of the junior high group of the United Methodist church enjoyed a halloween party at the Peter Solem home Saturday evening.

House guests at the Leonard Yonke home from Friday to Sunday, October 28-30, were Marvin and Carol Yonke from East Grand Forks.

New Dogmatists

Following editorial is from the Indianapolis Star:

A mask of reason has been yanked away revealing the stony face of authoritarianism in the wrangle over evolution vs. creationism in the state of Louisiana.

That was not the result intended. But that is how the contest ended, at least for the time being.

The state Supreme Court ruled 4-3 the right of the Legislature to require balanced teaching of the two concepts in Louisiana's public schools. The issue had been tied up in the courts since 1981 when the Legislature enacted a law that called for giving "equal time" to creationism.

Wisely, no doubt, the court did not go into the merits of scientific or religious questions. It dealt only with the question of whether the Legislature had the right to pass such a law and concluded that it did. The case now is expected to go into the federal courts for hearings that will bear on the merits of the two concepts.

Opponents of creationism charge that teaching it violates the constitutional separation of church and state. The Constitution contains only one reference to religion. That is the first clause of the First Amendment which says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Atheists, agnostics, secular humanists and various legalistic sophists have misconstrued those plain words as giving the power to prohibit the free exercise of religion, or any activity with religious connotation, to the courts.

For the most part the federal courts have agreed to play the role of Secular Grand Inquisitors in rooting out religion with an eagerness paralleling that of the Medieval Inquisition in rooting out heretics. Ironically, the process, rationalism, or science-ism, has maneuvered itself into the role of a medieval-style dictator of infallible dogma.

Retionalists simply cannot swallow the creationist version of the beginning of the world, which asserts that everything was created by a divine being. The theory of evolution holds that creation was a gradual development which took millions of years.

In a free, pluralistic society ideas should be allowed freedom of circulation and discussion — all ideas, not just those selected as official dogma by an authority claiming infallibility.

Yet establishment of an official dogma, its teaching sharply delineated by the power of the state, if precisely what militant secular humanists, rationalists, science-ists and anti-religionists are trying to achieve in their relentless wars in the courts.

They are the new dogmatists. They demand a monopoly in the schools for their new dogmas. They want the coercive power of a mighty modern state as their weapon. They seemingly cannot see that in their struggle for official omnipotence, they are turning back the calendar — turning it back hundreds and hundreds of years.

Don't Monkey With Olympics

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

If there is anything the nation doesn't need right now is a bunch of political bozos running around trying to decide what nations can and what nations cannot have teams at the Olympics in California in 1984. There are some very emotional political figures in the California Legislature who are trying to get a move underway to bar Russian athletes from the 1984 Olympics as some kind of "punishment" for shooting down a Korean civilian air liner. This is dumber than Jimmy Carter's banning U.S. athletes from attending the Moscow Olympics in 1980 because he didn't like Russian soldiers shooting up Afghanistan.

The stupid part about this whole thing is that the worst punishment we can inflict on the Russian government is to allow their athletes to come to the U.S. and to meet with athletes from the U.S. and from other nations. The Russian government is terrified, every time they have to compete internationally, that some of their star athletes will defect. Thus, they not only have to furnish coaches and handlers like all of the other nations, but also permanent guards who act like watchdogs. When the Russian athletes see the freedom of other athletes to come and go and talk with whomever they please, it has a sobering effect. They quickly realize they are the only athletes with keepers. While they grew up in a society which told them that the capitalists, the international bankers, or whatever, "Own" everybody outside the Iron Curtain, they very well catch on that no such thing exists, that the free world athletes are just that, and can go, do and see whomever they wish. It is the Russian athletes who are "owned" by the politicians.

The more Russians who come over here and see what this country and its people are really like, the more problems they have in Russia with their propaganda press.

Bring on the Russian Olympic teams. . . guards and all. Let them be the bozos, not us.

Adapting To Change

Following was written by Robert B. Reich in "The Next American Frontier":

. . . social justice is not incompatible with economic growth, but esstneial to it. A social organization premised on equity, security and participation will generate greater productivity than one premised on greed and fear. Collaboration and collective adaptation are coming to be more important to an industrialized nation's well-being than are personal daring and ambition. And at an even more fundamental level, the goals of prosperity and social justice cannot validly be separated. America's well-being is a function of the quality of life enjoyed by all our citizens; it is only indirectly a function of abstract rates of investment and economic growth. Social concerns are the ends that economics seeks to serve. It is perverse to relegate them even implicitly to a separate and subordinate status.

America has a choice: It can adapt itself to the new economic realities by altering its organizations, or it can fail to adapt and thereby continue its present decline. Adaptation will be difficult. America's current patterns of organizations were once so successful that they have endured long after they have outlived their usefulness. To change the way we conduct our businesses — and our government implies a more general change of customs, attitudes and values which are parts of our cultural heritage. This more fundamental change is emotionally difficult. It becomes even more difficult as economic decline sets in because then change threatens the economic security of people who are desperately trying to hold onto what they have. A new consensus is difficult to achieve when each person seeks to preserve his standard of living but finds that he can only do so at the expense of someone else. But failure to adapt will rend the social fabric irreparably. Adaptation is America's challenge.

Words Speak Louder

Following editorial comment is from the International Falls Daily Journal:

We are among those seriously sorry to see James Watt go.

Seriously, we say, because many of his critics are being facetious when they say they're sorry to see him resign as Interior secretary. Seriously, we say, because the man's accomplishments should have outweighed his words.

When Watt went to Washington two and one-half years ago, the environmental movement had gone crazy. Watt returned some of the balance through his deeds, and yes, his words.

True, Watt suffered from foot-in-mouth disease, commenting outrageously on issues that had nothing to do with interior matters. But much of what he said was the refreshing truth — to the chagrin of super-sensitive congressmen, environmentalists and newspaper editorial writers.

It was inevitable that he would be nailed. Words speak louder than deeds in Washington.

Interesting Opinions:

"God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it."

—Daniel Webster

"Liberty has never come from the government. . . .The history of liberty is the history of the limitations of governmental power, not the increase of it."

—Woodrow Wilson—

Borrowed Nonsense:

The seven-year-old girl arrived home with her first report card of the year, sobbing bitterly. "Look," she said, pointing to the identification material at the top of the card, "they gave me an F in sex and we don't even start the chapter until next week."

President Reagan On Bible Week

In designating November 20-27 as National Bible Week, President Ronald Reagan issued the following message:

The 1983 National Bible Week observance is especially important because it culminates the Year of the Bible, a nationwide celebration of the importance of the Bible in the lives of the American people.

President Reagan

This great land was founded on the principles espoused in the Holy Bible, and our people live by its teachings today. From the time of our earliest and most humble origins, the Bible has played a vital role in our lives, providing comfort and guiding our pathways. It has served as a constant inspiration to our citizens and a source of strength to our leaders. President Jackson called the Bible "the rock on which our Republic rests."

Though the problems we face today are different and in many respects more complex than those which confronted the Founding Fathers, we continue to need the spirit, faith and wisdom which the Bible provides. These attributes are an essential part of America's greatness. Only by forging a foundation of spiritual resolve can we claim the blessings and promises of God. As President Calvin Coolidge wrote, "If American democracy is to remain the greatest hope of humanity, it must continue abundantly in the faith of the Bible."

As we observe this National Bible Week, let us pledge ourselves always to be mindful of the generous Heavenly Father from whom all blessings flow. Let us continue to work diligently to preserve our heritage of freedom and to pray that someday it may be enjoyed by all the peoples of the planet Earth.

Looking Backward

1923 — 60 YEARS AGO

Rev. H.M. Weakland, assistant pastor of St. Bernard's church, will deliver the Armistice Day address here. — Mayor John Bratrud returned from a trip to Iowa. — Nearly 600 local people attended a lyceum presentation of the opera "Faust" in the city auditorium.

1933 — 50 YEARS AGO

Harold N. Elofson opened a jewelry store on Third Street. — The "Royal Scot," famous British passenger train, was inspected by hundreds of local citizens when it stopped briefly at the Soo depot. — Total tax rate for the city for 1943 is 105.5 mills, county auditor Harry L. Fowler announced. — A.J. McGuire, general manager of Land O'Lakes Creameries, died in a St. Paul hospital.

1943 — 40 YEARS AGO

Paul Engelstad of Thief River Falls was named general superintendent of the Red River Valley Winter Shows for 1944. — With a turnout of only 1,071 voters, W.J. Douville was elected mayor, defeating Harry Kinghorn, incumbent, by a margin of 47 votes. — Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Barstad were honored at the Silverton church on their golden wedding day.

1953 — 30 years ago

First traffic death in Thief River Falls in five years was recorded when James Wilson, 84, died of injuries suffered when he was struck by a slow-moving car on Main Avenue at Third Street. — Mrs. Agnes Israelson was elected mayor and four new aldermen were named in the city election, with a total of 2,319 votes being cast. — Mrs. Edwin Hanson of Rocksbury was elected president of the Pennington Co. 4-H Leaeers Council. E.A. Hammerski was named to head the blood bank now being organized here. — Union State Bank was host at an open house to celebrate the completion of an extensive remodeling project. — Mr. and Mrs. Ole Moen celebrated their golden wedding. — C.W. Pope, director of the Thief River Falls area vocational school, was named vice president of the Minnesota Vocational Association.

1963 — 20 YEARS AGO

In the only individual ward contest, Robert Carlson unseated incumbent Elmer B. Benson in the Thief River Falls city elections. — A plea to have an American flag flying at every home and business or industrial firm in Thief River Falls on Veterans Day was voiced by Commander Orville M. Hanson of Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion in Thief River Falls.

1973 — 10 YEARS AGO

A turn-out of 1,627 voters trekked to the polls, electing Robert Carlson, unopposed, as mayor, succeeding A.E. Jacobson, present mayor who chose not to seek reelection. — Certificate of merit, was presented by the state of Minnesota to J. O. Haroldson, who has retired as manager of Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area. — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murphy of Thief River Falls observed their 50th wedding anniversary. — Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls is now in the process of becoming the first snowmobile manufacturer to produce down-lined garments in its own plant. — Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klockman were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary.

ASK YOUR STATE PATROL

Q. Recently a friend of mine got a warning ticket for following too closely. He was pulling a travel trailer and following a friend. The trooper said that my friend had to maintain a 500 foot interval. Is this true?

A. V., Montevideo

Col. Roger Ledding

A. The law applies to drivers of all motor vehicles pulling another vehicle, and to drivers of trucks. The rule applies when traveling outside a business or residential district, but does not prohibit passing or overtaking. The law does apply to motorists pulling trailers.

Q. I have an old Buick with collector plates on it. If my regular car breaks down, can I use the Buick to drive to work, even though collector plates are not for normal use?

C. S., New Ulm

A. No. Cars with collector plates can be used for parades, in driving to and from car club events and for an occasional Sunday outing. If used for any general transportation purpose, the driver is subject to a fine and the collector plates may be revoked.

Of interest last week. . .

The new maximum width for vehicles is 102 inches (8 feet, 6 inches). Questions about this new regulation came up quite often in connection with building homemade trailers. The former maximum width was 8 feet, overall.

Remember. . .

A traffic ticket or summons must be answered in court, regardless of whether you feel it was issued unfairly, unjustly or improperly. If you ignore it, a warrant will be issued for your arrest. Be sure to contact the court within the allotted time shown on the ticket.

It's the law. . .

Passengers on motorcycles must be able to reach the foot pegs. Minnesota law requires passengers to ride on seats attached to the motorcycle for that purpose, and to place their feet on the foot pegs installed for passengers.

Need information? The State Patrol will gladly answer your questions on Minnesota laws of interest to motorists. Write: ASK THE STATE PATROL, 2795 Highway 55, Eagan, MN 55121, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply. Only one question per letter, please.

He Thought That Drinking Wouldn't Make Any Difference, Even Though He Was on a New Medication. But It Did.

Now he knows that alcohol and some medicines don't mix. In fact, more than half the 100 most prescribed drugs have at least one ingredient that can cause trouble if taken while drinking alcohol. The result of mixing these drugs (alcohol is a drug) may be no more than simple temporary illness, but some combinations can be dangerous, even deadly.

So, don't make a test tube out of your body. Be sure to tell your doctor or druggist about any medications you are taking and be sure to ask about the consequences of mixing a newly prescribed drug with alcohol.

Also, make it a habit to check the label carefully when you get a drug, whether it's a prescription or over-the-counter medication.

And when you get any prescription, be sure you know—

- The name of the drug
- Its purpose—what conditions does it treat?
- How and when to take the drug—and when to stop taking it
- What food, drinks and other drugs to avoid while taking it
- What side effects may result—are they serious, short-term, long-term, etc.?

If you have any questions about your prescription, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

My broadcast engineer, Gerry Parnell, told me that the latest air edition tape of "Straight Talk" was number 104. That meant that "Straight Talk" is beginning its third year of weekly "visits" to what is now 42 states and hundreds of newspapers and radio stations.

What have I learned over this past two years?

I enjoyed "visiting," but I am disappointed at the intolerant attitudes of many people who are not willing to listen to ideas with which they do not agree, even if these ideas are proposed by other Americans.

For example, I discussed the auto industry and its problems, costs that are too high for international competition. I repeated the same charge about the steel industry. If you look at the 1982 government data, the problem is easy to see: (1) The average hourly auto labor rate in the USA is $19.40 versus $7.25 in Japan and $12.90 in Germany; (2) The average hourly steel labor rate in the USA is $22.70 versus $10.20 in Japan and $11.20 in Germany; and (3) USA productivity was not equal to that of Japan or Germany, and has increased at less than two per cent per year over the past decade, versus about six per cent in Japan and more than four per cent in Germany. Translated that means in autos and steel we aren't earning our way and we can not effectively compete.

These facts indicate that our auto and steel workers are overpaid for what they do, and that includes the managements that let this happen. Part of the problem is the need for more efficient plants and equipment. The other part of the problem is "poor negotiation by management with labor, and a lack of understanding of what "gouged" wage increases really mean over the long haul.

The letters received on this subject were shocking. Few discussed facts. Most attacked educators, the area where I presently live, and me.

A number of columns discussed skyrocketing health care costs, starting two years ago. These costs have been inflating at multiples of the cost of living, and the industry has not shown the interest and concern I believe is needed immediately. I also mentioned that the same services in the same communities are available, from doctors and hospitals, at costs that can vary 100 per cent or more.

Instead of hitting at the significant issue, what can be done to reduce health care costs to affordable levels, there were aggressive attacks on me, not the problem. Frank health care industry leaders have even been more critical, and every significant publication plus the broadcasters have featured the general lack of action and results by health care industry leaders.

Like most of you, I liked being loved and personal pokes that people write are disturbing, particularly when they have nothing to do with the discussion subject.

Even more disturbing, though, is the demonstrated lack of understanding of the American and world business systems. Many Americans do not realize that we live in a competitive world and that our costs and prices must allow us to compete. Few understand that business profits are very small, one to four cents out of each sales dollar, after taxes, with most of that profit needed for business growth and development including new plants, more productive equipment, and the financing of receivables and inventory. I am concerned that Americans can be exposed to 12 to 16 years of education and not understand how our business system works.

My objective in "Straight Talk" is arousing my fellow Americans to think. They have the right to draw their own conclusions, just as I have the right (and, I believe, an obligation) to speak out. Whether we agree or disagree, I also believe that we have the obligation to be both tolerant and respectful. I am shocked by those who attempt to squelch free speech, one way or the other!

That's Straight Talk!

Beware Of Rats Seeking A Home

Keep rat problems under control by keeping garbage in covered cans, food in closed containers, and an effective rodenticide in hard-to-reach areas where rodents may hide.

Now is the time for homeowners to pull in the welcome mat and take precautions against permitting their homes to become havens for dangerous and destructive rat populations, experts advise.

Rats and mice are carriers of some 35 different diseases. They have caused the American farm industry to lose millions of dollars each year. The gnawing required to keep their teeth from growing an incredible five inches per year can damage furniture, ceiling and wall insulation and wooden moulding. Rats also have been known to start fires by gnawing electrical wire.

One reason these dangerous problems often go unnoticed is that homeowners may not realize they are harboring sizable rodent infestations. For every rat a person actually sees, there may be dozens more in hiding.

Signs such as greasy, oily smears along walls and gnawed electrical wires and moulding may signal the start of a rodent infestation and the need for a rodent control program.

The most effective control programs involve good general sanitation—keep all garbage in covered cans and food in closed containers—and an effective and tested baiting method, such as Purina Rat Control Pellets. Rat Control Pellets are available from local Purina dealers in four-ounce "Place Packs," which can be placed in hard-to-reach niches easily accessible to rodents. Homeowners can make their own "bait stations"—small bait-holding containers—using large-lid jars, ice cream containers or pie pans. They can then take advantage of bulk bait packaged in one- and five-pound bags.

Bait stations should be checked daily and replenished when empty. When dead rats are found—usually four to seven days after baiting has begun—they should be disposed of immediately.

Although a rodent problem may seem under control, bait should always be available for new rodents that may appear. Only through constant care can homeowners be assured of a rodent-free, clean and safe environment.

Zesty Dinners For Two

When you see a nice cut of beef in the market at a good price, think in terms of several delicious meals for two and beat the high cost of living. For example, one beef round, inexpensive and boneless, tenderized in marinades based on sparkling grapefruit juice from Florida, can yield three interesting meals for two.

Cut one-third of a 2 1/4 pound roast into one-inch cubes and marinate in grapefruit juice, soy sauce, salad oil, molasses and seasonings to make Spicy Skewered Beef. Broil for just 10 to 15 minutes for a sensational treat.

A completely different approach is used for the remaining meat. Dixie Beef Stew is marinated in garlic-spiced grapefruit juice which is then combined with brown sugar, vinegar and herbs and used to braise the meat gently with vegetables. The grapefruit juice from Florida breaks down much of the beef's fiber, so that cooking time is less. And, the one-pot dinner makes clean-up easy. The recipe makes four servings but since the stew freezes beautifully, leftovers will provide another thoroughly satisfying dinner when time is limited.

Spicy Skewered Beef

1	cup grapefruit juice from Florida
2	tablespoons chopped scallions
2	tablespoons soy sauce
1	clove garlic, minced
2	teaspoons salad oil
2	teaspoons molasses
1	teaspoon ginger
1/2	teaspoon salt
3/4	pound beef round, cut in 1-inch cubes
1	green pepper, cut in 1-inch pieces
1	tomato, cut in 1-inch pieces
1	large onion, cut in 1-inch pieces

Combine first 8 ingredients in medium bowl; mix well. Add beef cubes; refrigerate overnight, turning beef once. Remove beef from marinade; string on skewers, alternating with green pepper, tomato and onion pieces. Brush beef and vegetables with marinade. Broil 10 to 15 minutes, turning to brown all sides. Baste with remaining marinade during broiling. Serve with hot cooked rice, if desired.

YIELD: 2 servings.

Dixie Beef Stew

1	cup grapefruit juice from Florida
1	teaspoon salt
1	clove garlic, minced
1 1/2	pounds beef round, cut in 1-inch cubes
2	tablespoons salad oil
1	large green pepper, cut up
1	large onion, sliced
1	cup chopped fresh tomato
2	tablespoons brown sugar
1	tablespoon red wine vinegar
1	teaspoon dried leaf rosemary
1	bay leaf, crumbled
1/2	cup sliced, pitted ripe olives

Combine grapefruit juice, salt and garlic in large bowl. Add beef cubes; refrigerate overnight. Drain beef, reserving marinade. Heat oil in heavy kettle or Dutch oven. Brown beef on all sides; add green pepper and onion; saute 3 minutes. Add tomato. Combine reserved marinade with brown sugar, vinegar, rosemary and bay leaf. Add to beef. Cover, simmer 45 minutes or until beef is tender. Add olives, simmer 5 minutes longer.

YIELD: 4 servings.

Index Of Farm Prices Is Up From Year Ago

Mid-October index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 140 was down one per cent from September but was 12 per cent above a year, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics services. Prices for crops were up except for corn, soybeans and potatoes, which were down, and all hay and sunflowers, which were steady.

Livestock commodity prices were down except for lambs, all milk and table market eggs, which were up, and turkeys, which were steady. Prices received by farmers for sheep were the lowest since August of 1975; replacement milk cows, since February of 1979; prices received for barley were the highest since June of 1981.

The crops index fell one per cent to 148 during the month but was 44 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-October prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.88 per bushel, up nine cents from the revised September estimate; corn, $3.10 per bushel, down nine cents; oats, $1.66 per bushel, up 16 cents; barley, $2.45 per bushel, up seven cents; soybeans, $8.04 per bushel, down one cent and flaxseed, $7.02 per bushel, up eight cents.

Potatoes averaged $5.50 per hundredweight for all grades, down $1.50. All hay was steady at $68.00 per ton; alfalfa hay at $70 per ton was unchanged and other hay at $52 per ton was up $3. All sunflowers at $14.10 per hundredweight were unchanged from the revised September price. Dry edible beans were up 60 cents to $25.50.

The meat animal index at 122 was five per cent below last month and 17 per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $40.60 per hundredweight were down $4 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $44.70 per hundredweight, down 90 cents. Calves were down 70 cents to $55 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $9.80 per hundredweight, down $1.60. Lambs were up $4.40 to $54.20 per hundredweight.

The dairy index rose three per cent during the month to 150, matching the index level of last year. The preliminary milk price at $13.20 per hundredweight, was up 30 cents from the revised September price.

The poultry and egg index at 116 was up five per cent from last month but three per cent below a year ago. Turkeys were 35 cents per pound liveweight, unchanged from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 58 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-October, up six cents from mid-September and 12 cents above a year earlier.

Votes For Plan To Improve '84 Wheat Program

Congressman Arlan Stangeland voted Tuesday for a plan to alter the 1984 wheat program which had been offered earlier by secretary of agriculture John Block.

The new plan, which passed by a voice vote in the House agriculture committee, was markedly different from the administration's earlier offer.

Provisions of the House plan include the following with the comparative provisions of the Block plan listed in parentheses: Acreage of paid diversion, 10 per cent (0 per cent); acreage for acreage reduction program, 20 per cent (30 per cent); acreage for payment-in-king program, 10-20 per cent (10-20 per cent); per cent of production as payment to farmers, 85 per cent (75 per cent); advance payment for deficiency and diversion, yes (no); allow haying on conservation use acres, yes (no); participants' 1984 target price per bushel $4.38 ($4.45).

"Participating farmers will earn $8.61 per acre under the House plan, according to private experts," Congressman Stangeland said. "They also estimate that market prices would be 20 to 25 cents higher under the House plan because they say the Block plan would increase the 1984 wheat carry-over by 200 million bushels."

Estimates are that 62 per cent of wheat growers would be expected to sign up for the House plan while only 48 per cent would sign up for the Block plan.

"The House plan also allows participating farmers to hay conservation use acres and to get advance deficiency and diversion payments," Congressman Stangeland said. "The Block plan had none of those provisions."

The four-term House veteran acknowledged that target prices would have increased more under the Block plan.

"But it is the incentives of the House plan and their impact on market prices that matter most," he said. "Unless you have broad participation in the 1984 program, the carry-over will increase and prices will be depressed for every farmer.

"More farmers are likely to participate in the House Plan because it gives them more protections, a better net return, and improves their chances for better market prices," he said.

Congressman Stangeland was encouraged to vote for the House compromise by the National Association of Wheat Growers.

Two Exhibits To Be Shown At Northland

Northland community college will host two exhibits from November 2 to December 2 from 8 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

One exhibit is from the Tweed museum of art at the University of Minnesota, Duluth. This exhibit features a fine collection of water-colors including gouache and tempra paintings.

Second exhibit is a group of transparent watercolors by Frances Karlsson of Roseau. Mrs. Karlsson will have 14 pieces in this collection. She is a former commercial artist, now devoting her efforts to watercolor. In addition to attending the American academy of art in Chicago, she has taken courses at Northland community college. For the last eight years she has studied with noted teachers at workshops ranging from Bemidji to the coast of Maine.

Her work is represented in collections of libraries, colleges, businesses and individuals. Her goal, she stated, was to "see" farther, to make the commonplace become extraordinary.

Public is welcome to view these special exhibits.

Sen. 'Stunned' By Block View On Dairy Bill

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says he has vowed to stop a plan that would try to balance out the runaway costs of the dairy price support system through a simple cut in the support price.

Boschwitz said he was "stunned" Friday when secretary of agriculture John Block withdrew support for the Boschwitz compromise in favor of a plan that would cut the support price up to $1.50.

In fiscal year 1983 which ended September 30, the net cost of the dairy program (after revenue from the assessments was factored in) was $2.4 billion. Boschwitz had crafted an administration-backed compromise that would bring the cost of the program down to $1.019 billion (USDA estimate) for FY 1984 by focusing on the short-term budget concerns as well as the long-term problem of increased supply.

The $1.50 price cut would cost $1.695 billion — more than $600 million more than the Boschwitz plan. The compromise features a combination of a paid-diversion plan that would eliminate the burgeoning surplus — it would help to resore balance to the dairy market and do it without having to put dairymen out of business — a farmer-financed promotion system; and limited cuts in the price support level.

The Boschwitz compromise passed the Senate on October 7, but later lost by 20 votes on a procedural vote in the House of Representatives. A ruling in the House was expected this week that would allow the plan to come to a vote one more time.

"What's more," Boschwitz said, "The price cut is bad business and would most hurt small operations and young dairymen; the small guy lacks the economies of scale to absorb a price cut, and the young guy usually has to service the most expensive debt."

All that aside, Boschwitz maintains the plan won't work. "Simple arithmetic should tell us that," he said.

Boschwitz pointed out that a $1.50 cut in the $13.10 support price represents an 11.5 per cent cut. That would mean that the CCC would still purchase a very large quantity of dairy products at a somewhat reduced price.

"Big deal!" Boschwitz said. "That approach is still six times more than the program cost in 1979 before the recent production increases. Congress will respond by cutting the price even more. The only way to balance the books by adjusting the price is to keep going until you put enough farmers out of business."

"If you are a farmer barely making it on what you are getting now, and you see the price cut, you are going to produce more and more in the short run just to keep your cash flow up," Boschwitz said. "Most farmers are going to do that; and the surplus problem is going to persist. If anything it will worsen."

Project Charlie Aimed At Child Self Awareness

"It has been said that when a child enters kindergarden his or her self-esteem is as high as it will be during his or her school career. Tiny pieces are torn from the child's self-esteem daily. Once damaged, repair is difficult," states Pam Carlson, program coordinator for Project Charlie in Thief River Falls schools.

Project Charlie's program was developed in an attempt to prevent chemical use problems by raising self-esteem. At the same time, research and intuition may indicate the program may also be instrumental in preventing delinquency, truancy, or perhaps, someday, even divorce or child abuse.

In the meantime, success can be measured in many ways: a mother reports new and satisfying family communication; a teacher of six-year-olds sees more caring and fewer "Put-downs;" a sixth-grader says "I learned that I am important, no worse than anyone else. I am respected and know more about myself than anyone else now - before I wasn't sure. I know how to control myself and know what to do when I'm mad, sad or unhappy. Thanks."

Project Charlie will be incorporated in the classrooms of grades one through six. The goals of the program are: (1) To promote the social and emotional growth of children and thereby develop healthy, contributing members of society; (2) to provide assistance to school administrators and teachers in promoting an atmosphere of mutual respect and acceptance among students, between students and teacher, and within the school; and (3) to assist community members in applying the principles in prevention in their lives.

Carlson explained the program as follows:

"The curriculum encompasses four basic units — self awareness, relationships, decision-making and chemical use. Because low self-esteem is a characteristic of drug abusing youngsters, the self awareness unit stresses personal awareness of strengths and capabilities and expression of feelings. Drug abusing youngsters also seem unable to form and maintain meaningful relationships, and the relationship unit helps all children look at this area of their lives.

"The premise that many drug abusing youngsters have ineffective menthods of problem-solving and making decisions influenced the development of the decision-making unit. The children are encouraged to explore their personal values and learn to

'Chopin Lives' Concert Here Tuesday Night

"Chopin Lives" is the title for the Thief River Falls concert association concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Pianist Robert Guralnik will impersonate the early 19th century composer in a musical and dramatic presentation.

For years Guralnik has felt that performing musicians should find new ways to present themselves and music in order to remain viable in a rapidly changing world. He developed the "Chopin Lives" program along with a director of the New York university performing arts center over a two-year period. The result is termed ". . . a marriage of serious music to theater within the framework of the traditional recital."

Guralnik dresses in 19th century clothes and uses simple lighting effects to appear as Chopin himself, reminiscing about his time, his life and his music, playing a number of Chopin's compositions including mazurkas, waltzes, etudes, polanaises, scherzos, preludes, nocturnes and ballades.

He has given over 50 performances in the last two years and the present tour will bring Chopin to life in more than 30 communities in the North Central states. Admission is by season membership only.

Gov. Rudy Perpich

Commissioner Mark Dayton

Gov. Perpich, Mark Dayton Here Friday

Gov. Rudy Perpich, accompanied by Mark Dayton, commissioner of energy and economic development, will be in Thief River Falls Friday at two events hosted by Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

Gov. Perpich and Commissioner Dayton will be at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls from 4 to 5:30 p.m. to meet with local business and industrial people and others. Public participation is invited and special invitations have been sent to mayors of 17 area communities, chairmen of the county board of commissioners in Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties and members of the local chamber of commerce.

Following the 4 p.m. session, at which Gov. Perpich is expected to speak briefly on his recent efforts in international trade and the state's economic condition, he and Dayton will be special guests at a reception sponsored by Sen. Stumpf. That event is scheduled from 5 to 7 p.m., also at the Best Western inn.

TRF Will Host World Series Snocross Race

Thief River Falls will once again host world class snowmobile racing, Don Grabanski announced at a meeting Wednesday evening at Lon's restaurant and cocktail lounge. Scheduled for February 25 and 26, the race will be the first of that magnitude since the I-500 was discontinued several years ago.

Grabanski was one of the local coordinators of the I-500 race, and was appointed by the convention and tourism committee of the chamber of commerce to head the new race committee. Grabanski asked about 20 representatives of various areas of the community to assist in making arrangements for the race.

In making the announcement, Chamber of Commerce manager Jane Mackenroth noted that the convention and tourism committee had already approved an agreement with Tim Berg, president of Central Cross Country Inc. (CCC), establishing the dates of the race in the city. Contract which was signed by Chamber President Stan Upham will obligate the chamber to pay approximately $4,000 to the Minnesota based racing association. Grants for approximately 50 per cent of that funding have been applied for from the state department of tourism.

Race will be the grand finale for the Schmidt cross country racing circuit, which will include 10 previous races throughout the Midwest this winter. Drivers from across

Veterans Day Program Brings Out Good Crowd

Despite cold temperatures, a good turnout of veterans, their families and others was noted for the Veterans Day observance conducted Friday at the flagpole on the east side of the Veterans of Foreign Wars club rooms in Thief River Falls. A parade from the American Legion club rooms to the VFW club preceded the ceremonies.

Mrs. Donna Olson coordinated the event for the cooperating local veterans organizations. The parade included a police squad car, a car carrying WWI veteran Joe Rinowski as parade marshal, color guards from the VFW and Legion and their auxiliaries and the Cooties pup tent and auxiliary, Mayor Bob Carlson, army recruiter, other veterans and auxiliary members, Boy scouts and Girl scouts, bugler Mark Lehrer, drummers Christy Finney and Michelle Olson, and a riderless horse owned and led by Loralee Iverson.

Commander Bob Anderson of the VFW served as master of ceremonies for the program. Invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Berton R. Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church and greetings or comments were provided by Legion commander Fred Dallmann, VFW auxiliary president Edna McEnelly and American Legion auxiliary president Karen Fredrickson. Taps was played by bugler Mark Lehrer and student from St. Bernard's parochial school under the direction of Sister Caroline sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Among the 10 lowest counties in median family income in Minnesota for income year 1981, half are in the 11 extreme northwestern counties of the state, according to the state demographer's office in the state planning agency.

Clearwater county is lowest in the state with a median family income for 1981 of $11,000 while Mahnomen county is second at $11,786. Red Lake county is sixth at $12,925, Marshall county eighth at $13,316 and Roseau county ninth at $13,527.

Other counties in the bottom 10 include Aitkin, third at $11,792; Lincoln, fourth at $12,303; Cass, fifth at $12,919; Todd, seventh at $12,061; and Pipestone, 10th at $13,712.

Among the 11 northwestern Minnesota counties, Polk county leads in median family income with $18,276, followed by Pennington, $17,341; Norman, $15,904; Beltrami, $15,819; Kittson, $15,760; and Lake of the Woods, $14,136.

Every county in the 11-county area is well below the state median family income of $23,230, according to the state demographer's figures. Highest county in the state is Washington county at $29,262, followed by Dakota at $29,215 and Hennepin at $28,122.

When incomes of married couples are compared on the same basis, Clearwater county is still lowest in the state at $11,476, followed by Mahnomen at $12,302 and Aitkin at $12,482. Polk county again leads the northwestern area at $19,115, followed by Pennington at $18,244 and Beltrami at $17,007. State median for married couples is $24,627 with Dakota county highest at $30,778, Washington second at $30,633 and Hennepin third at $30,350.

While it is not surprising that the highest reported median income for married couple filers is found in the seven-county Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area (which includes about half of the state's population;, it is somewhat surprising that northeastern Minnesota — which includes the Iron Range and city of Duluth — is second highest at $23,877.

The state demographer's population notes also include average income statistics for families in which both spouses are under 65 years of age, those in which spouses are 65 years of age or older, and "other" families which includes single-parent families with children under age 18. How northwestern Minnesota's 11 counties compare with the state median can be seen in the table accompanying this article.

Some of the comments made by the state demographer in reviewing the 1981 income statistics include the following:

While the income of Minnesota families continued to increase in 1981, striking differences in income by

Arctco To End Production Run During Week

Arctco, Inc., in Thief River Falls expects to complete its manufacturing run of 1984 model snowmobiles this week, according to Chris Twomey, director of corporate administration for the company.

Twomey said that the firm is completing production of about 2,700 snowmobiles in the Panther and El Tigre models. Dealers seem to have been pleased with the models, he noted, and public acceptance has been good. Recent snowfall in the primary sales areas is expected to be a boom to customer sales.

Officials of Arctco are pleased with the results of the initial year of operations and looking forward to the 1985 model year when production is expected to approximately double.

School Board Meets Tonight At Lincoln HS

Regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education will be conducted tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Public attendance at the meeting is encouraged as an additional observance of American Education week.

Among items of general interest on the agenda are Project Charlie, a program on self-esteem and chemical abuse prevention which will begin soon in grades one through six, and discussion of the Minnesota survey on drug use.

Report will also be given by the facilities advisory committee and discussion held on establishment of an excellence in education committee and developing improved communications with parents, staff, administration and board.

Co. Veterans Share $880,906 In '82 Benefits

Military veterans in Pennington county shared $880,906 in Veterans administration benefits during fiscal year 1982 — part of a total of $407.9 million distributed in Minnesota — an increase of $25.2 million over the previous year and highest in the state's history.

The Pennington county total included $687,068 in compensation and pension, $105,084 in readjustment and vocational rehabilitation, and $88,754 in insurance and indemnities.

Distribution in Marshall county totaled an estimated $671,356 which included $523,629 in compensation and pension, $80,086 in readjustment and vocational rehabiliation and $67,641 in insurance and indemnities.

Red Lake county distribution of $217,587 included $169,709 in compensation and pension, $25,956 in readjustment and vocational rehabilitation and $21,922 in insurance and indemnities.

Roseau county total of $606,031 included $472,677 in compensation and pension, $72,294 in readjustment and vocational rehabilitation and $61,060 in insurance and indemnities.

Morris Nooner Jr., director of the VA regional office and insurance center at Fort Snelling, said the largest portion of the state disbursement — $201.5 million — represented disability compensation and pension checks to veterans, their dependents and survivors.

Approximately $30.8 million provided for GI bill educational and vocational rehabilitation programs for Minnesota veterans, and $146.4 million went toward VA medical services and administrative costs, he said.

The remainder was expected for GI insurance and indemnities ($26 million), direct home loans ($161,093), an construction and related costs ($3 million).

An estimated 525,000 veterans live in Minnesota. The VA has six facilities in the state, including medical centers in Minneapolis and St. Cloud, and a regional office and insurance center, data processing center and national cemetery, all at Fort Snelling. A vet center established to assist Vietnam-era veterans is located at 2480 University Avenue, St. Paul.

In Hennepin county, disbursements totaled over $192 million, of which $57.4 million was paid in the form of compensation and pensions, and $115.5 million for VA medical services and administrative costs at the Minneapolis VA medical center. Another $8.8 million was expended for veterans' schooling and vocational rehabilitation programs, and $7.4 million for insurance and indemnities, Nooner said.

In Ramsey county, the VA expended $35.2 million, with $27.5 million for compensation and pension benefits, $4.2 million for GI bill education and rehabilitation and $3.5 million for insurance and indemnities.

Start Calendar Parking Plan Here Tuesday

Beginning Tuesday, calendar parking will go into effect in Thief River Falls and continue in effect until March 15, 1984, according to Chief Ken Froschheiser of the Thief River Falls police department.

Under the calendar parking ordinance, vehicles may not be parked on avenues (north and south routes) between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nor on streets (east and west routes) during the same hours on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Purpose of the restriction is to provide for effective snow removal.

The police department will enforce the calendar parking ordinance on a daily basis and cars illegally parked will be ticketed. If the cars are illegally parked during actual snow removal, they will be towed away at the owner's expense.

The parking ordinance is in effect throughout the city although signs to that effect are not posted in residential areas. Chief Froschheiser said that thoroughfares which do not conform to the east-west or north-south pattern of streets and avenues will be treated as streets and subject to the Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday restrictions.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Collier-Johnson Vows Exchanged In Michigan

Rhonda Karen Collier and Gary Scott Johnson exchanged marriage vows at a 10:00 a.m. ceremony at the Berrien Springs Village Seventh-Day Adventist church at Berrien Springs, Mich.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Collier of Berrien Springs. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Johnson of rural Thief River Falls.

Rev. Paul Cannon officiated at the ceremony attended by approximately 160 relatives and guests. Ricl Vorrath, a friend of the bride, was the organist, playing "Recessional" from "Sound of Music" as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Selections sung by Brad and Dee McIntyre were "I Could Never Promise You," and "Love is a Gift."

Forming the chancel setting were spiral candelabra and a Trinity candle. The center aisle was lighted by candles on every other pew.

The bride was attired in a white dotted organza gown trimmed with Venice lace and a satin belt designed with a chapel-length train. A corresponding wide-brimmed hat with matching lace and seed pearls held her veil of bridal illusion. She carried white orchids, white carnations and blue roses.

Maid of honor was Chris Sanderson, Lafayette, Colo., a cousin of the bride. Other attendants were Melody Collier, sister-in-law of the bride, and Heidi Herr, a friend. Both are residents of Barrien Springs. Their tea-length gowns of light blue silk were topped by white overdressed with light blue satin belts. In their hair they wore a cluster of babies' breath in white and blue. They carried bouquets of white orchids surrounded by light blue forget-me-nots.

Flower girl was Amanda Sanderson, Lafayette, Colo., a cousin of the bride. Her light blue gown with white polka dots was trimmed with white lace on the collar, sleeves and hemline.

Attending the groom as best man was his cousin, Craig Farbo of Thief River Falls. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers: Dean Johnson of Berrien Springs, and Keith Johnson of Minneapolis. Serving as ushers were Bill Herr, Errol Mang, friends of the couple, and Doug Collier, cousin of the bride, all of Berrien Springs. The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails and his attendants were attired in light blue tuxedos with white shirts and ascots. Their boutonnieres were white carnations tipped in blue.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Collier wore a pink crepe street length dress trimmed with pink satin collar, cuffs, belt and hemline. An armband of three pink orchids complemented her attire. Three white orchids accented the pale yellow street-length dress worn by Mrs. Johnson.

Honor guest were the bride's grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Odon Collier, and her great-grandmothers: Lordia Collier, 92, and Hattie Wood, 97.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a brunch at the Travel Inn motel at Benton Harbor, Mich. Host and hostess at the catered reception were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Moore, friends of the bride's parents. The bride's cousin Eldonna Andrus presided at the gift table.

The apple flavored, four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue hearts and topped by a blown glass heart-shaped ornament.

For going away, the bride wore culotte attire of an overall heart print in multicolors.

Following a wedding trip to Pennsylvania, Niagara Falls, Mackinac Island and Thief River Falls, the couple is at home at Rt. 1, Box 562 A, Union Pier, Mich.

The bride is a graduate of Andrews Academy, and prior to her marriage, was employed by Heritage Bank. The groom is a graduate of Maplewood Academy and Andrews University. He is employed by Bank of Three Oaks. Photo, Rick Stone, Stevensville, Mich.

All Officers Reelected By Campanula Club

Officers were elected, reports were given and the Christmas party was planned when members of the Campanula garden club met November 9 at the Northwest Library meeting room.

At the election of officers, all present officers were elected by another term. They are Ruth Holmes, president; Edith Franson, vice president; Eleanor Tornes, secretary; Olga Johnson, treasurer; Marie Fischer, advisor; Geneva Overum, publicity; Edith Franson, chairman of the calling committee; Geneva Overum, historian; Bernice Knutson, good cheer chairman; and Ruth Holmes, librarian.

President Ruth Holmes presided at the meeting and heard the regular reports by the secretary, treasurer and good cheer chairman. The eight members attending answered roll call by giving information about the vases they displayed. They also read in unison the garden club creed and the November poem.

Report on the 4-H club awards night was given by Mrs. Holmes and Geneva Overum. It was noted that Brenda Russell had been the recipient of a book, the Campanula Garden club award. Mrs. Holmes had made the presentation. The report on the 4-H council appreciation luncheon at the city auditorium and the flower forcing lecture given by Kittson County agent at the Pennington county court house was given by Geneva Overum.

The club's monthly study of a plant mentioned in the Bible was given by Eleanor Tornes. For her study, she selected the mustard. In addition, she gave an illustrated demonstration on Thanksgiving and Christmas arrangements.

Members welcomed Mrs. Sheryl Novacek into the club, signed a sympathy card for Mrs. Marie Fischer and contributed towards a memorial. Members also paid their dues for 1984.

The Christmas party was planned. The event will be held December 14 at the home of Geneva Overum with Olga Johnson and Ellen Peterson as co-hostesses. Gifts will be exchanged. All members will participate in the program.

Lunch was served by Edith Franson, Ruth Holmes and Geneva Overum.

Senior Citizen Dance Scheduled For Thursday

Regular senior citizen dance will be held Thursday at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Dancing will be from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m., with music provided by the Smokey Mt. Boys.

All senior citizens in the area are welcome to attend this last dance of 1983. There will be no dance in December.

Squarenaders to Dance Friday at Crookston

Crookston squarenaders will dance Friday at 8:00 p.m. at the Lincoln school gymnasium in Crookston. Dave Muir will call the tips. Lunch will be served.

All area dancers and spectators are welcome to attend.

Lakeside Twirlers To Dance At Erskine

Erskine Lakeside Twirlers will dance Saturday in the multi-purpose room of the Erskine school. Larry Hetrick will call the tips. Lunch will be served.

This dance is open to all square dancers and spectators.

Martha Circle, Holt, To Meet at Ness Home

Martha circle of the Nazareth Lutheran church, Holt, will meet Tuesday, November 15, at the Christine Ness home. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 2:00 p.m.

All members are encouraged to attend.

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Two new residents are welcomed at Valley Home during the month of October, according to a monthly report submitted by Ella Overum, the Home's reporter.

New residents welcomed were Lottie Lundeen and George Lindbeck.

Miss Overum also stated that eight residents noted birthdays in October and were guests of honor at the monthly birthday party hosted by the Home on October 21. The birthday honorees were seated at a decorated table and were presented with cards and a cash gift from the Home, as well as birthday cards from the Catholic Daughters. Lunch featured doughnuts and ice cream, provided by Amanda Peterson, whose birthday was that day; and chocolate topping, provided by Marie Larson, whose birthday was October 13. Special guests at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Peterson of Alvarado, who showed slides of the Viking ship "The Hjemkomst", built by Mr. Peterson's brother, the late Bob Asp.

Residents noting birthdays in October and the dates were Barbara Votava, October 1; Parnel Hasby, October 7; Clardina Terrian, October 12; Marie Larson, October 13; Amanda Peterson, October 21; Betsey Pearson and Olga Christianson, both on October 22 and Carl Ekwall, October 23.

On their respective birthdays, Clardina Terrain served ice cream, doughnuts and chocolate topping; Olga Christianson served birthday cake to all the residents, and Carl Ekwall was honored at a private party.

Devotional services at the Home were led during the month by Rev. Raynard Huglen of Newfolden, Lester Brekke, Rev. Ollie Urdahl and singers, Willie Waterworth, his daughter, daughter-in-law and granddaughter of Newfolden; Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church, who offered Holy Communion, Rev. Bernard Llewellin of the United Methodist church, and Dean Benson of the Assemblies of God church, who was accompanied by Naomi Zak, who led the singing.

Tuesday evening services were led by the Lowell Trochmanns, Norris Trochmann and Laurie, Dean Paskewitz, Don Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and Gary Ellingson. Bible studies were led by Judith Wold and Tim Trudeau, intern pastor at the Evangelical Free church. Mass was offered weekly by the priests of St. Bernard's Catholic parish; and Friday morning devotionals were led by Harvey Dyrud.

Special activities included Christian movies shown by Rev. Arthur Ortman of Warroad, a program by the Hoot N Toots of Viking with a large number of visitors attending the program; a visit from the Senior Citizens of Redeemer Lutheran church, who visited with the residents and served afternoon lunch; a program by the Happy Seniors Rhythm band; and a program by members of the Glory circle of Zion Lutheran church of Viking, who was accompanied by their pastor Bob Moberg. He played the guitar, led the singing and spoke briefly. The group served an assortment of sweet breads for the afternoon lunch.

Edna Johnson and Jenny Lane of Sanders 4-H club presented a soap demonstration and distributed samples; Rev. and Mrs. Don Nelson of JKNP radii station at the North Pole and Alaska, who sang and told of their experiences in their radio ministry in Alaska; and Bud Hornberg of Park Rapids, who presented a piano recital.

Bible study was led one morning by Rev. Willmore Gunderson of Cooperstown, N.D., who was holding evangelistic services at Our Saviour's Lutheran church. He also sang several hymns in English and Norwegian.

Three separate groups visited the Home on October 31. In the morning a large group from the Discovery Place, together with their teachers, visited the Home. All were in Halloween costumes.

They presented a program and distributed candy and other goodies. Later that day, the CAP students; Michelle Hovet, Teri Klopp and Jennifer Glass gave a program and were in charge of various contests, such as pinning the nose on a pumpkin, and guessing the number of candy corn in a jar with Emil Johnson and Alma Hawky guessing the closest to the right number. In the Halloween costume contest, Carl Ryan, Hilda Johnson and Selma Peterson won pies for the best costumes. Following the program the CAP students served cookies and bars.

In the afternoon, members of St. Bernard's Ladies guild visited with the residents and served homemade doughnuts.

The monthly bowling game with Oakland Park Nursing home team was played at Oakland Park. The Valley Home team won the events, taking home the traveling rabbit trophy donated by Valley Home.

Other activities included a rummage sale, dart ball, shuffle board, band and choir practice, movies with pop corn and craft work.

Chat And Chew Discuss Energy Saving Windows

Energy efficient window treatments was the topic discussed at the meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club held November 8 at the Gerald DeHaan home.

Wanda Murphy served as topic leader. The eight members attending the meeting participated in the discussion by sharing what they had done to conserve energy. At the conclusion of the discussion, Mrs. Murphy distributed pamphlets on the subject. She also reported on the meeting of the Pennington County Homemakers council.

Vice President Betty DeHaan presided at the meeting. Marian Williams read the new homemakers creed and the financial statement, and Geneva Overum gave the report of the October meeting.

Plans were made for the next meeting to be held December 13 at 12:30 p.m., at the home of Wanda Murphy. The event, a Christmas party, will include a gift exchange and a pot luck luncheon.

Following a dessert lunch served by the hostess, members viewed the gifts brought for the patients at the Fergus Falls hospital. Carol Narverud volunteered to be in charge of mailing the package.

Set Baby Shower For Katrina Ann Johnson

Katrina Ann Johnson will be honored at a baby shower on Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dwight I. Johnson. All friends and relatives are welcome.

Sons of Norway, Snorre Lodge, To Meet Wed.

Snorre lodge 70 of the Sons of Norway will meet November 16 at 8 p.m. at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls.

Lunch will be served and the public is welcome.

DAVE ODETTE, left, chairman of the Thief River Falls United Way campaign, was presented with a certificate for the organization, from the Minnesota Medical Foundation, in appreciation of exceptional leadership in the support of medical research in Minnesota. Presentation was made by Dr. Don Douglas, radiologist, on behalf of the medical staff of the hospital.

Norma Johnson County Farm Woman Of Year

Mrs. Gary (Norma) Johnson, rural Goodridge, was named 1983 Pennington county farm woman of the year in judging at Grand Forks last week. She received the honor at the conclusion of the "Farm Women's Conference" co-sponsored by the Minnesota Women for Agriculture, the North Dakota Agri-Women and the KNOX radio farm department.

Candidates for the farm woman of the year were nominated for the competition based on their activities as a farm woman, including their involvement in the management process of their farm, their physical involvement, activity in agriculture - related organizations and individual development.

According to the farm women's conference report, all major decisions on the Johnson farm are made jointly between Norma and Gary. Norma is involved in the milking, feeding and caring for livestock as well as working in the field whenever necessary. She handles all of the farm equipment and helps out when the work load builds up.

The Johnsons are members of the Pennington county NFO and work for better marketing of farm products through that organization. They are members of St. Anne's Catholic church. Norma has served in several offices on the church council. She is a 4-H leader and active in her homemakers group.

Second runner-up as Red River Valley farm woman of the year is Norma Hanson of rural Goodridge. Norma and her husband Lynn farm in Marshall county. When Lynn suffered severe injuries in an accident last January, Norma conducted the farming operation. Like the other two finalists, she is active in agricultural and community organizations. The Hansons operate a 1,000-acre small grain and dairy farm.

Barbara Mueller, rural Cummings, ND, was named 1983 Red River Valley farm woman of the year. First runner-up was Jeannette Klevberg of Northwood, ND.

Canned Goods Collected For Holiday Boxes

To collect channed goods for use in Christmas boxes for needy families of the community, young people of the local Seventh-day Adventist church school and Pathfinder club will conduct a door-to-door solicitation on Wednesday from 3 to 6 p.m.

Each year the young people conduct the collection in various parts of the city. This year the youngesters will seek canned goods from residents on Kendall, Tindolph, Crocker, Merriam and Kneale avenues and some of the trailer courts.

Duane Madden, principal at the school, said public cooperation is appreciated by the children and especially by those who will receive the food items at Christmas time.

Open House To Display Local Student Work

Thief River Falls Education association will be celebrating American Education Week by sponsoring an open house for the public on Thursday in the lower level meeting room at the city auditorium between 6:30 and 9 p.m.

Visitors will see displays, student projects and activities from this community's public schools. Coffee and cookies will be served. The public is encouraged to join the celebration and observe American Education Week by seeing what local children are doing in school.

Penn. Co. ADA To Hold Annual Meet Nov. 22

Pennington county chapter of the American Dairy association (ADA) will hold its annual meeting on November 22, at Florence's Cafe in Thief River Falls beginning with dinner at 11:45 a.m.

ADA encourage dairy farmers throughout Pennington county to take part in this year's meeting. An ADA staff representative will present an explanation of current national and state dairy promotion programs. Meeting will then be open for general discussion and questions. County ADA board members will also be elected.

Current board members of the Pennington county ADA are: Chairman, Marvin Koop, Thief River Falls; vice chairman, Duane Vatsaas, Thief River Falls; secretary, Myrne Erickson, Red Lake Falls treasurer, Terry Courneya, Thief River Falls; producer delegates John Erickson, Red Lake Falls and Loren Race, Goodridge; and alternate delegates Lyle Swanson and Robert Rauch, Thief River Falls.

Railroad Rep. At Depot Wed.

John J. Ceterski, representative of the railroad retirement board, will be at the Soo Line railroad depot in Thief River Falls on Wednesday, November 16 at 10:30 a.m.

— BIRTHS —

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Lashway, Plummer, girl, Nov. 10, Jacquelynn Suzanne.

Ballooning Is Still Popular In 20th Century

by Rita Cipalla
Smithsonian News Service

The large crowd gathered in silence in th Bois de Boulogne, a fashionable park on the west side of Paris. All eyes were riveted on the sight: a brilliant blue balloon, 70 feet tall, filled with hot air, resplendent with lions' heads, eagles and the signs of the zodiac embroidered in gold. Slowly, majestically, the balloon rose into the air.

Built by the Montgolfier brothers, Etienne and Joseph, the craft was carrying aloft two other daring Frenchmen — Jean Pilatre de Rozier and the Marquis d'Arlandes.

That historic moment 200 years ago, on November 21, 1783, marked the first time human beings took to the air. The ascent opened a new era in exploration; the Balloon Age was up, up and away.

It might never have gotten off the ground if King Louis XVI had had his way. When Pilatre de Rozier, an amateur scientists, made public his intention of being the first person to fly in a balloon, the king considered the plans so dangerous that he proposed to substitute two condemned prisoners for de Rozier.

But de Rozier, conscious of the honor involved, persisted and the king relented. De Rozier's companion, the Marquis d'Arlandes, a soldier and member of the minor nobility, later wrote of the flight, "I felt myself lifted as it were into the heavens."

Ten days after the flight, scientist J.A.C. Charles and M.N. Robert made the first free ascension in a hydrogen — not hot-air — balloon. The two-hour flight carried the aeronauts 27 miles from the Tuileries Gardens in Paris to Neale.

The romantic French may have gotten off to an early start, but the adventuresome Americans were not far behind. On June 19, 1784, one of the first unmanned balloon ascents in the United States took pace in Bladensburg, Md. (today a suburb of Washington, D.C.). The event was planned by an enterprising lawyer-barkeep named Peter Carnes.

"Carnes' first flight, and subsequent ones, for that matter, were done for the money," says Dr. Tom D. Crouch, curator of aeronautics at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washongton, D.C., and author of a new book, 'The Eagle Aloft: The History of the Balloon in America' (Smithsonian Institution Press, 1983).

"Carnes even advertised that armed guards would shoot to kill any person caught watching the ascent without paying the price of admission," Crouch relates.

Carnes' monetary success with ballooning took him on the road. On June 24, 1784, during a demonostration in Baltimore, a 13-year-old boy, Edward Warren, popped up in the crowd and asked to ride in the balloon basket.

"In he climbed," Crouch says, "and became the first person in American to ascend in a balloon."

In researching his book, Crouch tried to learn more about the mysterious lad, but could not find him listed in any birth or church records in Baltimore County. "Either he was not from Baltimore at all," Crouch surmises, "or he died very young, since he seems to have vanished without a trace."

By the late 18th century, unmanned balloon ascensions — with the balloon tethered tightly to the ground — had become commonplace. Theaters launched them to herald new plays. Balloon figures, similar to those used today in city parades, were also popular.

First American to make a free flight — though not over American soil — was Dr. John Jeffries, a physician and native of Boston. Jeffries had heard of the ballooning triumphs of French aeronaut Jean-Pierre Blanchard and decided that he wanted to be the first to fly across the English channel. In fact, Jeffries was so determined that he agreed to pay all Blanchard's expenses if only he could accompany the Frenchman.

Blanchard, who had been interested in flight since 1777 when he began experimenting with parachutes, had other thoughts, however.

He wanted to have the honor of the first Channel crossing all to himself and did what he could to get rid of Jeffries. According to Jeffries' accounts, Blanchard even wore a heavy lead girdle under his coat in an effort to convince the American that the balloon could not carry the weight of two such "hefty" men.

"They were very ill-suited, not only personally, but also physically," Crouch says. "Jeffries was six feet tall, a snappy dresser, very patrician. Blanchard, on the other hand, was scruffy, barely five feet tall, a real scrapper."

Despite the bickering, the two-man channel crossing went off successfully on January 7, 1785. "It remains one of the great adventures in the history of flight," Crouch says.

After his triumphant crossing, Jeffries wrote a book on his channel flight and eventually returned to the United States. Blanchard continued to make balloon flights, primarily over Europe. However, during a visit to Philadelphia in 1793, he became the first person to make an actual aerial voyage over American soil. His demonstration fascinated hundreds of onlookers, including President George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

In the first half of the 19th century, adventurers, daredevils and showmen made up the tight circle of American balloonists. High winds, open seas, treetop branches — all posed a serious hazard for the early balloonists. Traveling through the United States and Latin America, they attracted great crowds with their antics and were widely covered by the local press. It was a dangerous business, and during the years after the Civil War, a balloonist plunging to his death was not unusual at a launch.

Not all the daredevils were men, either, according to Crouch. "Women balloonists were common in the 19th century," he says. "They were popular with the crowds and set many records. In fact, one of the first native-born Americans to ascend in a ballon over U.S. soil was a woman Madame Johnson, on October 4, 1825."

One of the most famous balloonists of the period was another woman, Mary H. Myers, of Mohawk, N.Y. Billed professionally as "Carlotta, the Lady Aeronaut," she had become known in the Northeast for her skills and was often hired to perform at festivals. In 1886, she established a new world altitude record of four miles in a balloon filled with natural gas instead of hydrogen — a record even more astonishing because she did it without using oxygen equipment.

Besides circuses and traveling shows, more serious uses for balloons were being discovered during this period. In 1857, the fledgling Smithsonian institution began using balloons to collect weather data. The results were published daily in the Washington Evening Star.

In 1861, at the start of the Civil War, balloon pioneer T.S.C. Lowe demonstrated the idea of using balloons for military observations. The first demonstration took place in Washington, D.C., on the exact spot where the National Air and Space museum stands today. President Lincoln was informed via telegraph at the White House of the balloon's successful flight.

"The Observation Balloon corps of the Army of the Potomac lasted for about two years during the Civil War," Crouch says, "but the balloon was discovered to have limited value in that area. Balloons are difficult to control and seldom go where you want them to — not much fun when you are floating into enemy lines."

Ballooning in the 20th century continues to be popular — and useful. Since World War II, balloons have been used for such diverse activities as lifting logs from inaccessible mountain slopes, alerting government officials to suspicious ships and aircraft entering U.S. territory and assisting in the detection of illegal drug traffic.

Every year, the city of Albuquerque, N.M., hosts a festival for sport balloonists. Scientists, too, use balloons for a wide range of research, from monitoring winds and the upper stratosphere of the Earth to studying distant celestial objects with balloon-borne telescopes.

For whatever reason, man's fascination with the balloon has continued undaunted for 200 years. Of all the forms of flight, including the space shuttle, it is perhaps the balloon — with its uplifting vision of a large, colorful globe floating lazily over the treetops — that appeals most of our sense of romance and adventure.

PART OF THE CROWD which attended Veterans Day ceremonies Friday morning on the east side of the Veterans of Foreign Wars club rooms in Thief River Falls is pictured above. World War I Veterans, their wives and widows were among those seated for the program. The large crowd attended despite cold weather which made remaining still for any length of time uncomfortable.

NW Counties Had Lowest Median Income

family type are apparent, according to income tax data from the Minnesota department of revenue.

Income data for Minnesota families is derived from income tax returns filed with the Minnesota department of revenue. Family income figures are reported for all married couples filing joint, combined or separate returns, and all "other" families. Median income is defined as the level dividing the population in half: 50 per cent have incomes above this level; 50 per cent below.

Husband-wife (married couple) family filers are those filers identifying spouses and filing joint, combined or separate income tax returns. Income tax data shows that approximately 90 per cent of all families filing income tax returns for 1979, 1980 and 1981 were married couples. Among all types of filers, married couple families reported the highest earnings, showing a 1981 median income of $24,627, compared with $12,731 for "other" families and a [illegible] when all family filers are grouped together.

Variations in reported family income levels for the regions of the state reflect relative differences in the cost of living as well as the unique economic characteristics of specific areas. These factors should be considered when making dollar-for-dollar comparisons between family incomes in different areas of the state.

The median income of families living in the seven Twin Cities metropolitan counties showed the largest increases from 1979 to 1981, 20 per cent, compared with a 17.7 per cent change for all married couple families in the state during the same time period and only 9.0 per cent in EDC Region 8 and 10.7 per cent in Region 1.

While husband-wife families report the highest taxable incomes, not all married couple families show uniformly high earnings. Of the more than 845,000 state income tax returns filed by married couples for income year 1981, one out of every eight of these family filers reported that at least one of the spouses was 65 years or older. Tax data from the department of revenue suggests that there is a wide disparity in taxable income between families in which both spouses are under 65 years of age and families with at least one spouse 65 years or older. Younger families reported a 1981 median income of $28,055, while the statewide median for families with spouses over the age of 65 was $12,674 — less than half the income of their younger counterparts.

The difference in income levels between these two groups of married couple family filers appears to have diminished somewhat during the past few years. In 1977 the reported taxable income of "older" families represented only 41 per cent of the median income of families in which both spouses were under the age of 65. By 1981 the median income of "older" families had increased to 49 per cent of the median income of "younger" married couple families. From 1977 to 1981 the reported median income of married couple families with spouses 65 years or older had increased by 73 per cent; the median income of husband-wife families in which both spouses were under 65 years increased 46 per cent.

Not all areas of the state show the same degree of disparity between median incomes of these two types of family filers. The agricultural areas in the western, southwestern and south central regions of the state, for example, tend to show less difference between incomes of "older" families and their younger counterparts. This probably reflects the fact that people engaged in farming tend not to "retire" in the same sense that people employed in other industries might.

Caution should be exercised when comparing the income of "older" families to "younger" families when, as in this case, median income is calculated from tax returns. The nature of income tax records does not allow for easy comparisons, in part because major sources of income may be excluded from the calculations. Income from sources such as pensions, retirement programs and social security, for example, may not be taxable and thus not reported as income for the purposes of taxation.

Also, looking only at the taxable income of elderly "families" may lead to erroneous conclusions about the income level of all elderly people in general for two basic reasons: (1) Among tax filers, families are more likely to report higher incomes than single persons; and (2) since a significant proportion of the elderly population is more likely to be single (or widowed) and female, the incomes of an important segment of this population group are not reflected in the median family income figures reported here.

While inflation has caused the real income of all families to decline slightly during the past few years, older families and individuals who derive a major share of their income from social security or other retirement and transfer programs have fared somewhat better. This is due primarily to the fact that many of those programs have been indexed to changes in the cost of living.

Ten per cent of the family filers in Minnesota in 1981 did not identify spouses but claimed at least one dependent on their tax forms. These "other" families include single-parent families, or single persons supporting other individuals such as brothers, sisters or parents.

The statewide median income of "other" families was $12,731 in 1981 — approximately one-half the $24,627 median income of all married couple families in the state. As a per cent of husband-wife earnings, the median income of "other" families has remained fairly constant during the past several years at about 50 per cent.

However, the proportion of "other" family filers varies considerably from one area of the state to another. Only five per cent of the family filers in Regions 6-W and 8 were "other" families. In contrast, Region 11 showed nearly 13 per cent. Within Region 11, even more striking differences are apparent. Almost 19 per cent of the family filers in the city of Minneapolis were "other" families while the adjoining suburbs of Golden Valley, St. Louis Park and Richfield reported less than 12 per cent.

Sixteen per cent of the family filers in the city of St. Paul were "other" families, and in Minnesota's other metropolitan city, Duluth, 13 per cent of all family filers were "other" families. Because non-married couple families typically report lower incomes, the higher proportion of "other" families found within the central cities of the metropolitan areas may partially explain the generally lower median family incomes reported by those cities.

It is not possible to identify what proportion of these "other" families are "single-parent" families, that is, families consisting of one parent and a child (or children) under the age of 18 years. Census data suggests that between 55 and 60 per cent of all Minnesota non-married couple families are single-parent families, and that the householder in 85 per cent of these single-parent family units is a female.

At the national level, statistics which report income from all sources (non-taxable as well as taxable) show a 1981 median income of $10,960 for families in which no husband is present. In contrast, families with a male householder but no wife present showed a median income of $19,890. The 1981 median income of married couple families in the United States was $25,070.

Senator Asks Block To Aid Area Farmers

In a conference call which included the Times late Thursday afternoon, Sen. Rudy Boschwitz said he would have a letter delivered to Secretary of Agriculture John Block Friday noon, requesting that three specific procedures be implemented to assist disaster-stricken farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

The senator said he is making the request at this particular time because he believes the timing to be right, although he had no prior commitment from Secretary Block and was uncertain of the agriculture secretary's full feelings on the unique disaster situation in this area.

Sen. Boschwitz said his requests are for the following:

(1) Change in the formula for Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) disaster loan qualification which would reduce the individual farmer's percentage of loss from 30 per cent to 20 per cent in either of the previous two years;

(2) Change in the formula to prevent it from being biased against those who have had repeated losses by allowing them to show losses of what would be 30 per cent of a normal crop; and

(3) Permitting farmers unable to repay due to repeated losses to reschedule all of their Farmers Home administration loans into one loan at the lowest interest rate presently being charged on their existing debt.

Sen. Boschwitz, made the conference call from the Senate cloakroom after being summoned to the senate to vote on continuing legislation to keep the government functioning. He said he believed that the agriculture secretary had the authority to make the procedural changes he requested and that they would be of assistance to farmers in the disaster-declared counties of northwestern Minnesota.

Transportation To Be Subject Tonight In TRF

Transportation advisory committee of the Northwest regional development commission will hold a public meeting at 7 p.m. tonight in the basement of city auditorium in Thief River Falls, to discuss issues such as load capacity, seasonal restrictions, jurisdictional classification, funding and maintenance of roadways, plus other topics affecting rural transportation.

NWRDC notes that over 90 per cent of agricultural production from Northwestern Minnesota is moved to markets outside region one. Thus, maintaining a viable roadway and rail network to provide access to these markets is essential to the economic well-being of the region.

Region one currently has 625 miles of rail line and approximately 13,500 miles of roadway, of which 55 per cent are township roads. Future of both the rail and roadway networks are in question as limited funding exists to maintain them. In a follow-up to the 1981 agricultural commodity movement study, the commission will be taking a closer look at issues related to rural transportation and their impact on agricultural goods movement.

Record Number Of Farm Crops Moved by Barge

Barge movement of farm crops into export marketing channels from Minnesota terminal elevators on the Mississippi River has already broken the prior full season volume record and is pacing what may be a new record year for total farm sales and gross income from grains and oilseeds, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

New season record was assured when barge volume October 9 to 15 broke the old one week mark for the sixth time this season with 371 barges loaded by nearly 19.5 million bushels of corn, soybeans, wheat, oats and grain screenings that grossed area farmers almost $97 million.

That boosted the season total through October 15 to 6,730 barges carrying an estimated 352.1 million bushels with an estimated gross farm value of more than $1.5 billion.

At the end of September, according to the monthly Minneapolis grain exchange transportation report on all Minnesota terminal elevator crops receipts and shipments by mode of transport, the barge volume represented [illegible] per cent of total shipments this season by rail, water and truck.

Total terminal crop receipts through September were an estimated 641.8 million bushels, that grossed regional farmers more than [illegible] billion. That volume was ahead of the same point last year by 19 per cent, and is almost 10 per cent higher than the prior record year of [illegible].

Minnesota terminal elevator crop shipments through September total more than 575.2 million bushels, 16 per cent ahead of last year and eight per cent ahead of record 1981.

While wheat leads in estimated gross farm cash receipts from terminal elevator traffic, at $987 million for an estimated 258.3 million bushels, the farm value gain compared to last year was only 10 per cent.

Corn and soybean farmers are experiencing the biggest gains in cash flow from this year's terminal marketings, primarily since July. Terminals have received [illegible] million bushels of corn valued at $471.3 million, and [illegible] million bushels of soybeans valued at $636.5 million. Those values are more than double a year ago for corn and up by [illegible] per cent for soybean marketings.

HIGHLANDING . .

Thursday evening potluck supper guests at the Kenny Sunsdahl home following prayer services for Selma Sanders were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Larson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sanders, Allan, Steven and Amie, Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Charlene, Tammy, Lyle and Jenny, Mr. and Mrs. Al Lawrence and boys, Mr. and Mr. Duane Kuznia and family, Joy Misson, Aaron, Heather and Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Rod Lussier, Ian and Dyland along with other relatives.

Jobs Program Off To Slow Start In State

Joint public-private effort to put people back to work is not proceeding as fast as initially hoped, according to State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

The 1983 legislature allocated $70 million to subsidize 12,600 jobs for six months in both the public and private sector. The jobs are established under the Minnesota Emergency Employment Development (MEED) program. Employers are reimbursed at the rate of $4 per hour in wages and $1 per hour in fringe benefits for each person hired. Those that retain employees for 18 months will not have to repay any of the subsidy.

"Of the 12,600 jobs, 40 per cent or 4,000 were earmarked for the private sector," explained Sparby. "A total of 2,378 people have been placed on the job so far with only 578 or 21 per cent employed privately.

"Part of the reason for the relatively slow start may lie in the fact that this is the first of its kind tried anywhere in the country," said Sparby. "Joe Samargia, the program's coordinator, remains optimistic and enthusiastic about the overall result. It just won't happened as quickly as first planned."

November 1 was the target date for placing 4,000 workers in jobs.

A representative of Hennepin county was especially supportive of the MEED program, saying that he receives approximately two calls each day from employers wanting more information. He suggested the pricate sector portion of the program be continued beyond the law's two-year expiration date.

A negative note was interjected by a representative of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce who said that if economic conditions warrant, jobs will open up without artificial stimulation. A general perception of a large quantity of paperwork involved and a feeling that it's a poor use of tax dollars were cited as reasons for the reluctance some small businesses have to entering the program.

"While the MEED program may not be setting any speed records, I'm satisfied that its ultimate goal will be reached," commented Sparby. "At least something positive has happened for 2,738 people who need work."

Cards Offered By Children's Home Society

Children's Home society of Minnesota has selected four designs by state artists for its annual 1983 holiday greeting cards. Artists include Kayley Crough, 12 years old and Jan Elsberry, mother of two Korean adopted children, both artists from New Hope; Angela Ariss, free-lance artist, Minneapolis; and John Acosta, West St. Paul, free-lance artist and teacher aide at the society's Cedar Riverside day care center, Minneapolis.

Holiday card themes include child, family and friendship designs. Cards are produced in two holiday colors on various paper samples and sell for $4 for package of 10 with matching envelopes.

Proceeds from the sale of 1983 holiday greetings cards enables the society to provide programs which guide both children and adults to self-fulfillment and a safer, healthier and happier future.

For further information contact the society at 2230 Como Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108.

make decisions based on what they believe rather than on outside sources.

"The chemical use unit will help to increase the students' awareness of the different uses of chemicals, the effect of advertising, peer pressure and societal acceptance of drug use and abuse, and the exploration of alternatives, choices and their outcomes. The chemical use unit will be used in grades five and six," she said.

The project name "Charlie" was taken from the theme "Chemical Abuse Resolution Lies In Education."

Classroom teachers will be working with this curriculum with students approximately 30 minutes a week. Parents will be invited to evening sessions which will give them the same background that their children are receiving during school. The program will begin in the classroom later this month and will continue throughout the year. If you have any questions about the program, ask your child's classroom teacher or contact Pam Carlson at Franklin middle school.

TRF To Host World Series Snocross Race

the country and Canada will be accumulating points throughout the year, in order to receive an invitation to the World Series race, currently being planned for the area of the Red Lake River within Thief River Falls city limits. It will be a snow-cross style race, running the machines over a track which includes turns and jumps, similar to moto-cross motorcycle racing.

In making the decision to hold the big race in Thief River Falls, Berg noted that CCC felt that "the enthusiasm for the sport that has been displayed by the community of Thief River Falls and the surrounding area entitles them to such a premier event."

Members of the planning committee will include Grabanski; Wayne Olson, county engineer; Dennis Wendlandt of Northwest Beverage; Jerry Erickson and Tom Wang of the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club.

combatants killed in the various wars in which the United States has been involved from the Civil War forward through the two World Wars, Korea, Vietnam and the current loss of military personnel in Grenada and Lebanon.

The mayor reminded the group attending of a number of the major battles and foreign battlefields which were so often in the news during those conflicts in which American servicemen gave their lives for their country.

Following the program a lunch was served in the VFW club rooms for all those attending the program. Sounding of the fire siren at 11 a.m. and the ringing of the church bells at that time added to the ceremonies.

Otto S. Taie Rites Held At Gatzke Friday

Otto S. Taie, 79, of Gatzke, died Tuesday morning, November 8, at the Karlstad Memorial Nursing center where he had been a resident for the past two months. He had been in failing health for the last five years.

Funeral services for Otto Taie were held Friday at 10:30 a.m., at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke with Rev. Robert Amundson officiating. Mylan Abrahamson was the soloist and Melanie Lunsetter, the organist. Interment was in the Moose River cemetery, near Gatzke, with the Collins Funeral home, Middle River, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Dennis Haugen, Darrell Taie, ElRoy Aune, Wayne Larson, James Goslien and Glenn Lunsetter.

Otto Selmer Taie, son of the late Ole and Anna Taie, was born Aug. 19, 1904 in Veldt township of Marshall county, near Gatzke. He attended school and grew to manhood in the Gatzke community, where he was also baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith. He was a life-long member of the United Lutheran church of Gatzke.

Taie farmed with his brother, Willie, in Rollis township, near Gatzke, for many years. Since retiring in 1973, he had made his home in Gatzke and Middle River. He was a long-time member of the Gatzke Sportsman's club and was an avid outdoorsman, enjoying all sports.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Hilda Goslien, Greenbush, and several nieces and nephews. Two brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

REFLECTI NS

The men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing . . . and, succeed. Any fool can do nothing but what a pitiful creature he is, never savoring the sweet taste of success . . . or if not success the strong sense of dignity and personal pride you receive from trying. It is better to wear out than to "rust out." . . . You may not change the world but you can change your small part in it.

Alan Swenson Named "Artist Of The Month"

(Thief River Falls community arts council features an area artist each month, whose work goes on display at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls for the entire month. People who would like to recommend an artist to be featured should contact the arts council at 228 North Crocker, Thief River Falls, or by calling 681-2960.)

November's "Artist of the Month" is Alan Swenson, a native of Thief River Falls. Alan works at Digi-Key and lives on Centennial Drive with his wife Kimber and their three children Ben, Casey and Maida.

Display at the library contains three of Alan's oil paintings and one print of an oil painting. He says his oil paintings are always landscapes of the area from here to the Lake of the Woods. He describes painting as a way to express himself, adding, "A person has the art spirit that needs to be expressed through creative outlets." His landscapes are an expression of his love for the outdoors, which includes such sports as swimming, sailing, scuba diving, skiing and camping. Other hobbies which he enjoys include playing guitar, archery, flying airplanes, Indian lore, crafts, and church activities.

Of course, painting remains a great interest for him. Alan began painting with oils in the fourth grade, when he received his first set of paints. Up to that point, he had worked mostly with pencil, a hobby he still enjoys. . . "because it is so continuous. Your creativity isn't slowed by taking time to mix paints." When working with pencil, Alan draws buildings, people, wildlife and landscapes.

Most of his work is done from memory, from photographs, or as a composite of the two. He rarely paints on location. One of the paintings in the library display features a homestead which he noticed while traveling one day. In the 60 seconds it took to pass it in a car, that homestead made such an impression that he was able to go home and paint it from memory.

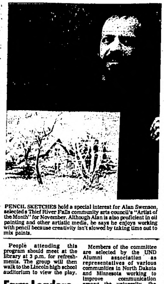
"That painting was a spontaneous event," says Alan. By comparison, he notes that a painting of a goose, which he had on display at Paint and Glass recently, required 45 preliminary drawings before the final painting was produced. He described it as a "highly drafted piece of painting."

No matter what type of painting he does, Alan always exhibits a great deal of strength in his work. "As a male painter," he said, "I strive for strength. . . simplicity of design, powerful colors and a contrast of colors."

Alan has two words of advice for beginning painters: "Space and patience." Elaborating, he notes, "first, if you want to paint, you need a place to set up. If you don't have it, you put it away for six months. So find a space just for you." On patience, he advises beginning painters, "If they're inclined to find their creative outlet, patience is the thing that wins out in the end."

Painters should also realize exactly what they are, according to Alan. When called an artist, he looked perplexed. "An artist? That term confuses me. Let's look it up in the dictionary," he mused while turning the pages. Finding the word, he shook his head, smiled, turned the pages and said, "Now this is what I really am." Pointing to the word "Magician" he noted, "A magician is an entertainer who is skilled in causing illusion by deceptive devices."

"What do you see here?" he asked holding up a painting. "A house in the country," was the answer. "No, it isn't," he said. "You see paint and canvas. The technique or deceptive device of painting causes you to see the illusion of a house in the country. So, you see, I'm a magician, an entertainer who does so through pencil and oil." With a twinkle in his eye, he paused and whispered, "a magician."



PENCIL SKETCHES hold a special interest for Alan Swenson, selected as Thief River Falls community arts council's "Artist of the Month" for November. Although Alan is also proficient in oil painting and other artistic media, he says he enjoys working with pencil because creativity isn't slowed by taking time out to mix paints.

Senior Citizens To View LHS Program Thurs.

Senior citizen's day program on Thursday, at Northwest regional library will include attending a dress rehearsal of the Lincoln high school play "Everybody Loves Opal."

People attending this program should meet at the library at 3 p.m. for refreshments. The group will then walk to the Lincoln high school auditorium to view the play.

Farm Leaders In Opposition To Legislation

Three key dairy-state farm leaders recently decried the administration's apparent shift in its position towards dairy legislation currently pending before the U.S. house of Representatives.

Minnesota farmers union President Cy Carpenter, Wisconsin farmers union President Leland Mulder, and farmers union milk marketing cooperative President Stewart Huber charged that administration officials have backed off their previous statements that the administration would remain at least neutral on the bill.

"Until October 28, Secretary Block never indicated that the administration would officially oppose the bill. Yet, on that day, in a letter to Representative Bob Michel, minority leader of the house, Secretary Block wrote, 'Therefore, consistent with all of my earlier statements on this question, the administration supports the Conable amendment to H.R. 1875.'," the leaders said.

Following up on that letter, last week David Stockman, director of the white house office of management and budget, wrote a memorandum to the house of representatives in which he again said that the administration was opposed to passage of H.R. 1875.

(H.R. 1875 is now numbered H.R. 4196)

Conable amendment would empower the secretary of agriculture to lower the price support level by up to $1.50 per hundredweight.

"The administration's opposition to the compromise dairy bill is hard to understand," the dairy leaders said. "First of all, the compromise bill would save the federal government over $600 million more than the $1.50 price cut in the first year. Secondly, it is rejecting a measure which has already been passed on a voice vote by a republican-controlled senate, after the senate had rejected the same price cut proposal now embraced by this administration."

Farm leaders called on the house of representatives to pass the dairy compromise legislation when it is considered by the house as the least costly of the alternatives offered and also the one which offers the best opportunity to bring production in line with demand.

UND Alumni Hold Meeting

Committee of 100, a group of University of North Dakota alumni, held its annual meeting during UND's centennial homecoming in Grand Forks.

Members of the committee are selected by the UND Alumni association as representatives of various communities in North Dakota and Minnesota working to improve communication among the university, the alumni association and UND alumni living in the area. Committee members also promote the university to prospective students and assist with local UND reunions.

Members of the committee of 100 attending the centennial homecoming from this area are Everett Ault, and Thomas and Gayle Kenville of Thief River Falls.

Questionnaire On Cancer Disturbs Some

Minnesota charities review council (MCRC) wants to reassure people who have been worried about a recent mailing that included a questionnaire and a request for contributions to the American institute for cancer research (AICR). The council, a charities watchdog agency for 37 years, is receiving an unusual number of inquiries from people who fear the mailing means that they have been particularly selected as persons with an active or potential cancer problem.

According to Harold Adams, executive director of the council, "We tell callers their names were simply one of nine and a half million selected from mailing lists by the Watson and Hughey company, Washington, D.C. which has a contract with AICR to handle its mail campaign."

Mailing asks about diet patterns: "Do you eat red meat at least three times a week? Are you a vegetarian? Do you smoke?" etc. The accompanying letter states that experts estimate 60 per cent of cancer in women may be caused by diet. The organization also states that "unless we receive additional funding we will have to cancel many of the projects we are now supporting."

American institute for cancer research was founded by Chat Hughey and Jerry C. Watson, the same two men who ran the mailing firm that handles AICR's fund raising. The agency is run by three board members, no including Hughey and Watson, and has been raising money since October, 1982.

Between then and April 30, 1983, they raised a total of $1,201,374. They spent 54 per cent on the charitable program, 38 per cent on supporting costs, and had an excess of 8 per cent. These figures are from an unaudited, interim financial statement.

"It is too early for us to make our normal evaluation of AICR's financial record," said Adams. "We need a certified audit covering a full year's record with detailed breakdowns. Since this is a new agency such a record is not available yet.

We can say, however, that we are concerned because this agency has only three board members who met only twice last year, that a grants proposal committee of only two people decided on the distribution of all research funds granted as of April 30, 1983, and that the two founders of the agency now have a contract to handle its mail campaign."

"Finally, we repeat: this is a mass mailing which uses a 'census' as a fund raising device. Recipients should not assume the solicitors have direct knowledge about their personal health."

Andromeda Is Seen As Blur In Night Sky

To see two million light-years into space from one's backyard may seem like a miracle, yet it is possible in November to see the Andromeda galaxy with naked eye. This lacey swirl of some 200 billion blazing stars will appear as a faint blurred star just east of the zenith, or almost directly overhead, in the early evening.

The blended light from the Andromeda galaxy falling now onto our planet left its source two million years ago. That light has since traveled 12 quintillion (12 with 18 zeros) miles of space to reach us. It comes from a place that truly no longer exists; Andromeda's stars and planets have surely changed in two million years, just as the Milky Way's have.

Andromeda, the Milky Way's sister galaxy, is the closest spiral galaxy and is virtually the same size. Both travel through space together, loosely bound by gravity to each other and to some 12 to 20 other galaxies in our far-flung "local group." This "neighborhood," which spans an area of space 4.5 million light-years across, is then part of a supergalaxy group of hundreds more galaxies. It is, in turn, part of an agglomeration of thousands of supergalaxies. Structure of the universe is thus built.

Our immediate galactic neighborhood is not thickly populated as are some areas of the universe. These most crowded parts of the sky, the rich clusters of galaxies, have probably been that way from near the beginning of the universe when all matter was more densely packed. In fact, the way the universe has developed its "clumpiness" is currently one of astronomy's biggest controversies, according to John Dickey, astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

Dickey and other Minnesota astronomers are now studying Andromeda and many more distant galaxies. By breaking a galaxy's blurred light and other blended energies into its constituent colors and invisible wavelengths, they glean information about the way gases behave within the galaxies. The abundant hydrogen that weaves galaxies together can, for example, be used to trace galactic movement; it is being monitored now in several galaxies by astronomer Marc Ondrechen. Rob Kennicutt is using a powerful Dutch telescope to make the most complete map of a galaxy ever constructed — millions of different measurements of the structure of Andromeda. And Dickey is probing hundreds of much farther galaxies, those in very rich clusters, to see if these clusters are still contracting, expanding or are likely to dance endlessly through space together in their present patterns.

Andromeda, now hovering overhead, was a first clue to the true size of the universe in the beginning of modern astronomy some 60 years ago. Once astronomers understood that this pale cosmic smudge was an entire galaxy, not an envelope of gas around a single star, they realized how many galaxies lay within the ken of their telescopes, how unimaginably far away they really must be and so how vast our universe is.

RLF Voters Reelect Mayor Thorfinnson

Red Lake Falls voters reelected a mayor and alderman-at-large, defeated an incumbent alderman in the second ward and reelected a fourth ward alderman without opposition in Tuesday's city election.

Vaughn Thorfinnson was reelected to his 10th two-year term as mayor with 338 votes to 219 for Robert Stolp. Incumbent alderman-at-large Allen Bertilrude was easily reelected with 452 votes to 101 for Theodore Pauling.

In the second ward Michael Moen unseated incumbent Dallas Largis with 146 votes to 47 for the incumbent. Elizabeth Herding won unopposed reelection in the third ward with 160 votes.

The 560 votes cast in the election was considered better than average.

Dodds Attends Marketing And Sales Meeting

Dorothy Dodds, sales & marketing instructor at the area vocational-technical institute (AVTI), was a participant in the pre-market retailers' workshop held recently at the Apparel mart in Minneapolis. Workshop focused on improving skills in promoting and selling apparel. Workshop leaders are Dr. Kathryn M. Greenwood, director of center for apparel marketing and merchandising (CAMM), and Patricia Fairhurst (CAMM), at Oklahoma state university.

During the workshop, retailers and educators learned about promoting and selling apparel, promotional budgets and store layouts.

A New Furnace Can Save Many Energy Dollars

Winter heating bills are almost always bad news for Minnesota homeowners. There's even worse news. Four out of every 10 dollars many people pay for those energy bills may be going right up the chimney.

If the furance is more than a few years old, it's probably about 60 per cent or less efficient. That means that the furnace is getting just over half of the available heat out of the natural gas or oil that the buyer is paying for.

There are now furnaces on the market that can put about three of every 10 dollars of the current heating bill back in the homeowner's pocket.

These savings are possible with new natural gas furnaces (hot air systems) or boilers (hot water) that are 85 to 90 per cent efficient. New oil burning furnaces are available that are about 85 per cent efficient.

Buying a new furnace is a major investment in the home. Including installation, a new high efficiency furnace for a hot air system generally costs from $1,600 to $2,300; new air ducting adds to this cost. Efficient furnaces (boilers) for hot water heat cost from $2,500 to $3,200. This investment usually makes the most sense for those with large houses or high heating bills.

Many homeowners must replace their furnace simply because it is old and worn out. Instead of installing a new furnace of average efficiency (65-80 per cent), these homeowners should consider buying a model that is at least 85 per cent efficient. The extra cost of higher efficiency models will be paid back quickly in energy savings.

If considering purchasing a furnace, get several bids for the equipment and its installation. The cost of same model can vary greatly among contractors.

Have the efficiency of the current furnace estimated by an energy auditor, a utility representative or a heating contractor. Ask for the "annual fuel utilization efficiency" (AFUE) of your furnace. With this information, and the amount of your average annual heating bill, and the estimated efficiency of a new furnace, you can roughly determine how much the new furnace will save you each year.

For instance, a homeowner with an annual heating bill of $650 will save about $200 a year by replacing a 60 per cent efficiency furnace with an 86 per cent efficiency model.

Consider ways of maintaining or adjusting your current heating system to make it run more efficiently.

The Minnesota department of energy and economic development has information on selecting a new furnace and measures to improve the efficiency of an old one. Get a copy of the "Home Heating Systems" pamphlet by calling 1-800-652-9747 from outside the Twin Cities (ask for "energy"), or 296-5175 from the Twin Cities area.

Lonnie Eskell Is Promoted To Staff Sergeant

Lonnie J. Eskell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin K. Eskell of rural route 1, Plummer, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of staff sergeant.

Eskell is a law enforcement specialist at Kalkar air station, West Germany, with the 601st tactical control wing.

His wife, Julie, is the daughter of Verlyn L. Belmont and Peggy S. Johnson of 4616 Birchman, Fort Worth, TX.

The sergeant is a 1978 graduate of Pershing high school, Plummer.

"We Already Know Our Problems Out Here In The Field"

Supt. Robert Block of Thief River Falls public schools is the author of an article published in the November issue of the educational journal. "Phi Delta Kappan" which we enjoyed reading and believe should be shared with our readers.

Supt. Block explained that the article grew out of his hasty and angry response to editorial comment in the "Kappan" about the report of the National Commission on Excellence in Education. The editor contacted him and asked him to expand on his viewpoint for publication. After responding that "I don't stay mad that long," he consented to put some of his views on paper.

Although the submitted article was more specific than the edited version which was published, it does convey some of the superintendent's attitude toward the report. We thank him for his permission to use his comments as a guest editorial as follows:

by Supt. Robert Block

I'm not particularly impressed with A Nation at Risk. In fact, I think it's a foul shot at American education.

It's been said that education (and educators) cannot change, yet we followed the suggestions of the "experts" that we do away with phonics in the teaching of reading. Ten years later, a whole generation of students had serious problems learning how to read. But we had tried to meet the demands made upon us.

Later other experts told us that we needed to open up the interiors of our schools. So we traveled many miles to review schools with "open spaces," and we built multi-million-dollar structures that were right up to date. But the experts didn't tell us that open spaces must be accompanied by a whole new approach to teaching. We could no longer show movies, because, when Ms. Jones used the 16mm projector, everyone in school enjoyed the film. We found out for ourselves that open space schools actually provide a lot more room for students; our taxpayers looked around and said, "Well, maybe we could put several hundred more students in there; maybe we don't need to make the school so big!" The result: standing-room-only education — a focus on quantity, not quality. But we tried. Oh, how we tried!

The next wave of expertise indicated that our schools were hampered by an inflexible schedule that denied students freedom of choice in thinking and movement. So we devised flexible modular scheduling in our school system (not too unlike the honory system — the teachers had the honor and the students had the system). We tried, but we found that the students were unable to handle the responsibility of so much free, unstructured time. Modular scheduling was abused and, later, legislated out of existence. Still we listened.

Next came the idea of "new" mathematics. After several years, we found that we had to reteach arithmetic to our students. Some parents still don't understand what happened.

Now comes the latest wave of recommendations from the "experts": A Nation at Risk. The National Commission of Excellence in Education stated that we could improve our schools if we offered four years of English, three years of mathematics, three years of science, a smattering of computer education, and on and on. My God, how brillant! Do people really think (even those members of such august bodies) that we are not now offering all of those courses because we think that they aren't valuable? How many members of so-called blue ribbon commissions actually live in school districts that have cut millions of dollars (and, as a result, programs and staff members) out of already austere budgets in recent years? Do they really think that public school educators in these United States don't realize that the more teachers you have, the better job you can do if you deploy them efficiently?

Last May Secretary of Education Terrel Bell, in an address at Michigan State University, proposed that the sweeping reforms called for by the National Commission be financed by state legislatures, which "must levy the taxes and appropriate the money. It's that simple." That's ludicrous. Haven't we run bond issues or levy referendums countless times already with little success? How long has it been since the experts have been in the foxholes and witnessed firsthand what's happening in American education today?

Let the record show that we know what our problems are out here in education. I believe that, considering the problems we face, we're doing a better-than-average job. I doubt that the members of the Commission have tried to obtain excellence in 1937 vintage facilities for teaching science or in classrooms without computers or with budgets that force us to choose between programs, rather than add new ones. Out here we're used to facilities that are held together by string and some outstanding instructors who really care about kids. Mediocrity? Maybe — but we know the roots of it. We are a nation that has become so materialistic that we refuse to give up the second snowmobile or the second car or the bigger house or the speedboat so that we can pay for excellence in education.

So when you speak to me of excellence in education and lack of leadership and resistance to change, I tell you that we've tried damn near everything that our leaders have asked us to do. We've complied with mandates for special education, even though sometimes no money came with the mandates. We've complied with Title IX on sex equity and Title VII on minority rights and Chapter 504 for the handicapped. We've tried innovations and, in many cases, found them to be lacking. We don't need fancy new answers to old problems. We need to provide good, hard-nosed education in the basic skills with the money we're given. We're going to have to make choices — hard choices.

And educators aren't the only ones who must make tough choices. Some time ago we assumed the task of teaching kids how to drive, teaching them how to sew and cook, solving problems in the home with social workers, and developing drug education programs. If money is tight, we can no longer be all things to all people. Children cannot be reared and educated without standards. But schools must have the help of the family and the entire society in inculcating those standards. We cannot do the job alone.

Oh, and no one needs to tell us that we can attract better, more qualified, capable, creative teachers to the profession if they're paid as much as doctors, lawyers, and dentists are paid. Teachers are not stupid; neither are college students. They soon understand that the good are paid the same as the bad; the ambitious are paid the same as the lazy. All that's necessary is to grow older, store up credits, and move on up the salary schedule. We need help in weeding out the teachers who were hired when a warm body was the only requirement.

No, I don't see much that's new in A Nation at Risk. But is still makes me angry — with an old, deep-seated anger that won't go away. All of us — educators, parents, and citizens alike — need to wake up before it's too late to provide for true excellence in education.

Jogging Not For Everyone

We received a healthy chuckle out of this item written by Cynthia Corcoran, an intern from the College of St. Benedict at the Post Newspapers in the Twin Cities:

"You wouldn't catch me jogging!"

That's what I said to my little brother a few nights ago, after he asked me to go jogging.

I was wearing my comfortable old sweatsuit that I wear around the house in the colder months.

"C'mon," he persisited, "Just up the Northport School and back" (which is about two miles each way). I looked at him like he'd just asked me to run the Minneapolis-St. Paul marathon. He ended up calling me a chicken and I gave him the excuse that I didn't want to run at night.

Well, it's true I don't like to run at night, but I don't like to run during the day, either. I've avoided exercising as much as I could during my lifetime: especially jogging. I don't like to breathe like a horse on a racetrack.

I was most pestered with the "sport" when I lived on campus at the College of St. Benedict. My roommates would ask me to come along on the daily jogs, and I would see all kinds of women in sweatsuits running feverishly around the area. They jogged around campus, they jogged through the woods, and worst of all, they jogged to St. John's University, five miles away! But I didn't give in to peer pressure.

What I see more often now is people wearing jogging outfits not to jog in, sweatsuits not to sweat in, but they wear them to lie around the house and eat, watch tv, read, and do other favorite sports in which I participate.

That warms my heart. That's what sweatsuits are made for, if you ask me. Now, if I could only convince my little brother. . .

GJOVIK FAMILY, which includes Bob Gjovik and his sisters Carole Seiness, Lois Warwick and Renae Peters, will be performing in concert at 7 p.m. Wednesday, November 23, at the Assembly of God tabernacle, 315 North Duluth Avenue, Thief River Falls. They have sung extensively together since childhood, and will be including their own nine children in the program to inspire all other children to sing and share their faith.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

For the past several months the residents of Thief River Falls have been hearing the debates between the county and hospital boards on the question of the future of the ambulance service. Last week a decision was made, a decision I hope that was based not only on the financial concerns of both parties, but of intentions of providing the community with the highest quality of pre-hospital emergency care.

It would not be appropriate to degrade a private or volunteer service, but there are some problems and responsibilities that I feel the public should be made aware of. Up to the present time, the community has had access to a full-time 24-hour service which could respond to a call within minutes. In order to have an effective volunteer service which can respond quickly, the public must realize that the responsibility will be theirs.

The question of whether or not a private service will be effective rides on the attitude and commitment of the volunteers who work for them. They must be willing to volunteer not only call time when it's most convenient, but during holidays, nights, weekends, inclement weather, and under situations which at times are less than desirable. They must also commit themselves to continually striving to learn new life saving techniques while keeping up with all EMT relicensing and continuing education requirements.

Our present ambulance staff has just recently completed a year of intense paramedic training which would have provided the community with the newest in advanced life support techniques, a service which cities even larger than Thief River Falls could only hope to have.

The ambulance service will only be as good as the time and effort put into it. There must be a total commitment to provide the best in emergency care whether it be basic or advanced life support. It affects everyone in the community in one way or another. It is a big responsibility.

Sincerely,
Greg Scott
Paramedic

To The Editor:

On Saturday, Nov. 13, 1982 as winter was settling over our nation's capitol, the Vietnam Memorial was dedicated. It does not glorify the Veterar nor the war, but reminds our nation of the worrisome months that were so full of turmoil that we went through, day to day, name by name, death by death.

The list goes on of fathers, brothers, sons and friends who have been lost forever. It is not about planting flags at Lone Tree Hill, Pearl Harbor, Corregidor, Bataan, Iwo Jima or any of the many other places where the flag could have been planted, or the glory of the fight. It is about the deaths that pave the way for whatever follows. The dead will never know who won or lost, or why, and their families will never care.

Maya-Ling-Lin did not design this sculpture to glorify war, but this memorial clarifies war, a black slash of reality among the white pillars of our leaders' dreamland. I am hoping it will teach us to do a lot more thinking and not take everything for granted.

Sincerely,
Clarence Hill

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

One always wonders where the time has gone, but here we are in November thinking about snow and when it will arrive. As we ponder its arrival, we must prepare ourselves for its consequences. Tomorrow, November 15, our wintertime parking ordinance begins and the police department will start enforcement of calendar parking on the same day.

The department will issue tickets for violations on days when snow removal is not in progress. On those days when the street department is in the process of snow removal with the snowplows (not the wing truck), vehicles parked illegally will be towed away at the owner's expense. Time of enforcement will be from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. as follows:

(1) No parking on avenues (north - south) Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m.

(2) No parking on streets (east - west) on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m.

The residential areas such as Edgewood Drive, Robinhood Drive, Alice Drive and Cameo Drive, where the street does not lie in the same pattern as streets or avenues, will be done in accordance with the street restriction on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. We ask all residents for their continued cooperation in this matter and should you have questions, please call the center at 681-6161.

Supporting Freedom

You couldn't watch the television and newspaper pictures coming out of Lebanon and Grenada without asking yourself what U.S. troops were doing in those countries in the first place. Could the sometimes terrible tragedy and always present danger to our young men in places as different as the shores of the Mediterranean Sean and a Caribbean island be that vital to U.S. security?

President Reagan answered that question for our country when he said, "We cannot pick and choose where we support freedom. We can only determine how. If it is lost in one place, all of us lose."

As the father of an 18-year-old son who has enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps, I wish with all my heart that there was a different answer. Like millions of Americans, I pray for a peaceful world in which freedom is a reality for every man, woman and child. I pray for a word in which our young men and women could stay home with their families instead of standing guard in distant lands.

But as a U.S. Senator and an Army veteran, I know that I must face up to the difficult choices that face us in the real world; the real world in which more than half the people have no hope of freedom in their lifetimes.

I don't envy the choices any President has to make, but I am proud that in this time of crisis both Democrats and Republicans have stood by President Reagan and our fighting men. Men and women of all political philosophies have recognized the need to defend freedom in countries as different as Lebanon and Grenada.

These countries are important to the United States. Many experts believe that the Middle East, the birthplace of civilization, may be the final battleground of civilization unless a country as strong as the U.S. can bring some stability to the area. The enemies of peace are not just Syria and like-minded countries, but the Soviet Union which finances terror and war so that it can dominate the Middle East.

The terrorist attack against our marines in Beirut was a horrible tragedy. But should it cause us to bring our troops home? No. Certainly, a cease-fire would not have been achieved last month had it not been for the presence of the multi-national peacekeeping force made up of the U.S., Great Britain, France and Italy. Certainly, without the cease-fire, the national reconciliation talks in Geneva would not take place. The leaders of eight political factions, both Christian and Moslem, are taking part in those talks. Even the president of Syria may send a diplomatic representative. These talks are the first step toward establishing a new government in Lebanon that will unify the many political factions that have divided the country for generations.

If we leave Lebanon at the point of a terrorist's gun, then surely we would witness a war between Syria and Israel over Lebanon. With the war between neighboring Iran and Iraq continuing, a war between Syria and Israel could set off the entire Middle East, quickly drawing the U.S. and Russia into direct confrontation and a far greater loss of American lives than anything we have suffered through in the past.

Both the father and the senator in me say that we must keep our peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

In Grenada, our immediate goal was to protect American lives. As we listened to the stories of the young medical students arriving back in the U.S., we could be certain that our purpose was real and our mission a worthy one.

But there was another purpose in Grenada: to protect the freedom of a small country overrun by Cubans, Soviets and a government of thugs that came into power through murder and brute force. When each of Grenada's neighboring nations desperately urged our involvement under the terms of our mutual treaty, we had an obligation to respond.

The U.S. is not in Grenada to dictate the kind of government this island nation should have. We are there to assure peace in this region of the world, and to give Grenadans the opportunity to choose the government they want. As I told one newspaper reporter, if Al Capone took over the city of Chicago, would we step aside and say, "Well, that must be the kind of government they want in Chicago"?

Yet, there are those who say that we should let the same kind of gangsters use murder and terror to dictate to the Grenadans the government they will have. When our friends and allies desperately ask our help in ending such a reign of terror, we cannot stand idly by.

Certainly, the events in Lebanon and Grenada have left many questions unanswered. We as a nation must keep pressing for the answers while we examine and reexamine our policies. As we do that, though, we must keep reminding ourselves that we no longer live in a world in which our responsibilities stop at our borders. All of us have a stake in freedom throughout the world.

Few Farmers To Participate In '84 Wheat Plan

Most wheat producers in Minnesota are not planning to participate in the 1984 farm program as announced by agriculture secretary John Block, according to Harry Howard, Warren, president of the Minnesota association of wheat growers. Howard based his remarks on a survey of wheat producer attitudes which the wheat growers conducted following a request for guidance from Minnesota senator Rudy Boschwitz in advance of the senate beginning debate on possible revisions to the 1984 farm program.

According to the survey, over 90 per cent of the wheat farmers in the state indicated they will not participate in the 1984 wheat program. That program consists of a $4.45 target price, a $3.30 loan, a 30 per cent non-paid acreage set-aside and a 10 to 40 per cent payment-in-kind (PIK) program with PIK payments of 75 per cent of proven yield.

Howard noted that 48 per cent of the producers responding indicated that they would like to see a 1984 wheat program like that passed recently by the House agriculture committee. This bill would reduce target prices to $4.38 and leave the price support loan at $3.30. However, as an incentive for producers to participate, the bill would provide a 10 per cent paid diversion program along with the 20 per cent non-paid acreage set-aside. It would also increase the PIK payments to 85 per cent of yield. Under the legislation, target prices would increase to $4.45 per bushel for the 1985 crop.

According to Howard, one of the more interesting results of the survey indicated that an additional 52 per cent of those responding preferred the House version of the 1984 farm bill, but if it was unattainable, would support some similar compromise that would provide a farm program that is better than that currently offered.

When asked if advanced deficiency payments and advance diversion payments would help their cash flow, 85 per cent of the producers responded that it would. However, 56 per cent indicated that they would participate in the compromise program whether or not the payments were paid early. An additional 24 per cent responded that they would sign up only if they received advanced payments.

According to Howard, the conclusion drawn from the survey is that most Minnesota producers are willing to compromise a little on the target price in order to gain a better overall 1984 wheat program. In addition, if congress and the administration can agree on a program similar to that currently being considered in the United States house of representatives which include advanced payments to producers, participation in the 1984 wheat program will change from 90 per cent non-participation to almost 80 per cent participation.

The 20 per cent who indicated that they will not participate in any program volunteered a number of reasons ranging from problems they experienced with the 1983 program, to already having made the investment of preparing their land for next year's crop.

Special Phones No Longer Sold By Bell Center

Northwestern Bell's telecommunication center for disabled customers (TCDC) is no longer handling the sale, leasing or repair of special telephone equipment, the company announced recently.

New National special needs center (NSNC), operated by American Telephone and Telegraph Company AT&T) in Parsippany, N.J., is now responsible for those functions, including servicing of special equipment formerly leased through TCDC.

NSNC is staffed with employees trained to recommend special telecommunication services and equipment for people with hearing, speech, motion and vision-related disabilities. Customers can arrange to purchase or lease equipment by calling 1-800-233-1222 (voice) or 1-800-833-3232 (TDD) free of charge, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Northwestern Bell customers with special needs can continue to call the TCDC for ordering new telephone service and arranging for telephone line repair, TDD toll discounts, and operator-directory assistance exemptions. TCDC will also continue to handle the company's special telecommunications equipment funding program (STEF), which provides interest-free financing of up to $1,600 for people who need special equipment to communicate by telephone.

TCDC can be reached at 1-800-223-3131 (voice-TDD) at no charge, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Changes in the TCDC are a result of Northwestern Bell's divestiture from AT&T, scheduled for January 1, 1984. Because of these changes, Northwestern Bell no longer sells or leases telephone equipment.

Although actual divestiture does not occur until 1984, the company has started operating as though it were split from AT&T to make sure that everything runs smoothly when divestiture takes place.

WIN Program Cuts Welfare Cost In State

Work incentive (WIN) program helped find jobs for 4,158 Minnesota welfare recipients during the 12-month period ending September 30, Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, announced today.

Additionally, the program resulted in welfare savings which offset program costs by more than $10.8 million. Welfare savings for the year amounted to $16,643,691. Program costs for the same period were $5,796,331.

For every dollar of expenditure, the WIN program returned $2.87 in welfare grant reductions as a result of recipients getting jobs, Beerhalter said.

WIN is a federal program which helps persons receiving aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) to become gainfully employed, reducing or eliminating their dependence on public welfare. The program also provides vocational training and other job-related services.

WIN registrants had an average starting wage of $5.24 per hour. According to department records, approximately 89 per cent of the registrants who entered employment were employed 30 days later.

Grant reductions to WIN participants also lowered public expenditures for medicaid and food stamps, Bruce Netland, state WIN manager, said. In addition, state and federal governments gained revenue through income taxes paid by employed WIN registrants, Netland added.

A total of 37,863 individuals received services from the state WIN program between October 1, 1982, and September 30, 1983. As of September 30, there were 26,096 WIN registrants.

In Minnesota, the WIN program is jointly operated by the Minnesota department of economic security, through its Job Service offices, and the Minnesota department of public welfare, through county welfare agencies. More than 85 per cent of the state's AFDC recipients live in the 27 counties served by the Minnesota WIN Program.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

One of the chores I remember as a kid was walking about four miles to a milk store and bringing home one or two gallons of milk. There was a neon sign in the window of The Milk Jug, with the gallon price in red neon numbers — 22 cents. Today, shopping for my family, I paid $2.01 for a gallon of milk.

Ten years ago, purchases of Argentine products involved about 20 pesos to the American dollar. Now the unofficial exchange rate is 40,000 pesos to the American dollar. There were devaluations in Mexico last year, one for about 35 per cent and another for an estimated 30 to 40 per cent of the then existing value. The people in Argentina and Mexico are suffering from terrible inflation. It has killed the incentive to save and invest. It is difficult to survive when prices skyrocket faster than income.

Our own airline industry is a perfect example of the problems of costs getting out of line and inflation taking control. In an air coach trip to Los Angeles, I paid more than double what I had paid on another business trip just three years ago. Looking at a schedule and rates, it is clear the airline ticket charges are so high in 1983 that Mr. and Mrs. USA and their families just can not afford to fly as they once did, and even with these high rates the airlines are losing money, including the strong ones.

The troubled airlines are losing money because of expensive equipment, fuel costs that are out of sight, stupid competition for some routes (I have been on planes where the crew outnumbered the passengers!), and labor costs that are amazing — stewardesses earning more than $20,000 annually. . . baggage handlers earning more than stewardesses. . . pilots in the $75,000 to $100,000 range.

The other day I even read about a New York City newspaper which has a special area for high priced labor that does nothing because new equipment didn't require the old skills. These employees wouldn't allow more productive equipment to be used unless they were paid to retirement, and they were not willing to do any other work that was needed. Each day these employees come in, do nothing, and leave at the end of the regular work day. The newspaper, once prosperous, is now a big loser nearing collapse, even though it has one of the largest circulations in the United States. When it collapses, the contract that is paying for no work will no longer be enforceable. These men will have killed their goose and more than 4,000 other employees will have joined the unemployed, too.

Back in the 1940's, when I was a broadcaster working my way through school, radio stations were being required by the musicians union to have records played by musicians (we didn't have tape back then!) for the music that was being broadcast. Each year the union pushed for more musicians to pay records, where there just wasn't enough time in the day to make use of all of these "record players."

The policy of having people not work to their fullest capacity, featherbedding, is unhealthy. It's inflationary in that it increases costs and makes us less competitive. Today, we have institutionalized featherbedding, paying many people well beyond what is justified based upon what they do.

What we must realize is that unless we produce, we do not earn. We must also recognize that when we get paid for not producing all we should and could produce, we are a part of the inflation problem, contributing to the probable demise of our employer and the loss of our job. This added cost will make it difficult for our company to compete, price-wide, as it must to survive.

The idea that we have to work harder, produce more, and justify our being aboard as an employee and cost, so that our company can survive and compete is an idea whose time has come. No amount of hot air and hokum will substitute for that idea. Mother Nature and the Lord just never planned on providing any of us with a "free ride."

That's Straight Talk!

4H CLUB

Black River

The Black River 4-H club met on October 13 at the Black River church. Flag pledges were said, roll call was taken. Thank you was extended to Lorraine and Joni Mosbeck for organizing and setting up the National 4-H Week display at the church. A report on the Donor's Tea was given by Betty Kisch; the 4-H leader's banquet report was given by Lorraine Mosbeck and Betty Kisch and Myrna Erickson reported on leader's council meeting.

Motion carried that we have a Halloween hayride on October 20th at 7:30 p.m. Club project elected by the members was the health project. Members were to be notified when the date was set to help rake at Oakland Park. Motion carried that we have a world day of hunger display the following Sunday. Stacy Rondorf and Kelly Hoefer will distribute the pamphlets. Following a discussion it was approved that only one item and a beverage be served for lunch at the meetings.

The following officers were installed: president, Joni Mosbeck; vice president, Craig Erickson; secretary, Kyle Kisch; treasurer, Mike Swanson; reporter, Brandon Kisch; historian, Kelly Hoefer. Betty Kisch reported on records and setting project goals. A sing-a-long was led by song leader Eileen Hoefer accompanied by Sylvia Rondorf on the piano.

There were 14 members and seven parents present. The next meeting will be held on November 10 at the Black River church.

No word has been received about filling the Northland community college head football coaching position, vacated when John Helley resigned from the post following the completion of the 1983 season.

Helley coached the Northmen four years — 1980, 1981, 1982 and 1983. Prior to that time, Irv Smith had coached the Northmen in 1978 and 1979, with Chet Engelman handling the program in its first two years, 1976 and 1977.

Throughout the eight years, Northland has had a difficult time winning football games. They've never been able to win more than three games in any one season. In eight years the Northmen have won a total of just 12 games while losing 53 and tying one.

School officials would naturally like to name a new football coach as soon as possible so that recruiting efforts can be started. Initial contacts with high school seniors should be made as soon as possible following the completion of their high school football careers.

Fitzgerald Is BSU Captain

Bob Fitzgerald of Thief River Falls is serving as a tri-captain on the 1983-84 Bemidji State University hockey team.

"Fitzgerald has the abilities, reach and speed, and those qualities, combined with experience, could make this his finest year at BSU," predicted Beavers coach Bob Peters, who returns after a one-year sabbatical which saw the veteran coach completely divorce himself from the BSU program.

Another Thief River Falls product, defenseman Dave Geatz, is also skating with the Beavers, who have been picked by the NCHA coaches as the pre-season league favorite. River Falls was second in the balloting, followed by Mankato State, Eau Claire, St. Cloud, St. Scholastica and Superior.

Miscellaneous

+ Terry Harris, the all-time Northland community college basketball scoring leader, is a member of the University of Wisconsin-Superior basketball squad this season. The Dearborn Heights, Mich., product has been out of basketball since completing his eligibility with the Northmen with 1,440 points during the 1979-80 and 1980-81 seasons. Meanwhile, Matt Fontes, who ranks second to Harris on the Northland scoring parade with 1,100 points during the 1981-82 and 1982-83 seasons, will be in the starting line-up for the University of North Dakota tonight (Monday) as the Sioux open their 1983-84 basketball season at home against the University of Manitoba. Two others off last year's 18-4 state tournament Northland squad, may be playing college basketball this year, with Thad Forman at the University of Minnesota-Morris and Scott McKeever of Middle River at Mayville State, where he is most interested in playing baseball.

+ Jim Hallamek of Thief River Falls, is a freshman linebacker on the 1983 Hamline University football team. The 5-11, 185-pounder is a chemistry major.

+ A new twist in the Section 8 high school hockey tournament format this year will find the section coaches seeding the top four teams into the tournament quarterfinals, regardless of their positions in the regular season Section 8 standings. In the past, the top four regular season finishers were given the Section 8 tournament berths while the others played their way through the sub-sectional competition. After the coaches have seeded the top four, the remaining 15 teams will then compete in the north and south sub-sectional tournaments, with pairings based upon the regular season standings. Section 8 tournament will be played in Thief River Falls Feb. 24, 25, 27, 28 and March 2.

+ Alexandria's Section 3 high school swimming meet title Saturday was the fourth straight sectional title for the Cardinals' girls.

+ St. Cloud Tech's 2-0 Saturday win over Moorhead in the 1983 Region 8AA high school volleyball finals ended a string of five straight regional titles for the Spuds.

Thief River Falls

WHILE THE ATTENTION of most outdoor enthusiasts in northwestern Minnesota has been focused on deer and waterfowl hunting in recent weeks, fall fishing on the Red Lake river just south of Thief River Falls provided Don Janes of this city with a prize trophy when he landed this monster walleye Sunday evening. The fish, which tipped the scale at the power plant between 11½ to 12 pounds, hit a florescent jig with a Twister Tail about 7 p.m.. It took both of Janes' fishing partners — Scott Benson and Scott Temple — to net the catch on the steep river bank made slippery by the weekend snow as one held on to the other while he stretched the net into the water.

Northland Expects To Have Strong Ball Club

Chet Engelman, whose Northland community college basketball teams have averaged 17½ wins per season over the past 10 years, figures he has another winner in the making for the upcoming 1983-84 campaign.

"I think we're going to have a good year," he smiled. "We have some good people. I think it's going to be an interesting year."

Northland lost the services of Matt Fontes and Scott McKeever, the team's top two players a year ago as sophomores, and Engelman is the first to admit they will be hard to replace. But back from last year's 18-4 squad are sophomores Kyle Ramsey, Shorty Johnson, Kevin Sanders and Rick Van Camp. Ramsey, a 6-4½ forward from Milwaukee, Wis., and Johnson, a 6-4½ forward-center from Kenai, Alaska, were full-time starters in 1982-83. Sanders, a 6-1 guard from Thief River Falls, was a starter in all three Northland state tournament games, and Van Camp, a 6-0 guard from Newfolden, came off the bench and played well in a reserve roll throughout the year.

In addition, the Northmen have added the services of Jon Neumann, a 6-5 sophomore transfer students who was a sometimes starter at Lake Region in Devils Lake, N.D. last year. Engelman tried hard to recruit the Middle River product out of high school, but lost him for a year to the Royals.

There's talent among the five freshmen who have been working with the squad, and another late addition was expected to join the team for practice drills this week with the arrival of 6-7 sophomore Rodney Scales of Inkster, Mich. who was an All-Region 13 player in 1977-78 at Lakewood in White Bear Lake. He left Lakewood after one season and had an opportunity to play at a four-year school, but has been sitting out of school since.

Freshmen who have been with the squad from the start include 6-4 Ricky Sims of Milwaukee, Wis.; 6-2½ Ricky Setts of Jamica Queens, N.Y.; 6-4 Pat Burke of Inkster, Mich.; 6-2 Avery Dahl of Alma, Wis.; and 5-8 Dan Flanagan of Edinburg, N.D.

"We have five very solid people in the sophomore bunch, and all of our freshmen are players," said Engelamn, putting special emphasis on the word players.

Ramsey, who averaged 15.7 points per game last year to rank behind Fontes (28.6) and McKeever (18.1) on the scoring charts, is expected to provide a good scoring touch this winter, but Engelman figures everybody will be capable of getting into the scoring column.

"I think our scoring will be a little more balanced this year," he explained. "Ramsey will get his points, but so will everybody else. We are anticipating a little more inside scoring punch this year. We've primarily been an outside shooting club from the wings, but this year I think we'll get some points inside."

Still recognizing the fact that the absence of Matt Fontes and McKeever will be sorely felt, Engelman looks at his 1983-84 squad in the same light as his 1975-76 team that was expected to fare poorly after the losses of standouts like David Dickey, Bernie Stephens and Ralph Fitts off a 24-1 squad. All the Northmen did that following year was go 19-5.

"You just don't replace guys like Fontes and McKeever," acknowledged Engelman, "but I think we have some pretty good players on hand. We expect to be a contender. We could easily drop 6-to-8 games, but we could win them all, too."

Defending Northwest Division champion Fergus Falls is still the team to beat, indicated Engelman, who figures rival University of Minnesota-Crookston will be tough, too. Brainerd is an unknown quality at this point with a new coach and a roster full of new players.

Northland opens play at the Red River community college invitational in Winnipeg.

Panthers, Tigers Win In Volleyball

Cass Lake and St. Cloud Tech were regional high school volleyball winners Saturday.

Region 8A tournament semifinals and finals were played at the University of Minnesota-Crookston where Cass Lake won its first title.

District 29 champion Panthers beat District 31 winner Alvarado 18-14, 19-17 in the championship match Saturday night.

That afternoon, Cass Lake opened with an 18-14, 18-6 semifinal victory over District 30 representative Fertile-Beltrami, while Alvarado defeated District 32 titlist Argyle 18-3, 18-12.

Fertile-Beltrami beat Argyle 18-6, 18-15 in the third place match.

Meanwhile, the Region 8AA finals were played at St. Cloud where South Sub-Region 8AA winner St. Cloud Tech outscored North Sub-Region 8AA champion Moorhead 20-18, 18-12.

Cass Lake and St. Cloud Tech will compete this week in the 1983 state Class A and Class AA tournaments, respectively, at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

Two Prowlers Earn Spots In State Swimming Meet

Thief River Falls' Michelle Puetz and Teri Klopp earned state meet berths Saturday with their performances in the finals of the 1983 Section 3 girls high school swimming and diving championships at Bemidji State University.

Puetz, a sophomore, won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:06.18. Klopp, a junior, was a fifth place finisher in the diving competition with 262.15 points.

Top two finishers in each swimming event, plus the top six divers, earned spots in the state meet, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday at the Cooke Hall Pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Nineteen Thief River Falls girls had qualified to participate in the Section 3 meet by meeting qualifying standards during the course of the regular season schedule.

Puetz just missed another state meet berth with a third place finish in the 50-yard freestyle, where she swam a school-record 25.58 in the prelims. Puetz also swam the lead leg on the Prowlers' 200-yard medley relay team that finished third in 2:04.33. Jill Lusignan, Shelley McGann and Janelle Smidt rounded out the relay squad.

As expected, Alexandria, Moorhead and Fergus Falls were the top three finishers in the final Section 3 team standings, with Thief River Falls coming in with a solid fourth place showing, a fact that brought a great deal of satisfaction to coach Jay Forney. Top six swimmers in the prelims made it to the finals, with places 7-12 in the point-scoring consolation finals.

Alexandria won the 10-team, two-day event with 284 points, followed by Moorhead with 174, Fergus Falls 150, Thief River Falls 103, Park Rapids 97, Detroit Lakes 95, Brainerd 94, Bemidji 75, Little Falls 46 and Melrose 38.

1983 Northland Football Statistics Are Reported

Final year-end statistics for the 1983 Northland community college football team, compiled by student manager Brian Culkins, have been announced for the John Helley-coached Northmen.

Northland finished the year winless in eight outings. The Northmen were beaten by the Bemidji State University junior varsity 18-0, Itasca 32-15, Vermilion 35-7, Mesabi 33-6, Brainerd 31-7, Fergus Falls 41-13, the University of Minnesota-Crookston 34-6 and Hibbing 2-0, with the latter being a forfeit because the Northmen inadvertantly used an ineligible player in a 27-6 win over the Cardinals.

While Helley praised the dedication and the efforts displayed by the Northmen, their on-field numbers reveal some of the problems that resulted in the losing record.

Northland gained 857 yards on the ground in eight games, rushing for an average of 107 yards per contest. The opposition, however, gained 1,641 yards on the ground, averaging 205 yards per game — almost twice as much as the Northmen.

Passing was Northland's most effective way of moving the football. The Northmen surpassed the 1,000-yard barrier passing this fall as Steve Blanc and Bob Rockwood combined to complete 77 of 243 attempts for 1,097 yards. Blanc, a freshman from Columbia Heights, did a bulk of the passing, going 69-for-219 for 929 yards and five touchdowns.

But while the yardage was impressive, that was only a 31.7 per cent completion mark for the Northmen, who were also intercepted 23 times — an average of nearly three per game. They also lost 20 of 39 fumbles. That gave them 43 turnovers in eight games, over five per game; obviously too high of a number to win many football games.

Helley announced that he was stepping down as Northland coach as the season closed, a position he has held for four years. No replacement has been named by school officials.

Study Deals With Animals, Children

If you think kids and wild creatures naturally go together, think again.

A recent study among school children in Connecticut suggests that, like many a love affair, the one between children and animals is bittersweet, at best. The pioneering study, sponsored by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Yale University, did not attempt to analyze the attitudes of children nationally, but provides a provocative glimpse into how our perceptions of wildlife may evolve through the childhood years.

"The fascinating results of this exploratory study suggest a major challenge for today's wildlife professionals," says Fish and Wildlife Service Director Robert Jantzen. "If we expect young people to deal rationally with complex wildlife and environmental issues, we must start channeling emotional attachments to animals toward a more balanced, realistic, and knowledgeable appreciation for the needs of wildlife and the natural system."

Study of "Children's Attitudes, Knowledge, and Behaviors Toward Animals" was conducted by Dr. Stephen R. Kellert of Yale's School of Forestry and Environmental Studies and Miriam O. Westervelt of the Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS). It included nearly 300 second, fifth, eighth and eleventh grade students who represented all major demographic and geographic divisions within Connecticut.

Survey found:

Like adults, the most common attitude among children was a "humanistic" one — that is, a strong affection for individual animals, mainly pets.

"Naturalistic" appreciation for wildlife and the outdoors was much more common in children, especially eleventh graders, than in adults. For example, 59 per cent of eleventh graders indicated a preference for being near wild animals while camping, against only 36 per cent of adults surveyed by Kellert in an earlier study.

+ Children were just as likely to express a general dislike or fear of animals as that "naturalistic" appreciation, however. Younger children feared wild animals to a much greater degree than did older classmates. For example, 64 per cent of second graders, 41 per cent of fifth graders, 11 per cent of eighth graders, and 16 per cent of eleventh graders felt that most wild animals are dangerous to people.

+ Children, particularly those in the upper grade levels, disapproved of sport hunting. Like adults, they approved of hunting for meat, however. Fully 81 per cent of eleventh graders (and 62 per cent of adults) opposed sport hunting, while 60 per cent of all children (and 85 per cent of adults) approved of hunting for meat.

+ Although children's knowledge of animals was relatively limited, in certain specialized areas, like insects, children knew more than adults. Seventy-eight per cent of children knew that spiders are not 10-legged creatures, as against 50 per cent of adults, for example.

+ There are distinct stages through which children's attitudes toward animals evolve, the authors suggest. Between second and fifth grades, children showed a dramatic increase in their concern, sympathy, and affection for animals. Interests in animals became less narrow and early childhood fears began to disappear. Between fifth and eighth grades, factual knowledge about animals showed its greatest increase. From eighth to eleventh grades, children gained a deepening concern for wildlife protection, a greater understanding of ecological concepts, and a relatively high moral concern for animal rights and cruelty issues.

+ Girls expressed a greater emotional affection for animals than did boys, and whites had a greater general interest in animals, particularly wildlife, than did nonwhites. Boys, whites, and rural residents possessed far greater factual knowledge about animals than did other groups of children.

+ Most children said they go to the zoo (93 per cent), own a pet (87 per cent), go fishing (87 per cent), learn about animals in school (83 per cent), feed birds (82 per cent), and read about animals (76 per cent). Whites were more likely than nonwhites to participate in activities involving animals, in general. Rural children engaged in more domestic animal activities, as well as hunting, fishing, and trapping. Girls exceeded boys in their participation in only one activity — birdwatching.

Authors emphasize that the small sample size of this survey, and the fact that it was confined to Connecticut, limits the generalizations that can be based on these data.

Bemidji Plans Cross Country Ski Competition

What happened last year should never have to happen again, and the people at the Minn-Finn cross country ski event have taken measures to guarantee that.

In case you haven't heard, the Minnesota Finlandia and Bemidjithon were called off last year, for the first time, due to lack of snow. The results: disappointment, frustration and financial loss. Months of planning, hundreds of hours of volunteer work and, for some, years of training concluded unceremoniously in a quiet, lonely weekend at home.

No Bemidji, no frosty exhilaration, no gala celebrations, no fun.

Minn-Finn organizers can't control the snow, but from now on they can make sure that you can get back your registration fee in case of cancellation.

To protect participants in this year's March 3-4 Minn-Finn and Bemidjithon, organizers have taken out an insurance policy to guarantee registration refunds in the event of a snow shortage, blizzard, or other natural disaster, excluding thermo nuclear war, in which case no one would probably feel like skiing anyway.

"We wanted to offer our skiers a no-risk event," commented Kathy Rauch, executive director of the Minnesota Finlandia Ski Marathon. "We wanted to protect them somehow and make them feel comfortable about investing in registration."

Having already footed the bill for th cancelled race, the Minn-Finn simply lacked the money to refund registrations. "It was a pitiful situation. The only thing we could do was set our sights on next year."

Policy covers cancellation due to lack of snow or any natural disaster, such as a blizzard, which would prevent skiers from getting to Bemidji.

Policy defines a lack of snow as any amount less than 10 inches. Since the course must accommodate 700 skiers, amounts less than this would be unacceptable.

Prior to each race, a careful watch is kept on the weather to make sure that if conditions become unfavorable, participants can be notified plenty of time in advance. Weather reports are monitored closely throughout the winter, beginning even more intensely six weeks before the race. Frequent course inspections, reports from three mid-western weather services and confirmation from the United States Ski Association are used to determine the feasibility of the race.

"If at a point seven days before the events weather forecasts show no change or we feel we are unable to hold an event that would be up to the standards imposed by the Great American Ski Chase Marathon Series, and that the race would not satisfy those skiers who travel great distances to attend the Minn-Finn, we would then decide to cancel," explained Rauch.

Final cancellation is determined by a vote of the Minn-Finn board of directors. Skiers would then be notified and registrations refunded.

While many cross country ski events have been forced to increase their registration fees this year, Minn-Finn and the Bemidjithon organizers are happy to announce that theirs will remain fixed for the March 3-4 events.

For 27KM Bemidjithon racers, registering before December 1 the fee is only $20, the same as it was last year. Minn-Finn 100KM skiers registering before December 1 will pay the same $30 fee that they paid last year.

For more information on how to register for either the Minn-Finn or Bemidjithon held March 3 and 4 in Bemidji, MN, contact: Minn-Finn Box 771, Bemidji, MN 56601; phone 751-0041.

Wildlife Group Position Change Is Announced

Appointment of two top level managers in the Department of the Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has been announced by Service Director Robert W. Jantzen.

Ronald E. Lambertson has assumed the post of associate director for wildlife resources, while Robert E. Gilmore became the associate director for federal assistance, the position vacated by Lambertson. Gilmore was the deputy associate director for the national wildlife refuge system.

In making the appointments, Jantzen referred to the wealth of experience the two career civil servants bring to their new posts and their dedication to the profession of wildlife management. "Both have demonstrated excellent managerial skills and are looking forward to the challenges presented by their new positions," Jantzen said.

Lambertson, 42, has headed the FWS endangered species and federal aid programs since 1979. His background includes a unique combination of natural resources law, as well as wildlife management. He joined the Department of the Interior's legal staff in 1970 and soon became the assistant solicitor for fish and wildlife.

As head of the wildlife resources program, Lambertson will be responsible for operation of the agency's 90-million-acre system of national wildlife refuges and a number of the FWS wildlife management activities. He is a native of Colorado and holds a degree in wildlife management from Colorado State University and a law degree from the University of Colorado.

Gilmore, 48, will be responsible for administering provisions of the Endangered Species Act including the listing or delisting of species and consultation with other federal agencies on projects which could impact endangered species. He will also supervise the process of providing individual states and territories with over $100 million in funds derived from excise taxes on certain items of sporting equipment. The funds are used for fish and wildlife restoration and enhancement projects.

Gilmore joined the FWS in 1966 as an assistant refuge manager at Chassahowitzka National Wildlife Refuge in Florida.

Lions Defeat Red Raiders In Football Finals

Normandale won its third straight Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state football title Sunday with a 43-6 romp over Northwest Division champion Brainerd in the state finals at Macalester.

Regular season Central Division winner Normandale reached the state finals with a 18-17 first-round win over Southern Division winner Rochester the week before.

Brainerd made it to the finals by beating Northeast Division champion Vermilion 14-7 in the semifinals.

The community was saddened by the sudden death of Selma Sanders who passed away Monday morning at her home at the age of 67. Funeral services were held Friday at Ekelund church with Pastor Gene Broughton conducting the service. Special songs were by Anna Kriel and Vernon Iverson. Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Selma Sanders.

Friday evening Lowell Naeseth of Thief River Falls was a supper guest at the Merle Naeseth home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ardon Hyland and Robby of Verndale spent the weekend at the Kenny and Marilyn Wiseth home and at the Arlyne Hyland home.

Nicole Paulson spent Saturday overnight at the Arlyn Hyland home.

Joann Naeseth spent Friday overnight with Tracy Aandal.

Gertie Haugen and Ruth Kotrba were Sunday dinner guests at the Bert Coan home.

Weekend guests at the Arlyn Hyland home were Mr. and Mrs. Ardon Hyland and Robby of Verndale.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Lerol of Gilbert spent Wednesday and were overnight guests at the Joe and Ann Horachek home.

Jim and Clarence Johnson were Saturday morning coffee guests at the Merle Naeseth home.

Joe Horachek was a patient at Northwestern hospital for several days. Joe is home now and feeling okay.

Wednesday dinner guests at the Bert and Inga Coan home were Mrs. Clifford Larson and Terri, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kuznia of Stephen, Mrs. Rod Lussier, Ian Dylan, Joy Misson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Arlen Sanders and family along with Gertie Haugen, Margie Coan and Mildred Carey.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Jim Johnson, Jenny, Elizabeth and Katie Jo were visitors at the Merle Naeseth home.

Milton Haugen, Amy and Mark of Crookston were Saturday visitors with Gertie Haugen.

Many attended the funeral of Jerry Race. Services were held on Thursday at Ekelund. Sympathy is extended to Jerry's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Wiseth along with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Brateng enjoyed supper at the Steak Knife Saturday evening at Grygla in honor of the Brateng's wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fredrick's baby girl, Pamela Ruth, was baptized on Sunday evening at Ekelund church by Pastor Gene Broughton. Sponsors for Pamela were Jerry Jensen and Karen Peterson and witnesses were Nancy Jensen and Andy Peterson. Following baptism an evening luncheon was held at the Ina Jensen home with Mr. and Mrs. Andy Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jensen and Jason, Arlyne Hyland, Aaron and Danelle Hyland as guests. Nancy Jensen also brought a decorated cross cake for the occasion.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Casper Johnshoy of Moorhead and Mr. and Mrs. Les Being and Erin of Beaulah, N.D. came and spent until Monday as house guests and visitors at the John Hoffman home.

Randy Haugen of Rapid City, S.D. who is stationed at Ellsworth air force base came Saturday to spend a few days at the Ronnie Haugen home. Randy also did some deer hunting while home.

Sunday dinner guests at the Lawrence Srnsky home in Oklee were Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Charlene, Tammy, Lyle and Jenny, Betty Srnsky, Paul Srnsky. Afternoon visitors were Mrs. Ronnie Rustan, Ryan, Keli and Kim, Mrs. Roland Asselin, Kari, Nicole and Luke, Mrs. Kenneth Coan and Michelle.

Mr. and Mrs. David Dahlen, Rachel and Travis spent the weekend at the Wendell Opdahl home of Trail.

Sunday callers at the Arlyn Hyland home were Mrs. Donnie Jensen and Maryann.

Bringing birthday greetings to Oldrich Hoffman on Saturday were Mrs. Clint Hoffman, Gretchen and Jay. Gretchen also brought a decorated cake for her grandpa. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rehm, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jensen. All enjoyed birthday lunch with Oldrich. Happy birthday Oldrich.

Thursday evening supper guests at the John Hoffman home were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Brian Kellogg and Kristen of Peru, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Charlene, Tammy, Lyle and Jennifer came Tuesday to spend until Sunday as a house guest at the Kenneth Coan home. The Sanders family also came to attend their mother and grandmother's funeral, Selma Sanders.

Lynette Kamenin of Virginia came Saturday to spend the weekend at the Harry Paulson home.

Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solberg attended the Bethany bazaar on Sunday at Bethany.

Inga Vad spent Saturday overnight with the Lynn Vad family and was also a Sunday dinner guest.

Jean Groven, Margie Coan, Ruth Sanders Rhonda, Lori Wiseth and girls were Sunday morning coffee guests with Theresa Johnson.

Monday Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Mrs. Marlin Johnson, Jessica, Monica and Michelle were forenoon luncheon guests at the Merle Naeseth home.

Mrs. Aldon Hyland, Aaron and Danelle visited at the Lloyd Wiseth home on Sunday. Trudy also visited with relatives, Ardell Gibson and Gloria Hunt and a friend of Gloria's who were visiting at the Wiseth home.

Mrs. Kenny Nelson, Mrs. Virgil Langseth and Joey, Donna Horachek, John and Valarie and Milo Heden were Sunday visitors at the Russell Heden home.

Sharon Jagol was a Tuesday morning coffee guest with Donna Naeseth.

Saturday dinner guests at the Bert Coan home were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders of Embarrass, Mrs. Clifford Larson, Joy Misson and Heather Owen, Ellen Lussier, Ian and Dylan. Other visitors were Dorothy Miller and Mildred Carey.

Supper guests Saturday evening at the Harry Paulson home were Lynette Kamenin of Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Paulson, Chad and Heidi and Carol Kveton, Jimmy and Janelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solberg and Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Johnson took in the turkey supper at the St. Clement's Catholic church at Grygla Saturday evening.

Visitors and luncheon guests during the week at the Kenneth Coan home were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Srnsky, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Rustan, Ryan, Keli and Kim, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Srnsky, Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Charlene, Tammy, Lyle and Jenny.

Larry and Sarah Weber and Steven and Myrna Skibicki were Saturday visitors at the Russell Heden home.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Charlene, Tammy, Lyle and Jennifer of Embarrass were Thursday dinner guests and visitors at the Lawrence Srnsky home in Oklee.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Donnie Jensen, Eric, Neil and Maryann were coffee guests and visitors at the Edith Solberg home.

Thursday Dave, Joann and Jason Naeseth were visitors at the Jim Johnson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Langseth, Jason, Amy and Joey were Sunday visitors at the Kenny Nelson home.

Sunday Gertie Haugen and Inga Coan accompanied Ruth Kotrba to the Bethany bazaar at the Bethany Lutheran church.

Arlyn Hyland and John Anderson were supper guests Saturday evening at the Norman Anderson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Kellogg and Kristen of Peru, Mass. arrived on Thursday to spend some visiting at the John Hoffman home and with other relatives and friends.

Friday evening visitors and supper guests at the Clifford and Eleanor Larson home were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kuznia, Joy Misson, Mr. and Mrs. Al Lawrence and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Sanders, Tammy and Lyle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sanders of Embarrass and Mrs. Rod Lussier and boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solberg and Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Johnson took in the lutefisk supper at Trinity Lutheran on Thursday evening.

Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Russell Heden and Jon and Shirley Weber and April all helped Rhoda Heden celebrate her birthday at the Hillcrest nursing home. Happy birthday Rhoda.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Jessica, Monica and Michelle were Wednesday morning visitors with Donna Naeseth. Later Jean Johnson was a coffee guest and visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Nelson visited Thursday evening at the Scott Molstad home and also brought birthday greetings to Scott. Happy birthday Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson were Sunday evening visitors at the Orvin Anderson home.

Mrs. Kevin Tharaldson and Ashley and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson and girls were Sunday visitors at the Elmer Johnson home.

Saturday afternoon Nancy Jensen and Jason and Laurie Jak visited at the Ina Jensen home.

Get well wishes are extended to John Kulseth who is hospitalized.

Ina Jensen, Joni Fredrick, Penny and Pamela visited with Clara Knutson and also visited with Clifford and Shirley Johnsrud.

Mrs. Kevin Tharaldson and Ashley and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson and girls visited with Ann Manderud on Sunday afternoon.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Dave Fredrick, Sheri and Cindy and Willie Vettleson visited at the Andy and Karen Peterson home.

Standardization Of Time Evolved From Railroads

by Mary Combe
Smithsonian News Service

Few of us would guess that just 100 years ago telling time wasn't the straightforward matter it is today. Even fewer would suspect that we have the railroads to thank for the ease with which we tell time.

Yet, as recently as 1883, local time was precisely that — local — and usually it was sun time. Back then, when the sun reached its highest point in the sky at noon in Washington, D.C., it was 12:24 p.m. in Boston and 11:43 a.m. in Savannah, GA. Different municipalities or businesses selected their own time. "Often competing and conflicting sources coexisted," Carlene Stephens of the Smithsonian's national museum of American history in Washington, D.C., says. "No two public timekeepers necessarily kept the same time, even in the same community!"

Now, of course, twice a year, like clockwork, most of the nation mechanically springs ahead or — as it does on the last Sunday in October — falls back, adjusting its collective timepieces to be in synchronization.

To follow the train of events leading up to our standardized time, you need only visit the museum, where the permanent timekeeping hall and a six-month exhibit on standard time opening November 18 display the history of the perfecting of those standards and the devices which use them, from ancient sundials to the digital display of an atomic clock.

Man first kept time by natural events around him. The summer and winter solstices, the phases of the moon, the movements of stars and sunrise, noon and sunset helped record time's passage. When he divided the day into hours, and eventually into minutes and seconds, he had to deal with the fact that no natural phenomena mark these articlaial divisions. So man has had to choose — and change — his standards and refine and redisign his clocks constantly through the centuries.

Beginning with the first prehistoric sundial, all timekeepers have relied on the frequency of a recurring event to perform regular movements in equal intervals of time. A timekeeper might measure the passage of the sun in the sky, dripping water, a swinging pendulum or a vibrating tuning fork, quartz crystal or atom. A timekeeper must also have a means of indicating the movements — casting a shadow, moving hands or displaying numbers.

The better the standards — and technology — for frequency and interval, the more accurate the clock. Improving standards in one area raises them in another. It wasn't worth while to add a minute hand to watch until the late 17th century — mechanisms weren't accurate enough. Once able to measure minutes, people became interested in the seconds.

But it was always the scientists, the astronomers, the surveyors and especially the navigators who demanded the development of better ways of measuring time. "They had specialized needs for precise time — especially for longitude determination — well before the general population," Stephens says. Because of the devices developed for their needs, we can now read the time on our digital watches in hundredths of a second.

"Until the 19th century, however, the relative position of the earth and the sun was the standard against which all timekeeping devices were measures," Stephens says. The second was what there were 86,400 of in a day. Since 1967, the U.S. Naval Observatory — a keeper of public time since 1865 — has relied on atomic clocks, which keep track of time in terms of nanoseconds — billionths of a second. Our standard for a second is now the interval in which an atom of cesium oscillates 9,192,631,770 times.

Though clocks continued to become more accurate, no one paid much attention to standardizing time. The development of the telegraph in the early 1840s made it possible for astronomers, who kept their own clocks finetuned to the stars, to transmit accurate time to subscribers, creating the first regional time patterns: It was "noon" along the telegraph line, regardless of the local position of the sun — or the time in the next town.

Although the world's first public time service based on clock beats began at the Cambridge (Mass.) observatory in 1848, Samuel P. Langley, director of the Allegheny observatory from 1867 to 1880 (and later secretary of the Smithsonian institution), was, in 1870, the first to turn telegraphing the beats of an observatory clock into a profitable service. He was also one of the earliest advocates of national standard time.

Langley's chief client was the Pennsylvania railroad, the first railway to use a systematic plan to govern timekeeping along its lines. When conductors checked their pocket watches before crying "All abroad!", they not only held the best timepieces the railroad could provide — rigorously serviced and kept precisely to the station clock — they literally held their passengers' lives in their hands. Keeping strictly to the schedule was crucial to avoiding disastrous collisions.

It was the railroads that first established a national standard time, consisting of four one-hour zones: Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific. All across the nation, November 18, 1883, was the "Day of two Noons." In New York City, for example, all the churchbells tolled the regular New York noon; then, when the sun reached noon four minutes later at the longitude designated as the standard for the Eastern zone, the 75th meridian, a signal telegraphed from the U.S. naval observatory dropped the time ball on the Western union building.

The U.S. Congress formally adopted the Standard Time system in 1918, but established no regulatory authority. For nearly 50 years, the zone borders were in constant flux. The border of the Eastern zone bulged westward as more and more communities matched their time to the commercial centers on the East coast.

Daylight saving, the advance of standard time for one hour during the "summer," was first tried in the United States in 1918 and 1919. Then Congress made it a matter for local service. During World War II, national year-round "war time" was mandated to reduce peak consumption of electricity; in those pre-air conditioning days the heavy demand came in winter. Some communities in the western areas of time zones found the resulting late sunrises too much to take and shifted to other standards. Confusion mounted as local governments vacillated about which zone to belong to and whether and when to save daylight.

In 1962, the transportation industry launched a campaign to straighten out the mess, citing among many ridiculous examples a government office building in Minneapolis-St. Paul where the time was different on different floors during part of the year. Finally, in 1966, Congress put the newly created department of transportation in charge, and standard time is now mandatory. There are now specific rules for changing time zones and for using — or opting out of — daylight saving.

In ancient times, timekeepers were looked on with superstitious awe. We, on the other hand, are hardly aware of them. In the United States, the National bureau of standards (NBS) and the U.S. Naval observatory (USNO) are responsible for keeping us on time and maintaining and disseminating the standards of frequency, interval and date. Broadly speaking, in matters of time the USNO takes care of the U.S. contribution to the astronomical part of universal coordinated time (UTC) — the numbers of seconds in the year; the NBS is responsible for the accuracy of the atomic standard — the length of the second.

The Bureau international de l'Heure (BIH), in Paris, averages data from 70 nations to calculate UTC. The BIH also decides when it is time for a "leap second." the frequency of earth time is imperfect because various factors — snowfall in the winter, for example — affect the movement of the planet. So periodic adjustments — seconds added or subtracted — must be made in those atomic clocks which show the date so they accurately reflect the position of earth in respect to the sun, and so meet the needs of navigators and others.

Who are the standards keepers' "consumers"? Power companies rely on precise timing to deliver the constant flow of 60 hertz (60 cycles per second) of electricity that makes our technology function. Sophisticated clocks synchronize TV and radio broadcasts. NBS reports that users of its timing information include designers of biomedical electronics, automobile mechanics, camera repairers, jewelers, meteorologists, toy manufacturers — and even an astrologer and some pigeon racers.

Even today, scientists are constantly meeting the demand for better and more accessible standards. A recent breakthrough at NBS makes it possible to use the cerium atom standard for time to measure length. Using a sophisticated method, researchers have shown that it is practical to define the meter — at one time a precisely measured length of platinum-iridium and currently defined as 1,650,763.73 wavelengths of light from a krypton afom — as the distance traveled by light in a vacuum in 1-299,792,458 of a second. Some scientists now think it may be possible to replace the seven basic standards of measurement — time, distance, mass, temperature, current, voltage and resistance — with a single base standard, time. If that happens, it will all be a matter of time.

RETURN OF WORLD CLASS snowmobile racing to Thief River Falls was discussed by this committee of community representatives on Wednesday evening at Lon's. Chamber of Commerce has signed an agreement with Central Cross Country Inc. to hold the grand finale of the 1984 world series Schmidt cross country racing circuit in Thief River Falls on February 25 and 26. In addition to professional classes, the snow-cross-type race will also offer an entire format of junior and sport classes. Chairman of the committee is Don Grabanski.

BUGLER MARK LEHRER played taps as one of the concluding numbers of the Veterans Day program Friday morning in Thief River Falls. Also included was the St. Bernard's parochial school choir singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Semper Fidelis

President Reagan's decisive action in joining with six Caribbean nations in the recent liberation of Grenada has been called his "finest hour." It may well be. That action freed a brave people who were being rapidly, and not gently, absorbed into the Soviet empire. It freed more than 1,000 Americans on the island and prevented a repeat of the Iranian hostage humiliation only three years ago. (Those Americans, indeed the entire island, had been held under a 24 hour "shoot-on-sight" curfew before the liberation.) The arrival of the multinational force also denied the use of the Point Salines airport to Soviet bombers and confiscated arms bound for terrorists throughout the region.

The president and those courageous men in our armed forces, the Marines, Army Rangers and Navy SEALS, certainly deserve our support and praise. I would like, also to take this opportunity to pay tribute to a man whose response to the action in Grenada commands our respect: Speaker of the House of Representatives, Thomas P (Tip) O'Neill.

Newsmen who asked O'Neill for his reaction probably expected to hear partisan rhetoric attacking the president and his decision. Instead they saw before them a statesman. "I will not criticize the country," he said.

O'Neill's fine hour was not in isolation. Earlier he led the drive in Congress to support our Marines in Lebanon and to show the world that America would not run in the face of terrorist atrocity that cost more than 200 lives. "I hope," O'Neill said, "my party truly believes we're Americans first and Democrats second."

Amen.

The liberation of Grenada was a strategic victory of significant proportions. It reaffirmed the Monroe Doctrine and left in shreds the Breshnev doctrine that once a people have fallen into the Soviet orbit they can never be free again. It demonstrated that the free world remains committed to the values of human rights, individual liberty and democracy, and that we are willing and able to sacrifice on behalf of those values. To fight for them. And yes, to die for them.

We encouraged those who struggled for their freedom in Afghanistan, Nicaragua, Angola and Poland. And the small nation of Suriname, once believed headed down the road of Grenada and Nicaragua, expelled many of the Cubans who threatened to colonize it.

All of that makes even more important the statesmanship demonstrated by men like Tip O'Neill. We are, of course, one nation, one people with a common destiny. We may disagree — and often do — on matters of tax policy or levels of federal spending. When O'Neill would raise taxes, I would lower them. When he would increase spending, I would reduce it. But when our nation is threatened, when the very freedoms that allow us to disagree are imperiled, we can and must stand shoulder to shoulder against a common enemy that rejects our values and would destroy our freedoms.

We will not soon forget the sight of freed American students kissing the ground when they arrived safely in America. One student, Peter Geller, announced, "I've been a dove all my life. I just can't believe how well those Rangers came down and saved us. Those Rangers deserve a lot of credit. I don't want anyone to say anthing bad about the American military."

Burned into our nation's memory also is the valor of that young wounded Marine in Lebanon who, visited by Gen. Paul Kelley, Commandant of the Marine Corps, signaled a wish for pen and paper and wrote out "semper fi," Marine shorthand for the motto of the Corps, Semper Fidelis, always faithful.

Despite our feelings on tax policy or the deficit — and these issues are important — we all feel a surge of pride in the valor and courage of our military and a refound unity in the defense of those values that make us uniquely American. Hopefully, the world better understands our unity and our commitment to freedom.

Semper fidelis.

Strengthening the Chains of the Constitution

Amending the Constitution of the United States of America is a long and difficult process. Those who framed our Constitution ensured that by requiring two-thirds of both the House of Representatives and the Senate and three-fourth of the state legislatures to approve any new amendment.

The Constitution, then, is not to be changed without serious consideration and serious need. Indeed, in the almost 200 years since the Constitution was written in 1787, it has been amended only 26 times — the first 10 amendments composing our Bill of Rights.

The Constitution ensures our liberties and restrains the power of the federal government. It guarantees our freedom of religion, freedom of speech and the right to free elections. Alexis de Tocqueville, writing in Democracy in American in 1835, observed that the Constitution "forms one of the most powerful barriers that have ever been devised against the tyranny of political assemblies."

If our Constitution serves to chain down the aspirations of the central government and keep its powers limited and the people Free, I fear that the chain has loosened in recent years.

Before the 1930s, deficit spending and the national debt were perceived as evils to be avoided at all costs, and what debt did occur generally came during period of war and was reduced in times of peace. With the advent of Keynesian economic thought, however, deficit spending was presented to the American People as a sound and beneficial policy. Such deficit spending, we were told, would create economic growth. And as there was no constitutional prohibition, the deficts came hard and fast — in war and in peace — and the national debt swelled to more than $1.3 trillion.

The deficit spending came about as a result of the government's insatiable appetite for more and more tax dollars. The philosophy of "Tax, tax, tax, spend, spend, spend, elect, elect, elect" became ingrained in too many of our nation's leaders. Government spending was prized, not to fulfill some national need, such as defense, but as means of attracting the political loyalties of voters.

James Madison, our nation's fourth president and one of the principle authors of the Federalist Papers, had hoped that competing constituencies, or factions, as he called them, would complete against each other in the body politic, much as our three branches of government watch each other to ensure that no one institution gains too much power. What Madison did not foresee was that these special interest groups might combine forces to exact tribute from the taxpayer. Thus we see spending bills passed by Congress that include "goodies" for a variety of interest groups. Congress does not vote on the merits of building a particular dam or bridge, but rather votes on a package that includes enough dams and bridges in enough states and congressional districts to ensure passage. The president must either veto the entire bill — which might include projects of true value — or allow the entire bill to be enacted.

I submit that the resulting runaway spending and mounting national debt are serious enough matters to warrant constitutional change. It is clear that Congress is unable to restrain its spending without such safeguards.

Two amendments are presently before Congress that deserve the support of the American taxpayer. The first, the balanced budget-spending limit amendment, would require both a balanced budget each year — with a provision for emergencies — and also limit the growth of government spending to the growth of the economy. Already 32 states have called on Congress to enact a balanced budget amendment or convene a constitutional convention limited to drafting such an amendment.

Virtually every state requires a balanced budget for itself and state legislative support is joined by popular support, which national polls place as high as 80 per cent for the amendment.

The second amendment I recommend is the line item veto, which would allow the president to veto part of a bill and eliminate the all-or-nothing dilemma now posed. Already 42 state governments have such a line item veto for their governors. And presidents dating back to Ulysses S. Grant have called for such an amendment. (It is interesting to note that the Confederate Constitution recognized the problem and included a line item veto.)

If we as a nation are to come to grips with federal spending growth and mounting deficits, we must now strengthen our Constitution with the addition of both these constitutional amendments.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — What are the eligibility requirements for receipt of Veterans Administration compensation benefits?

A — To be eligible to receive VA compensation, a veteran must have a disability which was incurred in or aggravated by military service, and rated as being 10 per cent or more disabling by the VA. The veteran must also have a discharge other than dishonorable.

Q — What are the requirements for Veterans Administration pension benefits?

A — To be entitled to VA pension benefits, a veteran must have had at least 90 days of wartime service, be considered as permanently and totally disabled and incapable of engaging in substantially gainful employment, and have income which falls within specified income limitations.

Q — Can a veteran be entitled to both pension and compensation benefits from the Veterans Administration?

A — Entitlement may exist concurrently to both benefits; however, payment can be made only for the benefit which provides the greater monthly allowance.

Q — Is there any treatment available from the Veterans Administration for drug addiction:

A — Yes. The VA has a program for the treatment of veterans for alcoholism and other drug dependence. The nearest VA medical center or outpatient clinic should be contacted for treatment.

Q — I have a service-connected disability for which I draw Veterans Administration compensation. If I am hospitalized for the disability, will the VA increase my compensation?

A — If you are hospitalized by the VA in excess of 21 consecutive days for your service-connected disability, your disability rating will be temporarily increased to 100 per cent. Compensation at the increased rate continues until you are discharged from the hospital or during any required convalescent period.

Q — Is there a deadline for filing a claim with the Veterans Administration for an illness or injury which occurred during my military service?

A — There is no deadline; however, it is always best to file a claim as soon as possible after your discharge from service. Even if you feel your illness or injury was not disabling, you should file with the VA. In addition, if you file such a claim within one year from your date of discharge from service, compensation benefits may be payable from that date for any disability which was determined to be service-connected.

Q — What is considered Vietnam-era service?

A — Active duty between August 5, 1964 through May 7, 1975.

Q — If a veteran dies before a home loan guaranteed by the Veterans Administration is repaid, will the VA pay off the balance?

A — No. The surviving spouse or other co-owner must continue making payments.

Q — Why didn't I receive an increase in my Veterans Administration disability pension check in July as in past years?

A — Improved pension is increased in accordance with cost of living increases. The next cost of living increase will be effective December 1, 1983, and will be reflected in the check issued on January 1, 1984.

Q — Can a Veterans Administration service-connected disability rating ever be changed?

A — Yes. The rating may be increased or decreased in accordance with medical findings of changes in the affected condition. However, once a condition has been rated at 10 per cent or more disabling for 20 continuous years, the rating is protected by law and may not be changed to a lower rate.

1983 Hard Red Spring Wheat Crop Is Good

The overall quality of the 1983 hard red spring wheat crop is considered to be very good to excellent, according to a report prepared by the cereal chemistry and technology department at North Dakota State university. The report was based on a regional wheat quality survey that was sponsored by the wheat promotion organizations in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana.

According to Ed Ross of Fisher, chairman of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, this is the fourth year that the cereal chemistry and technology department at North Dakota State university has conducted the regional survey of the hard red spring (HRS) wheat crop. Approximately 1,200 samples were collected at farms and elevators from the four spring wheat producing states and analyzed for both their agronomic and milling and baking characteristics.

Average test weight for the region is 59.4 pounds per bushel, which is 0.9 pounds lower than last year. In Minnesota, the average test weight was 59.0 pounds, compared to 59.8 pounds last year. The average moisture content for the region for the 1983 crop is 10.8 per cent with 11.4 per cent in Minnesota. The moisture is about 1.0 per cent less than for last year's crop and is a result of hot and dry growing conditions. The majority of the 1983 hard red spring wheat crop should grade No. 2 northern spring or better.

Average wheat protein content is 14.6 per cent for the four-state region expressed on an "as is" moisture basis. This is about .5 per cent higher than the average protein content for last year's crop. Minnesota's protein measured 14 per cent. The average wheat falling number value of 431 is indicative of a sound wheat crop that is essentially free of sprouting.

Flour extraction is slightly lower for the 1983 crop, compared to last year, however, the flour ash is also lower. The average wet gluten content for the 1983 crop is 3.2 per cent higher than for the 1982 crop, indicating strong gluten properties.

Physical dough properties, as measured with the farinograph and extensograph instruments indicate somewhat stronger mixing properties compared to the 1982 crop, with over 1.5 per cent higher water absorbtion compared to last year's data.

Ross stated that the average baking properties for the 1983 hard red spring wheat crop are considered very good, as indicated by large loaf volume and satisfactory internal and external bread properties.

The Job Training Partnership Act will train more than one million people a year of permanent, lasting jobs in the private sector, the U.S. Department of Labor reported.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank the voters of the 3rd Ward in the City Election.

RLF Young Man Learning To Live Independently

Jim Sauve, Red Lake Falls, vaguely remembers a period in his life when he no longer wanted to live.

Jim doesn't remember much about the misty fall night of October 3, 1982, when he was thrown from his car after it hit a drainage ditch and rolled end over end into a field. After being rushed to St. John's hospital in Red Lake Falls, Jim was transferred to United hospital in Grand Forks, N.D., where it was discovered that he had broken the fifth cervical vertebrae of his upper spine. This injury left him paralyzed with only the use of his arms.

The few months in the intensive care unit at United following the accident are a blur to Jim. "I was still in shock, I was on medication and I was fighting a lung that kept collapsing," Jim said. "I remember only bits and pieces of conversations with people, and I remember feeling that I wanted to die."

Nineteen-year-old Jim has come a long way since that difficult time in his life. "Now I cherish each day. I look forward to the sun coming up every morning and going down every evening. And now I realize how much I have to live for," he said.

It took time for Jim to come to that realization. And at times it was very difficult — physically and emotionally. During the three months he was in intensive care, Jim's body weight dropped 70 pounds.

"I remember the first few times that I was put into a wheelchair; I passed out because I was so weak I couldn't hold myself up," he said. But Jim gradually began regaining his strength and was soon transferred to the Medical Center rehabilitation hospital in Grand Forks. He spent seven months there, where he received physical and occupational therapy, and nursing care.

"I couldn't have made it through that time without my girlfriend Janelle who was in the accident with me. Her support and encouragement gave me the strength and determination to go on," Jim said, gazing at the 11x14 inch photo of Janelle that decorates his dresser. When Jim finished his therapy at the rehabilitation hospital, he returned to Red Lake Falls until he was accepted into the rehabilitation program at Courage Residence in Golden Valley.

Courage Residence is a steppingstone into community living for young adults with disabilities from all over the nation. Disabled men and women enter the rehabilitation program at the residence in order to learn the skills necessary to live more independently.

Courage Residence adjoins Courage Center, which provides comprehensive services in rehabilitation, recreation and independent living for children and adults with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision impairments. The center's programs are supported by grants from United Ways and contributions from individuals and organizations.

When Jim came to the residence in August, he had to define his goals; to learn to live as independently as possible, to learn to drive and to choose a college or career path. Each month he meets with staff members to revise and set new goals. The staff offers support and advice, but Jim has to take responsibility for making his own decisions. This has been beneficial to him.

"I've grown up so much recently because I've had to make my own decisions. And lately they have been very important decisions. I'm learning to be responsible for myself and my future," Jim said.

Jim is working toward his goals every day. In occupational therapy he learns dressing, cooking and daily living skills with the help of adaptive equipment. In physical therapy Jim exercises and lifts weights to build up his strength. He also learns nursing care and receives vocational counseling. As he comes closer to his discharge date, Jim will begin discharge planning as well.

"There are many resources at Courage Center that help to make you aware of what's available. The supportive staff and the education process here helps prepare you to live comfortably and independently in society," Jim said.

Part of Jim's rehabilitation is participation in recreational activities. He enjoys archery, table tennis, pool, foosball and swimming. While at the rehabilitation hospital in Grand Forks, Jim did some ceramics work; he may resume that hobby in the future.

Jim is excited about earning his driver's license and going to college. He is interested in a career in rehabilitation counseling. He said, "I know from my experience that it is valuable to be able to talk to a counselor who has had a similar experience and knows how it feels to be disabled. The counselors and the other residents here can relate to what you're feeling, and they are always concerned."

Jim is learning to make the most of his life. Eventually he hopes to live in the Twin Cities because it is a very accessible place for someone who uses a wheelchair. Jim has come a long way in the past year — physically and emotionally. He has a determined "get on with my life" attitude that will surely take him far. "I can't wait to start to live a normal life again," he said.

TRF Jobs Inc. To Exhibit At Business Show

Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated is among early registrants for exhibit space at Small Business Marketplace-Minnesota, a business trade show exclusively for small businesses statewide, to be held at the Civic Center arena, Saint Paul, on February 22 and 23.

Just 300 exhibit spaces are available at this inaugural show for small businesses seeking to reach prospective buyers and demonstrate their products and services. Attendance of 10,000 potential buyers from throughout the state is forecast.

Jerome E. Sandstrom, executive director of Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated, plans to use the forum as an opportunity to tell about services of the local development corporation.

Two-day show will also feature a series of management seminars covering such topics as marketing and selling, stress management, managing the family-owned business and financial planning.

Booths are state available to businesses employing 500 or fewer employees (including parent and subsidiary relationships). Information and reservations can be obtained from: Small Business Marketplace - Minnesota coordinator, 7831 E. Bush Lake Road, Minneapolis, MN. 55435; phone (612) 835-6855.

COLOR GUARDS from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Military Order of Cooties and auxiliary units from all three veterans organizations took part in the Veterans Day parade and program Friday in Thief River Falls. Speaker for the program was Mayor Bob Carlson and greetings were presented from American Legion commander Fred Dallmann, VFW Auxiliary president Edna McEnelly and American Legion Auxiliary president Karen Fredrickson, Bob Anderson, commander of VFW Post 2793, served as master of ceremonies and the invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Berton R. Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church.

ARCHERY is one of the recreational activities in which Jim Sauve enjoys participating at Courage Center. Sauve was injured in an automobile accident and has use of only his upper body as a result of a spinal fracture.

AVTI Student Senate Holds Blood Drive

Seventy-one people signed up to donate and 67 pints of blood were drawn at the area vocational-technical institute's blood drive on October 31. Thirty-five of the volunteers were first-time donors.

Roger Reinhert coordinated the drive sponsored by the student senate, which assisted with recruiting and publicizing the drive. Kim Foster and Stacy Kjellberg provided extra help with the drive.

Donations will help meet the blood needs of patients in 48 hospitals served by United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest.

Parenthood To Be Discussed At Footsteps

Theme of the "footsteps" program for the week of November 14 is "Two to Get Ready". Program will discuss what people do to prepare themselves for parenthood.

Footsteps is a parenting program sponsored by community education which involves video tape presentations followed by group discussion. Tapes are broadcast over KTRF cable channel three at 8:30 p.m. each Monday and are shown again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in room 114 at the AVTI. Group discussion is held from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday after the video presentation.

Parents may attend any of the sessions at no charge. Preregistration is required and can be done by calling adult education at 681-5424 before 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

Mary Johnson Is Given Party On Retirement

Mrs. Mary Jane Johnson of this city was welcomed into retirement by family and friends at a recent coffee party hosted by her daughter, Joyce Johnson.

She was presented with a corsage made by her daughter-in-law, Diane Johnson, before cake and coffee were served and cards and gifts opened. Later she was given a microwave oven by Joyce.

Guests attending were Myrtle Nelson, Ila DeLap, Millie Valvin, Peggy Nicholson, Irene Saustad, Marlys Gillespie, Irene Stanley, Alice Olson, Eleanor Johnson, Inga Henrickson, Jeanne Woods, Helena Bolen, Tillie Hedeen, Myrtle Hanson, Diane Johnson and Melissa and Miranda Johnson, all of Thief River Falls, and Gertrude Fremling, Silver Lake, WI. She also received greetings by telephone from her sister, Wilma Smith, Brooklyn Center.

Cindy Stevens In Program For Special Ed

Cindy Stevens, special education director in the Northwest Region Inter-District council, has been selected as one of 25 educators in Minnesota to take part in a program for leaders in special education.

The program is designed to help schools in a time when significant changes are being made in services to the handicapped. The changes are a result of three factors:

+ Improved methods are being used to identify handicapped children who require service. This means that some special education programs need to grow even though overall enrollment in the public schools continues to decline.

+ Laws and court decisions have broadened the services which schools are required to provide handicapped children.

+ Use of new technology — such as computers — means that teachers and administrators must be schooled in new teaching skills and methods.

Training will include current and future trends in educational leadership, decision making, conflict management.

+ Use of computers and communications with other public agencies.

The program is funded by a federal grant awarded to the Minnesota state department of education in St. Paul. Norena A. Hale, special education specialist, is administrator for the program, which is called ARISE (Alliance for Renewal in Special Education).

National Guard Planning Spring Training In CA.

Minnesota Army National Guard's second battalion, 136th infantry, with units in eight northwestern Minnesota communities, including Thief River Falls, has been selected to participate in a training exercise from April 19 to May 8, at Fort Irwin, CA.

In a letter to the Times, Major General James G. Sieben stated, "I sincerely hope that employers and educators will give their support, and cooperate in allowing their employees or students to participate in this vital training." He noted that it was extremely important to enhance the battalion's ability to perform its federal mission, which is to augment the active army during a national emergency.

Responding to concern that the troops might be needed here, in case of possible disasters such as spring flooding, Sieben gave assurance that the 9,400 Army Guard members and 2,250 Air Guard personnel located throughout the state would be ready to respond to any state emergency when called.

He concluded, "capability to perform our dual mission makes the Guard unique and our state and nation strong. The Minnesota National Guard has always been there to support our state and nation. Now is the time we must support the Guard."

Homemakers Study Topic Of Credit On Wed.

Wyandotte Homemakers will hold their regular monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, November 16, at the home of Donna Mossestad, with a lesson on "Women and Credit."

Last meeting of the club was held at 1:30 p.m. October 20, at the home of Linda Ulrich. Marie Gustafson gave a lesson on energy efficient window treatments and draperies. Donna Mossestad won a market basket and Marie Gustafson won a door prize donated by Linda Ulrich. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Members present included Marie Gustafson, Viola Houske, Esther Evenson, Donna Mossestad, Carol Stumpf, Linda Ulrich, Marg Prestebak and Olga Konickson. Guests included Mike and Steve Conely, Jeni and Tom Stumpf, Brad, Debbie and Dale Mossestad, and David and Jeremy Hanske.

Northland Concert At Gymnasium This Sunday

A concert will be presented at 4 p.m. on Sunday, conducted by Russell Pesola of Concordia college and Les Togerson of Northland community college. Area high school bands will participate with the Northland community college band at the event to be held at the NCC gymnasium. There will be no admission charge.

Northland community band will play numbers ranging from "The Pathfinder of Panama March" to "Mayflower Overture." The band consists of 49 active members under the direction of Les Torgerson, music instructor at Northland community college. Members of the community band come from the college, high schools and surrounding communities.

In the flute section are Kristi Lieberg and Kathi Nelson of Greenbush, and Judy Rosetta and Violet Barr of Thief River Falls. Shawn Langlie of Newfolden plays oboe, and Jan Klopp of Thief River Falls plays the bassoon. The clarinet section consists of Helen Anderson, Jackie Kramer, Marilyn Schmidt, and Jessica Solne of Thief River Falls, Stacey Eggebraaten and Lila Wright of Fisher, Tammy Anderson of Grygla and Mary Parr of Greenbush. Lisa Kriel of Goodridge plays the bass clarinet.

Sheila Duke, Jay Jonson and Mike Purdy of Thief River Falls along with Myrna Hanson of Greenbush play alto saxophone. Deb Ernest, Shannon Kezar and Sue Pfeifer, all of Thief River Falls, play tenor saxophone. Don Johnson of Thief River Falls plays baritone sax.

Trumpet players in the community band are Andrea Ault, Mark Lehrer, Rochelle Sandstrom, James Solsten and Mauri Torgerson of Thief River Falls and Charles Roux of Warren. The French horn section consists of Joann Smeby and Kurt Vandermeer of Grygla and Cecily Johnson of Newfolden. Trombone players are Kevin Anderson, Steve Fisher, Dave Ose, Dale Sholtz and Paul Wefald, all of Thief River Falls. The baritone section consists of Mike Gilbertson and Ormond Johnson of Thief River Falls while the tuba players include Steve Anderson, Jerry Sandstrom and Sverre Solheim, all of Thief River Falls.

Winterfest Is Being Planned By TRF Jaycees

Thief River Falls Jaycees have begun planning for their second annual Winterfest celebration, to be held February 10 to 19, with Al Rux as overall chairman.

Noting that the first Winterfest celebration, held last year, was a success in spite of mild weather which hampered some outdoor events, Rux stated that the Jaycees are hoping to have their schedule filled even more completely this year. Among events which have already been confirmed will be snowmobile races, three-wheeler races, treasure hunt, broomball, volleyball and winterball tournaments. Other projects which are being investigated include contests for ice fisherman, golfers, curlers and fiddlers.

Rux stated that the Jaycees are encouraging participation in the festival by other organizations, businesses and individuals, noting that anyone having ideas for other projects should write to him at P.O. Box 53, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; or call 681-8122.

Coin, Antique, Stamp, Hobby Show Slated

Seventeenth annual free international coin, antique, stamp and hobby show will be presented Saturday and Sunday at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls coin club.

There is no admission to the show which will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Twenty-five dealers will be on hand to buy, sell or trade items, according to Patrick Klemisch, show chairman.

Among items of special interest in the displays this year will be misprinted currency, Thief River Falls tokens and notes, and a complete set of Canadian commemorative gold pieces.

For the past 15 years the sponsoring coin club has used funds raised through the show to sponsor scholarships at Northland community college and the area vocational-technical institute. Total given to scholarships during that period is $5,250, Klemisch said.

OLAF OLSON visited with his niece Beda Knutson on his 102nd birthday last Thursday, displaying remarkable good health, although he has spent much of his life in hospitals. He says he has recovered from battles against turberculosis and cancer, crediting the practice of fasting and controlled diet. He claims he feels better now than when he was a young man.

102 Years Old Olaf Olson Is Watching Diet

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

"I'm as old as the hills," said Olaf Olson with a little laugh after I had introduced myself and wished him a happy birthday on Thursday at Valley Home. In this prairie country, where most hills are man-made, Olaf is probably older. He turned 102 on November 10.

Compared to many residents of the nursing home where he has lived for the past 10 years, Olaf is in remarkable physical condition. Although he has a cataract on one eye, he still enjoys reading, his hearing is good and he walks (although slowly) without use of artificial supports. Even more remarkable is his mind, which remains sharp, enabling him to converse freely. Like many senior citizens, he seems to prefer talking about the past, but he lives in the present and hasn't stopped thinking about the future.

Olaf says he is in better condition now than he was as a young man, noting that he has spent a large part of his life in hospitals. Born in 1881 in Folling, Hjamtland (northern Sweden), he says he came to the United States in 1895 with his parents and sister, and they established a farm about four miles east of Hallock.

4-H Plays To Be Shown In TRF On Friday

Pennington county 4-H clubs will conduct a fine arts festival featuring two one-act plays, starting at 7:30 p.m. Friday, at Northland community college theatre.

Admission will be free to the program, which will feature members of the Happy Acres club in a play called "Carriage Trade;" and members of the Silverton club in a production called "What'll We Give Dad?" Productions will be judged on such aspects as costumes, make-up, character portrayals and props. Serving as judges for the festival will be Heidi Hoks, Steve Dalager and Diane Marshall.

Participants in the Happy Acres production of "Carriage Trade" will include Todd Carlson as Roger, Troy Carlson as Johnny Smith, Paul Johnson as Herbie, Suzanne Johnson as Mrs. Smith (also assistant director), Stacie Hanson as Karen, Lisa Rahn as Mrs. Hustlebustle, Tammy Alberg as Sue, and Karina Krepp as Mrs. Sweetlittle. Extras for the production will be Mike Halsa and Erica Alberg. Coaches will be Norman Halsa and Gloria Mapes.

Participants in the Silverton production of "What'll We Give Dad?" will include Loren Haagenson as Mr. Hill, Susan Peterson as Mrs. Hill, Dale Nelson as Bill, Karla Rupprecht as Janie, Lana Wagner as Betty, Stacie Skibicki as Ilene, and Kristi Rupprecht as Gram. Coaches will include Nanci Reed, Bev Rupprecht, Sharon Russell and Ruth Haagenson. Student coaches will be Cindi Russell and Brenda Russell.

Inter-City Gas Customers To Receive Refund

Inter-City Gas corporation has requested authorization from the Minnesota Public Utilities commission (MPUC) to refund $499,700 to its customers during November and December. General service refund, which includes residential customers, will be 22.57 cents per Mcf on gas bills mailed during November and December. Large volume industrial customers will receive their refund on November bills.

This customer refund is the result of refunds Inter-City has received from its gas suppliers, and the company is now passing these, including interest from the time of receipt, along to their customers. Average residential customer's bill will be decreased by approximately $7.80 for the two month period. This is not related to the company's request for a rate increase currently before the MPUC.

Inter-City purchases gas from Northern Natural Gas Company, Midwestern Gas Transmission Company, Great Lakes Gas Transmission and Inter-City Minnesota Pipelines, Ltd, Inc.

Governor To Appear Friday In T.R. Falls

Governor Rudy Perpich will be in Thief River Falls Friday for a meeting with local industrial, business and other interested people and to attend a fund-raiser for Sen. LeRoy Stumpf later in the day. The governor will be accompanied by Mark Dayton, commissioner of energy and economic development.

Gov. Perpich and Commissioner Dayton will be at the Best Western inn from 4 to 5:30 p.m. for the public meeting.

Set Chameleon Theatre Meet On Thursday

Chameleon theatre company inc. will meet on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers in the basement of the city auditorium. The meeting is for anyone interested in any phase of community theatre.

Topic for discussion will be the upcoming Christmas production. Three one-act plays will be presented under the direction of Chris Kays. Audition dates and performance dates will be set.

For further information call Frank Womack at 681-2499 or Jan Peterson at 681-7274.

School Board Considers Appointing Committees

"YOU'RE MY GIRL, ain't ya, Opal?" asks the officer (David Novak) as he walks in on Opal (Sue Block) and the three bungling bad guys to thwart their first attempt at killing Opal for insurance money. Left to right are Brad (Todd Wing), Sol (Chris Contos) and Gloria (Kim Carlson). The Lincoln high school drama department will present the play, under the direction of Pat Johnson, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln auditorium.

CURIOUS CHARACTERS make up the cast of "The Curious Savage," Marshall county central high school play to be presented Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium at Newfolden. Mrs. Savage (Pam Pederson) displays curious behavior by biting Lily Belle (Cyndi Ness) while clinging tightly to her teddy bear. At right is Titus (Brent Hanson) and sitting at the table in an attitude of boredom is Sam (DeAnn Bakke). Adult admission is $2 with students admitted for $1. Director of the play is Paul Sharon. The play's plot involves attempts by Mrs. Savage's step-children to give them her $10 million by committing her to an institution, but an army of helpers save her from her step-children.

Members of the Thief River Falls board of education participated in some of the American Education week activities at Lincoln high school prior to the regular board meeting conducted at 8 p.m. Monday in the Lincoln auditorium. Reports and planning occupied a good deal of the meeting time.

Part of the planning involved establishment of a facilities advisory committee and a committee on excellence in education. The first group would study further the existing facilities of the district and provide advice on future actions of the district. The second would look primarily at extra curricular programs and communications among administration, board, staff and other residents of the district. Board members were asked to submit names of potential members of each committee with a view toward making official appointments at the next meeting of the board.

Because there are a number of individuals from neighboring school districts who are candidates for the post presently held by Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire on the Minnesota School Boards association board of directors, the local board decided not to endorse a specific candidate.

A letter was distributed from engineer Dick Olson of the Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen architectural firm concerning square footage in school district buildings to be tested for asbestos. Also distributed was a letter from Laura Zahn, aide to the Minnesota commissioner of education, as a follow-up to a recent visit with staff on concerns regarding class size and how people feel about the job teachers are doing.

Al Buhl, who chairs the internal compliance committee on equal opportunity, reported on the committee's on-site review of Northrop, Washington and Mark Twain schools October 5. Their findings and recommendations were reviewed and action taken to address potential noncompliance areas.

Project Charlie, a drug abuse prevention and self-awareness program being implemented in the district this month, was reviewed and discussed. Enrollment projections for the next five years were presented and indicate an expectation of gradual decline during that period.

Supt. Robert Block was designated as 1983-84 legislative representative for the school boards association COMNET program with Harry Sjulson as alternate. Need for additional space by the AVTI aviation program was discussed by AVTI director Dr. Orley Gunderson. Additional study will be given to the situation before a formal action is proposed.

State DOT Maintenance Crews Finish Busy Year

"Our maintenance workers in District 2 have done an outstanding job this year in taking care of the trouble spots in area highways," states Bob Wolfe, district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation.

While the large highway construction jobs are contracted out and receive the largest amoung of public attention, Mn-DOT maintenance workers must find ways to solve the problems that plague motorists, such as frost heaves, low shoulders, rough roadway sections and bumpy railroad crossings.

"It's not just pothole filling either," Wolfe said. "With today's aging highway system, more and more responsibility is falling on fewer and fewer maintenance workers to keep our roads together for a longer period than anyone intended."

"They're also beginning to take on larger jobs such as spot resurfacing that, at one time, we might have contracted out. In the time that it would take to program and let some of these smaller projects — we've found that sometimes it is easier for our maintenance people to just go in and quickly take care of the problem."

Mike Nygaard, maintenance engineer for Area 2A, headquartered in Bemidji, reports that are maintenance crews placed over 12,398 tons of blacktop on roadways at 21 locations and used over 15,268 yards of gravel to improve shoulders at 13 locations. Other maintenance projects involved improvements to truck station facilities throughout the district.

Bernie Brisk, maintenance engineer for Area 2B, headquartered in Crookston, reports that maintenance crews completed 20 different projects involving pavement and shoulder repair, ditch cleaning and railroad crossing improvements. Brisk said that their work season was shortened by the wet weather this fall which resulted in a lot of mud on the roadways during the sugar beet and potato harvest. This tied up significant amounts of machinery and manpower during the harvest.

In addition to the springtime patching and the regularly scheduled maintenance projects, Mn-DOT maintenance workers are also emergency people who may be called upon at any time to

Canadian Saved From Drowning At Best Western

Because Deb Blazek of Thief River Falls had taken a CPR course and knew what action to take, a 57-year-old Canadian man was saved from what could have been a death by drowning Saturday afternoon at the Best Western swimming pool in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Blazek was one of some 40 employees of the Best Western inn here who took the cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course in group sessions held at the Best Western only a few months ago. "I'm just really proud of Deb and all the other staff people who knew just what to do in this emergency situation," states Diana Josephson, manager of the motel.

Mrs. Josephson said that Ed [illegible] of Winnipeg had panicked in the [illegible] of the pool and that [illegible] in the crowded pool at the same time — including the man's brother-in-law — thought that he was simply "showing off" with his antics. Later he was found by another swimmer at the bottom of the pool.

When taken from the pool LaRoche apparently had no pulse nor heartbeat, Mrs. Josephson said. His tongue

Schools Exhibit Activity Thurs. At Open House

Observance of American Education week locally will include a special open house for the public Thursday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Opening the event at 6:30 p.m. will be the eighth grade chorus under the direction of Marcia Knuttila, presenting a program of musical selections and choreography.

At 7:30 p.m., Lincoln high school drama department under the direction of Pat Johnson will present selected scenes from the fall play "Everybody Loves Opal."

Mark Twain elementary school will demonstrate its math series with use of a computer. Northrop elementary school will display [illegible] and Washington elementary school will have an art display.

Northwest vocational center will have demonstrations and displays from its various departments and each of the other schools will also be represented by other departments as well as those listed, with faculty available to discuss programs and materials with open house visitors.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Pearson And Swanson Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged at a recent afternoon wedding at Trinity Lutheran church by Charlene L. Pearson and Rick L. Swanson.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Barbara Pearson, route 3, Thief River Falls and the late Erdman Pearson, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Swanson, route 5, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Berton R. Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony. LaVonne Masters was the organist, playing the "Theme from Endless Love," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mark L. Pearson. Vocalists were Julie DuRose, Mike Lehrer, LeRoy Aasland, friends of the couple, and Deb Johnson, sister of the groom. Selections rendered were "God, a Woman and a Man," "Wedding Song," "Pledge My Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Baskets of yellow and blue carnations and white gladioli graced the chancel. Yellow bows marked the pews.

The bride was attired in a sheer organza gown featuring bishop sleeves of Chantilly lace. Corresponding lace, embroidered with iridescents and pearls outlined the Queen Anne neckline, the molded bodice, and flowed down the softly flared skirt. Attached at the empire waistline was a cathedral-length train. Her waist-length veil of sheer bridal illusion fell from a lace trimmed hat featuring a lace cascade in back. The upturned brim was accented by a white rose, and like the gown, the hat was trimmed with pearls and iridescents. The bride carried a silk bouquet of blue, yellow and white roses, accented with babies' breath and blue and white carnations.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark L. Pearson.

Maid of honor was Susan Moschner, St. Hilaire, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Coleen Pearson, Annette Normandin of New Ulm, sisters of the bride; and Karen Rouse, Clarissa, a cousin of the bride. All wore light blue, spaghetti strap gowns styled with off-the-shoulder flounces. A deep flounce edged the skirt. In their hair, they wore a hair clip featuring a white rose, blue carnation and babies' breath. All carried silk bouquets of yellow roses interspersed with blue and white carnations and babies' breath.

Junior bridesmaid was Barbie Larson, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, a niece of the bride. She wore a light blue floor-length gown with caplet sleeves and carried a bouquet similar to those carried by the bridesmaids.

Mark Drury, St. Hilaire, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Appel, Mike Fanfulik of St. Hilaire, and Mitch Hinden, friends of the couple. Brian Larson, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, a nephew of the bride, was junior groomsman. Serving as ushers were Duane Swanson, Lakeville, brother of the groom, and Kenny Johnson, Grand Forks, N.D., a brother-in-law of the groom. All wore light blue tuxedos, blue shirts and ascots and peek-aboo boutonnieres featuring a white carnation centered with a yellow rose bud. The groom, in all white attire, wore a tuxedo with tails. His boutonniere featured a blue open rose centered with a rose bud.

The mother of the bride was attired in a pastel pink street-length dress, with lace overlay, and pearl jewelry. Her wrist corsage was of blue, yellow and white roses. A similar corsage accented the ivory street-length dress worn by the groom's mother. Gold jewelry complemented her attire.

Honor guests were Robert Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Busse, Ralph Erlandson, Mrs. Dora Pearson and Mrs. Katherine Swanson.

Following the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for approximately 230 relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Larson, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Swanson, brother and sister-in-law of the groom.

At the guest book was Mrs. Alan Lindahl, a friend of the couple. Mike and Michelle Swanson, nephew and niece of the groom, served the punch. At the gift table were Missy Iverson and Kristy Putz, friends of the couple.

The chocolate and white, three-tiered wedding cake was supported by tall Grecian pillars. On the bottom tier was a flowing water fountain. Leading from the fountain to heart-shaped cakes, inscribed with the names of the couple, were stairs with miniature attendants on the steps. A miniature bride and groom graced the second tier, and a wedding bell ornament backed by a filigreed heart, topped the cake. Cutting the serving the cake were Mrs. Donna Schantzen and Cheris Swanson, aunts of the groom. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Reynold Dekkes, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Jerome Larson, cousin of the bride.

Waitresses were Debbie Elterfield, Jaylene Lian and Kendra Johnson.

The couple is making their home in this city at 416 North Main. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the AVTI school of cosmetology. She is employed by the American Legion club. The groom is employed by Swanson Bros. farm. Photographers, R.L. Nieland and Don Gustafson

Local TOPS Club Receives Honors At Rally

Thief River Falls TOPS chapter, MN 1175, received several honors at the Fall Rally held recently in Wadena.

Among the honors received by the chapter was a plaque denoting the best average loss per member during the summer in northern Minnesota. The average loss per member in the local chapter was 4.52 pounds.

The chapter also received first place in poster competition based on the rally theme, "Let Positive Thoughts Blossom."

Receiving individual awards were Jane Woodward, graduating KOPS for having reached her goal with a 19½ lb., weight loss; Eileen Hutchinson, eight year KOPS alumni, and Linda Helgeland, seven year KOPS alumini.

Receiving letter awards were chapter leader Eileen Hutchinson, the root award; and treasurer Marge Grisanti, the perennial award.

Anyone desiring information regarding the meetings of the TOPS club, which are held Friday mornings, may call Eileen Hutchinson, 681-3940.

NWRL Presents

Library Lil

Library Lil here to tell you to remember the children's Book Week films at 3:30 and 7 p.m. Monday-Thursday and the special senior citizens' program at 3 p.m. on Thursday. Sounds Terrific!

Some books I wormed through:

"Extraterrestrial Civilizations" by Isaac Asinmov — In this book, Asimov poses a question, "are we alone?" Aismov says that just possibly we are not. Many astronomers and Asimov believe this and Asimov tells us more about it in his book. He analyzes the universe, life and intelligence and tells why life can only form on a planet and why so few planets could be inhabited by life. It's a fascinating book on the universe with an interesting hypothesis of extraterrestrial life.

"Ed Emberley's Big Green Drawning Book" by Ed Emberley — Emberley shows in this book how — if you can draw a triangle, a square, a numeral one, and letters C, D and O, a parenthesis and a scribble — you can draw more than 198 pictures.

"The Shadow Puppet Book" by Janet Lynch-Watson — This book tells how to make shadow puppets and a shadow puppet stage. It also has lots of plays to use with puppets like "The Emperor's New Clothes" and "A Nativity Story". It also tells about the history of shadow puppets.

Hazel Christenson to Observe 80th Birthday

Hazel Christenson of this city will be honored on her 80th birthday at a party on Saturday, November 26, from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

The event is being hosted by Mrs. Christenson's children. All friends and relatives are welcome.

"No gifts, please."

Silverton Family League to Meet Sunday

Silverton Family league will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m., at the Silverton Lutheran church.

Dean Paskewitz will present the program.

Everyone is welcome to attend. Lunch will be served.

Spares-N-Pairs Meet Set at Zion Church

Spares-N-Pairs will be meeting at Zion fellowship hall on Friday at 7:00 p.m.

Those attending are asked to bring a board game and potluck snacks.

Save Canadian From Drowning In Motel Pool had dropped back into his throat and blocked his breathing and "his color was almost black," she added.

Mrs. Blazek opened the airway and assisted the man in starting to breathe again, at which time LaRoche began to expel a large amount of the chlorinated water he had swallowed. An ambulance had been summoned immediately, but when it arrived the man's color had returned and he was able to sit up prior to being taken to the hospital. He was hospitalized in the intensive care unit overnight and released the following day.

Consensus of those involved in the rescue and providing treatment following the incident was that LaRoche would not have survived more than an additional minute or two without the attention that was provided by Mrs. Blazek, a desk clerk at the motel. Mrs. Josephson said LaRoche and his wife returned to the motel following his hospitalization to thank the people for their rescue.

"Everything seemed to go just as if it had been rehearsed," Mrs. Josephson added. "From Deb's life-saving action to crowd control, calling for the ambulance and taking care of the situation, all of our staff people were just super. Sponsoring those CPR courses was one of the best things we have ever done."

Northland Has Concert Set This Sunday

The percussion section consists of Doug Engstrom, Katy Kinsman, Mike Lehrer, Patti Nelson, Ann Odegaard and Matt Samuelson of Thief River Falls and Kimberly Churchill of Greenbush.

Concert choir and jazz ensemble, both under the direction of Les Torgerson, will be an important part of the concert. The choir will sing seven numbers. Soprano section includes Tammy Anderson and Amy Johnson of Grygla, Sandy Falk and Heidi Goos of Roseau, Lisa Kriel of Goodridge, Kristi Lieberg of Greenbush, and Cheri Perisian of Red Lake Falls.

The alto section includes Mindy Green, Patti Nelson and Margaret White of Thief River Falls, Anita Carlson and Cindi Huotari of Plummer and Carol Skarison of Clearbrook.

The tenor section includes Randy Baker of Oklee, John Dahl of Clearbrook, Alan Melvie of Newfolden and Perry Moran of Red Lake Falls.

The bass section consists of Jason Bergeron of Argyle, Sheila Erickson of Plummer, Tim Finseth of McIntosh, Bud Fontes of Canton, Ohio, Dan Odegaard of Thief River Falls and Todd Stokke of Newfolden.

Northland jazz ensemble will present six numbers. Participants include saxophones featuring Sheila Holtan, Christie LaCouraiere, Patti Nelson and Gwen Nylen of Thief River Falls and Tim Larson of Warren.

The trumpet section includes Shawn Langlie and Norma VanCamp of Newfolden, Douglas Engstrom of Thief River Falls and Tom Monson of Grygla.

The trombone section features Steve Fisher and Les Togerson of Thief River Falls, Alan Melvie of Newfolden and John Orpen of Middle River.

John Helms and Cal Wicklander play guitar for the jazz ensemble, with Steve Dalager on the bass guitar. Mindy Green accompanies the ensemble on the piano and Katy Kinsman is percussionist.

REV. RICHARD SNIPSTEAD, president of the Association of Free Lutheran congregations, will speak at the dedication service of the new addition to Reiner Lutheran church of rural Goodridge on Sunday at 11:30 a.m. New addition consists of a kitchen and fellowship room and construction was done by families of the congregation. Rev. Les Galland is pastor of the congregation. Dinner will be served following the service.

Approval was given for Our Saviour's Christian academy to use the Franklin swimming pool for one hour on Wednesday afternoons at a charge of one hour of custodial time per session of use. November 28 meeting of the board was canceled and the next meeting was scheduled for December 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Self-Confidence Course Begins Dec. 6 At NCC

Self-confidence and skill assessment course will begin at Northland community college on December 6 and will help participants gain insight into their feelings and behavior, learn assertiveness skills, and how to apply these skills in their present manner of responding to people and situations in their environments.

This workshop is for you if: You are interested in examining your values, interests and talents; you are concerned about your role as a woman; you are undecided about your goals for the future; you are thinking about entering the job market; you are feeling a lack of self-confidence; you are not sure of how to apply for a job; and you are worried that you haven't any skills.

This two credit course will help you establish a sense of identity, determine goals for the future and expand your understanding of choices and options in your life. Grading for the course will be pass-fail.

Instructor for the course will be Faith Rud, a former NCC graduate who completed her B.A. AND M.A. at University of North Dakota in sociology. Ms. Rud has had numerous teaching experiences and lives in Warren.

For more information and to register call 681-2181 at Northland community college.

Goodridge History Group Meets Friday

Goodridge area historical society will hold its annual meeting on Friday at the senior citizen center in Goodridge, starting with a 7:30 p.m. pot luck supper.

Meeting will include reports from President Norma Hanson, secretary Marcella Hanson, treasurer David Brown and curator Lois Swanson. There will also be election of three directors. Program will include a "This Is Your Life" presentation to a couple in the Goodridge community, with a short film to conclude the evening activities.

Anyone interested in the growth of the society is welcome to attend.

Services Held For Myrtle Swanson, 80

Funeral services for Mrs. Albert (Myrtle) Swanson, 80, of Hallock, who taught school for 18 years in various places in Northwestern Minnesota, were held Wednesday, November 9, at the Grace Lutheran church in Hallock. Mrs. Swanson died November 5 at the Kittson Memorial hospital nursing unit at Hallock.

Rev. Kenneth Losch officiated at the services. Vocal selections were by Karen Otterson and Shirley Nordling with Harriet Docken as accompanist. Organist was James Wallace. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery at Hallock.

Mrs. Swanson, the former Myrtle Olson, was born May 27, 1903 at Middle River to Ole and Ingeborg Olson. She received her elementary education at Middle River, and was graduated from Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, with the class of 1921. She attended Moorhead State college and was graduated from Duluth state university in 1924. She taught in various places in Northwestern Minnesota for 18 years.

She was married Sept. 27, 1942 at Kennedy to Albert Swanson. The couple farmed in the Hallock area until retirement.

She was a member of the Grace Lutheran church of Hallock, its Lutheran Church Women, and taught Sunday school there. She was also very active in the Cancer society.

Surviving are her husband, her son and daughter-in-law: Charles and Patricia Swanson of Hallock, and two grandchildren: Stephen and Michael.

Her parents, four brothers and three sisters preceded her in death.

Rites Held For Mrs. Russell Nelson, 71

Funeral services for Mrs. Russell (Signe) Nelson, 71, of Newfolden were held Monday at 10:00 a.m., at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Nelson died Friday morning at her home in New Solum township of Marshall county.

Rev. Roger Hanson officiated at the services. Vocal selections were by the Zion Silvertones with Mrs. James Dalager serving as organist. Interment was in the Rindal cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

The family considered all friends attending the services as honorary pallbearers.

Serving as active pallbearers were Ray Holmstrom, Walter Lund, Irvin Jarshaw, Ray Olson, Norman Voldness and Dennis Wegge.

Mrs. Nelson, the former Signe Johanna Sabo, was born Sept. 1, 1912 in Saudi, Iowa to Peder Elling Sabo and Inga Urness Sabo, now deceased. At the age of two years, she came with her parents to Minnesota, settling in Cloverleaf township of Pennington county. She attended school at Goodridge and was graduated from high school in Crookston. After attending Moorhead State Teacher's college, she taught for 33 years, including several years at Washington school in this city. She retired in 1975.

She was married Nov. 15, 1934 at Wylie to Russell Nelson. Following their marriage, they farmed in the Goodridge area for three years before moving to New Solum township in 1938. Since then, they had made their home there.

She was a member of Zion Lutheran church and its ZLCW, taught Sunday school there and was active in other church activities. She was also a member of the Retired Teacher's association.

Surviving are her husband, a son, Robert Nelson, Minneapolis; a daughter, Mrs. Ray (Jeannie) Nelson, Thief River Falls; six grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, and two brothers: Nels Sabo, Waterloo, Iowa; and Harold, Gonvick.

Three brothers and three sisters preceded her in death.

Earl Lindahl Services Held In Winnipeg

Earl Lindahl, 58, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, son of Mrs. Emma Lindahl of this city, died November 5 at the Victoria General hospital in Winnipeg.

Divine liturgy for Earl Lindahl was celebrated November 9, at 10:00 a.m., at St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic church in Winnipeg with a Basilian Father officiating. Interment followed in the Holy Family cemetery. Prayers were sung the previous evening at the church.

Earl William Lindahl was born in Ross and attended schools in Newfolden, Thief River Falls and Middle River, graduating from high school in Middle River. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in music from McPhail Music conservatory and his Masters degree from the University of North Dakota. Upon completion of his schooling, he was employed as band director in various schools in the mid-western states, California and Winnipeg.

During the Second World War, he served with the U.S. Naval Air Corps in the Pacific for three years. Among the awards he received was the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He was a member of St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic church and the parish choir.

Surviving are his wife, Helen, a son, Gregory, both of Winnipeg; his mother, Emma Lindahl, Thief River Falls; two brothers: Glen and his wife Ruby of Dubuque, Iowa; and Luverne and his wife, Iva, Thief River Falls; two sisters: Wanda and husband Edwin Leskinen, Thief River Falls, and Aldyne and husband Richard Salmi, Waukegan, Ill., and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

He was preceded in death by his father, W.A. Lindahl, and a sister, Vivian.

Many College Courses Offered In Roseau Area

Second quarter of Northland Community college's off-campus associate of arts degree program will be offered at Roseau beginning this winter quarter. It will provide students with an opportunity to earn 9 to 12 credits quarterly toward a two year college degree. Classes are scheduled three evenings a week, according to Madalyn Novellino, vice provost at Northland Community college, who scheduled the courses. Credits earned can be transferred to a senior college and can increase employability.

Objective of the off-campus evening program is to make NCC programs available to individuals who are unable to commute to Thief River Falls and yet who are interested in obtaining their degree. Attractive features of the program include:

— Quality education credits that transfer to senior colleges and universities.

— Savings of time and finances through reduced commuting time.

— Minimal tuition costs.

— An opportunity to retain full-time employment while attending college.

— Convenience of offerings to meet individual needs.

Anyone interested in obtaining a 2-year college degree by taking evening courses over a 2 to 3 year period will appreciate the convenience of this program.

The following courses will be offered in Roseau at the high school:

— Basic Programming on Monday evenings from 6 to 10;

— Basic Algebra on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 8:30;

— General Psychology on Monday evenings from 6 to 9; — Principles of Accounting II on Tuesday evenings from 6 to 10; and — Freshman English on Thursday evenings from 6 to 10.

Two courses entitled "Basic Computer Programming" will be taught in Warroad at the high school on Monday and Thursday evenings, Dec. 5 to Mar. 1. A typing course will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. This course is designed for both beginners and those with advanced skills. Individual needs will be met on the basis of individual skill levels.

Students will learn the keyboard. Projects will include skill building in centering, letters, manuscripts and tables. Speed and accuracy will be developed.

Tuition per credit is $22.50. Texts can be purchased the first evening. Financial aid is available for eligible students who enroll for six or more credits.

Tuition reimbursement is available for eligible persons who take less than six credits. Please contact Northland for information.

A counselor will be available upon request to assist students in program planning. Appointments are necessary and can be arranged by telephoning Northland college at 681-2181 or Priscilla Weston at 463-2012 in Roseau.

Call Priscilla Weston in Roseau to register for courses held in Roseau. To register for courses held in Warroad, please call NCC at 681-2181. Pre-registration is encouraged.

STUDENT DIRECTOR Lana Kaushagen gives direction to several of the actors in the Lincoln high school drama department play "Everybody Loves Opal" to be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Standing are Todd Wing (left) as Brad and Chris Contos as Sol. On the couch is Sue Block as Opal, who has drunk kerosene to save Brad and is very sick. Kneeling is Kim Carlson as Gloria. Admission to the play, directed by Pat Johnson, is $2 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Crop Shipments From Mn. Are High In Oct.

Barge shipments of crops from Minnesota terminal elevators in October were the second highest monthly volume on record and boosted the season total to a new assured all time high, already 14 per cent higher than the entire record 1981 barge season, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

October crops exports via barge totaled nearly 67 million bushels with a gross farm value of $320.4 million. Last August remains the all time monthly peak for barge shipments estimated at 67.1 million bushels and $329.3 million in farm cash marketing receipts.

Current season totals through October for the barge traffic reflect the Minnesota export of almost 381 million bushels of corn, soybeans, wheat, oats and rye, grossing the region's farmers nearly $1.65 billion.

That current volume is almost half again higher than at the end of October last year, and 30 per cent ahead of the same point in the prior record 1981 season.

Corn leads in volume of barge shipments, but soybeans have been the highest in gross farm value thus far this season. Corn shipments totaled an estimated 183.5 million bushels with a gross farm value of $545.2 million. Soybean exports totaled 106.2 million bushels worth $769.7 million.

Other crops barged included 82.8 million bushels of wheat worth $314.9 million, 4.7 million bushels of oats valued at $7 million, 3.4 million bushels of grain screenings worth $10.2 million, and 221,000 bushels of rye valued at almost $714,000.

With the barge season historically ending in late November or early December, commissioner Nichols said the October totals indicate that this year's season volume will easily top 400 million bushels shipped from Minnesota terminal elevators via barge, and that the gross farm cash receipts from that traffic will probably exceed $1.8 billion.

Dept. Of Public Safety Offers Driving Tips

Approaching winter season and the current fall conditions require motorists to adjust their driving habits, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

Starting and stopping a vehicle during autumn months can be a problem because of the often hazardous combination of rain and falling leaves. Starting requires a gentle application of the accelerator. In stopping, important things to remember are reducing speed and increasing following distances. Never jam on your brakes to stop on a slippery surface.

When winter arrives, motorists should remember to apply brakes gently when stopping on snow or ice. If you need to stop suddenly on a slippery surface, pump your brakes. If your wheels lock, release the brake to get them rolling again, then squeeze down again and keep repeating the pumping action until the vehicle stops. Stopping this way will slow your vehicle gradually instead of causing it to skid.

Other reminders are:

— Be able to see and be seen.

— Make turns slowly and gradually.

— Turn in the direction the rear of the vehicle is moving in a skid.

— Scattered slippery spots and ice patches can cause problems.

— Avoid a collision by intentionally steering your car off the road and into a snowbank if necessary in an emergency situation.

These and other tips are contained in a brochure, "Winter Driving Tips," available from the Office of Public Information, Department of Public Safety, 318 Transportation Bldg., St. Paul, 55155.

Help Available For Hearing Impaired People

Regional service center for hearing impaired persons (RSC), serving deaf and hard-of-hearing individuals living in northwest Minnesota, recently opened in Fergus Falls. Center employs coordinators and consultants skilled in sign language and knowledgeable about the special communication needs of the hearing impaired.

These personnel counsel and support deaf and hard-of-hearing individuals and their families, working to ensure that they receive the same services available to hearing persons, despite communication handicaps. RSC acts as an advocate for parents and teachers in developing educational plans for deaf children. Center works with hospitals and law enforcement agencies to help them arrange for interpreter service and telecommunication phone access so that hearing impaired individuals receive appropriate emergency services.

RSC provides training and consultation to hospitals, mental health clinics, rehabilitation agencies, county welfare, law enforcement and other agencies receiving state or federal funds so they can meet the unique communication needs of the hearing impaired and comply with federal civil rights law.

In addition to counseling and advocacy services, the RSC provides an interpreter referral service. Agencies in need of an interpreter to communicate with deaf persons should call the RSC to arrange for a qualified sign language interpreter. The Center provides phone-TDD message relays between deaf and hearing persons for appointments or arranging services and keeps current information on sign language classes available throughout northwest Minnesota, and is able to set up sign language classes as well.

Also the center, loans special equipment to hearing impaired persons, including doorbell signal lights, baby-cry signal lights, T.V. captioning devices, telecommunication devices for the deaf (TDD's), and several types of amplifiers for hard-of-hearing persons. Names and addresses where these kinds of equipment can be purchased are provided.

RSC also loans books on deafness, hearing impairment, deaf education, psychology of deafness, stories about deaf people, sign language and other subjects relating to hearing impairment. It keeps a registry of hearing impaired individuals throughout northwest Minnesota, and sends a monthly newsletter to hearing impaired individuals, agencies or others interested in knowing more about hearing impaired persons.

Regional service centers were established by the state of Minnesota as a result of a state planning study which showed that hearing impaired people using human services often met with communication problems, leading to confusion or inappropriate services. In 1980 the Minnesota state legislature passed the hearing impaired services act (HISA), which established five RSC's in a statewide network of coordinated services to meet the social, education and occupational needs of hearing impaired persons. Regional service center is a joint project of the division of vocational rehabilitation (department of economic security), and the deaf services division of the department of public welfare.

Those interested in any of the services available at the regional service center, or information regarding the hearing impaired, please call at 218-739-7589 (voice-TDD), or write us at: 125 W. Lincoln Ave., Suite 7, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Lions Club In Newfolden Had Drugs As Topic

Newfolden Lions club held their regular monthly supper meeting on November 3, with the meal prepared by Art Rud, Harvey Underdahl and Stan Holmaas.

Following fun time with Stu Sethre, tall twister, the business meeting was called to order by President Harvey Stokke. Note was made that $10 had been donated to the Crafty Critters homemakers club for the annual Halloween party. In memory of the late Don Engelsrud, $22 was given to the Lions eye bank. A thank you letter from his family was read.

Guest speaker for the evening was Deputy Sheriff Herb Maurstad, who showed slides and spoke on chemical dependency. He noted that although problems with some drugs have eased, use of alcohol has increased among the young, as well as older folks. He cited statistics which credit alcohol as the cause of over 50 per cent of deaths in car accidents, adding that three-fourths of the accidents between midnight and morning involve alcohol. Maurstad also showed some paraphernalia used for smoking marijuana and told of some encounters with victims of various drugs and how their lives and personalities were changed.

On the positive side, Maurstad said he was pleased with results of the educational approach being presented in our schools. Noting that "preventive medicine is the best cure," he advised that kids be told the consequences of the use of narcotics in any form. "Be firm, but don't exaggerate. Tell the truth." He emphasized that this must begin in the home and be followed up in the schools and churches.

NCC Course In Accounting Is At Hallock

Northland community college will offer principles of accounting, a four credit course which will cover basic structure of accounting and the accounting cycle. A practice set is included. Instructor for the course will be Pat Muir who has her B.S. degree in accounting from Bemidji state university and is a certified accountant in Hallock. She has worked with the Holcomb-Knudson firm for two years.

Tuition for the course is $22 per credit. For more information or to register, contact NCC at 681-2181.

'Rubber Stamp' ERA Passage Is Rejected

Immediately after the House rejected a "rubber stamp" passage of the equal rights amendment, Congressman Arlan Stangeland cosponsored a resolution that would lead to a "full and fair debate" of the ERA.

"My mind is still open on the ERA," Congressman Stangeland said. "If it could be amended to prevent its use as a justification for abortion, I could very well vote for it."

He said he fears that an unamended ERA would be used by pro-choice forces in the courts.

"Lawyers in Massachusetts, Hawaii, Connecticut and California have already tried to use ERA in their abortion cases," he said. "I can compromise on most issues, but I will not equivocate on the right to life.

"I continue to support gender-based equality on economic issues, such as equal opportunities to jobs, education, credit and housing," Congressman Stangeland said. "But no matter what the political consequences, I will not vote against the right to life."

The resolution which Congressman Stangeland cosponsored was introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish (R-NY). It would require the House rules committee to bring the ERA to the House floor under an open rule, allowing at least four hours of debate and consideration of amendments.

At the end of this week, Stangeland and Fish will seek the signatures of 210 Representatives needed to force the ERA to the House floor.

"The House did not reject equal rights today," Congressman Stangeland said. "Rather, it rejected the dictatorial efforts of Speaker Tip O'Neill, who sought to stifle debate and crush amendments that could help ERA to be approved by the states."

O'Neill brought the constitutional amendment to the House floor under special rules — usually reserved only for minor and non-controversial bills — that permitted no amendments and allowed opponents only 20 minutes of debate.

"Supporters of the ERA want a fair debate," Congressman Stangeland said. "They do not want it sent to the states under a cloud that trickery had been used in Washington."

LEC Reports 16 Cases Nov. 15

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, November 15, listed 12 cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and four cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following, by reporting date:

November 4 — Best Western Inn personnel reported that the receiver had been stolen from a telephone in the hallway. Highway patrol officers later recovered the receiver from a vehicle near Crookston. Following investigation, Jeffrey Boe and Jeffrey Frank Johnson, both of Route 1, Viking, were charged.

November 8 — John Guerrero, Fargo, ND, reported that a clipboard, value $3, had been stolen from his truck while he was making a delivery at First street and State avenue.

November 9 — A radio pager which had been reported stolen from the lot at the 7-11 store on November 3, was recovered from a 13-year-old male. Case remains under investigation.

November 9 — Wallace Grovum, Thief River Falls, reported that an old bicycle, value $15, had been stolen from the 100 block of East First street.

November 9 — Burglary was reported to have taken place sometime during the weekend at the Golden Comb in the Falls Mall. Stolen were several items of jewelry, value $355, and approximately $645 cash. Case is under investigation.

November 10 — Lydia Tuura, Thief River Falls, reported that an outside light by her garage had been shot out, apparently with a BB gun, sometime during the past two weeks. Damage was estimated at $6.

November 10 — Kenneth Kemp, Sauk Center, was driving south on Dewey avenue, near Seventh Street, when he collided with a parked vehicle owned by Olga Larson, rural Thief River Falls. Tony Loeffler, a passenger in the Kemp vehicle, received a cut face. Kemp's vehicle was considered a total loss, and the Larson vehicle sustained approximately $300 damage.

November 11 — A battery, value $50, was reported to have been stolen from a vehicle parked in the garage of a Thief River Falls resident.

November 12 — A Thief River Falls resident reported that a variety of jewelry and miscellaneous items, value $153, had been stolen from her home while she was away.

November 12 — Michelle Mattson, rural Thief River Falls, was driving east on Fourth street, attempting a right turn onto Atlantic avenue, when she skidded into the northbound lane and collided with a car driven by Beth Scholin, Thief River Falls. Damages were estimated at $700 to the Mattson vehicle and $350 to the Scholin vehicle.

November 12 — Olive Lindquist, Warren, was driving north on Duluth avenue, when she failed to stop due to icy conditions, and collided with John M. Stabo, Edinburg, ND, who was driving east on highway 59. Damages were estimated at $1,500 to the Stabo vehicle and $400 to the Lindquist vehicle. Elinor Stabo, a passenger, received a bump on the head.

Cases handled by Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

November 4 — Kenneth Ste. Marie, Red Lake Falls, was driving north on county road 22 at approximately 11:15 p.m. and failed to see a stop sign just before the intersection with highway 1. In an attempt to stop in time, he lost control of the pickup which rolled into the ditch on the east side of the road. After getting assistance to pull the vehicle out of the ditch, an attempt was made to start it. The pickup caught fire and burned completely, resulting in an estimated loss of $3,000. Ste. Marie and two passengers were uninjured.

November 12 — Jerome J. Skibicki, Thief River Falls was driving west on county road 9, at approximately 6:10 p.m. when he struck a large chunk of dirt in the road, causing him to lose control of his vehicle. It overturned in the ditch on the north side of the road, approximately two miles from county road 28. Damages to the vehicle were estimated at $2,500. Skibicki and his two passengers were uninjured.

November 12 — Annamaria L. Noreen, Grand Forks, ND, was driving east on county road 18, at about 2:16 a.m., in a vehicle owned by Orlin Hanson of Goodridge. She failed to negotiate a curve near Long's Bridge, crossed the ditch, and entered the yard of William Mehrkens, where she struck a tree. Taken by ambulance to Northwestern hospital, Noreen was treated for an eye injury, and passengers Cynthia Noreen and Jeff Hunt were treated for facial cuts and rib injuries. Damages were estimated at $1,500 to the Hanson vehicle and $100 to the Mehrkens property.

November 13 — Timothy S. Walker, rural Thief River Falls, was driving west on State Aid 3, approximately 11 miles west of St. Hilaire, at approximately 12:55 a.m., when the vehicle skidded on ice, left the road and overturned. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $900. No injuries were reported.

The Times — A Great Gift!

Veterans Will Receive Cost Of Living Boost

Veterans and their survivors in Minnesota who are receiving Veterans Administration pension checks under the "improved" pension plan will receive a 3.5 per cent cost-of-living increase effective December 1.

Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the VA regional office insurance center at Fort Snelling, said that VA pensions are paid to wartime veterans totally and permanently disabled from circumstances unrelated to their military service. They are paid also to survivors of wartime veterans who are in need. Unlike compensation paid to those disabled because of military service, pensions are affected by income from other sources, he said.

First check to be received by beneficiaries reflecting the cost-of-living increase will be the check received on or about January 1. Nooner said that veterans and their survivors who are receiving benefits under the "improved" pension plan of 1979 will receive the increase. Pensions for veterans and survivors under the "old" plan remain fixed and payable at the rates in effect in 1978. But those rates are protected against termination that would otherwise result from cost-of-living increases in their income from social security, he said.

VA director said that "old" plan recipients may request transfer to the "improved" plan at any time and VA will carefully review each application to advise applicants to choose the plan which works best to their personal advantage.

Rates and details about the pension increase and the program in general are available from the Fort Snelling VA regional office, a representative of a veterans service organization or a county veterans service officer. Toll-Free telephone sergice to VA regional offices is also available nationwide by consulting the "U.S. Government" listings in the local telephone directory.

2 Area Youths To Get Honors From Minn. FU

Young adults who have completed a course of study about agriculture, the rural community and Farmers Union policy will receive the organization's highest youth honors — the torchbearer's award — as part of the 42nd annual Minnesota Farmers Union convention to be held in St. Paul Nov. 20 and 21.

Torchbearer awards will be presented during the organization's annual convention banquet Sunday evening, to emphasize the importance of youth to the entire organization. Among recipients will be Kelly Englund of Gatzke and Dale Rupprecht of Thief River Falls.

"All of our young adults, but particularly the torch bearers, make a real contribution to the Minnesota Farmers Union organization," said MFU president Cy Carpenter. "I know it has been said many times, but our future lies with our youth. We know that these young people particularly have shown the initiative and eagerness to learn and serve that will make them valuable members of rural America as they start their adult lives."

Farmers Union youth program involves classes, conferences and camps where learning, fun and fellowship are coordinated for a complete educational experience.

"These young adults have faced the challenges of completing the required coursework, and have gone beyond through their participation in many Farmers Union events. This knowledge will serve them well in their future as individual citizens, besides helping them in the Farmers Union organization," said MFU family and youth activities director Ann Vellek.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The editorial "New Dogmatists" recently in your paper was off the mark. Young-earth creationism would not exist if there were no Bible, is not scientific and should not be taught as science.

The writer claims that those who oppose teaching creationism are dogmatic and authoritarian. The truth is that evolution has stood the tests that have been thrown at it quite well, while creationism fails many tests quite miserably. Very few biologists believe in creationism and creationism can only be considered fringe science, if we choose to call it science at all. It is the creationists who, their ideas failing in the world of science, must resort to authority to make their ideas "science".

A few examples of where creationism fails to adequately account for phenomena are: the homologies seen in animals, the biocheimcal similarities seen in related organisms, teeth seen in anteater fetuses (adults are toothless), poor "design" in some organisms, some truly awful creatures, fossil series showing species change in "flood" sediment, the horse, camel and elephant series, Archaeopteryx and the mammal-like reptiles (transitional fossils), fossil man, that the most complex organisms appear the latest and it goes downhill in the older rocks until there are only microbes, footprints underlain and overlain with "flood" sediments, the rarity of fossils of organisms that live where erosion is the rule, the generally poor preservation of land creatures, deserts, glacial deposits, lake deposits, and salt overlain and underlain by "flood" sediments, coral growth layers and radioactive dating. I could continue the list, but you're bored and this is getting long.

Evolution and geology don't explain everything either (the origin of life and polonium haloes found by Robert Gentry come to mind), but they certainly provide a much coherent view of this world.

Seeing that creationism fails so badly as science, it is doubtful indeed that it should be taught as science. If we are to have true separation of church and state, the state cannot teach the Judaeo-Christian myth of origin, unless it is backed with facts. It is not wrong to try to keep religion from being taught as science.

On the other hand, nothing is gained by teaching evolution authoritatively and dogmatically as it, and many other subjects often are. And it might be useful to compare evolution and creationism, to show the greater explanatory power of evolution and to show how ideas in science can be weighed on their merits and be accepted or rejected. But it can not be pretended that evolution and creationism are on equal footing.

Judge Overton, in his decision overturning Arkansas' equal time bill, affirmed that evidence that goes against evolutionary theory and the old earth ideas (or seems to) can be taught when evolution and geology are taught. So I cannot see how evolution can be considered "official dogma." True dogma won't allow evidence to be brought against itself. Evolution and geology should not be taught dogmatically, and discredited ideas such as creationism should not be given equal time with accepted science.

Sincerely,
Glen Davidson

To The Editor:

Regarding the 10-26-83 editorial "Wildlife Funds Threatened" in the Times, I would like to say a few things. Wildlife belongs to all the people of this country. The Pittman-Robertson Act allows, by means of its acquisition of excise taxes on hunting, trapping and fishing items purchased, a small percentage of the American people — hunters, trappers and fishermen — through federal and state fish and game departments to management that wildlife.

I disagree with the P.R. Act and feel these monies should be returned to the control of the general treasury where they came from in 1937. Funding for federal and state wildlife departments would then come from the general treasury. In this way all people would have a voice in getting a more objective and balanced wildlife management body.

The view of most federal and state fish and game departments along with a lot of hunters and fishermen and all trappers is that wild animals are nothing more than a renewable resource to be harvested like timber and if not utilized by man are wasted in nature. This explains their attempt to open up 12 million acres of remaining wilderness territory in Alaska to "Modern Wildlife Management" through the Alaska National Hunting Act.

To me it is a waste to see animal fur on the back of some person who does not use it for survival but to "show off", or to kill an animal for its trophy status, or to kill an animal for fun, recreation or profit. I know of nothing that is wasted in nature, but then there are those people who know better than nature.

Trapping I would think would be an insult to hunters and fishermen in that trappers are entering the beloved outdoors with only one thing on their mind, the money they can get for wild animal fur. It is not the food... it is not the predator-prey relationship... it's the cash. And yet federal and state fish and game agencies protect and cultivate this practice through their programs. Sure, it's tradition, but have all our traditions been the right thing to do?

The editorial also disagreed with the thought that fish and game departments practice species habitat manipulation to artifically produce high numbers of sport or commercial value animals so hunters and trappers have plenty to hunt and trap. One can read articles put out by fish and game departments themselves that verify this fact. They are experts in the knowledge of wildlife reproductive habitats and what it takes to obtain as high as possible desired wildlife numbers so harvest of the surplus is a must.

At the same time predators in competition with man can be removed.. If this is not so then why, according to the National Wildlife Federation, are there more deer in the U.S. now than when the pilgrims arrived? There are other managed animals with like histories. It is also interesting to discover how and why much of our wildlife is killed and poisoned for certain other special interests.

I was born and raised on a farm and began hunting "varmints" as soon as I could hold a rifle. This went on for many years and I was one who would have laughed at the letter I have just written... until I opened up to new and different ideas and information on animal matters. At present I will and have killed animals for three reasons: for food, if it is a health threat or to end its suffering.

I also fish and take in the outdoors as much as possible. I believe nature and wildlife are beyond price and respect them highly. I feel we need new ethics involving wildlife and how to live with it. I would like to see wild animals taken out of the exploitive grasp of the National Rifle association and gun manufacturers, the national trappers groups and trap makers along with the fashion fur industry, and placed under the supervision of animal experts, both hunters and non-hunters. I know and respect many conscientious hunters and fishermen as well as non-hunter or fisher people.

Predator-prey relationship is a fact of life and will always be a part of our world. What we must change, however, are some of our wildlife management policies and reasons for taking wildlife at the present time and the future.

Sincerely,
John Wengeler

Farm Loans Renew Faith In Ag Recovery

Seven approvals of new Minnesota family farm security loan guarantees recommended by the advisory council indicate renewed faith in economic recovery for the long depressed industry of agriculture, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

He saw significance in the fact that commercial lenders are sponsors of four of the new farm ownership loans accorded 90 per cent state guarantees, one as the sole sponsor and three in co-sponsorship with the sellers of the farms.

That is the greatest commercial lender participation in family farm security loan sponsorship that has been experienced in any single month's approved applications in the past four years of recession and record inflation in credit and farm production costs.

New farm security guarantees apply to the seven privately negotiated loans totaling $1,163,500, with commercial lenders sponsoring $206,100 of that amount.

These raised accumulative totals for the Minnesota family farm security program to 385 new farm owners established on 60,964 acres of land in 67 counties with 90 per cent state guarantees on privately negotiated loans totaling $68.9 million.

Tax Managing Course Offered By Ag Extension

Farm income tax management isn't getting any simpler. Every year legislation brings new changes in the rules. In Minnesota, with the highest marginal tax rate, tax management becomes a particularly important component of overall farm management. Because of this, extension economists in farm management, Earl Fuller, Perry Fales and Paul Hasbargen, are putting together a series of home study letters that farmers can subscribe to.

The $10 subscription fee covers reproduction and mailing costs, a necessity with current budgets. Just one tax tip can pay that. Time to read and study the letters will be your greatest cost.

Topics covered include income shifting and averaging, managing the depreciation schedule, capital gains tax, and ways to divide the income between family members. The tax effects of alternative ways of doing business will also be covered. And they won't stop there.

There will be a discussion of things you can do after year-end and your options as you fill in the forms, the letters will discuss in some detail the farmer's tax guide example farm situation and what can be done to save taxes, even at tax time.

To sign up requires sending a check for $10 payable to the University of Minnesota. Send to Extension Farm Management, 249 Classroom Office building, 1994 Buford, St. Paul, 55108. Cut-off date for subscriptions is November 30.

NCC Offers Computer Class In Stephen

Northland Community college will offer a two credit course entitled "Computer Literacy" in Stephen beginning January 9. The course introduces the world of computers and their applications through demonstrations and hands on experience.

Elementary computer concepts about hardware and software will be investigated. Software applicable to individual situations will be made available to students for use in a laboratory setting. Laboratory experiences will be the primary mode of instruction.

Instructor for the course is Jack Kramer, who holds his B.S. and M.S. degrees from St. Cloud State university. Mr. Kramer is presently a full-time computer science instructor at NCC.

Tuition for the course is $22.50 per credit. For more information or to register, contact NCC at 681-2181.

RECOGNIZING the expansion and complete remodeling of Northern State Bank as more progress in Thief River Falls, representatives of the Chamber Ambassadors arrived yesterday to post signs acknowledging the improvements and congratulate the business. While there, they were given a tour of the facilities, which include this new climate controlled room for computer equipment designed to greatly simplify and improve service to customers. From left to right are Ambassadors Arnie Narverud and Bob Poissant, Bank President, Gene Beito and Ambassador Roger Tunberg. Beito noted that the bank will be holding an open house from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, with tours of the facility, refreshments and drawings for special prizes.

Farm Women's Month Is Held In November

Minnesota for the first time this year is observing the month of November as "Farm Women's Month," officially proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich.

"This is an observance long overdue, for women have always been the real strength of family agriculture," says agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

"It is time we cast aside the stereotypes of the past, which have dominantly portrayed the men as the producers of our essential food and fiber, and relegated the women to the support roles of wives and mothers busy with the children, cooking the meals, doing the housework and going to club meetings.

"Women in agriculture today do just about everything that needs doing on the farm, along with the men, except for the heaviest physical tasks. Today's farm women are managers, partners and on at least 2,000 farms here the principal operators.

"Women operate all of today's modern farm equipment, just as their mothers and grandmothers before them harnessed horses and operated horse drawn equipment, and picked corn, shocked oats and wheat, and milked the cows by hand, right along side the men of the family.

"They also do all of the chores of the typical urban housewife, and more, bearing and raising the children, cooking and doing the housework, running errands, doing the shopping for the family, performing much of the household maintenance, including light carpentry, seeing that livestock and poultry have water and feed, and managing the family budget. The average farm housewife is a terrific money stretcher, both by necessity and by taking advantage of the agricultural extension service home demonstration extended education programs, along with active involvement with the 4-H clubs and FFA training our future farming generation.

"One of the most important tasks that falls to the women in agriculture more often than not is the responsibility of comptroller or auditor, keeping detailed records of all production items, costs, sales and profit or loss analysis and balance sheets.

"Today's women in agriculture also supplement the farm income with a variety of skills, from marketing of homemade crafts to teaching, retail sales, bookkeeping, even truck and school bus operation," commissioner Nichols concluded.

NCC Offers Two Courses At E. Grand Forks

Northland Community college will offer two courses at East Grand Forks AVTI. First course, "Basic Programming", is a three-credit course covering flowcharting and coding of programs using the basic language. The course will be conducted on Monday evenings, 6 to 9 p.m., December 5 to March 1.

Second course, "Computer Literacy," is a two-credit course that introduces the world of computers and their applications through demonstrations and hands on experience. Elementary computer concepts of hardware and software will be investigated. Software applicable to individual situations will be made available to student for use in a libratory setting. Laboratory experiences will be the primary mode of instruction. Dave Berg will be the instructor for the courses.

Tuition for the course is $22.50 per credit. For more information, or to register, contact Northland Community college at 681-2181.

License Plates To Be Given To Vanpools

Vanpooling has already proven to save time and money for many Minnesota commuters and now with the availability of special license plates to identify commuter vans carrying seven or more persons, additional benefits can be realized, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

Applications for commuter van plates for vans providing transportation to and from job sites will be accepted by the Minnesota department of public safety after November 15. For the owner to be eligible for commuter van plates, passengers must pay a rider fee. However, passenger transportation cannot be the principal business of the van owner. Vans will be registered by gross weight and applicants are required to have a class B license. Qualified vans currently registered in the passenger class may — if the owner so desires — convert to van pool plates at any time after November 15.

John Tubbesing, manager of the Mn-DOT vanpool promotion, Minnesota Rideshare, offered several examples of vanpooling incentives and advantages:

In most cases there will be a cost break between registration fees paid for commuter van plates (which are based on vehicle gross weight) and that paid for regular van registration (which is based vehicle value).

Registered vans will have access to high occupancy vehicle or bus lanes on I-35W and other selected freeways that may adopt them in the future.

Tax incentives include extra depreciation allowance for van operators.

Van pool plates will enable operators to get priority fuel allocations in case of any energy emergency.

Preferential parking is often offered to vanpools by employers: Some parking ramps offer reduced rates to vans as well.

Passengers in vans save up to $1,500 a year in commuting costs and decreased demand and wear on their own vehicles. A van driver gets the benefit of the use of the van outside of communting activity for his or her own use.

Gross weight of the vehicle is defined as the weight of the vehicle fully equipped with all fuel tanks full plus the weight of the passengers and their baggage computed at the rate of 150 pounds per passenger seating capacity, including that of the driver. Tax on the license is based on total gross weight and the model year of the vehicle.

If the vehicle has been previously registered the plates must be removed and turned in at the time van pool plates are received.

Accreditation At UMC Again Recommended

University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) has received a recommendation for 10 years of accreditation from a North Central association of colleges and schools accreditation team, according to Dr. S.D. Sahlstrom, provost.

The evaluation team looked at UMC's mission, how well the university was organized to meet that mission, how effective staff was in fulfilling the mission and the continuity of organization to maintain the university's thrust.

Items of concern will be amplified in the committee's recommendation and report which will be submitted to UMC Provost Sahlstrom who will correct factual inaccuracies and write dissents to portions he does not agree with.

Both the report and Sahlstrom's responses will be sent to another committee, which will decide on renewal early next year.

Management Course Set On Crop Pests

Third annual crop pest management short course for persons involved in advising crop management operations is being planned by the Minnesota agricultural extension service.

Short course, scheduled December 8 and 9 at the Earle Brown center, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, features consultants, University of Minnesota staff, applicators, dealers and industry representatives who will discuss effective integrated pest management.

Primary topics at the short course will be corn borer control, pyhtophthora root rot, PIK acres management, pesticide resistance and failures, and effective communication in treating these crop pest problems.

Integrated pest management program is a contract between advisors and farmers, designed to assist farmers on the best time for pest control. The advisor identifies the problem and recommends the most effective control through observation and evaluation of the farmers problem acreage.

Contact person for this short course is Richard Jones, Department of Entomology, (612) 373-1701. For more information about the short course, call or write the Office of Special Programs, 405 Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, 55108, (612) 373-0725.

Millard Dailey Is Honored By Credit Groups

Millard Dailey, rural Red Lake Falls, was presented a commemorative eagle sculpture for his meritorious service to agriculture by the Production Credit associations (PCA) of Minnesota and the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives (BC) in honor of their 50th anniversary. Presentation was made at the Bank for Cooperatives annual meeting at the armory in Grand Forks, ND.

The bronze cast sculpture entitled, "Between Sky and Soil," was specially created by nationally known wildlife sculptor Wally Shoop of Stillwater to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the lasting relationship between the BC and PCAs and those individuals who have given outstanding service to agriculture and cooperatives. The sculpture shows an eagle perched on a shaft of wheat — between sky and soil.

Dailey has served as director on the Federal Farm Credit board and is also a former Federal Land bank director. His cooperative involvement ranges from being president of Minnkota Electric cooperative to being a charter director at the Red Lake Falls REA. Dailey is still extremely involved in his community and church.

Invites Public Participation In Committee

Congressman Arlan Stangeland invites all citizens concerned about the future of education in America to join a "committee of correspondence" that would address possible solutions to problems facing schools.

"Although Minnesota has excellent public and private schools, America's crisis in the classroom will affect all of us," he said. "By sharing ideas and views on upcoming legislation, this committee will guide my votes on the issues."

Congressman Stangeland first proposed the concept of a "committee of correspondence" at public hearings on education in Moorhead and St. Cloud this fall.

"With so many proposals and calls for federal funds being offered, it is hard to know what the people in northwest Minnesota want passed," Congressman Stangeland said. "By carefully weighing the comments of letters from my committee, I will have more certainty when voting on education plans."

Norman F. Clarke, a librarian and educator at St. Cloud state university, has been named to head the committee of correspondence. A 30-year veteran in the schools, Clarke will coordinate reports to families that volunteer to participate on the committee.

People who are interested in joining the Stangeland committee of correspondence on education should write to: Congressman Arlan Stangeland, Federal Building, 720 Mall Germain, St. Cloud, MN 56301.

Congressman Stangeland will present the reports from northwest Minnesota to the House task force on education. He was appointed to that group in October.

The reports will also be released at a third Minnesota public forum on education which Congressman Stangeland is planning for Bemidji. Date of that meeting will be released in the near future.

102-Year-Old Olaf Olson Is Watching Diet

here my health went on the bum. I was a complete physical wreck," he says with a trace of sadness. "I was in hospitals, sick for many years." He spews dates and locations of the many hospitals he was in, calculating lengths of stay without missing a figure.

Noting that he first became sick in 1897, he recalls that in 1903 he stayed at Southwest Hospital in Minneapolis for six weeks. "It cost a dollar a day, then. . . not like today." Doctors were mystified by his illness for a long time. "I was just wasting away."

Olaf claims that it was unusual for "Old Country people" to be bothered with tuberculosis, but one doctor said he found germs of the disease in one of his lungs. "I drank two strong drugs to kill the tuberculosis," he says. "Then I got a cancer of the stomach." Doctors offered no cure for the disease. He says the tumor was visible from outside his body and he used to spit and pass blood.

"In 1909, I entered a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Michigan," he says. "I was 28 years old and I weighed 98 pounds without any clothes on." He had read about the sanitarium in "Physical Culture," a magazine which was popular with a lot of country people at the time. He says he owes his life to the lessons which he learned from Dr. Bernarr McFadden while he was there.

"They used the fasting cure there," he noted, explaining that he would fast for four days, then go on Dr. Porter's milk diet for four days. When fasting he would take nothing but water. On the milk diet he would drink a glass of milk every half hour, with a little lemon juice to curdle the milk. "I would lose a pound a day while I was fasting, and gain a pound a day on the milk diet." He would then attempt to eat solid foods, but was unsuccessful for a long time. "I couldn't digest anything," he says.

Olaf claims that the fasting caused his body to replace its diseased tissues with "new blood and new tissues." Eventually, he says he gained enough strength to go home again, but continued to practice fasting in preparation for his return to the sanitarium. He says he followed McFadden "to a lot of places," as he moved and established new clinics. He studied with him at Chicago and in San Diego, where Mc Fadden trained medical doctors in the practice of "physical culture."

Olaf says he was with McFadden until January 1913, and got so used to fasting that he could go for 36 days without eating, fasting three times in one year, for 30, 36 and 31 consecutive days, losing a total of 97 pounds.

NEW OWNERS of Gordon's Hallmark store, Jerry and Cammy Johnson, were congratulated Tuesday, by Chamber Ambassadors Bill Hogan (left) and Arnie Narverud, who presented them with their first dollar of clear profit. Although the couple have managed the store, along with another in Grand Forks for about seven years, they only recently completed the purchase from her father, Gordon Caldis, and are now looking forward to spending full-time in Thief River Falls. Cammy noted that they will be holding an open house from noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday, which include door prizes, refreshments and a visit from Santa.

Although he used to order special foods from a health food store in town, Olaf notes that now they serve them in the dining room. "You see, they're coming my way," he says with a smile. He notes that the only thing he has to special order now is cashews, which are purchased locally.

Jokingly asked if he couldn't attribute his long life to the fact that he had never married, Olaf replied with a note of sadness that he hadn't remained a bachelor because he wanted to. "When I was young and of a marrying age, it wouldn't have been fair to burden any woman with the sickness I had. I was in and out of the hospital all of the time."

He lived with his parents at Hallock and worked on fruit farms in California when his health permitted. He came back to the farm and "batched" after his parents died. At about age 90, he moved off the farm, living by himself in Lake Bronson. He still retains ownership of the farm, which provides a steady income from rent to supplement his social security.

According to Olaf's niece, Beda Knutson of Fertile, her mother (Olaf's sister) died at 56, his father died at 82 and his mother at 66. Beda is 81. Asked if she follows his advice, she replied, "not completely, but I watch what I eat. I don't fast like he does." She says that some of her children follow his advice pretty seriously, though.

Noting that her uncle is somewhat stooped over, she says that the posture is a recent development, resulting from hernia surgery for a strain he developed chopping wood. Olaf blames the fact that he was wearing a single truss when he should have had a double one, adding, "but then, anybody that don't do any mistakes, don't do anything."

Before he came to the nursing home 10 years ago, Olaf said he had been searching for a health resort where he could be with other people who shared his lifestyle. He corresponded with various people who he read about in books and magazines, but feels that too many "get all mixed up with politics and religion." He notes that people on political hunger strikes have gone without food for 63 days before they died, and says he's been told that fasting is mentioned in 64 places in the Bible.

He loves to read anything about the subject, and has copies of articles sent by friends and relatives. He is especially interested in people in Russia, where he says there are "millions of naturopaths," adding, "I understand that it's not considered unusual for people to live to be 140 years old there. . . Don't you think we should be studying that here?"

Asked if he would like to live to be that old, Olaf replied, "As long as I can get along like I do now. . . I'd rather be here than in the grave."

Congressman Pushes Aid To Area Farmers

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has met with Farmers Home administrator Charles Shuman and has contacted agriculture secretary John Block to renew calls for aid to farmers in northwest Minnesota.

"I cannot emphasize enough the serious situation which exists in this region," Stangeland told the two officials. "Many farmers whose land has been in their family for generations have watched their equity be wiped out by four to five consecutive years of natural disaster. They are now faced with the very real prospect of losing their farms."

He noted that Minnesota FmHA director Russ Bjorhus has repeatedly met with farmers in this area and has expressed FmHA's willingness to show every leniency possible.

"I hope your offices will reaffirm that commitment to farmers and FmHA workers who serve this disaster-stricken area," Congressman Stangeland said.

He asked the officials to adjust the definition of a "normal crop year" when determining repayment ability of farmers hit by consecutive disasters.

"Instead of the best four out of five previous crop year yields, the FmHA should adopt a more lenient approach," Congressman Stangeland said. "The FmHA should give farmers the benefit of the doubt that the extremely unusual conditions of five previous disaster years will not be repeated and more historically accurate weather patterns will prevail in the future."

The House agriculture committee member also urged the officials to take swift action in declaring disaster areas for counties hit again by poor weather in 1983.

Thanksgiving Driving Among Most Dangerous

Thanksgiving weekend, this year from Wednesday, November 23, at 6 p.m., until midnight Sunday, November 27, is one of the most dangerous in terms of motor vehicle accidents, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

"It is unfortunate and often tragic that our first winter storms in Minnesota often come during the Thanksgiving weekend, when neither cars nor drivers are prepared," said Tschida. He urges motorists to get their vehicles ready for winter driving as a first step before planning a Thanksgiving trip.

In 1982 there were 11 people killed and 456 people injured during the Thanksgiving period. The fatality number was up from seven the previous year. Overall, Minnesota's 1983 preliminary traffic fatality toll through November 1 was 458 compared to a preliminary total of 438 on the same date in 1982.

Tschida advises motorists to prepare for out-of-town trips. "Get plenty of rest, schedule your trip sensibly so that you don't have to drive until exhausted, plan to take a break or change drivers every several hours and check road reports. Let people at your destination know when you plan to arrive. Use common sense. If a severe winter storm is in progress, postpone or cancel your trip," Tschida said.

NCC To Offer Programming At Fosston

Northland Community college will offer "Basic Programming", a three-credit course which will cover flowcharting and coding of programs using the basic language on Tuesday evenings, 6 to 9 p.m., December 5 to March 1, at Fosston high school in Fosston. Instructor for the course is Jim Miller.

Tuition for the course is $22.50 per credit. For more information, or to register, contact Northland community college at 681-2181.

Five Programs At Northland Offer Degrees

Northland community college offers five occupational programs enabling students to seek employment after receiving their two-year Associate of Arts degree or transfer to a four-year institution to continue their degrees. The programs are law enforcement, business management, office occupations, therapeutic recreation and nursing.

In addition, Northland offers a series of college credit transfer courses training students in the area of computer programming. For those wishing to enroll, student financial aid is still available.

To gain further information or to register, call 681-2181. Tuition for classes is $22.50 per credit hour.

Farm Bureau 65th Annual Meeting In Dec.

"The issues are clear-cut, and we'll sure take a long look at them," said Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, in describing this year's 65th annual meeting.

"Each year, delegates from our 83 county Farm Bureaus gather and discuss the issues facing us as farmers. Every year, they seem more important than the year before, and this year is no exception."

Surfacing will be the dairy issue, estate taxes, the federal budget, soil conservation and a long list of other items.

Sixty-fifth annual meeting of the federation will be held December 1 to 3 at the Radisson South hotel in Bloomington. With over 700 members attending, it's one of the largest annual meetings involving farmers.

Eating Habits Of Children To Be Discussed

Theme of the "footsteps" program for the week of November 21 is "What's Cooking?" Topic for discussion will be how young children acquire their food likes and dislikes, their feelings about food and their patterns of eating.

Footsteps is a parenting program sponsored by community education which involves video tape presentations followed by group discussion. Tapes are broadcast over KTRF cable channel three at 8:30 p.m. each Monday and are shown again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in room 114 at the AVTI. Group discussion is held from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday following the video presentation.

Parents may attend any of the sessions at no charge. Preregistration is required and can be done by calling adult education at 681-5424 before 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

Compassionate Friends To Meet Monday

November meeting of "The Compassionate Friends", will be Monday at 8 p.m. in the Presbyterian church library at Crookston. The Compassionate Friends is open to all area parents whose children have died.

Discussion topic will explore ideas to help bereaved parents become more comfortable with the holiday season despite the emptiness created by loss of a loved one. A cassette tape "Handling the Holidays" will be played for additional resource information.

Telephone contacts are: Mrs. Stanley (Doris) Davis, 218-4193; Dr. Cliff and Gladys Stadem, 218-3522; and Jack and Audrey Eickhof, 218-4636.

Owen Borchert Retires From State Patrol

Mylo Carlson Herd Tops In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor for the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association, lists the following herds as top in the association for September:

In first place is Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 48.5 pounds of milk and 1.80 pounds of butterfat; followed by W.L. Hamrick, 47.1 and 1.73; Duane Krohn, 46.6 and 1.72; Gene Nelson, 43.4 and 1.66; Merle Lundeen, 43.2 and 1.47; Lyle Swanson, 41.4 and 1.43; Duane Vatsaas, 40.9 and 1.59; Pearson Brothers, 40.9 and 1.33; Hanson Heritage, 40.1 and 1.44; and Walter Brothers Farm, 36.8 and 1.40.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There are 25 DHIA herds and two owner-sampler herds on September test, for a total of 27 herds on test. There are 73 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less.

More Tonnage On Six Routes In Minnesota

Highway construction jobs completed in northwest Minnesota this year will have a direct positive impact on the timber and agricultural industries of the area because of increased tonnage on six routes.

According to Mn-DOT district engineer Bob Wolfe, six different roadway sections will have increased allowable axle weights during the weight restriction period next spring and some will also be designated as 10-ton routes earlier next year than in past years.

These other weight restriction changes will be contained in the 1984 road restriction map issued by the department of transportation in February.

The changes to weight restrictions and 10-ton route designations resulting from this year's construction are as follows:

T.H. 59 — Thief River Falls to Erskine used to be a 10-ton route effective July 1 with a seven-ton spring weight restriction. It is now a seasonal 10-ton route with a nine-ton spring weight restriction.

T.H. 1 — Red Lake to Busy Corner used to have a four-ton spring weight restriction. It will now carry nine tons year around.

T.H. 200 — Zerkel to Lake Itasca used to be a 10-ton route effective December 1 with a five-ton spring weight restriction. The 10-ton route date remains December 1 but the spring weight restriction has been increased to seven tons.

T.H. 313 — Warroad to Canada used to have a seven-ton spring weight restriction. It will now carry nine-tons year around.

T.H. 171 — St. Vincent to North Dakota used to be a nine-ton route year around. It will now be designated as a seasonal 10-ton route with a nine-ton spring weight restriction.

T.H. 11 — Baudette to Frontier used to have a five-ton spring weight restriction. That has been increased to seven tons.

Rustad Ranked Nationally At UND

University of North Dakota's Mitch Rustad, a senior from Thief River Falls, is listed in the NCAA Division II Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association preseason regional and national rankings, it was reported this week by UND tennis coach Arvid Skogerboe and Sioux sports information director Lee Bohnet.

Rustad is ranked 13th in singles and joins teammate Dean Rudrud, a junior from Grand Forks, for a fourth place ranking in doubles in the 1983-84 preseason Midwest Regional rankings, which includes teams from North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado. Rudrud is ranked 20th in singles.

Nationally, Rustad is ranked 50th in the preseason NCAA Division II poll in singles, and is paired with Rudrud for a 12th place ranking in doubles.

North Dakota is ranked No. 8 as a team in the Midwestern Regional, which features approximately 45 schools.

Rustad has finished runner-up in the North Central Conference No. 1 singles finals for the past three years with the Sioux. He finished 22-4 in singles a year ago and teammed with Rudrud to go 19-7 at No. 1 doubles for UND.

The former Lincoln high school tennis standout was selected to play in the NCAA Division II national tennis championships last spring in San Marcox, Texas in the doubles competition with Rudrud, who was the NCC No. 2 singles champion a year ago with a 23-3 season record.

Rustad ranked 35th in the final NCAA Division II post-season singles poll for 1982-83, it was just revealed by Skogerboe.

Thief River Falls, featuring Rustad and Bill Jury, now playing tennis at the University of Minnesota-Duluth, were regional tennis champions for three straight years under coach Whitey Olson in 1978-79-80.

Football Playoff Format Discussed

Pairing procedures and dates for the 1984 Section 8A high school football playoffs were approved at a recent meeting of school officials held at Detroit Lakes, it was reported by Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record in Detroit Lakes.

Under the new Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state-wide football playoff format that will be implemented for the 1984 season, Thief River Falls will be grouped in Section 8A, along with Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Wadena, Staples, Perham, Fergus Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks. Eight of those nine schools will be involved in post-season play that will name a sectional winner to compete in the quarterfinals of the MSHSL Class A state playoffs.

Following completion of the 1984 regular season schedule, coaches will meet at Mahnomen Thurs., Oct. 18, to seed the teams for sectional play, reported Anderson. Coaches will review the 1984 season, then rate eight schools (excluding their own) for the playoffs.

Four first-round games will be played Tues., Oct. 23, with the No. 1 seed vs. No. 8; No. 4 vs. No. 5; No. 2 vs. No. 7; and No. 3 vs. No. 6. Those four games are all set for 7:30 p.m. starts.

Semifinal games will be played at 7:30 p.m. Sat., Oct. 27, and the championship game will be played Fri., Nov. 2.

Next year's MSHSL state quarterfinal playoff games are set for Fri., Nov. 9, with the semifinals planned Fri., Nov. 16, and Prep Bowl III finals will be held Sat., Nov. 24.

In case of ties in the Section 8A coaches' ratings, the method of breaking the deadlock will be (1) head-to-head competition, (2) ballots of schools not involved in the tie, and (3) a coin flip.

Miscellaneous

+ Minnesota North Stars center Neal Broten was presented with the Emery Edge Award before Tuesday's National Hockey League game against the New Jersey Devils for leading the team in plus-minus figures last season. The award was presented by hockey immortal Gordie Howe. The game featured the head-to-head competition between Neal and his brother, Aaron Broten of the Devils, the former Roseau high school standouts.

+ Kevin Murphy, a Lincoln high school graduate, is serving as captain of the University of North Dakota men's swimming team. The Sioux opened their schedule Tuesday at North Dakota State University. Highlight of the 1983-84 schedule for the UND men's and women's swim teams will be a trip to Fort Pierce, Fla. beginning Dec. 27. In addition to daily workouts and a little sightseeing, the women will swim against Northeast Missouri Jan. 3 and the men will participate in the Christmas Relay Meet at Fort Pierce Jan. 2. The trip is funded by the swimmers themselves.

Prep Bowl Will Be Played Sat. In Metrodome

Ten high school football teams will attempt to win state championships in five classes this week when title games are played in the second annual Prep Bowl scheduled for the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis on Saturday reports Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League.

More than 40,000 spectators are once again expected to witness the games which begin at 10 a.m. and run to about 10 p.m. Last year 42,610 persons witnessed the first ever Prep Bowl and many thousands more watched games on television.

This year's format of games is identical to a year ago. Class B will play the opener at 10:15 a.m., followed by the Class C game at 12:45; then the Nine-Man finals at 3:15 p.m.; Class A at 5:45 p.m.; and Class AA at 8:30 p.m.

None of the entrants in last year's Prep Bowl won berths this year, assuring new champions in the 12th annual state high school playoffs.

Pairings are as follows:

Class B — 10:15 a.m. — Breckenridge (11-1) vs. Jordan (11-1); Class C — 12:45 p.m. — Bird Island-Lake Lillian (11-1) vs. Southland-Adams (12-0); Nine-Man — 3:15 p.m. — Norman County West-Climax (12-0) vs. Silver Lake (12-0); Class A — 5:45 p.m. — Park Rapids (12-0) vs. Hutchinson (12-0); and Class AA — 8:30 p.m. — Bloomington Jefferson (11-1) vs. Coon Rapids (10-1).

Some 374 football players will be the featured performers on the artificial surface in the Metrodome on Saturday. But the Second annual Prep Bowl will not only be a steady diet of football from morning 'til night. More than 1,000 musicians will provide outstanding programs throughout the day. Marching bands and a choir will be there to perform.

When the 12th annual MSHSL state football playoffs began two weeks ago, 11 of the 40 schools that had qualified had never previously appeared in a state football playoff series. As championship games take place this Saturday, one school — Norman County West-Climax — of the 10 finalists — has never previously appeared, and five of the final 10 have unbeaten status.

Those unbeaten teams are Hutchinson and Park Rapids in Class A; Southland-Adams in Class C; and Norman County West-Climax and Silver Lake in Nine-Man. As a result, Minnesota is certain of having two undefeated teams — one from Class A and the other from the Nine-Man division.

Qualifiers for state championship games were decided during last week's semifinal action, which took place on Thursday and Friday at sites throughout the state. The usual number of surprises and unexpected results took place. The lone Prep bowl survivor from a year ago — Mahnomen, who leads the state in most appearances — 8 — in the 12-year history of playdowns, was the last to fall, losing to Breckenridge by a 22-14 count.

This week's championship games are expected to be as exciting as last year's Prep Bowl contests, which resulted in three games being decided with a point-differential of seven points or less.

Tickets for the second annual Prep Bowl are no longer available through mail orders from MSHSL headquarters in Anoka, but are available from all Dayton's ticket outlets in the metropolitan Twin Cities area. Game day ticket office windows open at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Metrodome.

Following is a capsule report on each of the five championship games:

Class B

Breckenridge (11-1) vs. Jordan (11-1).

Breckenridge hasn't lost since Game 1 against Wahpeton, N.D. when they were defeated 6-0 in overtime. Since then the Cowboys have reeled off 1 straight triumphs, including a 22-14 win last week

THIEF RIVER FALLS state meet qualifiers Michelle Puetz (left) and Teri Klopp were flanked by Lincoln high school head coach Jay Forney and Prowlers' assistant coach Jody Dallmann Monday as they talked things over before starting practice in preparation for the 1983 girls swimming and diving championships this weekend in Minneapolis. Puetz will compete in the 100-yard backstroke and Klopp will be entered in the diving portion of the meet.

Two Prowlers Will Enter State Swim Meet Friday

Thief River Falls' lone fall sports state meet qualifiers, swimmer Michelle Puetz and diver Teri Klopp, will compete in the 1983 Minnesota State High School League girls state swimming and diving championships beginning Friday at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Puetz, a sophomore, earned a state meet berth with a first place sectional finish Saturday in the 100-yard backstroke by swimming a 1:06.18 at the Bemidji State University pool.

Klopp, a junior, was a fifth place finisher in the one-meter diving competition at Bemidji wht 262.15 points.

Top two finishers in each swimming event, plus the top five divers, earned state meet berths.

As expected, Alexandria, Moorhead and Fergus Falls were the 1-2-3 finishers in the final sectional team standings, with Thief River Falls netting a solid fourth place finish in the two-day, ten-team event.

"All in all, we're very pleased with the results," reported Thief River Falls head coach Jay Forney. "We're very pleased with all the girls," he said of the 19-member squad he took to Bemidji, "and we're especially happy with Michelle and Teri."

Ironically, neither girl was particularly outstanding in the section meet, admitted Forney, but both had enough ability to accomplish the goals they knew were obtainable.

"Even in winning, Michelle did everything wrong," acknowledged Forney. "She messed up her turn, but there's just no competition for her in the backstroke in this section.

Klopp, too, struggled, noted Forney, but still hit enough dives to accumulate the points needed to nail down that fifth and final state meet spot in diving.

Thief River Falls' strong team showing and the advancement to the state meet by the two Prowlers added to a surprisingly successful 1983 season, pointed out Forney, whose team was 6-2 in dual meet competition and fared well in a small handfull of multiple-team outings with a youthful roster that included just two seniors.

"We're very pleased with their accomplishments this year," confirmed Forney. "The future looks bright."

Immediate future for Puetz and Klopp will be difficult, admitted Forney, as they face the tough state meet competition.

Two-day state meet will have nearly 400 swimmers and divers competing from 80 Minnesota high schools.

Competition will get underway on Friday beginning at 10 a.m. with diving preliminaries. Swimming preliminaries are scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. Swimming finals in 10 events and the diving finals will start on Saturday beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Burnsville is the two-time defending state team champion. The Braves are led by four-time stace champion and record holder Nancy Swanum, a senior, who hopes to repeat individual titles in the 200-yard individual medley and 100-yard backstroke events, events she won as a sophomore and junior. Her record time in the 200 I-M is 2:06.78, set in 1981, and her record time in the 100 yard backstroke is 58.70, set last year. Edina, Hopkins and St. Anthony Village are expected to challenge for the team title this season, supplanting Burnsville.

Swanum is one of six girls returning in hopes of repeating as state champion in different events. Another double winner from a year ago back is Jody Schirmers, a senior from St. Cloud Tech, who won the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events. Another defending champion returning is senior Amy Reed, St. Paul Johnson, whose record-setting time of 56.17 still stands when she captured a first in the 100-yard butterfly as a freshman in 1980. She will attempt to win a fourth gold medal in that event.

Other 1982 champions hoping to repeat in 1983 include senior Colleen Griffin, Lakeville 50-yard freestyle; senior Shawn Anderson, Rochester John Marshall, diving; and junior Amy Volna, St. Anthony Village, 100-yard freestyle.

Graduation took the likes of the only other individual champion from a year ago. Sue Roell, Burnsville, who is the record-holder in the 100-yard breaststroke event, is the lone champion not back. New titlists will also be crowned in the two relay events.

Interscholastic swimming and diving programs for girls were sponsored by 118 schools throughout Minnesota this fall. More than 3,000 girls were involved in the competition.

The state championships this weekend will again draw sell-out crowds at Cooke Hall pool. Last year's fifth straight sell-out drew a paid attendance figure of 2,102.

TRF Benefit Hockey Game Raises $1,000

Thief River Falls Arctic Cops edged the Anoka County All-Stars 8-7 in overtime Saturday in a benefit hockey game at the sports arena that raised about $1,000 for the community-funded extra-curricular activities at Lincoln high school.

Law Enforcement Center (LEC) personnel of Thief River Falls bolstered its line-up with special "draft choices" for the game, and five of the "honorary cops" scored goals — Dale Wennberg, Swede Lund, Curt Geatz, Bill Christian and Tom Goddard, whose goal eight seconds into sudden-death overtime ended the game.

Sponsors were pleased with the outcome of the event.

LHS Volleyball Awards Given

Kelli Olson and Paula Bergan were named co-captains of the 1984 Lincoln high school volleyball team, it was announced Tuesday as the Prowlers gathered for their annual post-season awards banquet.

Individual awards were presented to members of the varsity, junior varsity and C squad teams.

Varsity award winners included Missy Bondy, coaches award; Kim Poole and Angie Brazier, co-most improved; Kelli Olson, hardest worker; and Paula Bergan, most valuable player.

Junior varsity awards went to Lisa Arnold, coaches award and most valuable player; Stephanie Hovet, most improved; and Kari Hanson, hardest worker.

Honors on the C squad were presented to Paula Erickson, coaches award; Kristy Johnson, Most improved; LeeAnn Hanestad, hardest worker; and Stacy Glass, most valuable player.

Letter winners included seniors Nora Hushagen, Becky Ulrich, Poole and Bondy; juniors Leslie Weigand, Kristi Finney, Deb Opdahl, Jennifer Anderson, Olson, Bergan and Brazier; sophomore Pauline Lindberg.

State Volleyball Tournament Will Be Played This Weekend

When the tenth annual Minnesota State High School League state (MSHSL) volleyball tournament begins Friday at the Met Center in Bloomington, three-time defending state champion Robbinsdale Armstrong in Class AA and defending Class A titlist Mayer Lutheran will be among the 16 qualifiers, notes MSHSL information director Larry Larson.

Two-day tournament starts with quarterfinal matches at 10 a.m. Friday as matches will take place simultaneously on two courts in both classes in the Met Center. The four matches in each division will run continually until play is concluded at approximately 2:30 p.m. Semifinal matches will follow at 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. that night. Saturday's action will be devoted to the consolation series and third place matches in the morning with title confrontations in both classes set for the afternoon.

Class A state championship match is scheduled for noon followed by the Class AA title match-up at 1:30 p.m.

Only three of the schools which had teams in last year's state tournament have earned their way back to the 1983 event. In addition to the two defending state champions, Robbinsdale Armstrong in Class AA and Mayer Lutheran in Class A, only perennial entrant Columbia Heights in Class AA has won a berth.

While Robbinsdale Armstrong and Columbia Heights are repeaters in Class AA, the other six entrants are Albert Lea, Marshall, St. Paul Johnson, Benidle-St. Margaret's, Virginia and St. Cloud Tech.

Albert Lea and Benidle-St. Margaret's are first-timers, while the others have appeared previously. In fact, Marshall is back for a sixth time; St. Paul Johnson and Columbia Heights are making fifth appearances; St. Cloud Tech advances to state for a fourth time; while Virginia is back for a second appearance.

Among the field of eight in Class AA, Robbinsdale Armstrong and St. Paul Johnson are the only entrants who have won previous titles. Robbinsdale Armstrong in 1980 through 1982, and St. Paul Johnson in 1979.

Columbia Heights has been a runner-up twice, in 1977 and last year, while Marshall was state runner-up in 1979.

Robbinsdale Armstrong has once again been installed as the favorite. The Falcons are the only undefeated team in the field.

In Class A, defending champion Mayer Lutheran is expected to be seriously challenged by No. 1-rated Bricelyn, unbeaten in 22 matches. Another school expected to be a serious contender for title honors is St. Michael-Albertville, the upper bracket favorite.

Six of the eight Class A entrants are first-timers, including Milroy, a school with 57 students that has a town-populus of 242 people. The state tournament appearance for Milroy is the school's first ever in any team sport. Other entrants, all first-timers are Kasson-Mantorville, another school making their first ever appearance in any sport; Barnesville; Cass Lake; Greenway-Coleraine; and St. Michael Albertville.

State tournament pairings are as follows:

Class AA

Upper bracket — 10 a.m. — St. Paul Johnson (17-4) vs. Columbia Heights (14-5); 11:15 a.m. — Albert Lea (18-1) vs. Robbinsdale Armstrong (18-0); Lower bracket — 12:30 p.m. — St. Cloud Tech (14-6) vs. Virginia (14-4); and 1:45 p.m. — Benilde-St. Margaret's (15-3) vs. Marshall (18-2).

Class A

Upper bracket — 10 a.m. — St. Michael-Albertville (21-0) vs. Milroy (18-3); 11:15 a.m. — Barnesville (17-4) vs. Cass Lake (19-2); Lower bracket — 12:30 p.m. Bricelyn (22-0) vs. Mayer Lutheran (19-2); 1:45 p.m. — Greenway-Coleraine (19-2) vs. Kasson-Mantorville (20-1).

All 16 teams earned berths in the state tournament as a result of winning region tournament championships last week.

This year marks the eighth straight year the event has been conducted at the Met Center in Bloomington. Attendance at last year's tournament reached a record high 18,733.

Curling Class To Be Offered By Northland

Curling, a new non-credit course, will be offered by Northland community college during the winter quarter.

Course content will include philosophy and general overview of the game through presentation, demonstration, practice of delivery, turns, and the sweeping technique, reading ice sheets, skipping techniques, scoring and strategy.

Classes will meet Thursday evenings from 6:30-7:30 p.m. from December 8 to February 23. Participants should wear warm clothing and footwear with a smooth sole.

Fee for the course is $25. To register, or to obtain additional information, call the school at 681-2181.

Boards of education for Eveleth and Gilbert high schools voted in a joint meeting recently to merge the two schools' interscholastic sports programs for the 1984-85 school year.

Prep Bowl Will Be Played Saturday

over homestanding Mahnomen, the last of Prep Bowl I survivors.

Coach Mike Belseth's Heart O' Lakes Conference champions have recorded five shutouts this season. The school is making its third appearance in the state playoffs, having appeared previously in 1980 and 1981, but this is the first time the west-central Minnesota border school has reached the finals.

Their opponent, once-beaten Jordan, comes from a conference — the Minnesota River — that produced last year's Class B champion — Le Center. Like Le Center, Jordan has a good defesive team. They have six shutouts. Their only loss was to Le Center, 8-0, in week six of the regular season. Last week's semifinal game against Wabasha-Kellogg was the second straight shutout in the state playoff series, the first was against Granite Falls. In both victories over Granite Falls and Wabasha-Kellogg, the Hubmen won by 20-0 margins.

Jordan is in its first title game. The school had a previous trip to the state playoffs in 1980.

Class C

Bird Island-Lake Lillian (11-1) vs. Southland-Adams (12-0).

Two state championships and two times a runner-up, Bird Island-Lake Lillian has experience on its side, while Southland high school in Adams has had an outstanding season, winning all 12 games and has the state's longest winning streak — 18-triumphs in a row extending two seasons.

Trying to pick a winner is most difficult. Bird Island-Lake Lillian has sidelined strong Gaylord-Winthrop, 13-6, and stubborn Glyndon-Felton, 20-12, in the first two state playoff games, while Southland has defeated Harmony, 28-6, and previously unbeaten Sherburn-Dunnell, 22-9.

Bird Island-Lake Lillian's lone setback this season was in overtime to Arlington-Green Isle, 19-18, in week two of the regular season. Meanwhile, Southland's closest game en route to an unbeaten season was a 27-26 overtime win against West Concord.

Southland made one previous appearance in the state football playoff, in 1977. This is the school's first appearance in a title game.

Nine-Man

Norman County West-Climax (12-0) vs. Silver Lake (12-0).

Two undefeated teams with outstanding offensive teams. While Norman County West-Climax was challenged only once all-season long — vs. Lake Park (8-0 score) in the season opener — Silver Lake, too, has impressive victories. Their closest games were against Stewart and Winsted Holy Trinity, both resulting in seven-point triumphs.

Trying to pick a winner will not be an easy task. In state playoff action this year Norman County West-Climax has won over Plummer, 46-0, and downed Hill City, 50-32, while Silver Lake has won by virtue of 31-14 and 53-14 scores over Starbuck and Hills-Beaver Creek.

Norman County West, a school located in Halstad, and nearby Climax, are two schools involved in a MSHSL cooperative sponsorship program in football and is making its first ever state playoff appearance. Silver Lake, meanwhile, appeared once previously, a year ago, but this is the school's first time game appearance.

Class A

Park Rapids (12-0) vs. Hutchinson (12-0).

Some say the final score may be 41-40. Two teams with outstanding point-getting potential. Both unbeaten and both with playoff experience. Hutchinson, now in its fifth state playoff appearance, is in its first title game and so is Park Rapids, who was entered in state playoffs in 1979 and 1980.

Hutchinson has sidelined Worthington, 20-12, and Cambridge, 27-14, in the first two rounds, while Park Rapids has defeated Cloquet, 17-15 and Albany, 14-6 during the quarterfinal and semifinal games played the past two weeks.

Two teams aren't bad defensively, either. Hutchinson has three shutouts, while Park Rapids has blanked five foes.

Class AA

Bloomington Jefferson (11-1) vs. Coon Rapids (10-1).

Bloomington Jefferson lost its only game in week two of the regular season by a 7-6 county to Lake North co-champion Robbinsdale Armstrong. Coon Rapids suffered its only setback in a game which had no bearing on conference standings, losing 13-7 in the regular season finale to Forest Lake.

Game could be as close as last year's thrilling Prep Bowl finale won by Stillwater over Owatonna, 34-27.

In last week's semifinal action at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis, Bloomington Jefferson defeated Red Wing, 28-14, while Coon Rapids eliminated Moorhead, 12-7.

Neither school has ever won a state title in football. Bloomington Jefferson has come the closest, losing in its only previous state appearance in 1974 when being beaten by Rochester John Marshall, 41-19, in the finals.

Coon Rapids was in the state playdowns in 1973 and 1978, but never has advanced to a championship game.

The game promises to be a great ending to the Prep Bowl.

Prep Bowl Notes

+ All 10 teams and musical performers will practice in the Metrodome on Friday.

+ Nine-Man playing field is 40 yards wide and 80 yards long. Teams play without two guards, accounting for the nine players. There are no 15-yard penalties; most assessed by a referee is 10 yards. Teams will kickoff from the 30-yard line in the Metrodome. If a field goal attempt is desired, team captains will inform the referee and adjusted yardage will be marked off.

+ All five games will be televised by KSTP-TV (Channel 5), Minneapolis, St. Paul. Play-by-play announcers will be Bob Bruce and Larry Burnett. Cal Stoll, former University of Minnesota football coach, will provide color in the booth.

+ More than 15 radio stations are expected to be on hand to do play-by-play of one or more games from the Metrodome.

+ Among the 10 head coaches having teams in the second annual Prep Bowl, five of them are members of the 100-Victory Coaching Club: Pat "Bruno" Waldner, Bloomington Jefferson, 139-59-3; Grady Rostberg, Hutchinson, 136-58-2; Andy McCarty, Park Rapids, 121-90; Buz Rumrill, Silver Lake, 118-78-3; and Ron Scott, Coon Rapids, 106-54.

+ Danny Grant, the youngest of four sons of Viking head coach Bud Grant, is a junior starting wide receiver and safety for Bloomington Jefferson. In last week's semifinal victory over Red Wing, Grant caught seven passes for 66 yards and intercepted a pass which set up the Jaguars' second touchdown. Grant also is the Bloomington Jefferson punter.

DNR NEWS

Moose Hunters

Preliminary results of Minnesota's 1983 moose season indicate that 84 per cent of the hunting parties are bagging their animal, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Season has ended except for the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in northwestern Minnesota where the season runs from Dec. 3-11. The DNR issued 35 permits for this zone and wildlife officials said that usually all hunting parties are successful in bagging a moose.

Figures to date show 655 moose taken in the northwest hunting area and 438 in the northeast, for a total of 1,093. If all 35 permits are filled in the Agassiz zone, the final total for the season would be 1,128.

Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Chief, said the results of the season indicate that Minnesota's moose herd is in a "healthy, vigorous condition and that the present season setting policies are maintaining the population at an optimum level."

Department has been conducting seasons on an "every-other-year" basis and issuing a limited number of permits through a computerized drawing of applicants for licenses.

Trout Stamp

A panel of judges recently selected the design for Minnesota's 1984 trout stamp.

Winning artist is Mario Fernandez of Orono who won in a tie-breaker for first place with Eugene Budroot of Minnetonka.

Fernandez' design portrayed a brook trout as did six of the top seven entrants in the contest. A total of 61 entries were received.

Trout stamp is required of persons ages 18 through 64 inclusive, in addition to an angling or sportsman license, who fish for trout in trout streams.

Mille Lacs Spearing

Department of Natural Resources has announced that Mille Lacs lake will be closed to spearing through Dec. 20 this winter instead of opening on Dec. 1, the usual start of the winter fish spearing season.

Officials emphasized, however, that northern pike may be taken by angling during this period together with other game fish on which the season is open.

Delay in the spearing season is to provide additional protection for northern pike — the only game fish that may legally be taken with a spear in Minnesota.

Richard Hassinger, DNR Fisheries Chief, said concern over the status of the northern pike population in Mille Lacs was expressed at public meetings both in the Twin Cities and the Mille Lacs lake area.

By state law the Commissioner of Natural Resources is required to subtract from the angling season 3.6 days for every day deducted from the spearing season.

In compliance with that requirement, the northern pike angling season opener on Mille Lacs next year will be delayed for 73 days, opening on July 24, 1984.

Delay in the winter spearing season means that no person may have a spear in possession or under control while on the waters of Mille Lacs lake from Dec. 1 through Dec. 20, both dates inclusive.

Spring Turkey Hunt

Minnesota's seventh spring wild turkey hunt will begin on April 14, 1984, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Persons who want to take part in this hunt will have until December 16, 1983, to complete and return the applications for the computerized drawing.

Wildlife officials said turkey hunt applications should be available from county auditors, most license dealers, and all area wildlife offices.

"A total of 3,000 permits will be available for the five southeastern Minnesota hunting zones," said Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Chief. "The larger zones, the addition of another 5-day hunting period and the fact that normally 20 per cent of the successful applicants choose not to hunt, accounts for the increase of 900 permits over 1983.

"The harvest rate has remained around 7 per cent for the last several years and the 'hunter to hunter interference rate' remains low. Consequently, we felt it an opportune time to enlarge the number of permits.

Adding the extra five day hunting period between May 9-13 is appropriate because turkey gobblers are still active. Although the earliest season has been plagued by fowl weather, it will be retained. Those hunters selecting the earliest season should be aware that weather can be an unpleasant factor."

One of the five separate hunting time periods may be selected: April 14-18, April 20-24, April 26-30, May 2-6 and May 9-13; all dates are inclusive.

Anyone who is a legal resident and 18 years of age or older by April 14, 1984, may apply. Holmes reminded hunters that the 1982 legislature removed a "two year ineligibility" provision, so everyone who was successful in a previous computer drawing may apply.

Persons who desire to hunt as a group may submit their individual applications in a single envelope. The chance of a group being drawn is the same as for an individual application.

All successful applicants, except for those who hunted turkeys in a previous Minnesota season, will be required to attend a three-hour "turkey hunter orientation program" conducted by the DNR. These sessions will be offered statewide in numerous locations during March and April of 1984, said Holmes.

Computer drawing will be conducted on Jan. 4 and only those selected in the drawing will be notified. These persons will be sent an information form by January 20 which is necessary in order to purchase the $10 turkey hunting license.

In addition to the turkey hunting license, purchase of a 1984 small game license is also required.

Boating Safety Course

More than 50,000 Minnesota youth ages 13 through 17 have been certified by the Department of Natural Resources to operate watercraft powered by motors in excess of 24 h.p.

By state law, persons in the 13-17 age bracket must either be certified by the DNR or be accompanied by someone at least 18 years of age.

Certification is achieved through a simple home study course and test administered by the DNR Boat and Water Safety Section.

There is no charge for the course and it is available through local sheriffs, many marine dealers, DNR offices throughout the state, schools, and the Boat and Water Safety Section, Box 46 Centennial Building, St. Paul.

"The increase in boating popularity together with the expanded use of high horsepower watercraft made it imperative that the public become familiar with basic safety procedures," said Kim Elverum, program administrator.

"We believe that many parents also read the course material while it is in the home and in that way we are getting the safety message to a substantial number of adults too."

Skiers Need Licenses

Cross country skiers using 1,400 miles of designated trails on most public lands in Minnesota will need a license starting December 1, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) noted.

Requirement was initiated by a coalition of cross country ski groups who urged its passage by the 1983 legislature. Funds from license sales are expected to be appropriated by the legislature through the DNR to state and local units of government for maintaining and developing cross country skiing opportunities.

Licenses will not be required, however, on trails located on federal land, nor for skiers under 16 or over 64 years of age, according to a pamphlet on the new law currently being distributed by the DNR. Copies of the pamphlet are available to the public at most DNR offices, state parks, ski shops and 7-Eleven stores.

Annual license will cost $5 per skier but a "husband and wife" license will be available at a charge of $7.50. Skiers have the option of buying a one-day permit at a cost of $1.

License will be designed so as to be worn in a visible location on the skier's outer clothing.

Donald M. Carlson, special assistant to the commissioner, DNR's Trails & Waterways Unit, said the license is the result of a continued strong demand for cross country skiing opportunities and a decrease in funds to provide the needed facilities.

"As with many public services," he said, "it is becoming more and more difficult to secure adequate funding for trails. This is particularly true of trail uses for which no user fee is required. With a user fee or licensing system, however, users have a 'grass roots' way of helping to ensure a strong future for their kinds of trails."

As an example, he cited the case of snowmobiling enthusiasts who have a strong and growing trail system in part as a result of the snowmobile registration law.

"I think we will see a similar kind of thing occur in cross country skiing," Carlson said.

Hayes Lake Park Work Project Is Now Underway

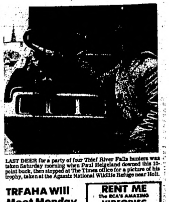
Hayes Lake, in Hayes Lake State Park near Roseau, will undergo a temporary lowering of the water level to allow installation of a 200-foot subsurface drain pipe, announced park manager Dan Fischer.

Over the next several weeks, the lake will be lowered to expose the existing subsurface pipe, which will raise the river level downstream for a short period of time. Once the new, longer pipe is installed, the lake level will be brought back to normal, resulting in a reduced flow downstream for about a month. Pipe installation and return of normal water levels should be complete within three months.

Paul Rundell, resource manager for northwestern Minnesota state parks, who has been working closely with Fischer on the project, said "the new, 200-foot pipe will allow the dam to draw out less oxygenated water from the bottom of the lake — reducing the likelihood for winterkill conditions developing in the lake. Solving the winterkill problem in the lake would allow stocking of fish and improved fishing in the future."

Fischer reports that ice fishermen should use caution this year. "Due to the necessary manipulation of the water levels" he said "ice conditions this winter may not be safe. Also, we may lose a few fish during this project, but the long term result should be improved fishing."

Public is invited to visit the park and view the project. Once the lake level has been lowered and ice has formed, the new pipe will be layed out on the ice, connected and then sunk. The lake will then be allowed to refill.



LAST DEER for a party of four Thief River Falls hunters was taken Saturday morning when Paul Helgeland downed this 10-point buck, then stopped at The Times office for a picture of his trophy, taken at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge near Holt.

TRFAHA Will Meet Monday

General membership meeting of the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the Franklin middle school library.

All parents of players involved in the Thief River Falls youth hockey program are urged to attend the meeting.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

In an effort to improve Minnesota's public schools, the state Legislature last year passed several measures implementing studies of our school districts, their course offerings, students achievement, teacher competency, and more.

Following the Legislature's cue, both the State Department of Education and the State Board of Education, as well as the newly formed Legislative Commission on Public Education, began investigating our public schools, talking to teachers, administrators, and students, gathering data, reading national reports, and working to find some solutions to why our schools are not living up to public expectations.

During the October mini-session, we heard the first report from the Department of Education on curriculum as it relates to students at the secondary level. The Legislature mandated the department to study statewide curriculum and report on possible state requirements to improve what students are learning, especially in the areas of math and science.

The department's commissioner Ruth Randall, presented lawmakers on the Education Committee with curriculum guidelines designed by the State Board of Education. It is my understanding that the Department of Education, the Board, and the Legislature will continue working on these preliminary requirements during the next year. For now, though, I thought you might be interested in hearing what Dr. Randall presented to the committee so you will have a basic idea on the direction the state hopes to take in the area of education.

Currently, state requirements for graduation are: 3 credits in communication skills, 2 credits in social studies, ½ credit in health, ½ credit in physical education, and 9 credits worth of electives. The electives are wide open, but it is interesting to note that state high schools currently offer anywhere from 18 to 180 different electives. They are not required to offer courses other than those necessary for graduation.

The preliminary report from our state's education experts would not change the graduation requirements, but it would change the required courses school districts would have to offer their secondary students. In the area of "required to make available" they are suggesting: 4 credits of communication skills, 3 credits of social studies, ½ credit of health, ½ credit of physical education, 3 credits of science, 3 credits of math, 1 credit of industrial arts, 2 credits of music, 2 credits of visual arts, 2 credits of foreign languages, and 10 credits in vocational subjects (agriculture, business, homemaking, trade and industrial, service occupations, etc.).

Such required course offerings would be considered the minimum school districts should offer their students. As you can see, the goal is to increase the offering of subjects vital to our modern, technological world. Throughout the courses, too, the State Board of Education said schools should promote computer literacy.

As I said earlier, this proposal, along with many others we expect in the area of education during the next legislative session, will undergo a great deal of debate before any final decisions are made.

I believe we all realize, though, that we must upgrade what our schools are providing to students. Commissioner Randall told the Education committee members that in every report she reads on our schools and education, the students conclude that they are bored in school. Perhaps a more varied and challenging curriculum will solve this problem before anything else does.

I am interested in your comments on our schools and ways to improve them. Please contact me by writing.

Community Education Day Is Proclaimed

Community education day in Thief River Falls has been proclaimed by Mayor Bob Carlson for today. Community education day is observed during American Education week. The complete proclaimation is in this issue.

Community education philosophy assumes that when local communities identify their own needs and resources and public agencies work cooperatively, community betterment will result, according to Terry Lemer, adult education director at the Thief River Falls AVTI.

Community education office is located in the AVTI, highway one east, phone 681-5424.

I SUPPORT COMMUNITY EDUCATION

National Community Education Day
Wednesday, November 16, 1983

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS:	Public education is a community enterprise; and
WHEREAS:	Education is a lifelong process; and
WHEREAS:	Interagency cooperation promotes efficient use of limited resources; and
WHEREAS:	Local residents have a right to be involved in deciding how the resources of their communities will be used; and
WHEREAS:	Community education promotes the use of school resources; the use of public resources to provide educational opportunities for community residents of all ages; interagency cooperation to maximize the use of existing resources; and citizen involvement in education decision-making; and
WHEREAS:	The goal of community education is a sharing, educative community; and
WHEREAS:	"I Support Community Education" is the slogan of Community Education Day, co-sponsored by the National Community Education Association, and the Minnesota Community Education Association.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, MAYOR Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls, do hereby proclaim November 16, 1983, as Community Education Day and call upon the people of Thief River Falls to recognize and celebrate the bonds they have discovered, the partnerships they have formed, and the sense of community they have strengthened through community education programs.

APPLAUSE follows the violin performance given by Hannibal (Robby Giffen) in this scene from "The Curious Savage," Marshall county central high school play. Others pictured are (left to right) Pam Pederson as Mrs. Savage, Lorna Skadsem as Florence, Jamey Lyane as Jeffrey, Charlene Filmore as Fairy May and Karen Busch as Mrs. Paddy. The play will be presented Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium in Newfolden. Dawn Olson is assistant director to Paul Sharon, Grant Nelson and Jill Melvie are in charge of lights, Tom Bolstad handles the sound, Jon Douglas the curtains and Kim Stokke and Jody Hjelle are in charge of tickets. Mona Olson prepared the programs and Mrs. Betty Gonshorowski is technical director.

HOLIDAY FAIR in Thief River Falls Saturday included a wide variety of attractive and creative items for gifts as well as personal use. Mrs. Deb Ehrenstrom of Warroad shows some of her quilted creations for children in the above photo. Deb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Roadfeldt of Thief River Falls.

Hearing Today On White Earth Land Dispute

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has convinced Rep. Morris Udall (D-AZ), chairman of the House committee on interior and insular affairs, to hold a hearing today into settling land claim disputes around the White Earth Reservation.

"This is an important step towards a reasonable settlement," Congressman Stangeland said. "By airing differences before a Congressional committee, perhaps we can reach a compromise that will be fair to both sides."

The House committee is meeting at 1:30 p.m. in Room 1324 of the Longworth House office building. Tomorrow the Senate select committee on Indian affairs will hold a similar hearing at 10 a.m. in Room 124 of the Dirksen Senate office building.

"These hearings will focus the attention of Congress on the serious problems in Becker, Mahnomen and Clearwater counties," Congressman Stangeland said. Several years ago, Congressman Stangeland introduced a bill to settle disputes over clouded land titles around the White Earth reservation.

In this Congress, the Stangeland bill (H.R. 2246) has been joined by companion legislation (S. 885) introduced by Minnesota Senator Dave Durenberger.

"At these hearings, I will try to make it clear that everyone could benefit from a legislative solution to these disputes," Stangeland said. "It isn't the fault of innocent land-owners, who bought their property in good faith, nor is it the fault of the Indian heirs and allottees. Since the federal government failed in its role as a supervisor, it is up to Congress to settle these problems.

"By clearing the titles of land-owners and making recompense to the Indian heirs, Congress could settle the dispute," Congressman Stangeland said. "That would be quicker and more fair than waiting years for a possible solution from the courts."

Congressman Stangeland will testify at both the House and Senate hearings.

Grain Storage Workshop Set At Grygla

Area grain producers are invited to participate at a grain storage management program scheduled for Grygla on Monday, Nov. 28. The workshop, sponsored by the Marshall county extension office, will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Grygla community center.

Program will include discussions on grain storage management and aeration considerations by Harold Cloud, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Minnesota, and storage losses from molds, bin heating, etc. by Dick Meronuck, extension plant pathologist, University of Minnesota.

Each year Minnesota farmers have storage losses from improper grain storage, thus producers are encouraged to attend the update session on the management of stored grain with aeration reports by Ray Thompson, county extension director.

Computer And Typing Courses Offered By NCC

Northland Community college will offer two sections of "basic computer programming", a three credit course which will cover flow-charting and coding of programs using the basic language. One section of the course will be available on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m., taught by Phil Heppner. Other section of the course will be available on Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m., taught by Dick Orvis. Mr. Orvis has his B.S. degree from Bemidji State university and is a computer specialist at Marvin's Windows. Mrs. Heppner assumed major leadership in the development of Marvin's computerized system.

Tuition for the course is $22.50 per credit. For more information or to register, contact NCC at 681-2181.

Dr. Leo Herber Retains AAFP Membership

Dr. Leo Herber of Thief River Falls has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American academy of family physicians, the national association of family doctors.

Requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership.

Family Program Set At Bemidji 'U' Dec. 10-11

Tickets for the 2 p.m. December 10 and 11 performances of the symphonic fable "Peter and the Wolf," a special holiday musical for children and adults, will be available through Bemidji state university November 21.

A grant from the Region II arts and humanities council has made possible a staged and costumed performance of the classic.

A children's theatre ensemble from Bemidji state university, directed by Lou Marchand, will join narrator Joe Vene, conductor Timothy Perry, and the Bemidji symphony orchestra in the production.

University men's chorus and varsity choir, under the direction of David Castonguay, will follow the performance with songs from the advent season.

Tickets for both shows will go on sale by mail only November 21. Unsold seating can be reserved in person beginning November 29 in the music department office in Bangsberg hall. Costs are $6 for a family, $2.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Tickets are available by writing the music office, Bangsberg Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 or phone 218-755-2915.

Second Nordic Triathlon Set Near Hibbing

Second annual Nordic Triathlon at Side Lake, north of Hibbing, has been scheduled for Feb. 4, it was announced by race officials.

Close to 100 racers participated in the day-long event during the winter of 1983 and registration is now being accepted for 1984 participants.

Triathlon consists of about eight miles of cross country skiing through McCarthy Beach State Park then a mile of snowshoeing and a mile of ice skating across Side Lake. The race will begin at Bimbo's Octagon on Highway 5, about 25 miles north of Hibbing.

Prizes will be awarded to first male and female finishers in each of five categories along with a grand prize for male and female finishers with the overall best times in the competition. Category breakdown includes racers 16-years-old and younger; 25-years-old and under; 35-years-old and younger; 45-years-old and younger; and a master's class over 45.

Registration is $10 until the day of the race when it will increase to $15. For pre-registration write to Nordic Triathlon, Box 176, Side Lake, MN 55781; or call 218-254-2322.

Nordic Triathlon is a community-sponsored event organized by the Side Lake Civic Association. All race finishers will receive Nordic Triathlon T-shirts.

1983 State Gymnastics Meet Is Set

Forty-second Minnesota State High School League-sponsored state gymnastics meet will be conducted at Bloomington Jefferson high school on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 22 and 23.

For the second straight year the meet will be conducted as an open invitational event with all of the state's 17 schools sponsoring gymnastics having an opportunity for their gymnasts to participate. Previous to 1982 gymnasts qualified for state competition as a result of winning berths through section meet qualifying.

Tuesday's schedule will include naming an all-around champion and qualifying competition for Wednesday's team and individual competition in the six events. Some 30 gymnasts will compete for the gold medal in all-around on Tuesday.

Advancing to Wednesday's final day of competition will be the top three teams in scoring on Tuesday, and top 10 individuals in each of the six events.

Bloomington Jefferson is expected to supplant Edina as the team champion in 1983. The Jaguars of Jefferson have been rated No. 1 all-season long by the State Gymnastics Coaches Association and are looking for their first-ever state gymnastics team title.

A two-way race for all-around laurels is expected on Tuesday. Defending all-around titlists Eric Gieseke, a senior from Anoka, and Ron Hill, a senior from Bloomington Jefferson are expected to once again battle for top honors. The two finished 1-2 a year ago with Gieseke outpointing Hill by a 51.55 to 49.10 margin.

While Gieseke won three individual events in 1982 — floor exercise, pommel horse and still rings — in addition to the all-around title, Hill's best finish in individual event competition last year was a second in the horizontal bars event.

One other individual event champion returns. He's Keith Belau, a Fairmont senior who captured a first in vaulting last November.

In Memoriam
In memory of Palmer Johnson who passed away Nov. 17, 1982:
Though your smiles are gone forever and your hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories of the one we loved so much,
Our hearts still ache with loneliness,
God only knows how much we miss you.
Sadly missed by his family.

Land Exchanges To Benefit Wildlife

Two recently-completed land exchanges within the Upper Mississippi River National Wildlife and Fish Refuge will benefit wildlife and enhance the quality of the refuge, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS).

One of the exchanges was between the FWS and a group of home owners (the Teepeeota Channel View Corporation) along the Mississippi river at Wasbasha, Minnesota; the other was between the FWS and the city of Alma, Wisconsin.

Home owners at Wabasha wanted to acquire a strip of FWS-owned land between their houses and the river. The tract, 40-50 feet wide, about a mile long and totaling about 11 acres, was being used under permit primarily for private, residential purposes such as lawns and boat docks, and by itself offered far less value for wildlife than the property offered for exchange. To acquire the property through an exchange, the group purchased a 142-acre tract of excellent wildlife habitat about a mile west and traded this to the FWS for the river property.

In the other exchange, the city of Alma acquired from the FWS a 20.6 acre island in the Mississippi that the city was using under permit for tennis courts and a marina. The city wants to build a swimming pool on the island in the near future. Through the exchange the city gained ownership of the island, and the FWS acquired from the city a nearby 30-acre tract of low bottom land (marsh and woods) that is adjacent to refuge land and is excellent for wildlife.

In such exchanges involving government property, professional appraisals are made on each tract to be exchanged, and equilization payments are made if necessary. The FWS prefers equal-value exchanges.

While land exchanges can be undertaken to improve wildlife refuges and other government holdings, FWS officials emphasize that by law a great many qualifications must be met. Generally the FWS enters into an exchange only when lands acquired are more valuable for wildlife than the FWS-owned lands being divested in the exchange. In FWS land exchanges there must be a direct and obvious benefit to the FWS.

FWS regional director Harvey K. Nelson of the Twin Cities was highly complimentary to the home owners in Wabasha and Alma for becoming involved in the exchanges.

"Our agency acquired two pieces of property that we can preserve and manage for wildlife, and the tracts we exchanged can best be utilized for residential and recreational purposes," he pointed out. "It's a matter of land being owned and utilized for the best purpose, and to the benefit of all parties."

FmHA Helps Farmers Stay In Business

Special actions by Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to help farmers stay in business were up substantially in the 1983 fiscal year, according to Russ Bjorhus, FmHA state director.

In fiscal year 1982, Bjorhus said, this type of help totalled 1,211 reschedulings and subordinations. In fiscal 1983, which ended September 30, similar actions were taken for over 1,800 farm loans.

In the 1982 fiscal year, the number of Farmers Home farm borrowers who had their loans rescheduled or reamortized to help them in making payments was 178. In 1983 that was up to 852.

In addition, Bjorhus said, Farmers Home in Minnesota assisted another 870 borrowers to obtain additional credit from the private sector. These "subordinations," in which Farmers Home subordinates part of its loan collateral to other lenders, totalled 1,032 loans for $20.6 million dollars in fiscal year 1983.

"Subordinations help both individuals and all Farmers Home borrowers," Bjorhus said. "An individual may need more credit than FmHA, by law, can extend. By FmHA's taking a second position to another lender, our borrower is able to get adequate credit for the operation. Second, by involving the private and cooperative credit sectors, we stretch our limited funds for those borrowers who need this help the most."

Farmers Home administration is the rural credit agency of the United States department of agriculture. This year, FmHA in Minnesota loaned to 16,000 farmers who could not get credit elsewhere.

Farm loans for fiscal year 1983 totalled $103 million dollars or about 14 per cent of the total farm credit in the state.

42nd Annual FU Convention Is Nov. 20-21

"Prepared for Tommorrow" will be the theme when delegates to the 42nd annual Minnesota Farmers Union convention gather to write the policy statement that will guide the organization for the coming year. Convention will be held November 20 and 21 at the MFU headquarters building, 1717 University Ave., St. Paul.

In addition to policy consideration, a program featuring banquet speaker Bob Bergland is planned. Bergland, a Minnesota native and former U.S. secretary of agriculture, is general manager-elect of the national rural electric cooperative association in Washington, D.C. He will share the concerns of rural electric cooperatives in his address to the convention banquet at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 20. Advance banquet reservations are required.

Young adults who have completed the requirements for the Farmers Union Torchbearer's award will be recognized during the convention banquet, to emphasize the contribution of youth to the total organization. A traditional torchbearer's ceremony will be held to honor the youth.

Challenges family farmers will face in 1984 and beyond will be addressed by National Farmers Union president George Stone and MFU president Cy Carpenter. The two men are expected to review the activities of each organization, as well.

Other speakers scheduled include Minnesota Congressmen Tim Penny, DLF-first district and Gerry Sikorski, DFL-sixth district; Harvest States Cooperatives director of marketing development Patrick Kluempke; Farmers Union central exchange (CENEX) executive committee chairman Joe Larson; NFU Insurance companies president Ray Novak; and Minnesota AFL-CIO president Dave Roe.

Additional business to come before the convention includes election of delegates to the NFU convention planned for next spring, and election of MFU president and vice president. Current president Cy Carpenter and vice president Vere Vollmers are unopposed in their bids for re-election.

Registration for the convention will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday, and the call to order will be given at 12:30 that afternoon. The convention will continue through Monday, with adjournment following policy completion.

Use Only White Reflectors As Markers

For added safety, use only white (colorless) or blue colored reflectors on each side to mark driveway entrances, said Ronald Hoffman, state traffic engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Red, amber or yellow colored reflectors are not permitted because such colors resemble motor vehicle tail lights and could be confusing to an approaching motorist, he explained. Reflectors should not be used on roadside mailboxes or posts either.

Hoffman recommends using double-faced white or blue reflectors that are clearly visible from both directions on the highway. Installation should be no closer than 10 feet from the edge of the road shoulder. Square or circular reflectors about three inches in width can be used and are easily visible when placed at a height of four or five feet above the road surface.

The Beginning

They met in church school. Right now I think you could call them childhood sweethearts. You can bet that in a few years they will be embarrassed that Aunt Jessie snapped this picture. But later, who knows? Perhaps they will discover each other again.

Whether they do or not, both these youngsters are luckier than they know. Not because they met in church school, but because they are in church school. They have made a beginning that will sustain them throughout their entire life.

You can't give a child faith. But you can open the door so that he has a chance to find it — the door that leads to church school as well as the door that leads to a life of useful Christian service.

If you never went to church school, that is all the more reason to enroll your youngsters now. If you missed out, don't let them!

Keenagers

About 60 Keenagers and guests enjoyed the annual Thanksgiving dinner on Friday at the Holt community center. Kathy Erickson played several musical numbers before dinner was served. After the meal everyone stood up and sang "My Friends Are Your Friends". Gerry Nelson then presided over the business meeting. Bertha Larson and her daughters donated two dozen clothes hangers for the center. Also Mr. and Mrs. Harry Engen had donated $2 in memory of Einar Ness. Cards were signed to be sent to Jeff Davidson and Tom Maijala who are in Northwestern hospital and also a thank you card went to DelRay Larson, our commissioner for this district. A special thanks to Marlys Sagstuen and Verna Lunke who prepared the Thanksgiving dinner and to Harrie Larson and Hilma Horien for roasting the turkeys. The secretary's report was read by Selmer Sorter and the treasurer's report by Harry Engen. Christmas plans were discussed for the next meeting which will be December 9. It was decided to have ham and on the lunch committee will be Clara J. Reierson, Marion Gusa, Tillie Johnson and Clara Reierson. Those who want to exchange a $2 gift can do so. The Thanksgiving program began with Pastor Rick Lund giving the devotions from reading Psalm 24 and had the audience singing, "God is So Good to Me". Verna Lunke gave a reading called "The First Thanksgiving". Flora (Hagglund) Mercil honored Veterans' Day by reading, "The Heritage of Old Glory", a poem she has written. Ray and Marion Gusa sang "Thanks For God". Harriet Larson read "At Grandma's". Kathy Erickson played and sang "Over the River and Through the Woods to Grandmother's House", Eva Nelson read "Grace for Thanksgiving Day, then Kathy Erickson played and sang several songs and also played requests from the audience which was really appreciated and enjoyed by everyone. Fern Nygard expressed her enjoyment of spending the day here in Holt.

Senior Citizen News

Thirteen registered Thursday, Nov. 10th when the senior citizens met for their weekly meeting.

Some ladies sewed up ends on two crib quilts, while others were working and visiting fluffing up Arctic scrape. There is no chance that we are through with that job, since Ruth Harper and Dave Ombler drove to Thief River Falls this past week and brought up more bags to work with. Its good to have something to work at while at the center and our work ends up in bed and sofa pillows and stuffed animals, etc. We get a good feeling (next thing to pride) when we help along with what we can do.

We will be treating ourselves to a chicken dinner at Linda's here in town Thursday at 1 o'clock, later going to the hangout for afternoon coffee.

Louie Lofstrom and Ruth Harper received the door prizes that were given away Thursday.

Thursday Annie Rood and her daughter Gertrude Anderson of Wisconsin visited our center and purchased many items.

We prayed the table grace and Mildred served the delicious lunch for Bertha Fredrickson who was our hostess Thursday.

Irene reporting

Ida Bruce and Irene Larson visited Ruth Holmstrom after attending L.C.W. at Bethesda Wednesday. Ellen Stromberg, Roger Holmstrom and Gloria Renstrom also visited Ruth late Wednesday.

American Heart Association

Hostility and Heart Disease

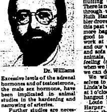
Hostility may be a key aspect of the "Type A" behavior profile — the hard-driving, impatient person who is at higher risk than others of having heart attacks, said Redford B. Williams, Jr., M.D., at a recent American Heart Association meeting.

Not all Type A's get heart attacks, but in studies at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, NC, over the last seven years, Type A patients showed more severe coronary heart disease than others. And the Type A's who scored high on an experimental "hostility" scale from the standard personality assessment questionnaire, the Minnesota Multiphasic Inventory (MMPI), had a particularly high rate of heart disease reported Dr. Williams, associate professor of medicine and professor of psychiatry.

Dr. Williams studied the records of 255 physicians who had taken the MMPI 25 years earlier, while in medical school. Those who scored low on the hostility scale had a less than three percent heart attack rate during the ensuing 25 years, compared with more than a 12 percent rate for those with higher range hostility scores — nearly a five-fold difference. Their death rates from all causes followed this same pattern, being lower among the low-hostility men.

Numerous researchers are investigating the mechanisms, by putting Type A's and the more calm Type B individuals through stressful experiments in laboratories. Type A's show larger boosts in blood pressure, and larger increases in blood levels of epinephrine and cortisol, the adrenal hormones that cause blood vessels to constrict, Dr. Williams said.

The Duke researchers found, among Type A men given simple arithmetic problems, physiologic and hormonal reactions similar to those seen in emergency and fight-or-flight situations.



Dr. Williams

Excessive levels of the adrenal hormones and of testosterone, the male sex hormone, have been implicated in animal studies in the hardening and narrowing of arteries.

Further studies are necessary to determine if the higher hormonal responses observed so far in some Type A persons are causative factors in heart disease, Dr. Williams said. If susceptible people could be identified early, then preventive measures could be taken to save their lives.

American History Is Told In Family Folklore

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Services

As American families gather at holiday tables this time of year, they will share far more than the traditional dinner with all the trimmings. After everyone is seated, the napkins in place, it will be only a moment before the familiar stories begin to unfold.

"Do you remember the time," one relative asks — and of course everyone does because this story is told at every holiday gathering — "when the plum pudding wouldn't flame and mother drenched it with a bottle of brandy trying to get it lighted. . . ?"

As it turns out, there is more going on at these family gatherings than meets the palate, or the ear. Often-told tales featuring the likes of puddings and other special memories are more than just enjoyable, time-passing moments; family folklore experts tell us; rather, such stories are the sound of a family celebrating, renewing and reestablishing itself. And repetition plays no small part in this process.

"For some families, these tales may be their most important way of expressing kinship," note the authors of "A Celebration of American Family Folklore," a collection of stories and photographs gathered during the Smithsonian's annual festival of American folklife in Washington, D.C. "For others it is here, over the dinner or picnic table, that family members renew a dedication to one another. . ."

Mealtime, in fact, turns out to be the time when family members are most at home with each other physically and psychologically. "Perhaps it is not a coincidence," the authors observe, "that we satisfy our emotions along with our appetites."

Until quite recently, folklore students were more interested in traditional folktales than family stories, neglecting the local yarn or the little-known but colorful character for the tall tales about the country's Davy Crocketts and Buffalo Bills. This is changing now, as folklore teams such as the Smithsonian's set up their interview tents at festivals, make things homey with memory-evoking snapshots and tables covered with kitchen cloths and turn on their tape cassettes to record family lore.

"Family tradition is one of the great repositories of American culture," says Amy Kotkin, who, along with Steve Zeitlin and Holly Cutting Baker, authored "Celebration." "It contains clues to our national character and into our family structure."

What exactly is family folklore? Essentially, it's a family's creative expression of its common past, distinct from the facts that make up its history. A family's stories, photographs and traditions are "personalized and often creative distillations of experience, worked and reworked over time," Zeitlin explains. "When a family tells of that glorious moment when a relative just missed sailing on the Titanic, the lore is precisely that: a glorious moment carefully selected and elaborated through the years."

Though family stories are altered and become embellished over the years, they usually are based on actual incidents, and they often provide fascinating glimpses of American history. One Midwestern native recalls traveling to Chicago with a friend in 1928 to see her sister, then a private nurse and living at the old Metropole hotel. "One night my sister had to go on duty and told us not to leave the room. After she left, we heard dance music and really wanted to go out but didn't. Later, we found out that the Metropole was Al Capone's hotel."

America's great diversity shapes its folklore. Appalachian families often tell stories of longstanding feuds, third-generation Americans recall their ancestors' perilous escapes from the old country and Westerners tell of their kin's journeys over the Oregon trail.

Generally, family stories fall into one of two categories: legends that describe a particular character and those that capture the major transitions in a family's history. Families are "selfish" in what they choose to remember and pass on, Zeitlin says. "A single episode comes to represent the entirety of a relative's personality; a whole family's history is symbolized by a few dramatic turning points."

These distillations, in effect, act, as one man put it, "as a kind of glue," holding the family together.

In researching "Celebration," Zeitlin, Kotkin and Baker found that in the stories about memorable relatives, the most common protagonists were mischief makers, heroes, villains and innocents. Though these originals most likely were complex personalities, they linger on, Zeitlin notes, in a "simplified though satisfying way."

Parents love to tell their children about their youthful antics, even while discouraging them from the same behavior. One person interviewed by the "Celebration" team remembered his father warning him not to play with firecrackers while in the same breath telling him about the fun he had with firecrackers as a boy. "Family storytelling often reinforces the mischief-making traditions of the next generation," Zeitlin says.

Outlaws and thieves, as the authors point out, shoot their way through countless family legends. Many Americans seem to like to envision their grandparents and other ancestors as notorious characters — but in story form only. An ancestor's court-martial may make a fine tale, but the dishonorable discharge papers are unlikely to be framed and hung on the wall.

In some cases, amateur American genealogists sleuthing through the family history stumble into more than they probably want to know. The daughter of a minister, for example, discovered that her grandfather had worked as a professional gambler on Mississippi riverboats and that her great-grandfather had been kicked out of the Congregational church in Wakefield, Mass., for having the audacity to charge that the wine was better at the public house than at the church — and then refusing to apologize for the remark.

Tales of heroic action are, of course, in plentiful supply. The same minister, whose paternal side of the family functioned decidedly outside the American mainstream, was once approached by the Ku Klux Klan, in the glow of the burning cross erected against the night sky in the pasture across from his home. The minister, of course, steadfastly refused the Klan's inelegant invitation to join up.

Like individuals, families have a life cycle marked by often-dramatic transitions that are celebrated in story. These include courtship, great fortunes lost, migrations, family feuds and other catastrophes. Interestingly, the depression-era traumas, the faux pas, the cooking disasters involving plum puddings and all the other family misfortunes become a part and parcel of holiday gatherings through storytelling. "Transformed into stories these incidents become part of the smooth, day-to-day flow of family activities," Zeitlin observes.

"Americans seem to love to tell tales of how their ancestors lost the fortune that would otherwise have gone to them. As one professional genealogist observes, whatever city our ancestors were from, their farms always seemed to have once covered what soon became the busiest part of town.

But people — and their stories — are unpredictable. One Midwestern family never tires of telling about a female relative who moved to Albuquerque and married an immigrant shoe store owner who "foolishly" bought a bit of property a mile or so away from what was the city center. Today, that land is smack dab in the city's commercial heart.

In researching "Celebration," published by Pantheon Books, Zeitlin, Kotkin and Baker found that some family folklore does not fit cleanly into the two major categories of stories about family characters and major events. But that does not make these stories any less charming, as the following tale told by a Washington, D.C., woman ably demonstrates.

"'My husband's grandfather was a doctor in a small town in Ohio,'" she told an interviewer. "One night he was called out in the country where a man was choking to death. . . He saved the man's life and later sent the family a bill. It amounted to about $100, but the family protested the amount. So he said to them, 'Well, give me what you think his life is worth.'"

Besides stories, family folklore encompasses photos, albums, letters, heirlooms and favorite expressions. The latter, Zeitlin says, "serve as passwords which affirm the ties of shared experience" and also are filled with meaning because the expressions often carry a funny piece of family history along with them. In one family, the phrase, "and horses falling left and right," shouted by a child who saw a horse slip on an icy street, is still used to tease family members for exaggerating.

Customs also are very much a part of family lore. It was the practice of another family to gather together on Christmas eve for a dinner at which the grandfather would divide an apple into as many sections as the number of family members. Each would eat his section, and this would ensure the family's remaining together for the coming year.

Wood — Nature's Economical Housewarming Gift

Wood has been a source of fuel for about one million years. The emergence of fossil fuels presented a great decline in wood use for home heating. But, in the last decade as gas, oil and electricity costs climbed, the popularity of wood heat has greatly increased.

Because well-seasoned wood, burned at 50% efficiency (in an average woodstove or even in some fireplaces) contains as much energy as about 150 gallons of heating oil according to the Wood Heating Alliance. If oil is $1.25 a gallon, the equivalent price for a cord of wood is in the area of about $187 a cord (a stack 8 ft. x 4 ft. x 4 ft.).

Natural gas is a cheaper source of energy in many parts of the country, but prices are expected to rise. Experts predict that deregulation and higher drilling costs may bring the cost of heating a home with gas up to the cost of heating with oil. At $.55 per therm today, the equivalent price of a cord of wood burned at 50% efficiency is about $123 — a seasoned cord of wood has the heating value of about 225 "therms" of natural gas.

At $.08 per kilowatt hour for electricity you can purchase an equivalent cord of wood at around $240 if burned at 50% efficiency.

Wood becomes even more economical when there is access to firewood at collection sites. In 1982, the USDA Forest Service firewood program provided access to close to five million cords of wood, virtually free of charge.

Select a combination of hard and soft woods to maintain a balance of nature.

Check with your state forester for help finding a wood site and learn which wood to cut.

Federal and State Conservation Departments often provide directories locating firewood sites that merely require a signed permit, possibly a nominal fee, and adherence to assigned areas and marked wood.

Before you do your own firewood collecting, the Wood Heating Alliance recommends you call ahead and learn the rules of the firewood site, be sure your equipment is in good condition, and follow chain saw safety rules. Don't work alone and use protective footwear, snug-fitting clothes and eye, hearing and head protection.

Many homeowners not wishing to dramatically change their heating habits are supplementing their present system with wood to lower heating bills. Yet as more than 25 million Americans now know, heating with wood is more than a question of economics. A cheery fire in the fireplace or cozy radiant heat from a woodstove in the family room creates an atmosphere, for a friendly gathering spot, providing the type of "warmth" you can only get burning wood.

Support For The Little Guys

Following editorial is from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

Jokes about laughing all the way to the bank are quite common.

However, small businesses, which are required to make withholding deposits to the Internal Revenue Service from four to eight times a month, don't find it a laughing matter. More likely, operators of small firms would feel like crying.

An effort to ease this load of unnecessary paperwork has been made in Congress by Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo. He has introduced a bill that would allow employers with less than $5,000 in monthly withholdings to make the deposit only once a month. At present, only firms with less than $3,000 in withholdings are allowed to make the once-monthly deposits.

Under the present system, many small companies find the required frequency of deposits restricts their cash flow, starving them of capital that is critical to keep them in business, Armstrong points out.

In this era of relatively high interest rates, cash flow is viewed as one of the most serious problems facing small businesses. The National Federation of Independent Business has endorsed the proposal and the issue has become one of the highest legislative priorities of many small business groups.

The Armstrong bill also includes a provision that would prohibit the IRS from accelerating withholding deposits to assist the federal government to spend more tax dollars faster. Supporters of the bill point out that the IRS increased the deposits from four to eight per month on its own authority without a single act of Congress.

Small businesses as a whole pack a wallop. They employ more workers than the federal government and the Fortune 500 companies combined. A study by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology found that 66 per cent of new jobs are created by firms with 20 or fewer employees.

It's time to give full credit and strong support to small business. Early passage of the Armstrong bill would provide not only a big helping hand but also serve as congressional recognition of the fine job small companies are doing throughout the nation.

Permanent Pauper

Following editorial first appeared in the Ortonville Independent on Feb. 1, 1934, and indicates that history tends to repeat itself because people refuse to learn from the lessons it teaches:

Unfriendly critics of the administration's relief program have long condemned it as a "coddling" program, and has predicted that it would result in the creation of a huge permanent pauper class in America.

Thus far the effects of the program have not been such as to warrant such a gloomy prediction. In fact, that part of the plan which provides employment in exchange for aid, does a great deal to neutralize the "coddling" danger.

Nevertheless, the attitude manifested recently by groups of unemployed men who could not, for one reason or another, get work under the CWA program, is not too encouraging to the taxpayers who have hitherto given the relief program their moral as well as financial support.

Near riots and occasional acts of violence, reported from some parts of the state where the CWA program is not operating very smoothly, give rise to a suspicion that perhaps the intent and purpose of the temporary relief program is being misunderstood in some quarters.

Reports of such occurences, revealing an increasingly dictatorial and belligerent attitude on the part of relief applicants, cause the average taxpayer to suspect that more and more people are beginning to feel that the government is under an inescapable obligation to take care of them, and that all they need to do hereafter, in order to get a boundless quantity of government aid, is to band together and demand it.

In our own county, we have been fortunately free of any militant demonstrations, but we have had some deliberate attempts at relief "chiseling" and this fact tends to confirm the fear that an erroneous conception of the purposes of the relief program is gaining ground.

It is probably safe to assume that nine-tenths of the unfortunate citizens who have found it necessary to appeal for relief are aware of the fact that the present program is for temporary emergency aid only, and are eagerly awaiting an opportunity to return to a self-reliant status.

But if even one tenth of the people who are at present receiving relief should fail to resume the responsibility for supporting themselves and their families as soon as possible, then the one greatest danger of the whole relief program will have materialized. The honest and conscientious majority will be burdened by the necessity of supporting a permanent pauper class. Such a situation would be little short of disastrous to national morale.

"The Lord helps those who help themselves" used to be a favorite slogan back in the days of rugged individualism.

In these days of distress, it has begum to appear that the government is willing to go much further than the Lord, and is willing and able to help the helpless, the shiftless, and the improvident, quite as readily as those who have always made a determined effort to help themselves.

Certainly the present lavish distribution of relief can not continue indefinitely. This fact must be thoroughly understood and accepted by those who are receiving temporary benefit from the program, as well as by those who are not quite eligible to share its benefits, and who are tempted to start a riot in order to get a portion of the relief gravy.

Consumers Forgotten

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

With the Senate in the midst of a debate on the administration's natural-gas-decontrol legislation, you would think discussion would be focused on what's in the best interest of consumers. Well, you'd be wrong. The members of the nation's most exclusive club are debating, instead how to placate all the special-interest lobbies that have a hefty stake in preserving the anti-consumer biases of existing price controls.

The latest lobbying groups to enter the fray are the banks and insurance companies that sink megabucks into expensive deep-gas drilling, knowing that there's always money to be made when government sticks its hands into the functioning of the marketplace. The pricing categories established by the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act, for instance, have encouraged the production of expensive deep gas, at upwards of $7 per thousand cubic feet (Mcf), while much less expensive, fairly shallow gas remains in the ground.

The decontrol proposals have also prompted lobbying by officials from such deep-gas states as Oklahoma, which now enjoy sizable severance-tax revenues from the sale of expensive gas. Meanwhile, officials from such low-priced "old gas" states as Kansas are apparently turning in favor of decontrol in hopes of increasing their severance-tax take as much as five-fold.

The last thing any of these lobbyists and many of our representatives on Capitol Hill care about is the consumer's interest. Decontrol of natural gas, just as in the case of oil, would of course provide significant savings to consumers. Average gas prices would fall, and producers and pipelines would have to look to high-volume sales to improve their return. Higher volumes would also help to spread out transportation overhead costs, the burden of which has fallen more heavily on homeowners and small industrial-gas consumers in recent years as larger gas users switched to cheaper alternative fuels.

A return to a free market in natural gas will perforce unsettle those moneylenders who gambled on continued government pricing intervention. But their special interest should not be allowed to outweigh the general interest of American consumers who are now paying more for gas than they need to

The only way to "protect" consumers is to deregulate the natural-gas market. Support of any continuation of controls is only to "protect" those special interests that have found a money-spinning haven in the current NGPA pricing maze.

Borrowed Nonsense:

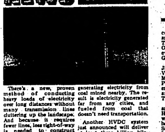
The mountaineer saw his first avocado in the general store and was quite puzzled about it.

"Wanna try one?" asked the storekeeper.

"Nope," the man replied. "I got so many tastes now I can't satisfy I ain't hankerin' to take on any more!"

The story is told the Pablo Picasso, a famous artist, surprised a burglar when he came home to his chateau late at night. The intruder made his escape, but not before the artist had taken a good look at him. He offered to produce a sketch of the man to assist the police. On the basis of his sketch, the gendarmes arrested the minister of finance, a washing machine and the Eiffel Tower.

NEWS OF ENERGY



There's a new, proven method of conducting heavy loads of electricity over long distances without many transmission lines cluttering up the landscape. And because it requires fewer lines, less right-of-way is needed to construct power lines.

It's called high voltage-direct current, or HVDC for short. According to General Electric engineers, the system is also more economical than conventional alternating current (ac) systems for long distance transmission in certain applications.

One example of this technology, which uses sophisticated solid-state equipment, is a long-line HVDC system extending across North Dakota and Minnesota. The project transmits 500,000 kilowatthours—enough electric power to supply the needs of more than half a million people—over 460 miles. It needs only one-third the land of an ac system, and starts at a plant generating electricity from coal mined nearby. The result is electricity generated far from any cities, and fueled from coal that doesn't need transportation.

Another HVDC system just announced will deliver at least three billion kilowatthours of hydroelectric power from Quebec to New England utility systems. A special terminal designed and manufactured by General Electric will convert the ac power to direct current in Canada for transmission to the United States where a separate terminal will change the dc power to alternating current for use in New England's homes and factories.

It will mean lower cost hydroelectric power and less dependence on imported oil for thousands of people and businesses in New England. This is just one more way Americans are solving energy problems through modern technology.

Lemon Foam:
Light, Luscious And Easy Dessert

Looking for a dessert that's pretty to look at, delicious but light to eat, and best of all, easy to make? Consider the recipe for Lemon Foam which appears below and was developed by the home economists from KitchenAid for their line of solid state food preparers. (For making this recipe using other mixers, set mixer on speed recommended for "whipping.")

Lemon Foam

1	envelope unflavored gelatin	1	teaspoon lemon peel, grated
1/2	cup sugar	1/3	cup lemon juice
1	cup boiling water	2	egg whites

In a bowl place gelatin, sugar and boiling water. Stir with a spoon until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add lemon peel and lemon juice to the bowl and stir until mixed. Chill mixture, stirring occasionally until it thickens.

Place thickened gelatin and egg whites in bowl. Gradually turn to whipping speed and whip for 5 to 7 minutes or until mixture is light and fluffy and begins to hold its shape.

Pour into 5-cup mold and chill until set.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Gully

Mrs. Peter Rutkowski
Gully, 268-2845

Gully American Legion auxiliary No. 603 met at the cafe on Tuesday evening, Nov. 8 with 12 members present and Esther Rutkowski, vice president, presiding. Opening prayer was given by Cathy Senger, flag pledge and the preamble to the Constitution were given. The secretary's report was read by Nancy Lee. The treasurer's report was given by our treasurer Eileen Erlandson. $25 was given to the Vets gift shop; $27 to the Fargo Veteran's rehabilitation; $25 to Dollar Bill Shower and 15 - $1 bills and $10 for candy and peanuts for Santa Claus Day. There will also be a bake sale.

The one fund drive was completed with Cathy Senger as chairman and workers, Merlaine Enje and Esther Rutkowski with $271.50 taken in. Scott Kolling gave an interesting report on the week spent at boy's state sponsored by the Gully American Legion and auxiliary. Legion also met and had lunch together with the auxiliary. Thanksgiving Services

There will be Thanksgiving services at the Evangelical Free church Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. Pie and coffee will be served and everyone is welcomed.

Garrett and Jackie Magner spent all day Friday with their great-grandma Agnes Magner.

Carvel and Ruby Gillund, Steve and Scott Larson, Duke Garfve, and Murrie Easthouse and Joshua drove to Goodridge Thursday and enjoyed a good evening supper with the David Schwartz family.

Wendell Hagenbeck and Brian of Hastings, Neb. and Lyle Hagenbeck of Moorhead spent four days during deer hunting at the Alfred Hagenbeck home. Then on Sunday evening, Nov. 6 Wendall and Brian and Lyle along with the Rodney Hagenbeck family and the Gary Donarski family were all entertained to a very good supper at the home of Alfred and Judy Hagenbeck.

On Thursday Denise Rokke, Pat Mjelde and Vickie Sharon had a very nice time in Thief River Falls shopping and also had lunch there. In the evening Hazel Stokke and Darren Stokke of Viking visited at the John and Denise Rokke home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Holmstrom recently enjoyed a visit this past week at the Aaron Waterworth home.

Having coffee with Ellen Hjelle on Thursday were Ed and Helga Nelson.

Visiting with Lisa Wilson and family Thursday evening were Kim and Kelly Olson. Friday morning Robyn Skoglund visited Lisa.

Mark Thompson of Wahpeton, N.D. arrived at the Curt Thompson home Thursday in time for supper and will stay until Sunday and plans to hunt deer with his dad.

Recent visitors of Mrs. Lloyd Hansen were Mrs. Sherman Lyane and Kristen.

The Bob Giffen family spent a lovely day on Sunday at the Gene Peterson home of Gatzke.

Selma Brekkestran enjoyed having Laura Haaseth visit her and also enjoyed a cup of coffee on Thursday.

Della Elseth and her sister Ida Newmen of St. Paul had a nice visit and coffee with grandpa and grandma Elseth on Saturday evening.

Lawrence and Joy Seidel had supper guests Sunday evening when Chris and Sandy Seidel of Thief River Falls came over.

Mrs. Don Deihl of Dilworth spent a couple days with her mother Olga Bothum. On Sunday they invited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bakke and Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Lind over for dinner and had a nice time.

Floyd Bakke came home from the Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls on Friday, Nov. 4th and is doing very well right now. He has had an enormous amount of company since he came home.

North Border Conference

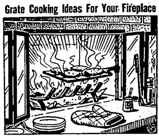
Grate Cooking Ideas For Your Fireplace



A cookout in December? Sure! Never mind the weather, have it in your living room and cook in your woodburning fireplace. According to the Wood Heating Alliance, all you need are fireplace cooking accessories.

Craving for a char-broiled hamburger or steak in January? Just open the damper on your fireplace, light the fire and barbecue on a swing-out grill that attaches to the fireplace wall. Cleanup is as easy as removing a heat-resistant liner, like aluminum foil, under the wood grate.

Want an unusual gourmet treat? Try fireplace fondue using your favorite recipe and a fireplace kettle supported by a mini "crane". Or, use the crane to slow-cook chili or spaghetti sauce and serve your family a get-rid-of-the-winter-blues treat.

Pull the family away from the TV set and substitute a cheery fire and friendly conversation. You can make the snacks right in the fireplace. Long-handled popcorn poppers and gleaming brass chestnut roasters are not only functional and fun, but decorative along the hearthside as well.

There is no doubt that a warm, glowing fire in the fireplace adds instant atmosphere to a room. Now there is no need to break the mood to serve refreshments. Mug-sized pokers can be heated in the flames to warm up individual servings of hot-buttered rum, spiced wine, or hot toddies. Metal fireplace trivets act as warming plates for kettles of water for coffee, tea or your favorite hot beverage.

Warm up those blustery winter days and get rid of cabin fever with a fireplace cook-in. Your local fireplace accessory dealer can show you the complete selection of fireplace accessories including gleaming brass tools, planters, baskets, hearth brooms and bellows, all of which make unique gifts.

If you don't have a fireplace you can install today's prefabricated models in a weekend and start toasting marshmallows to your hearths content.

COMPUTER MATHEMATICES were an attraction for Jeanne Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Nelson and a first grader at Mark Twain elementary school, during the Thief River Falls Education association's open house Thursday evening in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Elementary teacher Dick Tyler showed Jeanne how the computer could be used to put mathematics problems on the screen and key in the answers. Although she had no exposure to the computer before, she worked the problems and handled the keyboard with ease. A number of displays and demonstrations were arranged by elementary, middle school and high school faculty but only a few parents and other members of the public attended the event. The open house was sponsored by the TRFEA as part of American Education week.

Council To Aid Gifted, Talented

Northwest chapter of the Minnesota Council for the Gifted and Talented (MCGT) recently held its organizational meeting at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls, electing Diane Krepp as president, Polly Edington as vice president and secretary, and Joan Wilson as treasurer.

According to Krepp, the group began as part of the parent advisory committee at Franklin middle school's advisory council on the EXCEL (extra curricular experiences in learning) program. Desire to involve parents and professionals from surrounding communities in promoting better understanding and educational services for gifted and talented children led to affiliation with the MCGT and formation of the area chapter.

Goals of the organization, according to a brochure published by MCGT, include: educating the general public to special needs of gifted children; actively campaigning among elected and appointed officials at all levels of government to assure funding and legislation to provide appropriate education; assisting parents and guardians of gifted children to understand their special needs and enrich their lives; encouraging learning opportunities for gifted children outside their lives; encouraging learning opportunities for gifted children outside the schools; and actively promoting and encouraging the public school system and individual schools to provide appropriate education for gifted children.

Gifted and talented children can be identified through several sources of information, including reports from teachers, parental observations; pupil products, school achievement, standardized tests of intelligence and creativity, case studies and other measures.

Five areas in which children may demonstrate capabilities of high performance or giftedness have been identified by the U.S. office of education: (1) General intellectual ability — the all around bright child; (2) Specific academic aptitude — the math or science whiz; (3) Creative or productive thinking — coming up with novel solutions to problems; (4) Leadership ability — initiating and leading games and groups; and (5) Ability in visual or performing arts — painting, music, drama and sculpture. A simpler definition might be offered that gifted and talented children do things a little earlier, a little better and a bit differently than other children.

MCGT notes that raising any child is a challenge, but to the parent with a gifted child, the task may at times seem overwhelming. The role parents play in educating their gifted children and giving them the self-confidence they need to realize their potential cannot be underestimated. Education of a gifted child must be the joint responsibility of the parents and schools.

By organizing advocacy groups, parents and educators can make important contributions to gifted education

NORTHWEST CHAPTER of the Minnesota Council for the Gifted and Talented (MCGT) was recently organized in Thief River Falls, and is now seeking members from communities in the surrounding area. Purpose of the organization is to promote understanding and educational services for gifted and talented children. Officers elected to direct the organization for the coming year were: (left to right) Joan Wilson, treasurer; Diane Krepp, president; and Polly Edington, vice president and secretary.

NSRC Held Fall Workshop Here For About 300

North Star Reading Council (NSRC), one of the largest and most active reading councils in Minnesota, held its fall workshop recently in Thief River Falls.

About 300 educators from 40 school systems throughout northwestern Minnesota participated in the annual session, where they were exposed to new techniques, reliable standbys and ideas to help teach reading. Topics included "New Developments In Measuring Progress for Students in SLD Programs", presented by Bob Conlon of Northwest educational cooperative service unit; and "Resource Room Development", presented by Bev Kays and Jane Miller of Northrop elementary school. Other topics included: "Neurology of Reading", "Spelling and Handwriting", "Behavior Disorders", "Discipline in the Classroom and at Home", and "Self-Esteem and the Teaching Process."

NSRC has about 200 members from this area and has been offering fall workshops and guest lecturers at its spring banquet for the past nine years. Current president is Ron Leverington, elementary principal at Warren, and the 10-member board includes teachers and administrators from Thief River Falls, Crookston, Badger, Warren, Karlstad, Marshall County Central, Kennedy and Waubun.

Among those attending from this area were: Jean Buhl, vice-president elect; Fay Bolin, vice president; Loreen Gibson, director; Becky Pribula, treasurer; Jan Galland, June Scholin, Sharon Bonaime, Delores Kading, Leo Gallam, Bill Desrocher, Elaine Budke, Mary Tyler, Dick Tyler, Tom Schafer, Rachelle Hayes, Lucille Nyland, Karen Ellertson, Glenna Moen, Patti Lipp, Susan Frolland, Mary Nordhagen, Patti Malberg, Jean Shaffer, Rik D'Amato, Katherine Campbell, Lori Trogstad, Sister Rachel, Carol Neys, Sister Caroline Liebl, Carol Tranby, Donna Poole, Betty Howard, Susan LeMoine, Edith Etter, Marcia D'Amato, Elizabeth Santi, Lois Bergland, Helen Davidson, Darlene Anderson, Mabel Paulson, Clara Iverson, Eloda Knutson, Elva Fiedler, Renee Bedard, Duane Howard and Ruth Sackett.

Board To Meet At Goodridge

Regular November school board meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Goodridge high school home economics room.

Terry Drangstveit Earns American Farmer Degree

AMERICAN FARMER Terry Drangstveit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Drangstveit of rural Goodridge, prepared much of his own farmland by purchasing the tractor and dozer pictured and clearing the land himself. The 21-year-old graduate of Goodridge high school joined a select group of 730 national recipients of the top award in the Furture Farmers of America program at the national FFA convention in Kansas City, MO, November 11.

AWARD CERTIFICATE designating him as a recipient of the American Farmer degree was presented to Terry Drangstveit of Goodridge at the national FFA convention in Kansas City, MO, recently. Presenting the award was Jan Eberly, national president of the FFA.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Building his farming enterprise from three sows and 30 feeder pigs in his first year of Future Farmers of America project work to owning 573 acres of land and 41 gilts at age 21, Terry Drangstveit of Goodridge joined an elite group of young people as American Farmer degree winners this year. He received his certificate and gold key at the national FFA convention in Kansas City, MO.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Drangstveit, Terry began his FFA work late in his sophomore year at Goodridge high school. He earned his Greenhand, Chapter Farmer and State Farmer degrees while a member of the FFA chapter there. When it was terminated along with the vocational agriculture program at Goodridge, he transferred to the Thief River Falls FFA chapter and earned his top national ranking through the unit here.

At Kansas City he was among 22 from Minnesota and 730 from the nation to receive the American Farmer award — the highest FFA degree of membership. The award was presented by Jan Eberly, national president of the Future Farmers of America. "She did a great job of handling the convention," Terry said of the national president. "I was impressed."

Terry looks at achieving the American Farmers status as having reached a goal, admitting that there is a certain amount of satisfaction in earning the award. He said it gave him a chance to meet new people, discuss farming operations with some of the other winners, and impressed on him the importance of keeping good records.

Because only a small percentage of FFA members can receive the degree, it is competitive in nature. Terry was interviewed on the farm by state director Paul M. Day last summer. The award is based on community service, FFA involvement, keeping a good set of books and conducting a profitable farm enterprise. Day's visit included a farm tour and his verification of Terry's records, activities and knowledge of farming.

Terry said that virtually all of the American Farmer degree winners were post high school FFA members. To qualify for the degree a member has to have been in FFA for the previous 36 months and to have earned a State Farmer degree.

When Terry joined the FFA

Area Residents Injured During Bus Accident

A number of Thief River Falls area people were among passengers on a Farmers Union-owned bus bound for the state FU convention in St. Paul which overturned just inside the city limits of Detroit Lakes early Sunday morning.

According to the state highway patrol officer in Detroit Lakes who investigated the accident, the bus was southbound on highway 59 from Thief River Falls when it skidded on compacted snow and ice near the intersection with highway 34. The vehicle hit a light post and highway sign before overturning on its left side in the ditch. The accident happened about 7:25 a.m. and involved only the bus.

Among the more seriously injured in the accident was Edna Appelman of Goodridge who sustained hip and shoulder injuries. The investigating officer said she was apparently thrown into the baggage rack on the inside of the bus as it overturned, and it required the effort of several people to remove her from the baggage rack.

Also reported as admitted to St. Mary's hospital in Detroit Lakes were Norris Hagen of Grygla with a broken arm, Hilda Hagen of Grygla with a fractured sternum and Norma Hanson of Goodridge. Mrs. Hanson was hospitalized for observation and is expected to be home by Wednesday. Russell Silinger of Twin Valley was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital in Fargo with a fractured vertebra.

Listed as treated and released were Kevin Heaton, Clearwater, driver of the bus; Cindy Murphy, Waite Park; Henry Panek, Goodridge; Marjorie Panek, Goodridge; Wendell Sip and Orleen Sip, Ada; Denise Blair, St. Cloud; Clifford and Maxine Olson, Thief River Falls; Alvin Fore, Oklee; Arnold Skiple, Clearbrook; Cornelus Appelman, Goodridge; Jesse and Miranda Skaaren, Thief River Falls; and Michael Schnettler, St. Cloud.

Jan Hoff New Chairman Of Retail Group

Jan Hoff of the Mercantile Company was elected chairman of the Thief River Falls retail business association (RBA) recently to serve for the 1984 year. She succeeds Bob Whitfield of F.W. Woolworth company. Donna Carlson of Thomas Drug was elected vice chairman.

Elected to membership on the 1984 board of directors were Dick Bjorkman, Bjorkman's Clothing; Cammy Johnson, Gordon's Hallmark; Bob Ekeren, Ekeren Drug; Joan Lubitz, Midwest Vision center; and Phil Hess, the Jewel Box.

City Council Meets Tues. On Rate Increase

Thief River Falls city council meets at 7 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday, for a hearing on distribution of federal revenue sharing funds. Following the hearing, council will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers at city auditorium.

Among topics on the agenda are budget and rate increases for city water, electric and wastewater departments; status of the Third Street improvement project; 15-minute parking zones on the east side of LaBree Avenue, between Second and First Streets; administration of loans for Northern Outerwear and Polar Research, and establishment of an option on the old library building until May 1 for [illegible] Gerald Mundt.

Set Diabetes Screening Tues.

Northwestern hospital will be offering diabetes screening at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls Tuesday from 1 to 4 p.m. The finger-stick blood tests are offered free of charge.

TRF Shoppers Can Match SS Numbers To Win

Thief River Falls shoppers have an opportunity to gain some extra shopping funds through the "Thursday Night Live" promotion offered by the Thief River Falls retail business association (RBA) of the chamber of commerce.

Each Thursday from 7:45 to 7:55 p.m., two numbers will be posted in the participating business places. Shoppers who can match the numbers with the last numbers on their social security cards will be winners of $50 to $300 in Thursday Night Live Bucks, redeemable at RBA stores.

One of the numbers posted each Thursday will be a four-digit number and the other a three-digit number. Anyone whose social security card's last four numbers matches the posted four digit number will win $300. Anyone whose card's last three numbers match the three-digit number will win $50. Numbers must be in consecutive order as posted.

The same set of two numbers will be posted at 7:45 p.m. in all participating RBA stores. Winners must be present in a participating store and show the social security card and an iden[illegible] minutes. Duplicate winners will share prize money. A different set of numbers, selected at random, will be posted each week.

Anyone who holds a social security card is eligible to participate and to win, except store owners, managers, assistant managers and on-duty employees. Thief River Falls stores are open Thursday nights until 9 p.m.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Johnson And Lesewski Vows Spoken At Warren

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffry Lesewski are at home at Woodbury at 6916 Calgary road, following an exchange of marriage vows at Saints Peter and Paul Catholic church at Warren.

The bride, the former Brenda Lee Johnson, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Johnson of Viking. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lesewski of Marshall.

Rev. Edward Nistler officiated at the double ring ceremony, with Eric Laurin, Walnut, Calif.; as Mass server and Mr. and Mrs. John Streich, Taft, Calif., uncle and aunt of the bride, bearing the gifts of the bread and wine for the Eucharist. Mrs. Yutrzenka was the organist. Dale Price, a friend of the bride, sang "Truly" prior to the processional; and Jenny Patterson, a sister of the bride, sang "Longer," following the lighting of the unity candle. Bill Johnson, a brother of the bride, read the Scripture, and Brian Laurin, Ontario, Calif., and Kyle Streich, Taft, Calif., were acolytes.

Baskets of purple campanula and potted lavender mums graced the chancel.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a taffeta lined lace gown styled with elbow-length sleeves and a Queen Anne neckline touched with seed pearls. Her floor-length skirt which extended into a chapel-length train was edged with a lace over nylon ruffle. A matching lace headpiece, accented with pearls, held her nylon cathedral length veil edged with lace. She carried a silk tear-drop bouquet of purple and white roses, white daisies and babies' breath, backed by a white lace ruffle.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Jenny Patterson.

Debbie Voytilla, Warroad, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Pam Yutrzenka, a friend of the bride, and Jillayne and Kelly Johnson, sisters of the bride. Their bustle back gowns of lavender sheer knit featured a floating ruffle worn off-the shoulder. They carried lace fans with purple, white and lavender silk flowers, complementing the wreath of flowers in their hair.

Wearing similar wreaths and carring white lace baskets with matching flowers were the flower girls: Amy Patterson, niece of the bride, and Tonya Juneau, a niece of the groom. Their white bustle back gowns accented with miniature lavender flowers featured ruffled necklines trimmed with lace.

The rings were carried by Jason Bestler, So. St. Paul, a cousin of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with tails and a purple rose boutonniere.

Bruce Noyes, St. Paul, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Jeff Martin and Paul Anderson of Marshall and Erik Jordal, Minneapolis, friends of the groom. The ushers were Jeffrey and Bill Johnson, Viking, brothers of the bride. They wore silver tuxedos with tails, lavender ruffled shirts and silver bow ties. Their boutonnieres were silk purple roses.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Johnson wore a purple street-length dress with a pleated bodice. Mrs. Lesewski was attired in a powder blue suit with a matching blue ruffled blouse. Their corsages were of lavender roses tipped in purple, white daisies, baby rose buds and babies' breath.

Special guests were Imogene Hanson, Edith Laurin, grandmothers of the bride, and Cecilia Lesewski, grandmother of the groom.

A reception for 200 guests followed at the Warren city hall. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Voce, Cary, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dau, Casselton, N.D.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Johnson, Cottage Grove, godparents of the bride, cut and served the three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with lavender and purple daisies, and topped with a triple wedding bell ornament. At the base was a fountain with flowing lavender water.

Pouring coffee were Mr. and Mrs. Don Grant, Breckenridge, godparents of the groom.

Mrs. Debbie Trygstad, Dilworth, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Diane Juneau, Marshall, a sister of the groom, were at the guest book. Serving punch were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Greg Johnson of Orange, Calif.

Waitresses were Betty Blawat, Rebecca Knutson, Angie Nelson and Diane Olson. The flowers were pinned by Julie Leaf, Minneapolis, a sister of the groom, and Laurie McNamara, So. St. Paul, a cousin of the bride. Wally Voce Cary, Ill., a cousin of the bride, distributed the rice packets.

The bride is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, Inver Hills community college and Rasmussen business college. She is employed by Mancini's in St. Paul. The groom, a graduate of Marshall senior high school, is employed as computor programmer by Lawson and Associates in Minneapolis. Photo, Hofstad Photography, Plummer.

Deer Park Craft Workshop Held At Goodridge

Fresh cedar and pine branches were utilized in making table arrangements at the Deer Park garden club craft workshop held recently at the Goodridge Senior Citizen center.

Ethel Wiseth was hostess at the meeting. She also showed members how to make a centerpiece using a potato, fresh cedar and pine branches from low growing shrubs. A craft item was displayed by Lavonne Radniecki, who also had the pattern and instructions available for the members.

President Helen Chervestad presided at the meeting and read a letter from Jean Bassett of Roseau, president of the 13th District Horticultural society. Mrs. Chervestad outlined the club's program and activities for the coming year, also read a tribute in memory of garden club member Selma Sanders. A card was signed by the members and a $10 donation was sent to the 13th district Horticultural society toward the memorial trophy.

Special guest at the meeting was Pennington county 4-H youth development leader, Polly Prunuske, who stated that while she lived in Beaver Dam, Wis., she had been involved in a youth project similar to the one in the Goodridge community.

It was reported that Helen Chervestad had attended the 4-H club award program and had presented the Deer Park garden club indoor gardening award to Faye Ericksan of Smiley.

It was also noted that the 13th district Fall Workshop for 1984 will be held in Goodridge. The event will be held at the Senior center.

Reports also included the announcement by treasurer Luella Peterson, that all members had paid their dues. Secretary Theadora Anderson was in charge of roll call.

The club's Christmas party was scheduled for December 6 at 7:00 p.m., at the Goodridge Senior Citizen center. Various committees planning the event were named.

Women's Credit Is Discussed By Rocksbury Club

Women and Credit was the topic discussed at the November meeting of the Rocksbury homemakers club held at the home of Goldie Breiland.

Leading the topic were Gina Gunderson and Julia Finstad. The 14 members present answered roll call by giving their impressions of the coming winter.

Home councilor Evelyn Nelson distributed copies of the new homemakers creed, which was read in unison. Mrs. Nelson also reported on the homemakers council meeting, the new set of rules, which was discussed, and preliminary plans made for the spring council meet.

Plans were made for the club's noon luncheon to be held Wednesday, December 7, at Lon's.

Co-hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Breiland and Ann Gunderson. Ella Ranum and Audrey Helren won the door prizes.

Housing Survey Conducted In Pennington Co.

Survey of housing conditions in Pennington county will be conducted during November and December to assess housing needs in the area and compile information useful in applying for federal funds to rehabilitate existing houses.

The survey, approved by the Pennington county commissioners in October, is sponsored by Inter-County community council, Oklee, and Northwest multi-county housing and redevelopment authority, Mentor. It will be conducted by personal visits to a random sample of housing units in Pennington county (including Goodridge and St. Hilaire but excluding Thief River Falls) by students from Northland community college in Thief River Falls.

The survey consists of questions regarding overall housing conditions and energy use as well as general demographic information such as family size, age of family members, income and race. Individual responses will be confidential and the data reported will be expressed only in percentages.

Pennington county proposes to utilize the information gathered to assist in the preparation of a grant application which will be submitted to the Minnesota department of energy and economic development division of community development on Feb. 1, 1984. The grant application will request funds to conduct a housing rehabilitation project that will address housing deficiencies in the county.

Financial Aid Is Available At Northland

Students who plan to attend Northland community college (NCC) for the 1983-84 school year still have time to complete an application and receive financial aid, according to Ken Wiebolt, provost.

Part-time students, older than the traditional college age, are encouraged to apply. Last year's 34 non-traditional students received more than $3,000 in part-time grants and local scholarships.

Total financial aid awarded to 401 Northland students last year was $768,752 compared to $760,521 for the previous year. Most of the financial aid is based on need.

Such awards are in three major categories: Gift aid includes Basic Grants, state grants and local scholarships. Employment aid or work-study provides jobs for students on the campus and off the campus at non-profit organizations. Loans are free of interest with no payments due until a student leaves college.

Last year Northland students were awarded $305,179 in the gift category. Employment programs amounted to $114,733 and loans totalled $346,840.

Anyone interested in applying for aid should contact the Financial aid office at Northland at 681-2181.

Thief River Falls

Cauliflower and Cheese Sauce Casserole

- 1 stick butter or margarine
- 1 tube sharp cheddar cheese
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 1 can sliced mushrooms
- garlic salt
- 1 head cauliflower

Method: Combine butter or margarine, cheese and soup in a sauce pan and place over low, heat, until melted. Add garlic salt and stir to blend. Break cauliflower into bite size pieces. Scatter mushrooms over cauliflower, and cover with cheese sauce. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Pop under broiler for a few minutes to brown.

Mrs. Stensrud stated that broccoli or fresh asparagus may be substituted for the cauliflower. Fresh mushrooms may also be used, but if so, saute first in butter.

The Stensruds have four children, three married, and seven grandchildren. Their youngest son, Dan, is a truck driver and is living at home. Mrs. Stensrud enjoys crafts and handwork of all types. She and her husband, who is manager of Cenex Soil Service Center, are active members of St. John Lutheran church.

Legislature Makes Change In Seed Law

Minnesota seed law was changed significantly by the 1983 legislature and the changes affect all persons who purchase, sell and use agricultural, vegetable and flower seeds in Minnesota, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

There is no longer any "free testing" of seeds by the state seed laboratory. The laboratory will continue to provide the testing service, but a fee will be charged. Amount of the fee will reflect the actual cost of testing, and it will be consistant with fees charged by state seed laboratories in surrounding states as well as being in line with fees charged by private seed laboratories in Minnesota, Courneya said.

Persons of firms who label and sell more than 50,000 pounds of agricultural seed annually will be required to have a seed fee permit to do business in Minnesota. Use of fee stamps and tags was eliminated.

All persons or firms who label and sell seed must keep records of the seed they sell in Minnesota. This record will include a file sample of each lot sold as well as documents indicating the source, the amount and invoices under which the seed is bought and sold.

All agricultural seeds that are generally sold by variety name must either show the variety name or the words "variety not stated" on the seed label.

Vegetable and flower seeds packaged for use by home gardeners must now meet required labeling standards.

All fees collected under the new seed law will be deposited in a dedicated account which has been established to fund the seed regulatory and service programs for the state of Minnesota. Temporary fees have already been established. Permanent fees will be established within a year following comments from the seed industry and consumer groups.

Overall effect of all seed law changes will be seen in truthfully labeled seed that is of high quality and readily available to users. This objective has been sought by both the department and the seed industry for many years.

If you have any specific questions regarding the new seed law or the new fees, please contact your county agricultural inspector or county extension office.

Verne Spengler Assists With Farm Contest

Verne Spengler, adult farm management instructor at the Thief River Falls AVTI, recently served as an assistant superintendent of the National Future Farmers of America (FFA), farm business management contest held in conjunction with the 56th national FFA convention in Kansas City, MO.

As a member of the committee, Spengler assisted with the monitoring of contest activities, obtaining materials, conducting an evaluation session and the annual awards breakfast.

DOT Continues Catch-Up Of Highway Repair

"It's like a continuous game of catch up, trying to put a dent in the enormous backlog of highway work that has been escalating over the past few years," state transportation commissioner Richard Braun said.

Despite the start of a record highway improvement program in the state this past summer, we have only begun to meet Minnesota's long-term highway needs. In part that's due to severe funding shortages which forced project cutbacks in 1979-80. "We're still trying to catch up with highway improvement needs," Braun added.

Although Minnesota received $261 million in federal aid for highway programs during federal fiscal year 1983, which ended September 30, Braun explained the state's highway improvement project needs are still seven times greater than our available resources.

Today, highway improvements for reconstruction requested by local communities and various interest groups exceed $770 million. These needs are over and above the cost of completing Minnesota's interstate system and the costs of routine contract work like bridge replacements and resurfacing.

In addition, a recent survey of statewide trucking firms and groups indicates the need to upgrade many roads for heavy loads. To meet these requests alone would require $500 million worth of additional highway improvements.

Obviously, the state's highway needs are great and growing, Braun said. Transportation department is responding as quickly as funding allows. For example, last winter in response to Gov. Rudy Perpich's directive to create more private sector jobs to help stimulate the state's economy, the department accelerated its highway improvement program. This was accomplished through automated drafting and greater use of consultants without adding more personnel, Braun stated.

Because these additional projects were ready to go by September 30, Minnesota received an additional $38 million in federal funds that would have gone to other states.

Each $1 million spent on highway construction generates either directly or indirectly 42 private sector jobs and helps to improve the state's economy while helping to maintain the state's $18 billion investment in its highway system.

Contracts awarded during federal fiscal year 1983 will provide 800 miles of road improvements, including 20 miles of major work on the interstate system, 90 miles of reconstruction and 690 miles of resurfacing and reconditioning. In addition, 69 bridges will be replaced or reconstructed and another 63 will be repaired. These contracts may be completed within one or during several construction seasons.

Some of these projects open to travel in 1983 were begun in an earlier year. Highlights of the major projects completed and opened or set to open to travel statewide in 1983, listed by Mn-DOT district and road number, are as follows:

US 59 — resurfacing 31.9 miles from Thief River Falls to Erskine with traffic signal and channelization in Thief River Falls; $3.6 million;

TH 1 — resurface 24.4 miles from Red Lake to TH 72; three bridges replaced with culverts; $1.8 million;

TH 171 — replace bridge over the Red River at St. Vincent; construction by North Dakota, 50-50 cost split; $3.1 million;

TH 171 — new roadway to new bridge, 1.5 miles; $747,336; and

US 71 — Reconstruction of 9.7 miles between Northome and Gemmell; 1.97 million.

Most Citizens Puzzled Over Federal Budget

Both technology and the size of the federal budget long ago outstripped the ability of ordinary citizens to keep up with their incredible growth and complexity.

Computers are into fifth, or sixth generations, and the United States budget is rapidly approaching $1 trillion. What is a trillion dollars? It was only two years ago that the federal debt — an accumulation of yearly deficits — passed the $1 trillion mark and left taxpayers dumbfounded. Now comes the prospect of spending $1 trillion in a single year!

Fortunately, technology must conform to the physical laws of the universe. No such restraints, however, protect taxpayers from the undisciplined leaps and bounds of the budget. Still, brave souls must attempt to simplify matters as much as possible.

In a recent article, entitled "Visualizing a Trillion," Malcolm S. Forbes, editor-in-chief of "Forbes" magazine, recalled that his father, in the new deal days of the 1930s, was similarly occupied doing articles to illustrate federal spending. Forbes recalls this item from his father's writings: "Everytime you draw a breath the government in Washington spends $717. Its expenditures up to the fiscal year ended June 30, 1936, averaged $20,650 daily."

"The aim," wrote Forbes, "was to dramatize what 'profligate' new deal spending meant in terms of federal debt."

Although certainly not the most precise one, the definition of a billion dollars most often recalled these days in Sen. Everett Dirksen's great understatement: "If you spend a billion here and a billion there, pretty soon you're talking real money."

Budget analysts themselves are conscious of the need to explain, explain, explain. Kenneth D. Simonson, director of budget policy for the United States chamber of commerce, in a recent paper reviewing the workings of the 10-year-old budget control and impoundment act, took note of this necessity to use more intelligible terms in dealing with budget matters.

He suggested the possibility of viewing the budget in the context of the total economy, enabling taxpayers to compare from year to year what portions of national income are used for various governmental activities.

"With receipts and outlays climbing toward the $1 trillion mark," Simonson writes, "both numbers have become less intelligible. A more digestable figure is the size of receipts, outlays and the deficit as a share of gross national product (GNP). The numbers can be compared with past years, and the trends are easier to discern when all three numbers are growing by billions a year.

"Furthermore, the possible significance of having revenues, at 19 per cent of GNP, outlays at 25 per cent and deficits at six per cent are easier to assess and to compare to historical levels or abroad than are raw numbers that are almost necessarily unprecedented.

This approach, Simonson adds, has some "risks," since it would require more reliable economic forecasting of the GNP, for example. It might be preferable to make the comparisons in reports accompanying the budget rather than in the budget resolution itself that congress must enact.

Conceivably, such a plan, computerized to give detailed breakdowns, could help budget makers and taxpayers alike produce budgets more in keeping with the desires of the taxpayers who furnish the money in the first place.

Change Oil Before Storing Machinery

Farmers who used their tractors and combines 75 hours or more during harvest and then stored them without an oil change may be shortening the life of their engines.

Moisture in that heavily-used oil will combine with combustion by-products and produce acids which may wash down into the crank case and corrode engine parts, says Dale Hanson, energy tech specialist in Minneapolis.

"Oil's job is to keep the engine clean. During machinery operation, it's constantly picking up dirt and moisture," Hanson notes. "When the machine is in regular use, most of the moisture is vaporized and the oil continues to work efficiently right up to the next recommended oil change."

"But when machinery sits in storage, moisture in the oil can combine with combustion by-products and the resulting acids will attack iron or copper parts."

Hanson recommends an oil change shortly before machinery is stored. He advises farmers to let the engine run at least 30 minutes after the oil change so that the lubricant thoroughly coats engine parts.

If a farmer plans to use stored machinery occasionally throughout the winter, Hanson suggests choosing a winter grade oil such as 10W, 10W30 or 15W40. Check the engine manufacturer's recommendation.

"In colder weather, lower viscosity oils flow more quickly for better lubrication at low starting temperatures," Hanson says. "There will be less wear on lubricated parts."

Caution Urged When Using Snowblowers

Winter's getting ready to dump heavy snowfalls on Minnesota, and Minnesotans are getting ready to remove it. While they are preparing, they should prepare themselves with the knowledge of how to prevent snowblower accidents, says the Minnesota safety council.

Snowblower injuries can range from nicks and cuts to missing fingers and mangled hands, and worse. Most accidents result from a user's attempt to remove snow that is clogging the machine. Even though the machine may be shut off, compression within an air-cooled engine can build up when the machine is clogged. An operator attempting to remove snow with the hands may unintentionally cause the machine to start again unless the spark plug has been uncoupled.

Minnesota safety council urges operators to read operating instructions carefully before running a snowblower and to pay special attention to directions on how to stop the machine quickly.

Users should keep hands and feet away from moving parts and should not attempt to unclog a machine while it is running.

Machine's fuel tank should be filled only when the snowblower is shut off. Fuel should be kept away from any source of fire. Fuel spills around the hot engine should be avoided too.

Kids and pets should keep out of the way of snow being blown. And the operator should be careful of slipping and falling when operating a snowblower on sloping ground. And, of course, snowblowers should be shut off when unattended.

Craig Strong Is Recipient Of Navy Medal

Navy Yeoman 3rd Class Craig K. Strong, son of David K. Strong of Thief River Falls, has been awarded the navy expeditionary medal. He received the decoration for superior performance of duty while serving with Commander Amphibious Squadron Six, Norfolk, Wa.

The medal is an official recognition of an individual's outstanding accomplishments and is presented during formal ceremonies.

Prepare Your Car For Winter Driving Safety

As Thanksgiving approaches, the Minnesota safety council encourages drivers to prepare their cars for winter driving.

Motorists should have the battery checked, make sure brakes are properly adjusted, check windshield wipers for signs of wear (streaking) and replace them if necessary, be sure the heater and defroster are operational and fill up with windshield washer and radiator anti-freeze.

When a car breaks down far from home, the occupants will be better off if they have "survival items" in the back seat or trunk. Minnesota safety council recommends carrying: jumper cables, sand or traction mat, tow chain, sleeping bags or blankets, a shovel, extra windshield solvent, ice scraper and snow brush, flashlight with fresh batteries, emergency flares, candle and matches, high-energy food and a thermos of tea or coffee for warmth, plus tire chains if the car doesn't have snow tires.

Rain or snow covered roads require longer stopping distances, so drivers are advised to start stopping or slowing maneuvers earlier. Hydroplaning occurs when a layer of water gets between the tire treads and the road surface. To control the car, the vehicle must be operated at a safe speed that allows the tires to be in firm contact with the road. A safe speed is the only defense against hydroplaning, according to the Minnesota safety council. That means that drivers should slow down even more before going into curves.

In additional advice to drivers who find their parked vehicles surrounded by snow, the safety council advises turning the wheels from side to side (to push some of the snow out of the way). When starting up, the driver should apply snow, steady pressure to the accelerator — this gives the tires a chance to grip the snow.

Remember, avoid spinning your wheels; pull out slowly but surely and straight ahead and buckle up before going. Make it click!

Four Honored For Service By Potato Growers

At the 38th annual meeting of the Red River Valley potato growers association (PGA), four men were honored for their contributions to the potato industry. These individuals received the highest award given by the PGA, the meritorious service award. This award recognizes their contributions to the local and national potato industry.

Award ceremony was held during the opening luncheon of the convention held in Moorhead on Friday, November 18. Meritorious service award was presented to each individual by North Dakota Governor Allen I. Olson.

Receiving the awards were Jim Jorde from Cando, ND; Jerry Larson from Climax; North Dakota Commissioner of Agriculture, Kent Jones, originally from Webster, ND; and Dr. Rollin Dennistoun, the deputy commissioner of agriculture from Minneapolis.

Jorde is originally from Thief River Falls. In 1949, Jim and his brother, Warren (Bud) moved to Cando, ND to produce certified seed potatoes in what is known as the Cando quarantine area. Their farming operation, Jorde Brothers seed company, has a long tradition of quality seed potato production and next year they will plant their fortieth crop of potatoes.

Jorde has a background in plant pathology at the University of Minnesota and his knowledge has been an asset to the farming operation. Throughout his career in agriculture, he has been involved with several organizations. He has served on the North Dakota seed board and as a director for the Red River Valley potato growers association and the North Dakota seed commission.

Jim and his wife Joanne have five children. They have a home in Sedona, AZ, and they hope to spend more time there as his son, Mike and wife Everl Erickson take over the responsibilities of the company.

Fertilizer Can Be Applied On Frozen Ground

Although wet weather may have kept some farmers from applying fertilizer this fall, research indicates they can improve soil fertility on many fields throughout the winter months ahead.

Phosphorus (P) and potassium (K) can be applied to frozen ground as long as the slope of the land is not more than five per cent," says Bill Grefe, agronomy tech specialist in Minneapolis.

Grefe says it's possible to effectively fertilize fields with as much as six inches of snow cover, if equipment can safely navigate.

"If your land is relatively flat and top soil doesn't normally wash away in the spring, neither will P and K spread on frozen ground," Grefe notes. "Fertilizer particles adhere to the soil just as soon as they come into contact with any form of moisture, such as rain, snow or frost, so they won't blow away either. P and K do not have to be incorporated."

Fertilizer does penetrate the ground (similar to the way salt penetrates ice) and remains close to the soil surface, Grefe says.

Application should not take place on days when the wind is gusting 15 miles per hour or greater. This could affect coverage, Grefe says.

Farmers who choose to fertilizer in the winter will reap some of the same benefits fall-fertilizing growers do, Grefe says. These include: A reduced spring workload; a chance to plant earlier; less soil compaction; assured fertility for higher yields; a lower-priced product and a speedier breakdown of crop residue remaining in the field.

Ridge-till farmers may find winter fertilizing solves a problem unique to them. Equipment won't break down the ridges because they are frozen in place.

Grefe advises farmers to base all fertilization on a soil test taken within the last three years. Electric auger soil testers make this possible even during the winter months, he says.

Fire Dangers In Home Have Many Sources

"Your own home can become a confusing place during a fire," says Mike Kerringan. He speaks from experience. His story is told in the fall, 1983, issue of "Family Safety" magazine.

"The four-year-old boy knew he shouldn't play with matches, because his father often told him so. But curiosity got the better of him, so he sneaked under his bed to play with the matches and a candle he'd found.

"Suddenly the mattress was on fire, and flames were spreading to near-by drapes. The boy's father rushed in to rescue him and his six-month-old brother, who was asleep in his crib.

"After the fire department put out the fire, the father went back to look at the charred bedroom. 'There was a smoky ouline of the baby in the crib'', he recalls. "Another minute and my little boy would have been dead.' "

Fortunately that father was Kerrigan, and he had a fire-escape plan. A 17-year veteran of the Chicago fire department and member of Chicago's fire prevention bureau, Kerrigan gives daily presentations on fire-escape planning to school chhildren.

He tells them that fires can and do happen, and that families are more likely to live through the experience if they have smoke alarms, and if they plan — and practice — how to get out of a burning home safety.

Entitled "Can Your Family Escape a Fire?" the article includes this fire safety checklist.

A fire-escape plan is like a life insurance policy — you should have one, but do everything possible to avoid needing it. Follow these tips to prevent fires in your home:

+ Keep your home, both inside and out, free of all loose combustibles, such as rags, papers and dried leaves.

+ Store all flammable liquids — paint, varnish, gasoline and kerosene — in their original containers or in UL- or FM-approved containers.

+ Keep all cooking appliances free of grease and food buildup.

— Never start a fire in a stove or fireplace with gasoline, Kerosene or any other flammable liquid.

+ Keep curtains, drapes and furniture away from any heat source, such as a stove or space heater.

+ Make sure all your electrical applicances are labeled by Underwriters laboratories, the Canadian Standards association or another reputable testing agency.

+ Don't overload electrical circuits by using multiple attachment plugs.

+ Have all chimney and flue connections checked by a qualified person at least once a year.

+ Keep all matches out of children's reach.

+ Keep plenty of ashtrays in the house when smokers are around.

+ Never smoke in bed, and don't light up if you are drowsy — careless use of cigarettes is a leading cause of home fires.

Inquiries concerning the article or "Family Safety" magazine may be addressed to the Minnesota Safety Council, Inc., 555 Webasha street, Suite 102, St. Paul, 55102, or the Northern Area Service Office, 30 West Superior, Suite 500, Duluth, 55802.

Winners was selected from instant cash entries deposited at the bank. All entries will now be sent to Minneapolis where selections will be made for several free trips. The six-week promotion ended November 11. The Mehrkens won a garment bag as their local prize.

Legal Services Issues Guide To Welfare

"Programs for the Needy: A Guide to Welfare" is a new booklet recently published by the Minnesota legal services program. It is meant as an aid for the many persons who need help with food, shelter, medical or other basic needs.

Newly unemployed persons may find this booklet a valuable resource because AFDC, general assistance, emergency assistance, medical assistance and food stamps are all explained.

Copies may be requested by phone or mail. There is no change to low income persons. Call the community legal education program (612) 522-6636 or write 2507 Fremont Avenue North, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55411.

Senator Aids Retirees From Railroads

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has joined senate colleagues from Pennsylvania in cosponsoring legislation that would eliminate the scheduled 1985 reduction in the private pension portion of railroad retirees benefits if the railroad retirement system has sufficient financial reserves at that time.

Under the railroad retirement solvency act passed last August the Tier I (social security equivalent) cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) is to be offset by reductions in Tier II (private pension portion). This means that while retirees face no actual reduction in their total benefits, they receive no cost of living adjustment either. And, because the 1984 offset is only 3.5 per cent and the law calls for a total of five per cent, an additional 1.5 per cent must be offset in 1985.

"The railroad retirement rescue plan passed very quickly this past August. If we have failed to act this speedily, one million retirees would have been needlessly frightened by official notices of impending 40 per cent benefit cuts," Sen. Boschwitz said.

"This of course prevented the Senate from reviewing the package as carefully as I would have liked. I certainly supported the package, but did express my reservations about the provision dealing with the so-called Tier II offset," Boschwitz added.

"Already rail employment is higher than expected and if the economic recovery continues its present pace or gets stronger, clearly the railroad retirement fund will have ample reserves.

"The question then becomes do we want to hold down retirees benefits anyway? I believe it is both prudent and reasonable to have a contingency plan like this bill in place," Boschwitz said.

Verlin Oxford Rites Held At Detroit Lakes

Funeral services for Verlin Oxford, 68, of Detroit Lakes were held Saturday at 11:00 a.m., at the Holy Rosary Catholic church in Detroit Lakes. Oxford died Wednesday morning at his home in rural Detroit Lakes.

Rev. Vernon Miller officiated at the services which included military rites by the Ogema Veterans of Foreign Wars, post 9880. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Donehower funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Xavier Robidoux, John Zima, Richard Kent, Ernest Muckala, Julius Schmidt and Ted Kiehl.

Verlin Oxford was born May 18, 1915 in Detroit Lakes, and grew to manhood in the Ogema area. He was married Sept. 2, 1936 at White Earth to Mary Schaefer.

He farmed in White Earth township before serving in the U.S. Army during World War II. From 1966 until he retired in 1980, he was section foreman for the Soo Line railroad, working in Thief River Falls, Oklee and Winger. Prior to that time, he worked for awhile for M.A. Mining company of Keewatin.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Holy Rosary Council, and the Eagles of Detroit Lakes, and was a life member of the Ogema, VFW.

Surviving are his wife, three sons: V. George Oxford, St. Paul, and Harry and Kenneth, both of Aurora; a daughter, Catherine Erickson, Middle River; 18 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren; a brother, one sister, and a sister-in-law.

Rites Held For Mrs. Hattie Dahlstrom, 85

Funeral services for Mrs. Nettie Dahlstrom, 85, of this city, and formerly of St. Hilaire, were held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at the Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire. Mrs. Dahlstrom died Tuesday, November 15 at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Gary Moore officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Arnold Hammer. Interment was in the St. Hilaire Community cemetery with the Belmont Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Mike Meixell, Lee Johnson, Larry Johnson, Dennis Hallstrom, Woodrow Almquist and Donald Appel.

Mrs. Dahlstrom, the former Nettie Johnson, was born Dec. 21, 1897 in Kittson county to Swan and Hulda Udd Johnson. At the age of four months, she moved with the family to the St. Hilaire community. She attended school in St. Hilaire and following her completion of the Normal Teacher Training course in Crookston, she taught in the rural schools in Northwestern Minnesota until her marriage. She also taught for a couple of years in the early 40's.

She was married May 22, 1926 in Thief River Falls to Arvid Dahlstrom. Since then, she made her home in St. Hilaire until 1981, when she became a resident of Valley Home in Thief River Falls.

She was baptized and confirmed at Tarna Lutheran church, St. Hilaire, and was a member of the Calvary Lutheran church in that city. She served for a time on the Pennington County Welfare board and authored the book, "The History of St. Hilaire."

Surviving are her daughter, Marilyn, Mrs. Harry (Mike) Meixell, Frederick, MD; three brothers: Harvey Johnson, St. Hilaire, and Arthur and Theodore, both of Sacramento, Calif.; and a sister, Mrs. Selma Belland, Bethesda, MD.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died Feb. 1, 1971; parents, 7 brothers and one sister.

Emil Koglin Dies Sunday At His Home

Emil Koglin, 82, of Thief River Falls, died Sunday morning at his home on South St. Paul avenue.

Funeral services for Emil Koglin will be held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church with Rev. Clifford Kalmoe officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home on Thursday from 3:00 to 9:00 p.m., and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Erwin Heaton Services Held At Gatzke Fri.

Funeral services for Erwin Heaton, 83, of Barnum and formerly of Thief River Falls and Gatzke, were held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke. Heaton died Tuesday, November 15, at the Mercy Health Care center in Moose Lake, where he had been a resident for the past two years.

Rev. Robert Amundson officiated at the services. Melanie Lunsetter was the organist and Mrs. Howard Lunsetter, the soloist. Interment was in the Lanstad cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Gary Heaton, Paul Heaton, David Heaton, Richard Heaton, Robert Koskela and Tim Johnson.

Erwin St. Clair Heaton, a son of the late Julius and Fanny Dewar Heaton, was born May 27, 1900 in Lewisville. As a child, he lived for three years at McGregor. In 1906, he moved with the family to Kenmare, N.D. In 1909, they came to Thief River Falls, and the following year, they moved to Gatzke.

He was married Nov. 24, 1930 at Gatzke to Emma Johnson. The couple farmed at Gatzke until 1947, when they moved to Thief River Falls. While living here, Heaton was employed by O & M Elevator until he retired in 1964. Following retirement, they moved to Naples, Fla., where he worked at the Beach Club hotel until 1977. The following year, they moved to Barnum.

He is survived by his wife, who lives at Barnum, two sons: Wallace Heaton, Thief River Falls, and Dale, Moose Lake; two daughters: Mrs. Wilson (Elaine) Wardwell, Plantation, Fla.; and Delores Long, Naples, Fla.; 17 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Elwin and one grandson, Rodney Heaton.

Mrs. Victor Schroeder Dies At Northfield

Mrs. Victor (Dorothea) Schroeder, 88, of Northfield, and formerly of Thief River Falls, died Saturday night at Northfield. Mrs. Schroeder lived here for 29 years, while her husband was pastor of St. John Lutheran church.

Funeral services for Mrs. Schroeder will be held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in Northfield, where the body will repose for one hour prior to the time of services. Interment will be Friday at 11:00 a.m., at Fairview cemetery at Bismarck, N.D.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Sportsmanship

As the area enters into the winter sports season for high school teams, the following item from the Minnesota State High School League Bulletin is worth reading and keeping in mind when attending the games:

It takes total effort to provide for good sportsmanship and athletic contest. The school administration, and particularly the athletic director, must educate players, students, and fans of the values and purposes of interscholastic athletics. It should be understood by all that the main purposes of athletics are educational and recreational and when these purposes cease to exist, they can no longer be justified as a supplement to the school.

Both games officials and coaches can contribute to the type of sportsmanship which is the best interest of girls and boys.

Schools must expect the coach to be a mature person who can control his or her emotions during athletic contests. Coaches must set a proper example for players and team followers. Actions of coaches can be a tremendous influence on spectators either positively or negatively. Coaches have reason to be concerned about the competency of officiating, but most be sufficiently mature to present objects in a professional manner. A coach should first have a thorough knowledge of the game rules, indicating bench conduct rules, and these must serve as guidelines for the coach. Voicing criticism of the officiating during the game may be an outlet for a coach's emotions, but it will not aid the team or contribute to better officiating.

Officials have just as much responsibility as do coaches. Athletic contests mean much to high school youngsters and a well officiated game contributes toward the educational and recreational values of them. The official who knows the rules, enforces them consistently, is fair in judgment, and is also emotionally mature will contribute to the sportsmanship at athletic events.

Officials who do not put forth their maximum effort and who tend to lose emotional control when a player or coach commits an unsportsmanlike act, may also be contributing to poor sportsmanship. Such remarks as "you do the coaching, I'll do the officiating" are completely out of place when made by an official. Because the official is in a position to judge the actions of others, it is expected the official avoid loss of emotional control.

Retorts from officials do not help solve any problems or help prevent misconduct.

When coaches and officials show mutual respect, this contributes to the real objectives of interscholastics. Both must assume their equal share of responsibility in this area. When this is done, interscholastic events will provide more benefits for high school girls and boys.

Mondale On Education

Former senator and vice president Walter Mondale of Minnesota has received the endorsement of the Minnesota and National Education associations in his bid to become president of the United States. Some of his thoughts on education are contained in the following article which appeared in the MEA Advocate, official publication of the Minnesota Education association:

President Reagan raised the issue of merit pay to divert attention from the total failure of his Administration to offer any constructive education programs. His own Commission on Excellence recommended a number of reforms and stated that strong federal leadership was an essential ingredient in the necessary strengthening of American education. Mr. Reagan responded by ignoring his Commission and blaming teachers.

If we are serious about strengthening American education we must start by helping teachers do a better job. That means that we must offer teachers more opportunities for continuing education, cutting paperwork, and strengthening curriculum materials. But first and foremost, an effective strategy for attracting and retaining good teachers must be based on an increase in the salaries of all teachers.

I do not automatically oppose compensation or career advancement plans that also recognize superior performance in the classroom. But any such plan must meet several tests:

(1) It must ensure that any compensations or career decisions are not made on the basis of favoritism or discrimination. It was only a few years ago that teachers were subject to arbitrary and discriminatory treatment in the determination of pay. Men were paid more than women, whites more than blacks, and high school teachers more than elementary school teachers. These intolerable barriers must never be raised again under the heading of merit pay or any other slogan.

(2) Teachers must be directly involved in developing any compensation or career advancement plan. These plans should be developed at the local level, across the bargaining table. And teachers should then be involved in implementing the plans.

In summary, no plan is acceptable that does not actively involve teachers in designing and running it or that leaves the door open to discrimination, favoritism or political intimidation.

Subverting The System

What should be one of the best political systems ever devised to provide checks and balances and result in most intelligent legislation is being subverted in practice in the United States. There's still nothing wrong with the system, but there is plenty wrong with the way it is being used.

The problem lies with elected officials who are more interested in being reelected than in being good statesmen, and in the obsession of those political-minded people to embarrass and discredit the opposition.

As a result, we frequently are fed a legislative diet of mediocrity which comes from having some really good ideas processed through compromises and trade-offs and concessions. By the time a really good ribeye gets through the legislative choppers, it is only a basic ingredient for hash.

The two-party system was intended to provide for dissenting viewpoints to be fully discussed so that nothing was overlooked in making the most collectively-intelligent decision. The objective was to give the public a choice in which viewpoint they want represented, and therefore to make the elected officials responsive to the electorate.

What has happened is that the users of the system have made it one of negativism. Rather than look at the merits of proposals and how they will affect the nation and its people, the parties look at who makes the proposal and how it might affect their power base.

It will never do, as the system is now interpreted, to allow good legislation introduced by the opposition to become law. Rather the attempt is made immediately to discredit the idea and its sponsor, to introduce an alternate plan, to cloud the issue with irrelevancies and to place the proposal in committees where it is either buried or so severely altered it becomes almost useless.

Because of this fear of allowing the opposition to look good, only mediocre legislation is presented to the full governing bodies for passage. The people don't get the benefit of the system that they are entitled to have and are being short-changed by this now common practice. As long as reelection is a potential objective, it is unlikely there will be much change in the attitude which has developed.

There may be some merit in electing senators and representatives to six-year, non-renewable terms, where their full attention can be placed on doing what's best for the nation instead of what's best for reelection. The question about that suggestion, of course, is whether elected officials would be accountable to the electorate if they didn't have to stand the test of service.

In any case, the quality of the individual becomes more important than the professed allegiance to the party when the general welfare of the people is considered. Those who would subvert the system for their personal gain deserve the support of neither people nor party.

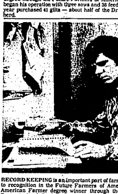
Borrowed Nonsense:

A father was showing his young son some pictures in the family album. "This is Uncle Charlie in front of the big top," he said. "He was with the circus for 23 years and never used a net."

His wife appeared puzzled. "Why would he need a net to sell balloons?" she asked.

A recent business study reports the typical business office consists of 21 people — six of whom are on the phone, five are on errands, four are on breaks, three are on vacation, two are on sick leave and the boss is on valium.

FEEDER PIGS are part of the agricultural enterprise for Terry Drangstveit of Goodridge, winner of the American Farmer degree through the Future Farmers of America program. He began his operation with three sows and 38 feeder pigs and last year purchased 41 gilts — about half of the Drangstveit swine herd.



RECORD KEEPING is an important part of farming and a key to recognition in the Future Farmers of America program. American Farmer degree winner through the FFA, Terry Drangstveit of Goodridge, has learned the value of record keeping in the farm operation. He is shown in the office on the Drangstveit farm northwest of Goodridge.

Drangstveit Earns American Farmer Degree

at Goodridge high school, he began his project work with three sows which produced 36 feeder pigs in the first year. The second year he had four sows and 65 feeder pigs and the third year increased that to 74 feeder pigs from four sows. The fourth year he farrowed 110 feeder pigs from four sows.

He purchased 573 acres of land with 313 acres tillable the year he graduated from high school, and also purchased a crawler tractor with a dozer blade. He and his brother Mike went to work clearing the remaining areas of trees and brush and the second year had 494 tillable acres. By last year that has been increased to 535 tillable acres and Mike had acquired two quarters of open land to begin his own farming operation.

Merlin, Terry and Mike combine their farming operations and use of the farm machinery and equipment. They also work together with the hog operation, although maintaining their own individual records. Last year Terry purchased 41 gilts — about half of the total production herd — and is more heavily involved in the production of feeder pigs.

During his high school FFA years, Terry went to the state competitive with the soil judging team and also earned a state trip in home and farmstead improvement. He won local and district competition in those areas and also participated in the district in soil and water management. He participated in the public speaking project and attended local, district, state and national conventions. He was Goodridge FFA chapter vice president as a senior.

Terry was also involved in Boy scouts for three years, served on the high school student council, played basketball and football and was a member of the high school band. He captained the basketball and football teams and was an all-conference football selection.

He was also in class plays, on the yearbook staff, a Boys State delegate, member of the Goodridge youth organization, Luther league, National Honor society and the county DFL group. He is now secretary of the Goodridge Jaycees and active in that organization.

He has graduated from the Thief River Falls AVTI farm management program and has studied farm equipment mechanics for one year at the AVTI. He is also a member of the adult farm management program through which his farm records are analyzed.

Despite many who tend to be pessimistic, Terry seems convinced there is a future in farming.

"I like farming," he said. "I wouldn't be in it this far if I didn't enjoy it. You can be your own boss but you have to be able to communicate. You have to deal with business people. I plan to be in farming for the rest of my life."

That's what the Future Farmers of America program is all about.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — What are the eligibility requirements for receipt of Veterans Administration compensation benefits?

A — To be eligible to receive VA compensation, a veterans must have a disability which was incurred in or aggravated by military service, and rated as being 10 per cent or more disabling by the VA. The veteran must also have a discharge other than dishonorable.

Q — What are the requirements for Veterans Administration pension benefits?

A — To be entitled to VA pension benefits, a veteran must have had at least 90 days of wartime service, be considered as permanently and totally disabled and incapable of engaging in substantially gainful employment, and have income which falls within specified income limitations.

Q — Can a veteran be entitled to both pension and compensation benefits from the Veterans Administration?

A — Entitlements may exit concurrently to both benefits; however, payment can be made only for the benefit which provides the greater monthly allowance.

Since 1970, nearly half of the increase in the female labor force has been among women aged 25 to 34. Today, one out of four women workers is in this age group, according to "Women at Work: A Chartbook," published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Maruska of Angus visited a week ago Monday evening at United hospital in Grand Forks with LuAnn Lewis. The following Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd VeVea of Thief River Falls were LuAnn's visitors and Thursday afternoon Mrs. Frank Armstrong and Mrs. Duane Olson visited with her. LuAnn returned home Friday afternoon. Shortly after her arrival home, her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Dyrdal, Jacki and Eric of Chisago City arrived at the Lewis home and together with Edith Dyrdal and Mrs. Rick Ayers and Crystal were supper guests. Later that evening Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Lewis, Edith Dyrdal and the David Dyrdal family, together with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng, Wally Page of Hines and Richard Johnson were luncheon guests at the Don Dyrdal home, where the October and November birthday anniversaries of LuAnn Lewis, Barb Dyrdal, John Dyrdal, Ann Dyrdal and Louise Solseng were celebrated.

Birthday

Mrs. Martin Solseng observed her birthday anniversary Saturday, Nov. 12. Bringing her greetings that afternoon were her mother, Mrs. Lillian Knutson and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Page and Brandon of Thief River Falls. That evening Mrs. Esther Solseng and Mr. and Mrs. Elton Solseng, Heidi and Tracy of Fargo, N.D. brought birthday wishes. Elton and family had just driven up that evening, bringing Esther back after she had spent the past couple of weeks with them. The Pages, the Elton Solsengs and Esther Solseng were also Sunday dinner guests at the Martin Solseng home.

PENNINGTON COUNTY NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT DECEMBER 31, 1982

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Pennington County was established November 23, 1910 as an organized County having powers, duties and privileges granted counties by Minn. Stat. Ch. 373 (1982).

Pennington County is governed by a five member board of commissioners elected from districts within the County. The board is organized with a chairman and vice-chairman elected at the annual meeting in January of each year. The County Auditor, who is elected on a county-wide basis, serves as the clerk of the board but does not vote in the decisions of the board.

The Welfare Board governs the activities of the Welfare Department and consists of seven members. They include five County Commissioners with two additional lay members appointed by the Commissioners and approved by the Minnesota Department of Public Welfare.

The financial reporting policies of Pennington County conform to generally accepted accounting principles, except as noted below. Following is a summary of the significant policies.

A. Basis of Presentation - Fund Accounting

The accounts of Pennington County are organized on the basis of funds and account groups, each of which is considered a separate accounting entity. The operations of each fund are accounted for with a separate self balancing set of accounts that comprise its assets, liabilities, fund equity, revenues and expenditures. The various funds are summarized by type in the financial statements. The following fund types and account groups are used by the County.

Governmental Funds

General Fund

The General Fund is the general operating fund of the County. It consists of the County Revenue, Road & Bridge, and Welfare Funds. It is used to account for all financial resources except those required to be accounted for in other funds.

Special Revenue Funds

Special Revenue Funds are used to account for the proceeds of specific revenue sources (other than special assessments, expendable trusts, or major capital projects) that are restricted to expenditures for specified purposes.

Debt Service Fund

The [illegible] to account for the accumulation of resources for, and the payment of, law enforcement center bonds, interest and related costs.

Special Assessment Fund

The Ditch Special Assessment Fund is used to account for the financing of construction and repair of the ditch system deemed to benefit the properties against which special assessments are levied.

Proprietary Fund

Enterprise Fund

The Nursing Home Enterprise Fund is used to account for the operations of the Oakland Park Nursing Home.

Fiduciary Funds

Trust and Agency Funds

Trust and Agency Funds are used to account for assets held by the County in a trustee capacity or as an agent for individuals, private organizations, other governmental units, and/or other funds. These include expendable trust and agency funds. Expendable trust funds are accounted for in essentially the same manner as governmental funds. Agency funds are custodial in nature (assets equal liabilities) and do not involve measurement of results of operations.

Account Groups

General Fixed Assets Account Group

The general fixed asset account group is used to account for all fixed assets used in governmental fund operations. General fixed assets of a public domain or of an "infrastructure" nature, such as roads, bridges, curbs and gutters and similar assets that are immovable and of value only to the government are not capitalized.

General Long-Term Debt Account Group

The general long-term debt account group is used to account for all outstanding general obligation long-term debt not accounted for in a fund.

B. Basis of Accounting

Accrual Basis

The balance sheets and statements of revenues, expenses and changes in retained earnings and changes in financial position of the Nursing Home Enterprise Fund were prepared on the accrual basis in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Revenues are recorded when earned, expenses are recorded when incurred.

Modified Accrual Basis

The balance sheets, statements of revenues, expenditures, and changes in fund balance and statements of revenues, expenditures, and changes in fund balance, budget and actual for the governmental funds are presented on the modified accrual basis. Revenues are recorded in the accounting period in which they become susceptible to accrual, which means they are measurable and available. Expenditures are recorded on an accrual basis except for inventory type items which are expensed at the time of purchase.

In applying the susceptible to accrual concept to intergovernmental revenues, the legal and contractual requirements of the numerous individual programs are used as guidance. There are, however, essentially two types of revenues. In one, monies must be expended on the specific purpose or project before any amounts will be paid to the County, therefore, revenues are recognized based upon the expenditure recorded. In the other, monies are virtually unrestricted as to purpose of expenditure and nearly irrevocable, i.e. revocable only for failure to comply with prescribed compliance requirements. These resources are reflected as revenues at the time of receipt or earlier if they meet the available criterion. The County receives allotments from the State of Minnesota for highway maintenance and construction. The allotment revenue is recognized by the County only after an expenditure has been recorded. The accounting for allotments is similar to grant accounting in that revenues equal expenditures.

Licenses and permits, charges for services, fines and forfeits, and miscellaneous revenues (except investment earnings) are recorded as revenues when received in cash because they are generally not measurable until actually received. Investment earnings are recorded when earned since they meet measurable and available.

Property taxes are recognized as revenues when measurable and available. Portions paid by the State in the form of State paid tax credits are included in inter-governmental revenues. The gross tax levy net of State paid credits, and cancellations, abatements and other adjustments are recognized as tax revenues or deferred until they meet the availability criterion.

C. Budgetary Data

The County Board at its July meeting is required by Minn. Stat. 275.03 (1982) to adopt a budget for the ensuing year as a basis for establishing the tax levy. The County Board adopts estimated revenue and expenditure budgets for all General and Special Revenue Funds, except the Law Library Special Revenue Fund. Preparation of the budget is consistent with the basis of accounting used for all governmental fund types.

The budget may be amended or modified at any time by the County Board. Comparisons of estimated revenue and expenditure to actual, as required by generally accepted accounting principles are presented in the financial statements for all General and Special Revenue Funds, except for Law Library Special Revenue Fund.

D. Pooled Investments

Pooled investments, consisting of a certificate of deposit and a money market savings account, are stated at cost.

E. Inventory

The Road and Bridge General Fund and the Nursing Home Enterprise Fund inventories are valued at cost using the first in, first out method. The cost of the Road and Bridge General Fund inventory is recorded as an expenditure at the time inventory items are purchased. The reported inventory values of the Road and Bridge General Fund are offset by a reserve in an equal amount because they do not constitute an available spending resource even though they are a component of net current assets.

F. Taxes Receivable

Taxes receivable consists of uncollected taxes payable in the years 1977-1982. Taxes receivable are offset by deferred revenue for the amount not collected within 60 days of December 31 to indicate the contingent nature of the asset. No provision has been made for an estimated amount uncollectible.

G. Special Assessments Receivable

Special assessments receivable consists of the current principal amount due on special assessments in 1982 collectible in 1983 plus the principal amount of deferred assessments yet to be placed on the County's tax rolls in future years and unpaid delinquent assessments payable in the years 1977-1982. No provision has been made for an estimated uncollectible.

H. Advance to Special Assessment Fund

The advance to special assessment fund is reported as an asset and offset by a fund balance reserve in an equal amount. It does not constitute an available spendable resource because it is not a component of net current assets.

I. Restricted Assets - Enterprise Fund

Funds restricted for the payment of principal and interest of the 1978 General Obligation Refunding bonds are accounted for in the Nursing Home Bonds and Interest Fund which has been combined with the Nursing Home Fund for reporting purposes. These funds are accounted for as restricted assets and offsetting related liability and equity accounts.

J. Fixed Assets

General Fixed Assets

General fixed assets are recorded as expenditures in the governmental funds at the time of purchase. Valuations as shown on the balance sheet for general fixed assets are stated as insurable value, cost of estimated value. The valuation of fixed assets at insurable value is not in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Enterprise Fund

Major renewals and improvements are recorded as additions to fixed assets while maintenance and repairs do not improve or extend the life of the fixed asset are expensed. Fixed assets are recorded at cost in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Depreciation is calculated on the straight-line basis over the estimated useful lives of various assets and is recorded as an expense in the accompanying financial statements.

K. Accumulated Unpaid Vacation and Sick Pay

County

The County's employment policy and union contracts with Welfare and Law Enforcement (Sheriff's department) employees provide that the County employees may earn annually an amount of vacation and sick leave which they may accumulate to up to a maximum of 24 days' vacation time and 100 days' sick leave.

The accrued liability for any accumulated vacation and sick leave time for County employees as of December 31, 1982, has not been determined and is not shown on the financial statements.

Enterprise Fund

Employees can earn 80 hours of vacation time a year for the first 9 years of employment. Employees must complete one full year of employment before being granted two weeks paid vacation. Employees with over 9 years service earn vacation at the rate of 120 hours a year and are granted three weeks paid vacation each year. Terminal vacation pay will be paid if certain conditions are met by the terminating employee. The Nursing Home does not recognize any accrued liability for any vacation time at year end.

Employees earn one day a month sick leave benefits, which begin accruing after the employee's probationary period, and may be accumulated to a maximum of 60 days. Unused sick leave time is forfeited at termination of full-time employment.

The accrued liability for accumulated sick leave for Nursing Home Enterprise Fund employees is shown in the financial statements as other accrued expenses.

L. Deferred Revenue

Deferred revenue consists of taxes receivable not collectible within 60 days of December 31, 1982 and the unencumbered portion of State and Federal grants received by the County but not yet earned.

M. Reserved for Bond Retirement

The reserved for bond retirement consists of excess restricted assets over liabilities payable from restricted funds at December 31, 1982.

N. Reserved for Boat and Water Safety Enforcement

The amount reserved for Boat and Water Safety Enforcement accounts for the unencumbered balance of State Boat and Water Safety grants to be used for boat and water safety purposes.

O. Reserved for Law Library Expenditures

The amount reserved for law library expenditures accounts for the unencumbered balance remaining from law library fees collected on cases in District and County Courts. The balance is restricted to expenditures to maintain and upgrade the law library.

P. Total Columns on Combined Statements

Total columns on the combined statements are captioned "Memorandum Only" to indicate they are presented only to facilitate financial analysis. Data in these columns do not present financial position or results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Neither are such data comparable to a consolidation. Interfund eliminations have not been made in the aggregation of these data.

2. Property Taxes and Special Assessments

The County levies and collects property taxes and special assessments for all governmental units within the County. Property tax collections and remittances to other governmental units and County governmental funds are accounted for in agency funds.

Taxes and special assessments are billed to individual property owners within the County annually and, for the most part, are due and payable in January, but may be paid in two equal installments on or before May 31 and October 31, without penalty.

The County is required to distribute the collections to the various governmental units three times a year as follows:

County Collections Through	Distribution Date
March 5 (includes amounts collected in November and December of the previous year)	April 20
June 5	July 20
November 5	December 20

The assets and liabilities of the tax collection agency funds consist of undistributed cash collections from November 6, 1982 to December 31, 1982 along with the related liabilities to other governmental units and County funds.

Delinquent and deferred taxes and special assessments collectible for other governmental units are not recorded on the County's balance sheets. Delinquent taxes and special assessments and deferred special assessments levied for County purposes are recorded as assets of the appropriate County governmental funds.

3. Cash and Pooled Investments

The cash and pooled investments at December 31, 1982 consists of the County Treasurer's cash balance of $1,963,116, change funds of $2,430, and undeposited departmental receipts of $11,197.

A detail of the cash and pooled investments is as follows:

8. Retirement Funds

Substantially all County employees are covered by a statewide contributory retirement plan operated by the Public Employees Retirement Association (PERA). The PERA retirement plan is financed by both employer and employee contributions either under a coordinated PERA - Social Security Plan or by PERA alone. The County records pension expense as the contributions come due.

County contributions for 1982 were $102,445 to the Public Employees Retirement Association and $87,038 to Social Security. Contribution rates for PERA are determined on a statewide basis and include provision for prior service costs. The assets of the State of Minnesota PERA Fund were substantially less than the actuarially computed value of vested benefits as of the most recent valuation date. That part of the deficiency attributable to Pennington County is not determinable.

9. Self Insurance

The County entered into a joint powers agreement pursuant to Minn. Stat. Sec. 471.59 (1982) with other participating counties to self insure its workers' compensation coverage as authorized by Minn. Stat. Sec. 471.981 (1982).

Under this plan, which is administered by the Association of Minnesota Counties and known as the Minnesota Counties Self Insurance Trust, Pennington County is liable for the first $50,000 of any single claim or claims. The entire membership of the trust is liable for the next $250,000.

10. Revenues, Expenditures, and Changes in Fund Balance - Budget and Actual

The County does not budget all Special Revenue Funds and accordingly, the applicable columns on the Combined Statement of Revenues, Expenditures, and changes in Fund Balance - Budget and Actual (Exhibit 3) exclude amounts relating to the unbudgeted fund. A reconcilement of actual amounts for budgeted funds and the unbudgeted Law Library Fund follow:

	Budgeted Funds - (Exhibit 3)	Law Library Fund	Total (Exhibit 2)
Revenues	$159,497	$ 5,600	$165,097
Expenditures	42,293	7,943	50,236

11. Title IV-D Accounts Receivable

Estimated accounts receivable from individuals for child support payments that relate to recovery of payments made under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) Program are approximately $168,000. These receivables are not included on the balance sheet of the Welfare General Fund since collectibility is not determinable. Collections are distributed to the State and Federal governments in proportion to the current funding formula for AFDC program.

12. Residual Fund Equity Transfers

In 1982, the County Board authorized the discontinuance of a number of Special Revenue Funds and transfered their residual fund equity to the County Revenue General Fund.

The following is a detail of the Special Revenue Funds discontinued and the amounts transferred to the County Revenue General Fund December 31, 1982:

Boat and Water Safety Enforcement	$ 5,231
Civil Defense	258
Employees Contingent	1,000
Law Library	5,942
Total	$12,431

13. Joint Power Agreements
Northwestern Minnesota Juvenile Training Center
Pennington County entered into a joint powers agreement creating and operating the Northwestern Minnesota Juvenile Training Center pursuant to Minn. Stat. Sec. 471.59 (1982). The Center was established to provide rehabilitation and other services to juveniles under jurisdiction of County Courts of member counties.
Financing is provided by state grants, appropriations from member counties and charges for services to non-member counties. Pennington County's contribution of 13.7% for 1982 is $16,481.
Inter County Nursing Service
Pennington and Red Lake Counties entered into a joint powers agreement creating and operating the Inter County Nursing Service pursuant to Minn. Stat. Sec. 471.59 (1982). The nursing service is headquartered in Thief River Falls, MN with another office in Red Lake Falls, MN.
Financing is provided by state grants, appropriations from member counties and charges for services. Pennington County's contribution of 73% for 1982 is $3,780.

14. Fund Reclassification
Two funds have been reclassified to more accurately reflect the nature of the funds, as follows:
Expendable Trust to Agency
The Nursing Home Patients Fund was reclassified from an expendable trust to an agency fund, resulting in a $2,970 decrease in the Expendable Trust Funds fund balance.
Enterprise to Agency
The Inter County Nursing Service Fund was reclassified from an enterprise fund to an agency fund, resulting in a $42,787 decrease in the retained earnings and a $1,802 decrease in the contributed capital (Total $44,589).

15. Restatement of General Long-Term Debt (Leases Payable)
The January 1, 1982 General Long-Term Debt Account Group was restated to reflect a change in the recognition of a lease purchase agreement, as explained in Note 7. Following is a schedule showing the restatement.

Lease purchase in 1980	$48,344
Payments in 1980 and 1981	10,551
Amount of restatement	$37,793

16. Enterprise Fund Retained Earnings of the Nursing Home Enterprise Fund were restated to reflect a change in fixed asset valuation due to errors made in prior years.

17. Restatement of Fund Equity
The January 1, 1982 fund equity was restated to reflect the fund reclassifications described in Note 14 and to correct errors described in Note 16. The following is a summary of the restatements:

	Inter County Nursing Service	Nursing Home	Nursing Home Patients
Fund Equity-January 1 as previously reported	$ 44,589	$577,155	$ 2,970
Restatements:
Fund Reclassification (Note 14)	(44,589)		(2,970)
Correction of errors in prior periods (Note 16)		$ (4,116)
Total restatements	$(44,589)	$ (4,116)	$(2,970)
Fund Equity-January 1 as restated	$ —0—	$573,039	$ —0—

18. Refunding Bonds
In 1978 the County sold Law Enforcement Center and Nursing Home Refunding bonds totaling $1,690,000. Proceeds from these issues were deposited in an escrow account to retire General Obligation Law Enforcement Center and General Obligation Nursing Home Bonds of 1973. The maturities of the investments purchased with the proceeds of the refunding bonds coincide with the principal and interest payment dates of the refunded bonds and have been certified to be sufficient to pay all principal and interest on the bonds when due as required by applicable laws. Accordingly, the original refunded bonds have been subtracted from the refunding bonds added to the County's financial statements. The County and Nursing Home remain contingently liable to pay the refunded bonds.

ACE HARDWARE in Thief River Falls won the branch level merchandising award from the Hoover vacuum cleaner company for the fifth year in a row, besting competition from an area that includes Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and part of Wisconsin. Ace has gone on to win national merchandising awards in three of those five years. Rod Kahler, territory sales representative, center, presented prizes, including a plaque and this top-of-the-line Electronic Concept Two vacuum cleaner to Ace owner Ron Kalinoski and manager Dolores Carlson.

Award Program Offered To Cut Bank Robberies

Being a bank robber in Minnesota is not profitable, according to Charles Nuernberg of Young America, chairman of the Minnesota Bankers association (MBA) security committee.

Punishment for bank robbery is a $5,000 fine or 20 years in prison, or both — and bank robbers are going to jail.

For the last four years the MBA, in cooperation with the FBI and other law enforcement agencies, has been conducting a statewide reward program, which has had a significant role in reducing robberies and increasing solutions.

MBA will pay up to $5,000 to any eligible person who provides information leading to the arrest and indictment of anyone suspected of committing or attempting to commit a robbery, burglary, larceny or extortion of a member Minnesota commercial bank. The amount of the reward would depend on the seriousness and circumstances of the crime.

Program was established due to a substantial increase in bank robberies prior to 1979. In addition, solution rates and convictions were relatively low. Those trends have been reversed since the beginning of the MBA robbery reward program.

Prior to 1979, the solution and conviction rate was running approximately 41 per cent, but beginning in 1979, when there were 77 robberies of banks and savings and loan offices in Minnesota, 56 robberies were solved for a solution rate of 77 per cent. In 1981, 76 banks and savings and loan offices were robbed in Minnesota and 53 robberies were solved for a 70 per cent solution rate. In 1982, 62 banks and savings and loan robberies occurred and 42 of those robberies were solved representing a 68 per cent solution rate, with additional solutions expected.

Truman L. Jeffers, MBA executive vice president, called the program "a dramatic success". "We want people who are considering robbery of a bank to know that the odds are that they will be caught and sent to prison for a long time."

Citing the cooperation of citizens, many of whom never received reward payments for their help in solving bank robberies, Jeffers said, "Bank robbery is a serious crime and threat to the public. Those who work in banks and bank customers have no defense in the face of the criminal who, in an instant, could cause enormous damage and bodily harm." According to Jeffers, "The MBA is committed to continuing this program and to further publicize and communicate with the public regarding the importance of turning in the individual who robs a bank."

The program is a simple one. Any individual who has information about a bank crime should contact the FBI office in Minneapolis, which is responsible for investigation of all bank crimes. The telephone number is (612) 339-7861.

If the information received by the FBI leads to the arrest and indictment of a suspect, the individual who provided that information will be paid a reward by the MBA on behalf of all Minnesota full service member banks. The reward will be paid as promptly as possible following indictment.

MBA security committee chairman Noernberg said, "We hope this program will continue to serve as an incentive for public-minded citizens to bring these crimes to a halt and criminals to justice."

4H ✻ CLUB

Silverton

The Silverton 4-H club met on November 10, 1983 at the Silver Creek church. This was their annual parent's night, when parents of 4-H members were the officers, gave demonstrations and led in singing. President Sharon Wagner called the meeting to order. Flag pledges were said and roll call was answered by giving your parent's anniversary date. Secretary Roger Rupprecht read the minutes of the October meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Margaret Rupprecht with a balance on hand of $43.12. Congratulations were extended by Sandy Sorter to all 4-H members who received awards at the annual awards night. The Holiday Fair to be held on Nov. 12 and the 4-H plays scheduled for Nov. 18 were discussed. The family Christmas party will be held on December 8 with a potluck supper and gift exchange.

Demonstrations were given by Linnae Enge and Sandy Sorter on table decorations and by Margaret Nelson on soft sculpture. Singing was led by Linnae Enge and Margaret Nelson. There were 24 members and 18 parents present. Next meeting will be on December 8 at the Silver Creek church.

Business Tax Workshop Set For December

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) and the Internal revenue service are again cooperating in presenting a small business tax workshop on Monday and Tuesday, December 12 and 13. Workshop will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. at the AVTI, room 112.

This workshop provides information on federal and state business taxes applicable to the small firm, primarily income taxes and employment taxes.

Workshop is divided into two sections. One is an awareness session which introduces participants to the basic concerns and requirements regarding business taxes. Second section is a practical application session focusing on employment taxes. Participants are first introduced to employment taxes and then they prepare the various reports required by federal and state agencies.

Workshop fee is $25. Each participant will receive a workbook and a packet of materials furnished by the Internal revenue service. Workshop is under the direction of Don Jonson, small business management instructor.

Pre-registration is required by December 5 by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424.

Leader Council For County 4-H Met On Nov. 7

4-H Leaders Council held its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. November 7, at the Pennington county courthouse meeting room, with Renee Erickson presiding and 22 adults and 12 junior leaders present.

Following secretary and treasurer reports, Polly Prunuske, new part-time extension agent in 4-H, was introduced. She gave a short report on goals of the leaders council and some career opportunities offered through the University of Minnesota.

Comments were made on the Awards Night program, including suggestions for a different sound system, need for ideas to get more award donors to make presentations, and possibility of having the ambassadors present some awards. Kathy Carlson, Sharon Hamre and Donna Parnow were appointed as a committee to look into the possibility of having an awards banquet. Motion was carried to divide the cost of building and painting 15 benches between the 13 county 4-H clubs.

Other topics included Holiday Fair plans, project leaders training, records for district. Judging due in the office by November 29, Citizenship-Washington Focus forms, state animal science events committee leadership forms, and 4-H and Stucy food science scholarship applications, all due December 1; host county applications for the 4-H international program, due January 1; and pending estimates on roof repairs to the 4-H building at the fairgrounds.

Eloise Wheeler gave a brief report on the dog project, noting that she would like to have a seminar on dog training January 14, and a dog training session during the winter months, but she wants to know if anyone has a heated or semi-heated building that could be used. Monica Rausch showed slides on her trip to Japan last summer through the LABO exchange. Jim Sorter was presented with the Hot Dog award for his help in building 4-H benches. Kim Carlson, reporter.

USDA Survey Includes MN Stock Raisers

Stung by high feed costs and record large red meat supplies which are depressing prices, U.S. livestock producers are taking a cautious look at production planning. USDA will monitor decisions and plans taken by hog producers in a nationwide survey in late November and early December.

Survey results for Minnesota and other states will be issued December 22 showing hog inventories and the expected pig crop for the following six months. In September, producers indicated they planned to cut production in 1984. If they carry out intentions to have fewer sows farrow during December of 1983 to February of 1984, pork output will decline next summer, and hog prices could rise sharply. Farrowing intentions and pig crops reported in the December 22 report will provide a basis to estimate the size of the nation's pork supply next year.

Expansion of the cattle inventory remains stalled, as rising feed costs and deteriorating forage conditions have resulted in heavy slaughter this summer and fall. USDA's crop reporting board will publish estimates of the size of the U.S. cattle herd on January 30, based on a survey in late December and early January. Minnesota and national estimates will include the cattle inventory by classes and the number of calves born during 1983.

Carroll Rock, statistician in charge of the Minnesota agricultural statistics service, says copies of the two reports, Hogs and Pigs (December 22) and Cattle (January 30), will be available through his office in St. Paul. Rock's phone number is (612) 296-2230.

Elect Magrath To Be Chairman Of Association

C. Peter Magrath president of the University of Minnesota, was unanimously voted chairman-elect of the national association of state universities and land-grant colleges (NASULGC) recently during the group's annual meeting in Washington.

Magrath's term as the highest ranking officer of the organization will begin at the November 1984 meeting of NASULGC, which represents 145 of the nation's principal public colleges and universities and is the oldest higher education association in the nation.

"Over the next two years, the association's well-earned credibility and its political clout will be extraordinarily important because congress will be reauthorizing the basic higher education legislation, structuring such important programs as student financial aid for several years into the future," Magrath said.

"Congress will also be facing the critical questions of strengthening American science and technology, maintaining equal educational opportunity and improving education at all levels. As chairman-elect, and later as chairman, I'll be able to put a Minnesota perspective into the debates."

Courses offered during the daytime are: typing, principles of accounting, records management, principles of management, shorthand, business law, basic programming and computer utilization.

Evening courses offered include: principles of accounting II and basic programming.

Off-campus offerings include: computer literacy and basic programming at East Grand Forks AVTI; basic programming at Fosston; principles of accounting I at Hallock; principales of accounting II and basic programming at Roseau; computer literacy at Stephen; and typing and two basic programming courses in Warroad.

Financial aid is still available for those who need assistance. Tuition and fees are $22.50 per credit hour.

In order to gain further information or to register stop by the college between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or call 681-2181.

Senator Makes Three Requests Of Sec. Block

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has confirmed his asking Agriculture Secretary John Block to make special modifications in the disaster emergency loan program to help out the farmers of northwestern Minnesota.

In a letter to Block, Boschwitz explained that two Minnesota counties (Pennington and Red Lake) have qualified as agricultural disaster areas in five of the last six years and seemed destined for such an unfortunate distinction again this year. Two others, he said, (Marshall and Polk) have qualified in three of the last six years. (Pennington and Red Lake received the 1983 disaster designation Thursday.)

"It is ironic that in a year in which so much of the country suffered from drought, these counties have suffered from another year of too much rain," Boschwitz told Block. "I, myself, have seen wheat still out in soggy fields in October with no hope of harvesting it."

Boschwitz praised the secretary of agriculture for "prudent and responsible" action from the FmHA. In recent months a new FmHA office has opened in Crookston, new personnel qualified in processing emergency loans have been assigned to the area, and the FmHA has adopted streamlined procedures for processing disaster declarations.

In addition the interest rate on the first $100,000 of disaster emergency loan has been lowered from eight per cent to five per cent, and the reopening of some $600 million in economic emergency loan money will also help farmers in northwest Minnesota.

"But there are still at least three problems unique to this area of Minnesota that deserve immediate attention," Boschwitz said. Specifically, he made three requests:

First, that the formula for determining disaster emergency loans be adapted to not be biased against counties with repeated problems with disaster. Currently, eligible farmers who can demonstrate a 30 per cent loss of normal yield can receive loans equal to 80 per cent of the value of the lost crop. That, however, does not take into consideration those areas that have had crop failures in the five years used to determine "normal yield."

"Thirty per cent of nothing is nothing," Boschwitz said. "These farmers, who desperately need help, would be ineligible for a disaster emergency loan."

Boschwitz suggested changing the formula to include the last five non-disaster years.

Second, Boschwitz suggested that the requirements for a disaster designation be lowered to 20 per cent loss of normal yield when a country has had a disaster declaration in either of the previous two years.

Finally, Boschwitz asked that farmers who are unable to pay federal loans because of losses sustained through repeated disaster years be allowed to reschedule all their loans at the lowest interest rate presently being charged on any of their loans.

Boschwitz told the secretary that the tenacity of the farmers in northwestern Minnesota has "reaffirmed my belief that much of the moral character of this country grew out of men and women working the land.

"These farmers have endured year after year of crop failure through no fault of their own," he added. "They have watched their hard-earned equity disappear as they have had to pull their belts tighter and tighter, yet they wish to keep trying. It is imperative that we do everything we can to help them."

District I-R Group Searches For Candidates

Independent-Republican party in Minnesota senate district one has named a search committee including several from this area. Among members are: Roseau county — Jerry Schiltz, Harold Larson, Edgar Erickson and Charles Jensen; Marshall county — Bruce Elseth, Dave Rodahl, Wayne Warne and Elton Nybladh; Pennington county — Ev Ault, James Erickson, Richard Sather and Harry Oen; and Red Lake county — Kermit Genereax, Harold Vatthauer and K.B. Knutson.

The committee is given the responsibility of coming up with as many willing and able potential candidates for offices of representatives in districts 2A and 1B as possible.

There have been two organizational meetings of this committee at the Greenlin Supper club in Greenbush. Next meeting will be held at the Greenbush cafe at 8 p.m. November 22. The committee encourages potential candidates who are interested in reduced taxation and responsible government to get in touch with their county committee members and they will be welcome at the Greenbush meeting. The committee will also welcome helpful suggestions from the conservative public for potential candidates.

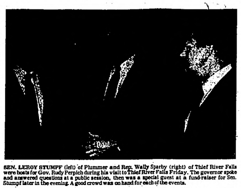
AVTI Nursing Course Starts In December

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) will offer a 120-hour course to help prepare persons for employment as nurse assistants. For those interested in the AVTI LPN program, this course will be given full credit towards the program.

Class is scheduled to meet on Thursdays and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for 10 weeks starting Friday, December 9 in room B24 at Northland community college. Instructors are Syvia Jensen and Ila Flesche. Tuition for the course is $160, and textbook $19.60.

Course consists of theory and practice of basic skills such as bathing, bedmaking, body mechanics and vital signs, and includes practice in classroom lab and clinical area.

Class size is limited to 13. Pre-registration is required by December 5 by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424.



SEN. LEROY STUMPF (left) of Plummer and Rep. Wally Sparby (right) of Thief River Falls were hosts for Gov. Rudy Perpich during his visit to Thief River Falls Friday. The governor spoke and answered questions at a public session, then was a special guest at a fund-raiser for Sen. Stumpf later in the evening. A good crowd was on hand for each of the events.

NCC Computer Courses Slated Winter Quarter

This winter quarter Northland community college (NCC) will be offering the following computer classes: Basic programming and computer utilization. Basic programming, which meets at 12:10 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday beginning December 5, offers the use of flow charting and coding in the basic language.

Computer utilization, which meets at 2:10 on Monday and Thursday beginning December 5, will investigate commercially available software packages.

Basic programming will also be offered on Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. at NCC.

Off-campus computer classes include: Computer Literacy, which will begin in January, from 3:30-5:30 on Wednesdays; and Basic programming from 6 to 9 p.m. on Mondays at the East Grand Forks AVTI; Basic programming from 6 to 9 p.m. starting December 13, in Fosston; Basic programming from 6 to 9 p.m. on Mondays in Roseau; Computer literacy, which will start in January, from 6 to 8 p.m. Mondays in Stephen; and Basic programming from 6 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays in Warroad.

Students may register at the college Monday through Friday during the regular office hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Fee is $22.50 per credit hour. Senior citizens may register for an administrative fee of $5 per credit hour on a space available basis.

VA Approves Medical Center In St. Cloud

Congressman Arlan Stangeland says he has persuaded the Veterans administration to approve $1.8 million for the construction of a VA medical center in St. Cloud.

"I have been working for this for several months," Congressman Stangeland said. "This will improve medical care for the men and women of northwest Minnesota who have served in our armed forces."

The St. Cloud project will renovate and moernize the intermediate nursing units in Building 49.

According to VA officials, the notification for bids on construction of the project will be issued in February of 1985. The contract will be awarded in April of 1985 and completion is expected by September of 1986.

Earlier this year, Congressman Stangeland secured $700,000 for a fire and safety program at the existing VA medical center in St. Cloud. Architectural and engineering contracts for that program will be issued next May. Construction will begin by June of 1985 and completion is expected by June of 1986.

AGRICULTURE COMMISSIONER Jim Nichols discusses the farming situation with Earl Swenson of Oklee during a visit to Thief River Falls Friday. The agriculture commissioner accompanied Gov. Rudy Perpich and energy and economic development commissioner Mark Dayton to Thief River Falls for several meetings and a fund-raiser for Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer. All of the activities were held at the Best Western Inn.

Cooking Tips Offered For Safe Holiday

It's hard to separate Thanksgiving from the cooking aromas of turkey, sweet potatoes, pumpkin and apple pies, etc. But cooking, especially when it involves grease, is one of the leading causes of home fires.

While you're cooking this year's Thanksgiving dinner, the Minnesota safety council hopes you'll remember the following safety rules:

— Start with a clean stovetop, oven and range hood.

— Don't wear frilly garments, especially those with loose sleeves, around a kitchen range. Sleeves are easily ignited by gas or electric burners.

— Don't leave towels or napkins on or near the stove.

— Use potholders, not towels, to move pans on the range. Towels may catch fire.

— If you have to leave the stove turn down the heat. If you'll be gone more than a minute or two, turn off the burner.

— Use the proper size pan for each burner. Small pans on large burners leave exposed sources of heat which may ignite potholders, towels or clothing.

— Learn to light a gas stove properly. If you suspect a gas leak, turn off all controls and open a window or door, then call the gas company.

— If you have a grease fire in a pan, turn off the burner and smother the flames by covering the pan with a lid. Don't try to carry the flaming pan to the sink. If you use a fire extinguisher for a grease fire, be sure it's a dry chemical model.

If a grease fire is small, you may be able to stop it with a handful of baking soda. Never use water on a grease fire; it could spread the flames.

If children help cook Thanksgiving dinner, make them aware of these hazards too. Turn skillet and pan handles toward the center of the stove to prevent accidental overturning.

Safety council has a fact sheet on kitchen safety; to obtain a free copy, write to the Minnesota Safety Council, Inc., 555 Wabasha Street, Suite 102, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102.

Operators Of Boilers To Be Tested At AVTI

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) announces that the division of boiler inspection from the state of Minnesota has scheduled boiler operator license exams for special and second class on Wednesday, December 7 starting at 7 p.m. at the AVTI, room 112.

Persons taking second class exams must bring a signed affidavit form to the testing. Fees for exams are $8 for special, $13 for second class. Affidavits may be obtained by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN, 56701; 681-5424.

BSU To Offer Three Courses At Northland

As part of a continuing effort to provide university courses for students in northern Minnesota, Bemidji state university is offering courses in criminal justice, industrial education, and education to residents of Thief River Falls via teleconferencing, a two-way communication system linking off-campus classes with university instructors.

Crime prevention is a three credit offering in criminal justice emphasizing a multi-disciplinary analysis of measures designed to prevent delinquency and crime. Crime prevention meets on Tuesdays, beginning December 6, from 7 to 10 p.m., at Northland community college (NCC) room B037. Course fees, including tuition and text, are $91.50.

Curriculum development and modern vocational special needs is a three credit industrial education course studying the objectives, methods, and materials involved in developing and modifying curriculum in vocational fields for students with special needs. Class will meet on Wednesdays, beginning November 30, from 4 to 6:50 p.m., at NCC room B-37. Course fees, including tuition and text, are $72.55 for undergraduates, and $92.20 for graduate students.

Psychology of learning, a three credit study focusing on the development of skill in constructing individualized curricula based on psychological knowledge, will be offered every Thursday, starting December 1, from 7 to 10 p.m. at NCC, room B-37. Course fees, including tuition and text, are $100.50.

For more information regarding registration, costs, or teleconferencing, contact the Center for Extended Learning, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

Safety Council Warns People Of Thin Ice

A drop in the temperature may cause Minnesota lakes to begin to freeze, but the Minnesota safety council warns that ice won't be thick enough for any kind of travel for some time.

Minnesotans are asked to remind their children to wait until lakes have developed a thick cover of ice before skating, playing broomball or stepping out onto Minnesota's frozen lakes for any other reason.

Safety council offers the following guidelines for judging whether ice is sufficiently thick:

— Two inches of ice will support one person walking.

— Three inches of ice will support a group of people walking single-file, if the group is spread out.

— Five inches of ice will support the weight of a snowmobile and its rider.

— Seven and a half inches of ice will support a two-ton automobile.

Snowcover on lakes acts as an insulation for water, slowing down freezing, according to safety council.

Before venturing onto a lake, Minnesotans should test the thickness of the ice and be sure that it is frozen over the entire surface. While on the lake, persons should be alert to possible patches of thin ice and to sections of the lake that have been covered with snow.

Senate Page Applications Being Taken

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has announced that his office is taking applications for senate page in Washington, D.C. He will be making three appointments — one each for the spring, summer and fall of 1984.

"The Senate page program is a wonderful opportunity for high school students to learn more about the processes by which we are governed," Boschwitz said. "I encourage young Minnesotans to give serious thought to applying for one of the appointments."

To be eligible for the appointment, a student must be a junior in high school. The spring and summer appointments are open to those who are now juniors; those who are presently sophomores should apply for the fall appointment. The spring appointment will begin at the end of January and terminate at the close of the school year. The summer appointment will begin in June and end with the Labor day Congressional recess. The fall appointment will begin after the recess and end in mid-December.

While in Washington, pages attended the Senate page school for four hours each morning and then report to the Senate for work. Pages are paid a salary and wear a uniform consisting of a navy blue suit and white shirt. Senate pages are required to live in the page residence hall.

Information about the program and application forms may be obtained by writing to Senator Rudy Boschwitz, 210 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101 or by calling 612-221-0904 or 800-652-9771, toll free.

Jamboroos Sot Saturday

Thief River Falls' 1983 fall sports season officially ended Friday when two Lincoln high school girls — diver Teri Klopp and swimmer Michelle Puetz — participated in the Minnesota state swimming and diving championships at the Cook Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Football, volleyball, girls tennis and cross country schedules were completed earlier. Now attention turns to the upcoming 1983-84 winter sports schedule, featuring Lincoln basketball for boys and girls, hockey and boys swimming, along with Northland basketball and hockey.

Additional Times coverage on boys and girls basketball will follow teams from Marshall County Central, Goodridge, Middle River, Plummer and Grygla.

Jamborees will kick off the Thief River Falls basketball and hockey seasons Saturday.

All 19 Section 8 hockey teams will be appearing in the Thief River Falls sports arena for jamboree scrimmage sessions, with newcomer East Grand Forks Sacred Heart matched against the Thief River Falls junior varsity at 11 a.m.; Red Lake Falls vs. Hallock at 12:10 p.m.; Bagley vs. Crosby-Ironton at 1:30 p.m.; Indus vs. Little Falls at 2:30 p.m.; Lake of the Woods vs. Alexandria at 3:40 p.m.; Moorhead vs. Brainerd at 4:50 p.m.; Warroad vs. Detroit Lakes at 6 p.m.; East Grand Forks vs. Bemidji at 7:10 p.m.; Roseau vs. Fergus Falls at 8:20 p.m.; and Crookston vs. Thief River Falls at 9:30 p.m.

Top Section 8 contenders are matched up in the evening sessions, but spectators have a chance to take a look at all the teams, many of them not appearing on the Prowlers' schedule, with a purchase of the jamboree ticket that allows fans to go in and out of the arena throughout the day. It's a community project calling for volunteer help, with proceeds going to the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA).

Also on tap Saturday in the third annual University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) high school basketball jamboree, featuring Bemidji vs. Stephen at 6:30 p.m.; Thief River Falls vs. Warren at 7:20 p.m.; East Grand Forks vs. Fisher at 8:10 p.m.; and Crookston vs. Argyle at 9 p.m.

Hockey jamboree features two 11-minute periods for the participants, with the basketball jamboree featuring two eight-minute quarters for the participating teams.

Section 8 Hockey Notos

Section 8 high school hockey secretary Frank Fee of Crookston issued the following list of last year's Section 8 seniors and where they are playing hockey in 1983-84:

Alexandria — Todd Bork (St. Cloud); Bemidji — Don Smith (Duluth), Mike Sauer (Minnesota), Tim Webb (Austin Jr.), Ron Smith (Austin); Brainerd — Russ Hampson (Bemidji) Todd Dahl (Bemidji); Crookston Kelly Munn (University of Minnesota-Crookston); East Grand Forks — Craig Mack (Minnesota), Jeff Bowen (North Dakota), Joel Durary (Concordia), Wayde Stallmo (UMC); Fergus Falls — Joe Cranston (Des Moines Jr.), Tom Lundeen (Des Moines); Hallock — Mark Nordling (Illinois- Chicago Circle); Lake of the Woods — Jerry Pieper (UMC); Moorhead — Kirk Arnold (Concordia), Steve Sarbacker (Des Moines); Red Lake Falls — Greg Leintz (UMC); Roseau — Chad Johnson (Illinois-Chicago Circle), Larry Goos (Concordia), Paul Erickson (Des Moines); Thief River Falls — Tim Bergland (Minnesota), Tom Kenville (Clarkson), Jeff Storhaug (Des Moines), Rod Harder (Northland), Chris Jorde (Northland), Mike Torgerson (Northland); and Warroad — John Bjorkman (Michigan.

Section 8 had five players selected in the National Hockey League draft last year, and Fee figures this year's top prospects should include Paul Broten (Roseau), Rick Dahl (Crookston), Todd Boushee (East Grand Forks), Kris Werner (Fergus Falls), Brian Johnston (Thief River Falls), Mike Donley (Fergus Falls) and Tom Pederson (Roseau).

Roseau Heads Pre-Season Section 8 Hockey Poll

		pts.
1.	Roseau (13½)	144
2.	Fergus Falls (5½)	129
3.	Thief River Falls (½)	92
4.	East Grand Forks	77
	Crookston	77
6.	Bemidji	72
7.	Detroit Lakes	34
8.	Warroad	33
9.	Lake of the Woods	8
10.	Moorhead	7
11.	Alexandria	6
12.	Brainerd	5

Other seven teams did not receive votes: Bagley, Crosby-Ironton, Hallock, Indus, Little Falls, Red Lake Falls and Sacred Heart. First place votes are in parenthesis.

Roseau Rams were picked by 14 of the 19 coaches to finish first and repeat as Section 8 high school hockey champions according to a poll of Section 8 coaches conducted by KROX radio in Crookston.

Roseau lost only five from last years state tournament team and have 19 seniors out for this year's squad. Roseau, should be challenged by last years regular season champions, the Fergus Falls Otters. Fergus Falls was picked to finish second by 10 coaches as well as first by six others.

Roseau, Fergus Falls, last year's Section 8 runner-up Thief River Falls, and perennial contender, East Grand Forks, were the only four teams named on all 19 coaches' ballots. Points were given as follows: 8 for first place, 7 for second, 6 for third and so on.

A brief synopsis of each team, as provided by Frank Fee of KROX.

Roseau — 19 seniors could create a problem (of who to play), but one every coach would like to have, for coach Gary Hokanson. Rams lost only five from last year's state tourney team. Returns All-Section — center and section's third leading scorer, Paul Broten (31g-20a); one of finer defenseman in section, Tom Pederson (8g-11a); and also has back goalie Don Johnson (17gms-2.8ga). Rams, as always, seem to pull them off the assembly line and just have all around balance.

Fergus Falls — Tim Cullen took Fergus Falls to Section 8 regular season championship in his first year, but Fergus has been bit by first round elimination and look to correct that this year. Also lost only five from last year and it's hard to find any weaknesses in this year's team. Have top five scorers back, including, second team All-Section 8 Craig Hedstrom (14g-23a); goal sniper Mike Donley (15g-12a); countless other forwards; big defenseman, led by Kris Werner (2g-10a); and have both goalies back who pretty much split last year. Could be year of the Otters, who have Roseau on their schedule for the first time.

Thief River Falls — Prowlers were a goal away from the state tourney last year. They lost three of top five scorers, but don't feel too sorry for Wendell Grand's Prowlers. Grand does have back two four-year veterans — Tim Bottem (13g-9a) and Mitch Semanko (9g-6a), plus a good group of other forwards like Rick Spong (10g-9a). Also, four defenseman who have at one time or another have seen at least two years of varsity experience, including big defenseman, Brian Johnston (1g-9a), back after missing first half of year. Need to fill goalie spot and if they do, very well could be right there again.

East Grand Forks — Green Wave have six of top 10 scorers back from last year. They had 40 goals amongst them, while the four they lost had 45 total. Need these six to come through and put it in the net, players like Bill Stauss (7g-15a) and Ryan Christiansen (7g-11a), plus eight-goal scorers Todd Boushee and Steve Ristau. Coach Tony Palmiscno lost All Section 8 defenseman Craig Mack and looks for help on defense as well as goaltender. Green Wave's three goalies last year were seniors. But Palmiscno has built a good program and will challenge. Green Wave also lost junior Corey Olson who moved to Colorado. Olson was a seven-goal scorer last year.

Crookston — Coach Mike Lundby has 14 letterman back, including eight of top 10 scorers back, hooded by leading scorers Mark Lyczewski (13g-24a) and Rick Dahle (15g-18a). They also have returning from a year going to school and playing midget hockey in Canada junior Monte French who had 19g-23 assists for Crookston two years ago as a freshman. French, very well could be on of the top, if not the best playmakers in Section 8. Pirates defense will be led by Mike Hastings (6g-11a) and goalie Derek Bray is back. Pirates if they stay healthy this year will challenge with a high scoring offense.

Bemidji — Coach Bryan Grand said goodbye to his top three scorers from his first line who had 50 goals on the year, including 30 from center Don Smith. Jacks do have back Mike Johnson (9g-11a) and a mature junior defenseman Bob Smith (3g-8a). Need to replace scorers and last year's Section 8 goalie Mike Sauer. Grand will look for help from Bemidji Bantam team that won the state VFW tourney.

Detroit Lakes — Lakers will be led by Bob Caulfield (16g-7a) who was drafted in the fifth round of the NHL draft last year by the New York Islanders. Coach Duane Earnest will need help from Tom Johnson (8g-11a) and have goalie Chad Meyhoff return to his form of 1981-82 to contend. Lakers will have talented key people, but need some others to come through to have a successful year.

Warroad — Moving from head coach at Hallock to this, his first year at Warroad, Jon Bittner is faced with replacing Warroad's top two scorers. Has Matt Knox (12g-16a), Ryan and Rick Christian as well as Dion Hebl on defense. Need to find goalie and help from youth program. Warriors have about 28 out for hockey, including a Swedish foreign exchange student, Thomas Perrson, who could help.

Lake of the Woods — Doug Nosan is back as head coach for the Bears. Nosan, who was head coach from 1972-78, replaces Jerry Drewes, last year's Section 8 coach of the year for the 17-3 Bears. Drewes, resigned about two weeks ago. Last years explosive Bears lost top three scorers, including the top two in Section 8. Also lost All-Section 8 defenseman Jerry Pieper and both starting goalies. Have to rely on super junior Wayne (Bucky) Chapman (21g-15a), Curt Bitter (18g-18a) and Dave Buegler (14g-13a). Kevin Pieper might

Two Prowlers Compete Friday In State Meet

Thief River Falls' Teri Klopp and Michelle Puetz failed to advance past Friday's prelims in the 1983 Minnesota state high school girls swimming and diving championships held Friday and Saturday at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Puetz, a sophomore, was a sectional champion in the 100-yard butterfly and Klopp, a junior, was a fifth place sectional finisher in diving.

"They got a taste of what state competition is all about," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "They found out what the pressure is like. They'll be back next year, and they'll be more comfortable in that situation."

Burnsville won its third straight state meet title with 132 points, finishing ahead of St. Anthony with 109, Mounds View 107 and Edina 94 as the metropolitan-area teams once again dominated the meet.

"I was really impressed with the competition," reported Forney. "It's just unreal."

While Puetz and Klopp, Thief River Falls' only fall sports state meet participants in 1983 in any sport, failed to dent the strong state competition, Forney still praised their efforts in achieving their preseason state meet goal. "It was a great way to cap their season. They'll be back next year, and we hope to bring a couple more along."

MINNESOTA DEPARTMENT of Natural Resources (DNR) Enforcement Director Fred Hammer (left) offered congratulations to conservation officer Craig Backer of Thief River Falls, who has been appointed area enforcement supervisor with the responsibility for directing the activities of conservation officers in a substantial portion of northwestern Minnesota. Backer, 27, attended high school in Bagley and has a degree in criminal justice from Bemidji State University. He joined the DNR in 1977 and served at Big Falls before being assigned to duties in Thief River Falls in 1980. The announcement of his appointment was made at DNR offices in St. Paul last week.

Lincoln Girls Have Young '83-84 Basketball Team

Young and inexperienced. That's the way Lincoln high school girls basketball coach Tom Schafer described his 1983-84 Prowlers, who are preparing for their season opener Tues., Nov. 29, at home against Marshall County Central.

Senior guard Paula Wilkens and junior forward Michelle Olson are the only starters back from last year's 3-14 squad, and Olson is the only proven scorer on the squad. She averaged a team-leading 13.9 points per game as a sophomore. Wilkens' scoring was minimal as she played the role of ball handler and passer, instead.

"We're very young and very inexperienced," repeated Schafer. "We've got some potential there, it's just the inexperience that will hold us back."

With Olson expected to provide the bulk of the offense, Schafer is stressing defense to help take some of the pressure off his top scorer. "We can't expect to out-score many people," he admitted. "We're stressing the fast break and pressure defense to keep other teams off balance. Michelle's the only one we know can score, and if people shut her down we're in trouble."

Thief River Falls' early season roster includes seniors Shari Larson, Colleen Cullen, Peggy Mehrkens and Wilkens; juniors Stacy Kruta, Penni Johnston, Crystal Larson, Tami Jorde and Olson; sophomores Connie Grovum, Michelle Puetz, Joni Courneya, Patty Kinsman, Shawn Hume, Kari Hanson, Lynell Armstrong, Stacie Carriere, Ingrid Klopp, Stephanie Hovet, Tammy Gunderson, Tina Sorteberg, Pauline Lindberg and Kim Aune; plus freshmen Brenda Russell, Gayle Borchert, Michelle Turenne, Marvi Turenne, Mindy Hornseth, Karen Schmitz, Laura Beito, Julie Vanyo, Robin Bruggeman, Debbie Souto, Bobbie Thompson and Cheri Sinn.

Complicating matters in early practice drills has been a rash of illness that has slowed the progress of the young team, mentioned Schafer.

"We're going to have to take it one game at a time," he explained. "The entire season will be a learning experience for our young players."

Northland Community College Basketball...

Northwomen Are Short On Numbers This Year

Northland community college women's basketball team is both short and tall this year, reports coach Deb Jacobson of the Northwomen.

They're short on numbers, but tall in size. There are just eight players on the 1983-84 preseason roster, but half of them are 5-10 or taller.

"It's one of the tallest groups I've had," mentioned Jacobson. It's also one of the smallest, and one of the youngest teams the Northwomen have fielded, with just two players back from last year's 8-11 ball club.

Top returning sophomore and the only full-time starter returning is Tara Nicholson, a 5-11 center from Thief River Falls, one of the best players in the Northwest Division. She averaged 14.8 points per game last year, with 181 rebounds and 19 blocked shots.

Lorene Bulzomi, a 5-4 guard from Fertile-Beltrami saw some playing time a year ago off the bench for the Northwomen.

Only other sophomore on the roster is first-year performer MaryAnn Smith, a recent 5-7 addition from Redlake.

Freshmen working with the team include 5-8 Brenda Dahl of Newfolden; 5-10 Jenyne Beehler of Finlayson; 6-0 Karen Sovde of Greenbush; 5-11 Jennifer Lufkin of Crookston; and 5-7 Kari Skoglund of Middle River.

Sovde and Beehler are expected to provide scoring and rebounding help inside for Nicholson, who is plagued by knee problems. Skoglund could be the team's top ball handler and outside shooter, but Dahl and Bulzomi are also expected to contribute in those roles.

Jacobson won't offer a preseason prediction for the Northwomen. She simply warns that Northland, with its small squad, will have to be in top shape physically to be competitive in the Northwest Division.

TREFAHA Has Meet Tonight

A reminder that the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) will meet tonight (Monday) at 7 p.m. in the Franklin middle school library for its monthly general membership meeting.

Hockey Jamboree Is Set For Saturday

Fourteenth annual preseason Section 8 high school hockey jamobree will be held Saturday in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

All 19 Section 8 teams will be involved in the day-long program, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA). Jamboree scrimmage sessions will feature two 11-minute periods.

Schedule for the day will include:

11 a.m. — East Grand Forks Sacred Heart vs. Thief River Falls junior varsity; 12:10 p.m. — Red Lake Falls vs. Hallock; 1:20 p.m. — Bagley vs. Crosby-Ironton; 2:30 p.m. — Indus vs. Little Falls; 3:40 p.m. — Lake of the Woods vs. Alexandria; 4:50 p.m. — Moorhead vs. Brainerd; 6 p.m. — Warroad vs. Detroit Lakes; 7:10 p.m. — East Grand Forks vs. Bemidji; 8:20 p.m. — Roseau vs. Fergus Falls; 9:30 p.m. — Crookston vs. Thief River Falls.

Sponsors stress the fact that the jamboree offers fans the opportunity to preview all 19 Section 8 teams just before the start of the 1983-84 regular season schedule. In addition to northwestern Minnesota hockey fans, the jamboree annually draws a number of college and professional hockey scouts.

Tickets, good for all ten scrimmage sessions, are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Blue Devils Enjoy First Football Season Results

First-year Grygla-Goodridge cooperative high school football program enjoyed a happy marriage for the two former rivals, who banded together and produced an enviable 8-1 record in 1983.

Only a one-touchdown loss to unbeaten North Tri-County Conference champion Plummer in an early season showdown kept it from being a perfect matrimony. As it was, the success the Blue Devils enjoyed this fall surprised even head coach Rick Nelson.

"Definitely, it worked out better than I thought it would," said Nelson in reference to the cooperative venture. "It went a lot smoother than what we had anticipated."

It was clearly the best season either Grygla or Goodridge ever enjoyed in the North Tri-County Conference. Goodridge has been a league member since the conference was formed in 1963 — with the exception of the 1976 season when the Huskies did not field a team — and Grygla joined upon the opening of the new school there in 1974. Best previous finish for Goodridge was a 5-3 third place effort in 1972. Best finish for Grygla was 4-3 and a fourth place tie in 1977. Grygla had managed just four wins the three previous seasons, and Goodridge had just eight.

"We have to be happy with 8-1," mentioned Nelson. "It would have been nice, of course, to be 9-0 and conference champion, but not many teams can say they finished the season with a seven-game winning streak."

But that's what the Blue Devils did. After opening the 1983 season with a 20-6 non-conference win over Marshall County Central, Grygla-Goodridge dropped that 14-8 title-deciding decision to Plummer in the final moments of play. The loss was a bitter disappointment since the two teams were billed as preseason conference favorites, but the Blue Devils didn't stay down long, rebounding to beat a strong Erskine-Mentor team 12-8 the following week to start their season-ending seven-game winning steak that also included wins over Fisher 8-6, McIntosh-Winger 53-0, Middle River 36-0, Oklee 12-6, Clearbrook 16-8 and Gonvick-Trail 28-22.

"I think they showed a lot of class and character to come back and win seven in a row," noted Nelson, who said it was even more of an impressive finish when you realize that by losing the early season confrontation with Plummer the Blue Devils put themselves into a hole they knew they would have trouble escaping since the North Tri-County Conference champion has traditionally been undefeated or once-beaten. And Grygla-Goodridge did indeed spend the rest of the 1983 season chasing Plummer.

While it was a total team effort that produced the 8-1 record, Grygla-Goodridge was led by four all-conference picks, including senior runningback Doug Schulz, who rushed for 1,110 yards this fall, averaging 6.2 yards per carry and scoring 14 touchdowns on the ground. Other all-conference picks were senior quarterback Tony Wiseth, junior runningback Rick Mosher and junior lineman Dale Verbout.

Meanwhile, at last week's post-season team banquet, senior runningback-defensive back Wayne Byklum was named the team's most valuable player; Schulz was named the most valuable back; Verbout was named the outstanding lineman; junior Tim Wayne was named the team's defensive player of the year; and junior Scott Groven was named the special teams player of the year.

"We received really good leadership from our seniors," pointed out Nelson. "We're going to miss all seven of them." That group includes Byklum, Wiseth, Jeff Klein, Schulz, Lon Englund, Rodney Haugen and Brian Jones.

While Schulz proved to be one of the top backs in the North Tri-County Conference, it was the development of the offensive line that opened things up for the Blue Devils after a slow start offensively and was the key to the squad's success, said Nelsen.

Wayne, Haugen, Verbout and junior Tim Schulz were the offensive lineman receiving the praise from Nelson, who also cited their play up front defensively, where juniors Bill Newschwander and Ron Kiesow also got in playing time.

Nelson, the former head coach at Goodridge, was also quick to point out the contribution from assistant coach Darwin Hagen, the former head coach at Grygla, plus the coaching help provided by Rory Haugen, Dan Brinkman and Tim Molstrom.

An 8-1 record will be hard to duplicate, but the Blue Devils have already set their sights on an unbeaten 1984 North Tri-County Conference championship season, explained Nelson.

Northland Football Players Are Picked

Three Northland community college football players have been named to the 1983 All-Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division honor squad, it was announced by coach John Helley of the Northmen.

Earning the all-conference honors for the Northmen were Todd Graalum, a sophomore wide receiver from Fargo, N.D.; Greg Langerud, a sophomore defensive end from Edinburgh, N.D.; and Wade Hruby, a freshman offensive guard from Thief River Falls.

Four other Northland players were given honorable mention status for post-season honors, including Bob Rockwood, a versatile sophomore from Fargo, who was named at two positions — offensive runningback and defensive back.

Northland freshman listed on the honorable mention roster were Steve Blanc, a quarterback from Columbia Heights; Steve Robinson, a defensive lineman from Westland, Mich.; and Jay Weiher, a defensive lineman from Verndale.

Helley, who stepped down as coach of the Northmen following completion of the 1983 season, said he was delighted with the number of players gaining post-season recognition, especially in light of the 0-8 record the Northmen compiled this fall.

City League Basketball To Meet Tonight

Organizational meeting for the 1983-84 Thief River Falls city league basketball program will be held tonight (Monday) at 7 p.m. in the city auditorium.

All teams interested in playing a league schedule this winter should be represented at the meeting.

Section 8 Poll Is Headed By Roseau Squad

be only goalie dressed for varsity with John Gillie, a defenseman being backup. The Bears also have a foreign exchange student, this one from Finland who has played in the U.S. before with a Finland team. His name is Markku Piha.

Moorhead — spuds won only one regular season game last year, but played well at the end right into the Section 8 tournament. Coach Terry Shercliffe has six of his top 10 scorers back, including Steve Dorsey (11g-6a) and Todd Schuler (7g-10a). Have a lot of youth competing for spots, including senior Jim Steen, who missed almost all of last year after breaking leg in jamboree. Spuds have tested goalie back in Chris Miller (21gms-5.8 ga).

Alexandria — Cardinals will have a senior team, including 11-goal scorer Troy Olson and 10-goal scorers Ross Campbell and Curt Nelson. Coach Mike Donahue does not have many juniors so will have to have help from his sophomore class. Should be set in goal with Jeff Bast back from a 4.0ga and 87 per cent save figure in 17 games.

Brainerd — Coach Tom Younghans lost top three scorers and will have a young team that is maybe a year away. Led by David Ellingson (10g-6a) and Rob Abear (11g-3a). On defense, led by Sandy Smith, just a soph, (4g-6a) and Kurt Muesing (4g-5a). Have goalie Steve Ebinger (22gms-3.7g.a.) back.

Bagley — Flyers are in a transition period, according to coach Everett Goodwin. Last year in their first the Flyers finished 4-12. Have Bob Bestul back, though. Bestul had 30 goals and 17 assists in 17 games last year.

Crosby-Ironton — Joe Ernster has his leading scorer back in Dave Stimac with 10 goals last year. The Rangers will have to score more. They had only 32 goals last year. Have both goalies back with Tim Palmer playing in 17 last year and averaged 40 saves a game.

Hallock — First year coach Wes Bolin, a Minneapolis West graduate and comes right from Wisconsin-Eau Claire. Has Jon Davis, the team's second leading scorer back (12g-19a) as well as Jon's brother, Todd, and two starting defenseman — David Koop (6g-8a) and Joel Muir. Need goalie to fill Loren Younggren's shoes, who played in all but two games.

Indus — Tom King will have almost everybody back (15 letterman with only three seniors) and that includes his first line intact; Loren Nelson at center (15g-13a) and his wings Jeff Pelland (15g-10a) and Tony Lucek (14g-11a). Both goalies are back, Steve Lindmark (7.1ga) and Pat Lucek (7.1ga). Should improve on 6-13 record from last season.

Little Falls — Head coach John Wagner's Flyers scored 59 goals last year and they have lost 48 of those goals through graduation. Only two seniors are back, including Terry Nolan (8g-12a) and defenseman Mark Peterson (2g-5a) who will be counted on for leadership. Need to fill goalie spot for John Eidenshink, who graduated and the only one to play in nets for Little Falls.

Red Lake Falls — Red Lake Falls lost only three from last year, but they included Greg Leintz, a 19-goal scorer. Coach Jeff Lindquist does return Richie Majeres (11g-19a) and Troy Hoffman. All four defenseman are back, led by Troy Schmitz (5g-8a) and has junior goalie Bill Walsh who had a very respectable 4.6 ga in all 19 of Red Lake Falls games. Could be a good year for the Eagles if they can put the puck in the net.

Sacred Heart — Catholic high school in East Grand Forks first year of sanctioned hockey. Played club hockey last year against Bagley and JV teams and were 0-6. Father Pat Sullivan, a former Section 8 player from Mount St. Benedict high school that was in Crookston. Has leading scorer back from last year's team, Mike [illegible], who hails from Crookston. As all first year teams, will be a season of learning.

DNR NEWS

TIP Arrests

Number of arrests made by DNR conservation officers with information supplied through the Turn in Poachers (TIP) program rose charply in October over the previous month, it was reported this week.

In September, officers made 17 arrests using TIP information, but in October there were 37 arrests, mostly for violations of the deer and waterfowl laws.

Fifteen arrests were made for infractions of the deer hunting regulations and 12 persons were apprehended for violating the waterfowl hunting rules.

There were five arrests for the illegal taking of moose, three for fishing violations and one each for trapping and nongame species.

A total of $3,300 in reward money was paid out during October to informants who provided information to the DNR that led to arrests.

Department protects the identity of persons who provide information under the TIP program and has established two special phone numbers to use when reporting violations.

Toll-free number is 1-800-652-9093.

Fish Hathery Costs

A new wood burning boiler being installed at the DNR's French River Fish Hatchery near Duluth will cut fuel costs $28,000 annually and pay for itself in less than four years, officials claim.

Unit is expected to burn 7 tons of wood pellets a day and still warm waters drawn from Lake Superior for the incubation of salmon eggs and for fish rearing.

Hatchery currently rears over two million fish annually for waters of northeastern Minnesota and Lake Superior.

Wood fired boiler will heat 150 gallons of Lake Superior water per minute which will be mixed with unheated water to obtain the proper temperature to incubate Atlantic Salmon and Chinook salmon eggs.

Heated water will be re-used five times in the rearing "raceways" before leaving the hatchery.

Fuel savings will result from switching to wood burning instead of continuing to use oil. The funds for the new unit were appropriated by the legislature.

Dioxin Study

Value of Minnesota's designated "Scientific and Natural Areas" was illustrated recently when two of the sites were included in a study by the Environmental Protection Agency to determine naturally occurring levels of dioxin, a toxic man-made chemical linked to health hazards.

SNA's are administered by the Department of Natural Resources and are managed to protect rate species and habitats, for educational purposes and for scientific study.

Two SNA's used for sampling of dioxin levels are in Polk and Pine counties.

Pembina Trail Preserve in Polk county is one of the largest remaining tracts of native prairie in Minnesota. It is 1,660 acres in size and located about 20 miles from Crookston.

Kettle River SNA in Pine county is a 760 acre tract just east of Hinckley. It features a floodplain forest, many springs and rate plants in addition to a rare bird species in Minnesota, the Louisiana waterthrush.

DNR officials said the decision by the EPA to use the Scientific and Natural Areas in their dioxin study "recognizes the tremendous research and educational potential of one of North America's finest systems of natural areas."

DNR hotline

1. Why is there not any white spruce seedlings available to the public for planting in 1984?

White spruce will be available for 1984 planting on private lands. A news release will be in the papers in the next few weeks. However, do not order white spruce until the release is made public. Regional forestry office.

2. My husband is handicapped and when we travel I must help him use the restroom. Can the state build a small separate unisex handicapped toilet in rest areas to avoid the problem of bringing a male into a segregated toilet?

Department of Transportation operates the rest areas along Minnesota Highways and they will need to respond for those areas. However, two state parks in Minnesota (Lake Bronson and Sibley) have separated handicapped accessible modern toilets in their campgrounds. While these are open only in the summer, most state parks also have very nice accessible pit toilets available any time. In addition, most winterized park offices have handicapped facilities, and park staff will gladly cooperate to accomodate handicapped person. Please call 218-755-3976 or your local state park for more information. Merle DeBoer, regional parks supervisor.

3. What environmental educational programs and activities are available for the winter months in Minnesota state parks?

All Minnesota state parks are open year-round and provide a variety of recreational and educational opportunities. Fortunately seven state parks also have year-round naturalist led programs. These parks are Fort Snelling State Park, St. Paul (612) 726-9247; St. Croix Wild River, Almelund (612) 583-2125; Whitewater, Altura (507) 932-3007; Blue Mounds, Luverne (507) 283-4892; Sibley, New London (612) 354-2055; Lake Bemidji, Bemidji (218) 755-3844; Helmer Myre, Albert Lea (507) 373-4492. For more information on winter activities or for special group programs, contact one of the above state parks. John Fylpaa, Lake Bemidji State Park naturalist.

4. Do you have a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 755-3976.

National Wildlife Federation

News Release

One's trash may become another's art.

In Jim Gary's case, he turns junked cars into sculptures of dinosaurs.

Gary has combined his love of cars, his interest in dinosaurs, and his talents as a sculptor into a successful career, according to this month's issue of Ranger Rick, the monthly children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation. In fact, Gary's work was shown last year at the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh, and is now on display at his studio in Red Bank, New Jersey.

It all began when Gary, as a teenager, would comb auto junkyards looking for parts to rebuild old cars. Soon his artistic eye began to imagine the skulls, ribs and backbones of monstrous dinosaurs amid the crankcases, hoods and carburators.

Today, his priorities have changed. Now he pokes around junkyards in search of special auto parts that can become works of art — sections of wreckage that can be cleaned, cut and shaped into the metal pieces he needs. He then welds the old car parts to form junk giants ranging from a tyrannosaurus to a pterosaur, and paints the finished product.

It may take months or even years for Gary to build one of his prehistoric beasts, according to Ranger Rick. "Apatosaurus," his largest work to date, is made from over 500 auto parts — all discovered in New Jersey junkyards. Most of the auto parts he uses come from cars more than 10 years old, the sculptor says, because they have more "character" than those from newer automobiles.

By creating his amazing sculptures from things that have been thrown away, Gary wants to show the importance of recycling materials that some people think are "used up." We should all be less wasteful, he thinks — before we find ourselves as extinct as the dinosaur.

School Board Proceedings

November 21, 1983
Regular Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 564
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
October 24, 1983

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District No. 564 was held at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, October 24, 1983 in the Board Room of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Paul Bortnem, Archie Cameron, Hank Hallstrom, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Leo Ruberto, Special Education Director.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m. and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by G. Pribula to approve the Minutes of the October 10, 1983 Regular Board Meeting. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the bills as submitted. Motion carried unanimously.

The audit report for the year ending June 30, 1983 was given for K-12 and the AVTI by Russ Christianson of the Moser and Christianson auditing firm. The report indicated a significant drop in the district's fund balance and a substantial change in the district's cash flow picture due to a property tax shift.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by P. Bortnem to approve a transfer from the General Fund to the Food Service Fund to cover a deficit of $24,831. Motion carried unanimously.

Board members were reminded to submit recommendations for membership on the Building Committee.

Information concerning a proposed three-class system for athletics was distributed and briefly discussed with no action taken at this time.

A number of individuals were present to request permission from the Board to offer the Boys Swimming Program for the 1983-84 school year. A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by H. Hallstrom to provide for the Boys Swimming Program if a line of credit is extended from a bank to insure payment, payable no later than May 1, 1984 in full to the school district. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by H. Hallstrom to accept the bid of Schools Insurance Fund in the amount of $.00595 for LTD coverage to be effective from November 1, 1983 through October 31, 1984. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the sale of the AVTI IBM Systems 34 computer to Home Lumber Company at a price of $19,000 payable upon receiving the merchandise. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by P. Bortnem and seconded by H. Hallstrom to accept the bid of Hewlett Packard Equipment in the amount of $37,735 for AVTI Electronics Equipment. Motion carried unanimously.

The Board was informed that the Bus Drivers have requested mediation in negotiation of their contract which involves only salaries for 1983-84. No date has been scheduled for the session.

Representatives from Jobs Incorporated were present to discuss with the Board a request for additional funding from the school district for the 1984 calendar year. A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by G. Pribula to approve an expenditure of $10,000 from the Community Education Unappropriated Fund Balance to Jobs Incorporated provided matching money of $15,000 is furnished by the County and another $15,000 by the City with monies to be made available on or before January 1, 1984. A roll call vote was taken which resulted in the following: A. Aune — no; P. Bortnem — yes; A. Cameron — yes; M. Carlson — absent; H. Hallstrom — yes; G. Pribula — yes; H. Sjulson — yes. Motion carried.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by A. Cameron authorizing the AVTI to enter into a lease-purchase agreement with IBM for a Systems 34 CPU, printer, 3 CRTs, software, and maintenance agreement. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve the following resolution:

WHEREAS, there is a documented need for the development of appropriate educational programs for students with emotional-behavioral problems, and

WHEREAS, there is a need to develop methods for interdistrict cooperation in dealing with the needs of these students,

THEREFORE, the Northwest Regional Interdistrict Council and the Thief River Falls Public Schools agree to engage in a cooperative planning effort utilizing the Johnson-Gadberry Program Development Model. The finally developed plan will be submitted to the respective governing boards for their individual consideration by April, 1984. The ECSU's regional facilitator for children with emotional-behavioral disabilities will assist the district in this effort.

Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by P. Bortnem and seconded by A. Aune to charge a $50 consultant fee and $5 materials fee to out-of-state Cosmetology students for testing. Additional time beyond 6½ hours will be charged at $10 per hour. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by P. Bortnem to approve the following extra-curricular assignments for 1983-84 at rates to be negotiated: Cal Lindberg — 9th Grade Class Advisor; James Goldesberry — 10th Grade Class Advisor; Darwin Boutiette — 11th Grade Class Advisor; J.A. Kotz — 12th Grade Class Advisor; Cal Lindberg — Photography Club Advisor; Everett Marshall — Stage Manager; Doug Engstrom — Pep Band; Julie Jossund — Cheerleading Advisor; Kathy Olson — Cheerleading Advisor; Lynda Jochims — Yearbook Advisor; Lynda Jochims — Usherettes; Kenton Kainz — 8th Grade Boys Basketball Coach.

Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by P. Bortnem and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the transfer of Delmer Rux from Custodian at Lincoln to Custodian at Franklin effective October 25, 1983. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the employment of Marilyn Weir as AVTI Receptionist-Student Services Secretary with salary and fringe benefits as per negotiated contract effective October 25, 1983. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by P. Bortnem to approve the posting of a Custodial position at Lincoln as a result of the custodial transfer to Franklin. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by P. Bortnem to set the next Regular Board Meeting for November 14, 1983 at 8:00 p.m. in the Lincoln High School Auditorium. Motion carried unanimously.

Board members were invited to attend the Open House at Lincoln scheduled for November 14 beginning at 7:00 p.m.

AGRI-GROWTH REPORT!

by RUSS SCHWANDT

With Minnesota's Iron Range suffering widespread unemployment, due, in part, to the heavy reliance on steel imports, the entire subject of foreign imports has a special meaning in this state. However, few of us associate this with our agricultural economy.

If you are one of those, then consider this true tale: On June 10, 1983, the Japanese ship Satu Maru sailed from Pranagua, Brazil, with a cargo of 10,730 metric tons of cottonseed oil bound for Memphis, Tennessee, and the Hunt-Wesson Foods plant. Hunt-Wesson would then process that imported oil into cooking and salad oils, and a number of other products.

You have read correctly. The same country that, in the year preceding September 30, 1982, exported 384,000 tons of cottonseed oil—which was 77 percent of the worldwide export total—was now importing one of our leading agricultural export products.

And here's how we got in this fix:

Ten years ago, President Ford's experts told him the U.S. crop of soybeans was going to be insufficient for our domestic needs. These same experts talked Nixon into embargoing soybeans and products of other edible oils. Japan, one of our greatest soybean export customers, went into hysterics. They depend on soybeans as their major source of protein.

As a result of our not being a reliable source, the Japanese invested heavily in Brazil's soybean and cotton products. This has made Brazil the world's second largest exporter of edible oils.

Couple this with American banks making large dollar loans to nations, like Brazil, to be used in any way they see fit. These banks then demand that these countries—again, like Brazil—export their edible oils, virtually at any cost, in order to get dollars to pay off American loans. The governments with these loans then subsidize the exports, and we end up with a situation like the import of cottonseed oil to Memphis. It's crazy.

Better yet, let me quote Dwayne Andreas, chairman of Archer Daniels Midland Co., this nation's largest processor of edible oils. Andreas, referring to the Brazilian shipment to Memphis, called it "...not only the ultimate insult to American farmers, but to our nation's biggest industry, agribusiness."

Again, I say it's crazy!

Russ Schwandt is a farmer, agribusinessman, former Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's and President of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations and companies in the state's agriculture industry.

Photographers Of Stars Remember Their Personality

by Iak Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

People have been stargazing for thousands of years. Once, all too briefly, the stars gazed back. Garbo, Gable, Dietrich, Davis, Crawford, Tracy, Hepburn and Grant gazed at the world for millions of 8x10 glamour glossies produced by the movie studios in Hollywood's golden era.

Heavenly Hollywood fraternity focused its attention and energy on us in the 1920s, '30s and '40s and drew us inexorably into its orbit. As motion picture actors, they had been taught to avoid the camera's seductive eye, to be oblivious to the audience. "But the still portraits were different from the movies," photographer Ted Allan points out. Allan, who photographed such stars as Jean Harlow, Jimmy Stewart, Spencer Tracy and Carole Lombard in the 1930s, explains, "In those photographs the stars appealed to the viewer, saying 'love me, love me.' "

Photographic portraits of the stars were produced, and endlessly reproduced, filling the clamorous demands of newspapers, magazines and devoted fans. Studio publicity departments measured the pictures' worth in pounds. Portrait photographer Laszlo Willinger recalls his first day at MGM: "The head of the publicity department asked me, 'How many pounds of negatives have you done?' " Paramount released more than 1,700 portraits of Carole Lombard alone during her years with the studio. Still pictures kept the lights-camera-action world of moving pictures rolling.

Yet, the studio portrait photographers who created the original prints were, for years, in the darkroom of public awareness. They have come into the light with the help of "Hollywood Portrait Photographers 1921-1941," an exhibition organized by New York City's museum of modern art with the collaboration of collector John Kobal.

The Hollywood show, based on Kobal's extensive collection of original photographs and negatives, was a smash hit when it played the Smithsonian's national portrait gallery in Washington D.C. "It was our most popular show — ever," William Stapp, the museum's curator of photographs, reports. As many as 5,000 visitors a day, elbow to elbow in the gallery's elegant halls, looked at the stars. And from original prints, some newly made from old negatives by the photographers themselves, the stars returned the compliment.

Now the stars, as stars will, have moved on. "Hollywood Portrait Photographers 1921-1950" has opened in Paris at the Centre Culturel du Marais and will travel to Venice, Florence and Milan in the next two years. In the expanded continental version of the show, a subtitle should not be necessary for one photograph — a portrait of the current president of the United States. In the 1939 photograph by Scott Welbourne, Ronald Reagan looks, John Kobal says, "like the guy a mother is baking her apple pie for. Ronald Reagan was always your archetypal boy next door," he notes, "a good-looking, small-town guy whom everybody liked, but nobody's fool."

Public's affection for a particular screen personality meant business at the box office. And so, in the 1920s, the studios began to build a multi-million-dollar industry on a foundation of stardust. Studios like MGM and Paramount established publicity departments designed to turn contract players into stars. The lead role in this drama fell to the photographers hired by the studios to create glamorous images of their "properties." What was a "glamorous" image? "It had a lot to do with sex appeal," Stapp comments. "These were manipulative images, let's face it."

And face it the Hollywood portrait photographers did. "They were extremely successful in using the close-up to achieve maximum dramatic effect," Stapp says. Willinger, who had photographed psychiatric greats Jung and Freud in Europe, was not fazed by proximity to — as the MGM publicity department boasted — "More Stars Than There Are in Heaven." "Our objective was to make a totally idealized, larger-than-life figure of the stars on which the whole system was built," Willinger recalls.

Willinger, Allan and their colleagues — Ruth Harriet Louise, Ernest Bachrach, Clarence Sinclair Bull, Eugene R. Richee, William Walling Jr., Robert Coburn, Scotty Welbourne and George Hurrell — were trusted and treasured by the stars. Lillian Gish says of Louise, the rabbi's daughter who at age 19 had her own MGM portrait gallery in 1925, "Her photographs were magnificent. I took orders from her as I would have from D.W. Griffith." Before Greta Garbo became a legend, Louise photographed the young actress, a vulnerable newcomer to America, and developed a great rapport with her.

Joan Crawford so trusted her longtime photographer, George Hurrell, that she allowed him to photograph her — freckles flying all over her face — WITHOUT MAKEUP. Makeup was unnecessary to Hurrell's artistry. He painted the faces of Harlow, Shearer, Lombard and Gable with light and shadow. Photographing the stars with little or no makeup soon became standard practice. Bette Davis, the very essence of a star, today pays Hurrell a supreme compliment: "A great deal of my fame was a result of the great portraits taken of me by George Hurrell."

Katharine Hepburn is just as enthusiastic about the portrait photographers. "Wasn't I lucky to be photographed by these two romantic fellos (Bull and Bachrach) — and what fun it always was! What a way to be remembered." Hepburn praised one of their special talents to John Kobal: "These men, my God! These men were responsible for covering up a lot of faults in a lady's face."

It didn't matter that Harlow had a cleft in her chin, Lombard a scar, Dietrich stubby fingers, Shearer close-set eyes and Gable generous ears. The photographers and the retouchers used their magic to remove visible "defects." The retouchers whisked away warts and wrinkles, straightened teeth, lengthened necks and whittled waists. Entire human beings were remade into the Hollywood ideal of virile men and beautiful women.

Robert Taylor had to be "roughened up," Kobal says, "because he was more beautiful than his leading ladies." Taylor was sent to a gym to build his muscles, taught to ride horses and photographed smoking a pipe and wearing heavy cardigans.

Rita Hayworth's metamorphosis from a 19-year-old pudgy brunette to a "35-year-old" sylphlike strawberry-blond "love goddess" took only one year, thanks to the studio makeup men and the magic of portrait photography. But "Gilda" (1946), the love goddess, was a difficult role for an ordinary mortal to play, day in, day out. Hayworth has said of the partners in her failed marriages, "They all married Gilda, but they woke up with me."

Hayworth hated being photographed. Joan Crawford had a "passing for posing." Clark Gable, James Cagney, Gary Cooper, Humphrey Bogart and Spencer Tracy considered it "sissy stuff." Dietrich once said her still photographs were more important to her than her films. She was, according to William Walling Jr., "strictly all business. At her request, a full-length mirror alongside the camera permitted her to light and pose herself."

"Jean Harlow was a natural," Ted Allan recalls, "but she was self-conscious in front of a camera with no dialogue. The faster you shot, the better she liked it." From Spencer Tracy, Allan learned the true meaning of fast shooting. "He only gave you 15 minutes." On one occasion, Tracy was having his hair curled for portraits publicizing his role in Captains Courageous (1937). With only one side of his head finished, Tracy became impatient and threw the curling iron across the room. Allan had to shoot him in profile.

It wasn't easy being a star. "It was a 24-hour-a-day job to stay on top," Laszlo Willinger emphasizes. "Joan Crawford was a star. She knew the names of all the presidents of her fan clubs and sent them Christmas cards." To keep her appointments with Willinger at the studio, she rode in a limousine — across the street. "Clark Gable once told me," Willinger recalls, " 'I have a recurring nightmare: I wake up one morning and I'm back driving trucks.' "

"Today the star system of the '30s and '40s is dead; television has made everyone so very familiar," the Smithsonian's Stapp says. Familiar is exactly what a star didn't want to be. Loretta Young puts it this way: "I was never photographed in the kitchen. Ever. I'm a movie star. I don't know how to cook. I don't like to cook."

Glamour — the quality of fascinating by charm and good looks — is a Scottish word once meaning the power to cast a magic spell. In Hollywood today, the spell has been broken. Filmmakers, nowadays, don't bother to wave away life's warts. Machines, spaceships and computers have inherited the magic that once belonged to Garbo and Gable. "I've just been asked to do a glamour portrait of a computer," Ted Allan reports.

GUITAR STUDENTS of Mrs. Bonnie Swantek joined her in performing Thursday evening during the open house in the basement of the Thief River Falls city auditorium in observance of American Education week. Elementary, middle and high school instructors arranged displays and demonstrations for the open house but very few members of the public turned out to view the exhibits. The open house was sponsored by the Thief River Falls Education association and also included performance by music students directed by Marcia Knutilla and a scene from the Lincoln high school play directed by Pat Johnson.

Chopin Comes Alive Tues. For Concert Ass'n.

by Rev. Robert Scharr
Red Lake Falls

Frederick Chopin came alive last Tuesday night in the person of pianist Robert Guralnik. Dressed in the customs of the time, he spoke as if Chopin himself were telling his own story in words and music. The audience heard more than the beautiful music of this marvelous composer, they heard the stories that inspired much of that music, and this gave the music added meaning. They also heard a master pianist play it with great feeling. Robert Guralnik was the second artist in the current concert series in Thief River Falls.

Chopin was born in Poland in 1810. We heard stories of his childhood and his decision to go to Vienna to become a great musician. He wasn't accepted there so he went to Paris where he lived a life of emotional highs and lows.

The music reflected the various moods of the composer. As we heard the stories of his good times and his bad times, we heard music that reflected his moods and feelings.

The music of Chopin is not the loud, boisterous music of some composers; rather it is more delicate in nature. It takes great technical skill to play it because the fingers must move so swiftly across the keyboard. The interpretations of the pianist were as delicate, at times, as icicles forming on a window, and sometimes as heavy as someone beating on a drum.

Music is a creation of the heart. It comes from a person's inner soul. Often, when one is feeling very sad and lonely, the most beautiful music seems to come as a result. This was the soul of Chopin, and this is what the audience heard in his music. Frederick Chopin was one of the greatest musicians and composers to ever write for the piano. His melodies have been borrowed by modern composers who wrote such songs as "Til The End Of Time" and "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows." The audience Tuesday heard a pianist and performer who made Chopin come alive and provided them a thrilling evening.

TWO HEART SURGERIES haven't reduced the competitive attitude of Tari Rux, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Rux of Thief River Falls. She has become an avid bicycle moto-cross racer and accumulated most of the above trophies during competition in Thief River Falls last summer. The largest trophy — Tari's favorite — is for accumulating the greatest number of total points in competition among six and seven-year-old boys and girls. Tari had open heart surgery to repair a hole in her heart when she was two years old and additional corrective surgery October 17 of this year.

Rux Family Celebrates Thanksgiving Every Day

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

While Thanksgiving is a special time of remembrance for most families, the Gary Rux family of Thief River Falls has a little different perspective. "We celebrate thanks giving on a daily basis," Mrs. Rux says, and Gary quickly agrees.

Their thankfulness centers around the medical advancements which have made it possible for their six-year-old daughter Taryn to lead a normal life despite a serious heart condition. She recently has made an amazingly rapid made an amazingly rapid recovery from her second open heart surgery and is eagerly looking forward to another season of bicycle moto-cross racing next summer.

Tari, as she is known among friends and family, underwent her first major surgery on April 18, 1979, when she was only two years old. Her condition was diagnosed by Dr. H. P. Wendt, the family's physician who had retired but had agreed to see her when she became very ill and the family's new physician was out of town.

A blood test was taken and x-ray films made, and the doctor discovered that the youngster's heart was severely enlarged. Such was the enlargement, in fact, that it caused a bulge in the left side of the chest that is still discernible. Dr. Wendt recommended that a specialist be consulted as soon as possible.

The check-up and recommendation locally took place on December 19 and cast a pall over the family's Christmas holiday. Shortly after the New Year the family went to the Minneapolis Children's Medical center for further tests and a heart catheterization late in January. Corrective surgery was indicated and scheduled for March. Shortly before the scheduled surgery Tari contracted pneumonia and the procedure had to be postponed.

Tari entered the hospital April 15, 1979, had surgery on April 18 and was released on April 22. The procedure used was to take a patch from the exterior of Tari's heart and use it to cover a hole in the heart which caused leakage of blood. The surgery also involved stitching of the mitral valve which prevents flow of blood back into the left atrium from the left ventricle when the heart rhythmically contracts.

The hole in the heart and defective valve had combined to create a condition in which the heart had to work twice as hard as normal to pump blood to the body.

The Rux family knew that a second surgery would likely be necessary at some time for further repair of the mitral valve. Tari was checked twice a year at the cardiac clinic in

Liquidation Of Farm Loans Is Survey Subject

More than 15 per cent of the 992 agricultural loans made by Norwest and Northern State banks and Farmers Home administration in Thief River Falls face potential liquidation before the 1986 production year is completed, according to a survey completed by the Pennington county extension office.

Of the total, 44 loans (4.5 per cent) for a total of $4,708,000 are expected to be liquidated before the 1984 production year is completed. Another 107 loans (10.7 per cent) for a total of $9,154,000 have a high probability of deteriorating to the point where lenders will want to liquidate them before the 1986 production year is completed.

The 992 loans through the three lending agencies total $36,727,000. The 4.5 per cent of the loans expected to be liquidated before the end of the next crop year involve 13 per cent of the total loan volume. The 10.7 per cent in jeopardy before the end of the 1986 production year represent 24 per cent of the total loan volume.

Liquidation is defined as payoff of the financial institution by refinance, voluntary sale of assets or other means. If these alternative means are not forthcoming, however, collection is likely to be undertaken by judicial process.

Characteristics of the loans expected to be liquidated in 1984 include equity of less than 33 per cent, loan balance exceeding 75 per cent of collateral and projected repayment capacity substantially less than adequate to meet debt service requirements when using probably assumptions about yield, price, costs, restructure of debt service requirements and other factors.

Characteristics of loans deteriorating before 1986 include equity in the 33 to 50 per cent range, loan balance less than 75 per cent of collateral now but likely to deteriorate to where loan balance exceeds 75 per cent of collateral, and projected repayment capacity less than adequate to meet debt service requirements when using probable assumptions on yield, price, costs and restructure of debt service requirements.

Plummer High Honor Roll

Plummer high school has released its honor roll for the first quarter of the 1983-84 school year, with two students maintaining a grade point average of "straight A", 11 students maintaining an "A average", and 28 students maintaining a "B average".

Students maintaining a "Straight A" (with no grade lower than an A-) throughout the quarter were sophomores Nancy Jo Hesse and Erika Treitline.

Benefit Sunday At Armory For LuAnn Lewis

Friends and neighbors of Mrs. Daryl (LuAnn) Lewis of rural Thief River Falls will stage a benefit ham supper for her Sunday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls. A free-will offering will be accepted and baked goods will be offered for sale.

Mrs. Lewis has been a diabetic for 41 years, has lost the sight in one eye and recently underwent surgery to amputate her right leg above the knee. "There are a lot of things I can't do yet," LuAnn explains. "I guess the Lord intended this to slow me down."

It will be a unique experience for Mrs. Lewis to be on the receiving end of a community help project. Over the years she has been involved in many such events to help others who have had misfortunes of one type or another. "And let me tell you," she insists, "it's a lot easier doing it for somebody else than having somebody do it for you."

LuAnn, who has written the Norden news for the Times for most of the past 30 years, went in the hospital September 15 for surgery to put a by-pass in her thigh. But the relatively routine three-hour surgery met with complications and became a nine-hour ordeal during which she came close to not surviving.

The effort to increase circulation was not successful, however, and before LuAnn went home the second week in October, her foot had to be removed. Then, in a fall at home when she lost her balance and landed on the unhealed stump of the leg, causing further damage. This led to the second amputation November 2. That surgery seems to be healing well and LuAnn has gotten along without pain pills.

Mrs. Lewis said she hopes to attend the benefit supper Sunday night and she considers herself fortunate that she had no major complications from her diabetic condition earlier in her life. She also feels she is fortunate to have friends who will make this effort in her behalf.

Persons unable to attend but who would like to contribute may send donations to Evonne Moe, Route 2, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Mrs. Moe is treasurer of Oak Ridge Lutheran church, one of the sponsors of the benefit dinner.

Surplus Food Distribution Is Next Week

Surplus cheese, butter and honey will be distributed on November 28, 29 and 30, within the four county area served by Inter-County Community Council Inc. (ICCC), Oklee, to households meeting income guidelines.

ICCC Outreach staff and local volunteers will be distributing the commodities on Tuesday, November 29, at the following locations and times: St. Hilaire community room, 9 to 10 a.m.; Thief River Falls auditorium, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Goodridge senior center, 3 to 4 p.m.; Emardville Hall in Plummer, 1 to 2 p.m.; Brooks town hall, 1 to 2 p.m.; and Ecksteins in Red Lake Falls, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

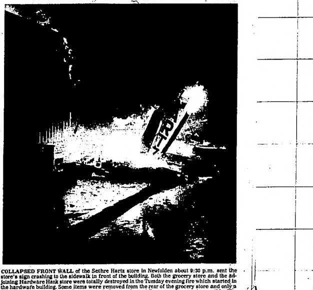
On Monday, November 28, commodities will be distributed from 1 to 2 p.m. at the Gully church and VFW Hall in Trail. On Wednesday, November 30, distribution will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at the Erskine dial room.

Robert Melby, ICCC administrator-planner, asked that potential recipients not call the distribution sites for information, adding that commodities should be picked up locally if possible, in order to assist the staff in planning. He noted that commodities will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis, for as long as they last or until the scheduled ending time.

Eligibility guidelines allow a maximum annual gross income of $8,326 for a household of one.

Auditions For Plays Slated

Auditions for the Chameleon Theatre company's two Christmas plays will be conducted Monday and Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the threatre at Northland community college. About 15 adults are needed for the two one-act plays to be staged in December, according to director Chris Kays.



COLLAPSED FRONT WALL of the Sethre Hartz store in Newfolden about 9:30 p.m. sent the store's sign crashing to the sidewalk in front of the building. Both the grocery store and the adjoining Hardware Hank store were totally destroyed in the Tuesday evening fire which started in the hardware building. Some items were removed from the rear of the grocery store and only a very few items from the hardware store before smoke and flames made entry impossible. The Hartz store was owned by Stuart Sethre and the Hardware Hank store by Harvey Underdahl. Several other photos are included in this edition of the Times.

Fire Destroys Two Newfolden Stores

No cause has yet been determined for the fire which totally destroyed the Hardware Hank store and Sethre's Hartz store in Newfolden Tuesday evening. The fire was first noted by Earl Halfaday of Newfolden about 7:45 p.m. but had advanced too far to allow firemen to save the two buildings. Loss has been estimated at approximately $400,000.

Fire chief Earl Eveland said that Halfaday noted smoke and flames in the central part of the Hardware Hank store and turned in the alarm. Owner of the store, Harvey Underdahl, had left the building about 6:30 p.m. and had noticed nothing wrong at that time.

Smoke and flames quickly filled the 70x80 foot building and the 24x60 storage and merchandising area at the rear of the store. Only a very few items could be removed from the back of the store before smoke made entry impossible, Underdahl said.

The older frame building with metal siding shared a common frame wall with the adjoining Hartz store owned by Stuart Sethre. Chief Eveland said that it was possible to enter the Hartz store when the fire department first arrived, and that some goods were carried out of the store by volunteers who arrived on the scene.

Fire soon broke through into the upper part of the grocery store, however, and prohibited further entry. Heavy smoke also made it impossible for firemen to enter the buildings to fight the fire. The large volume of combustibles in the hardware store — including ammunition and lubricants — contributed to the difficulty in fighting the fire.

With nearly all of the 20-member volunteer fire department at Newfolden on the scene, assistance was also requested from Karlstad and Middle River departments which responded immediately. They assisted in controlling the fire, and preventing its spread to other buildings in the area. Loss of the two stores leveled a half-block of the downtown Newfolden business area.

Sethre said his store had a merchandising area 44x60 feet in size with an attached warehouse at the rear of the store. Only a pickup load of stock was saved from the building, he said, as it was hastily tossed into several pickups by volunteers.

"We're just like one family here in Newfolden," Sethre said. "Everybody wants to help and sometimes they put themselves in danger. It's fortunate that nobody was hurt." Both Sethre and Underdahl thanked the firemen who responded from all three communities to assist in fighting the fire.

Both stores had a heavy merchandise inventory for the holiday season. Sethre and Underdahl both plan on rebuilding their businesses.

Northrop 2nd Graders Tell Thanksgiving Tales

The Thanksgiving Lesson

by Maren "Muffy" Dyrud
(Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Dyrud)
Grade 2 at Northrop

Once there was a cat who never gave thanks even on Thanksgiving. Most of the time he caught mice for food but didn't thank God for it. (The cat was very poor so it always ate mice.)

On Thanksgiving he set out to catch his mouse breakfast. He found the perfect mouse scurrying along an alley. The cat made a leap for the mouse so under his paw was the poor mouse still alive. The mouse said sickly, "Please, give thanks to the Lord after you eat me."

"Why give thanks?" said the cat. "Because," said mouse, "God might not give you what you want if you don't give thanks for it." "Well if you put it that way, I will give thanks for everything." "Good," said mouse.

"Well, since you taught me this lesson you are free to go." "Oh, thank you, thank you!" said mouse. So when cat came home, right away he thanked God for every single mouse he caught and he had the best year ever!

(Editor's Note: Second grade students of Mrs. Susan LeMoine at Northrop elementary school were assigned to write stories for the Thanksgiving season. Each youngster has his or her own viewpoint on the holiday, and the stories reflect the children's imagination and interests. Mrs. LeMoine agreed to share some of the stories with our readers, including the featured story here and the ones which follow.)

About Thanksgiving

by Heather Shafland
(Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shafland)

Indians and pilgrims have fun at Thanksgiving feasts. And you get to eat turkey. Indians helped the pilgrims plant a good harvest and the harvest festival was good. The turkey is real good and I know that it is real good and that it is nice and that turkey is fun at Thanksgiving.

The Indians Helped The Pilgrims

by Trisha Desselller
(Diane Desselller)

Pilgrims and Indians are very good friends because the Indians helped the pilgrims plant their corn. One day there was a day called Thanksgiving. There were a lot of people, and all the people had fun.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Marriage Vows Spoken By Dillon And Thompson

Karen Dillon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Dillon of Thief River Falls, and Mark Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, McIntosh, exchanged marriage vows on September 17, at 5:00 p.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Joyce Halbasch was the organist, playing the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. Vocalists were Barb Laidley and Steward Sandstrom, friends of the couple. Selections sung were "First Time I Ever Saw Your Face," "Just You and I," and "Wedding Song."

The bride was attired in a white organza gown with reembroidered lace, dotted with pearls, complementing the fitted bodice and Queen Anne neckline. Matching lace flowed across the shoulders and formed the caps of her long, fitted sleeves which ended with deep lace cuffs. Coordinating lace edged her floor-length skirt and accented the scalloped cathedral-length train. Her walking length veil was attached to a white hat with the turned-up brim wrapped in bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses and frosted babies' breath, accented with pink and wine-colored roses.

Nancy Kooker and Patti Dillon, were the bride's personal attendants.

Kathy Dillon, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim Battleson, a friend; Kristi Dillon, a sister of the bride; and Mary Geatz, a friend. They wore wine floor-length gowns styled with an off-the-shoulder ruffle, elbow-length puffy sleeves, and deep flounced skirts. Their headpieces were white floral wreaths, accented in wine. They carried round hand bouquets of white, pink and wine colored roses.

Wearing similar attire and carrying a white lace basket filled with matching flowers, was the flower girl, Kylie Vealedahl, Winger, a niece of the groom. The rings were carried by Anthony Klotter, a friend of the couple. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with tails, a white bow tie and a wine colored boutonniere.

Attending the groom as best man was Jeff Spencer, a friend. Groomsmen were Alan Johnson, Clint Nelson and Coby Johnson, all friends of the groom, and all residents of McIntosh. The guests were ushered by John and Jim Dillon, brothers of the bride, and Mark Stenberg and Nathan Stroh, friends of the couple. All wore gray tuxedos with tails, gray bow ties and wine carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a dusty rose floor-length gown topped by a waist-length jacket featuring slit sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a light blue gown fashioned with long sheer sleeves and a crystal pleated floor-length skirt. Their corsages were of white roses, accented with wine rosebuds.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Gladys Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. John Rudisill, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Bertha Sylvester, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the fellowship hall followed with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vealedahl and Mr. and Mrs. Arve Moser as hosts and hostesses.

Centering the serving table was a round three-tiered wedding cake on a square base. The cake was decorated with miniature wine-colored roses and topped with a filigreed bower featuring love birds and a miniature bride and groom. Cutting and serving the cake were Martha Nelson and Mary Ann Alphs. Sharon Dillon and Marge Cushman poured the coffee.

At the guest book was Ruth Thompson. Mary Bulger and Penny Jorde ladled the punch, Kari Vealedahl and Ron and Ray Rudisill arranged the gifts, and Connie Geatz, Stacy Kruta and Kelly Olson served as waitresses.

The evening prior to the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a supper for the wedding party at the Best Western.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, the couple is at home in Winger. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at the Rex cafe in this city. The groom, a graduate of the McIntosh-Winger high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI, school of electronics, is employed by the Vealedahl Farms. Photo, R.L. Nieland Studio

Bertha Grondahl Is Honored On 93rd Birthday

Bertha Grondahl was honored recently on her 93rd birthday at a party at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Joining her for the birthday observance were Irene Anton, Hazel Christianson and Anna King of Thief River Falls; Karyl Larson of Gatzke, who baked and decorated the birthday cake; Betty McMillin and Alex of Roseau; Pam Hagenson, Dawn and Scott, Jerry and Vicki Holthusen, April, Jolene and Amy; Vickie Ruud, Heather and Derek, Robert Nordby, Lori Holthusen and Ardell Roen of Grygla, and the residents and staff of the CNC unit.

The honored guest was the recipient of many gifts and cards.

Malberg and Wigness Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Malberg of this city announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Louise; to Steven Craig Wigness, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wigness, also of Thief River Falls.

Miss Malberg is a 1979 graduate of Lincoln high school and will graduate in December of this year from the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, with a bachelor of science degree in Special and Elementary education. She is a Pi Beta Phi alumna, is student teaching at Northrop elementary school, Thief River Falls, and is employed at Dwight's Hartz.

Wigness, also a 1979 graduate of Lincoln high school, will graduate in December from the University of North Dakota with a bachelor of science degree in Marketing and Management. He is president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and is employed at The Windmill restaurant in Grand Forks.

Harry Swensons Honored On 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swenson were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house on October 19, at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city.

Hosting their parents' anniversary were Capt. and Mrs. Alan Cabot, Washington, D.C., a son-in-law and daughter.

For the occasion, the serving table was centered with a three-tiered anniversary cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Arlene Molskness, a friend of the family. It was cut and served by Mrs. Muriel Anderson and Mrs. Joyce Swenson, nieces of the couple. Miss Emmy Englund, Mrs. Swenson's cousin, poured coffee.

A sister, Mrs. Cora Wendelin was at the guest book. Punch was ladled by Kaylynn Swenson. Others assisting at the reception were Mrs. George Swanson, Jr., Mrs. Joyce Kalsnes, Mrs. Arlene Jagol and Mrs. Lillian Rux.

During the open house, the Swensons expressed appreciation to the relatives and friends for joining them on the occasion.

Relatives and friends attending, in addition to those from the Thief River Falls community, were from New York, Maryland, Minneapolis, Breckenridge, Little Falls, Warren, Grygla and Euclid.

— LOCALS —

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bergland and Steve Jr. of Drayton, N.D. visited his parents) the Arthur Berglands of this city Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Klove of Detroit Lakes visited his sister, the Arthur Bergland home, of this city Saturday. They also attended the Carl Eckwall sale on Friday at Goodridge.

Woman's Credit Noted By Happy Homemakers Club

November meeting of the Happy Homemakers club was held at the home of Mrs. Marvin Gustafson with President Signe Miller presiding. She also presented the lesson, "Women and Credit."

Eight members attended the meeting, answered roll call, read the homemakers creed, and approved the secretary's report.

Plans were made for the Christmas dinner party to be held December 13 at 6:00 p.m., at the American Legion club. Following the dinner, members will reassemble at the Judy Kjenarud home for a social evening, games with prizes, dessert, and a gift exchange. Members agreed to bring a $2.00 gift for exchanging, and a couple of items for prizes.

During the craft session, Ethel Aase displayed several articles which she had made. Lunch was served by the hostess.

The January meeting will be held at the Tillie Hedeen home, beginning at 2:00 p.m.

Lioness Club At Goodridge Hear Party Reports

At the November meeting of the Goodridge Lioness club held recently at the Steak House in Goodridge, officers and members heard reports of the two costume parties held in October.

The first event was a party for children at the school gymnasium. Approximately 150 children participated with the Lioness club in charge of the activities and prizes. Serving as costume judges were Janice Peterson and Audrey Rogella.

The community costume party was held at the Trapper and Trader with music for dancing provided by "Country Plus." Forming a setting for the Halloween revelers were black and orange streamers, corn shocks and scare crows. It was noted that prizes for costumes went to the sexiest, ugliest, most original, and the one requiring the most time in making.

President Doreen Sigerud presided at the club meeting which began with a supper served by Eleanor Horachek. Marie Wiseth served as secretary pro-tem in the absence of Marlys Drangstvelt.

For the craft session, Ethel Wiseth demonstrated the making of a hanging Christmas ball using cedar branches with potato base. Door prize was won by Peggy Hoffman, and the special prize by Janice Peterson. New club pins were distributed, and special tribute was given to the social committee composed of Julie Kiesow, chairman, Gail Wilkens, Nancy Troska, Lorine Aandal, and Sandy Hendrickson.

Announcement was made that the members of the board will meet December 7 at 6:30 p.m., and that the December meeting would be cancelled since the Lioness will be guests at the Lions Ladies night.

Cainan Langlie Baptized Nov. 13 At Zion Church

Cainan Alan Langlie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Langlie of this city, was baptized Sunday, November 13, at the 10:30 a.m., worship services at Zion Lutheran church, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Roger Hanson officiated. Sponsors were the child's uncle and aunt, Ryan and Nancy Turner, Waterloo, Iowa.

For the occasion, he wore a white satin two-piece baptismal suit with matching shoes and cap, worn by his older brother, Brandon at his baptism. The baptismal attire was a gift from their great-uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Knauf of Minneapolis. Cainan was wrapped in a white shawl, handmade by his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Howard Langlie of Thief River Falls.

A dinner for relatives and friends followed at Best Western. Centering the serving table and served following the meal, was a baptismal cake baked and deocrated by Margaret Rupprecht. Inscribed on the cake was "Welcome into God's Family, Cainan."

Guests at the dinner, in addition to the child, his parents, brother, and sponsors, were his maternal grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nelson; his paternal grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Langlie; his maternal great-grandfather, Russell Nelson of Newfolden; his maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Ella Nelson, his paternal great-grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Busse.

Also present were the child's aunt Wendy Nelson, Minneapolis; aunt Margo Langlie and cousin Shanon Langlie, Cambridge; uncle Rick Langlie, his great-great aunt Mary Sabo, his great uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Knauf, Minneapolis; great uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson, Golden Valley; and cousins Kathy and Kristy Haskins, Minneapolis, and Rose Anderson, Moorhead.

Greatly missed was Cainan's maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Signe Nelson, who died Friday, November 11.

FIRST AWARD of an Eagle Scout ranking ever made by Lord Baden-Powell, grandson of the founder of the Boy Scout movement, was made this summer to Jim VanSchaick of Thief River Falls at the 15th world scout jamboree in Canada. The photo above should have run in an earlier issue of the Times when a feature on four Eagle scouts were published. Another photo was inadvertently printed in its place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rondorf, Rt. 1, TRF, boy, Nov. 21, Justin Robert.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gast, Grygla, boy, Nov. 21, Nathan Michael.

Mr. and Mrs. George Marvin, III, Warroad, girl, Nov. 23.

Lydia Dahlen Named Woman Of The Year

Lydia Dahlen, a life member of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women, was presented with the "Woman of the Year" pin at the recent meeting of that organization.

Lydia, a graduate of the St. Paul hospital school of nursing, retired in 1972 after many years of service at Northwestern hospital here and in other communities, including 45 months in the South Pacific during World War II.

Geri Howe spoke to the club on the new career opening up to women and the courses being offered at Northland community college, especially for those going back to school or wanting to keep up with changes in the work force.

Diana Josephson, program chairman, suggested that the December meeting be a wine tasting class and that each member bring an appetizer to accompany a wine. There will also be a silent auction at the Christmas meeting and all members are encouraged to attend.

It was decided that a wine tasting class would be open to the public in February for those interested in wines and foods to be served with them.

President Edie Brandli asked all program chairmen to have a brief outline of their programs announced at the meeting before they are to be presented and a more detailed report no later than the following Tuesday.

The Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women meet the third Tuesday of each month at the Best Western. The dinner meeting begins at 6 p.m. with the program starting an hour later. Those interested in the organization are welcome to attend any meeting or can contact Edie Brandli at 681-6297, or Pat Thompson at 681-2355.

Emil Koglin Services Set Friday At Zion

Funeral services for Emil Koglin, 82, of Thief River Falls, will be held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church in this city. Koglin died early Sunday morning at his home.

Rev. C. L. Kalmoe will officiate at the services. Special music will be provided by the Zion Silvertones with Jerry Joringdal serving as organist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Freeman Lanska, Melvin Saugen, Alfred Solem, Bernard Lanska, Melvin Anderson, David Koglin and Richard Koglin.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home on Thursday from 3:00 to 9:00 p.m., and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Emil August Koglin, a son of the late August and Marie Post Koglin, was born April 6, 1901 in Excel township of Marshall county. He attended school and grew to manhood there. He worked in sawmills in Washington state for several years and later operated a portable sawmill. He also worked at the post office as a mail hauler and substitute mail carrier.

He was married Oct. 4, 1933 to Viola Quarness of Trail. The couple lived and farmed near Gonvick for 10 years, before moving to Thief River Falls. Koglin retired from farming in 1973.

Surviving are his wife, three daughters: Marian Koglin, Cotati, Calif.; Ellen Pearson, Santa Rosa, Calif.; and Mrs. Richard (Shirley) Blasjo, St. Paul; a son, Arthur Koglin, West Fargo, N.D.; nine grandchildren, two sisters: Agnes Anderson, Corvallis, Ore., and Alvina Koglin, Thousand Oaks, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by three brothers: Paul, Edwin and Reynold, and five sisters: Anna Koglin, Hattie Lanska, Elsie Koglin, Olga Slack and Linda Slack.

Arvid Kela, 68, Once Plummer Resident, Dies

Arvid W. Kela, 68, of Duluth and formerly of Plummer, died November 1 at Duluth. Funeral services for Arvid Kela were held in Duluth.

Arvid Kela lived in the Plummer area for about 40 years, moving there about 1915. For the last years of his life, he lived at Duluth, working for 18 years at the Steel plant. For the past four years, he had been a resident of Park Point Manor.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

Surviving are his wife, Grace, a brother, Henry Kela of Duluth and formerly of Plummer; and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, John and Ida Kela, two sisters and four brothers.

Benhart M. Paulson Dies At Stillwater

Benhart M. Paulson, 92, of Oak Park Heights, Stillwater, a former farmer in the Viking and Radium area, died Saturday at Stillwater.

Funeral services for Benhart Paulson were held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., at Our Saviour's Lutheran church in Stillwater. Interment was in the Fort Snelling National cemetery.

Benhart M. Paulson was born May 7, 1891 at Oslo. He was married to Gena Paulson, who died October 14 of this year.

He was a veteran of World War One, a member of the American Legion and a past commander of the Viking post.

Surviving are seven children: Gordon Paulson, Lenore, Idaho; Mrs. Opal Dargus and Bentley Paulson, both of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Erick (Audrey) Flod, Stillwater; Mrs. Junice Horgen, Warren; Mrs. Orland (Maxine) Thoresbn, Rochester; and Franklin, Blaine; 23 grandchildren, 29 great-grandchildren, one great-great-granddaughter, a sister, Mrs. Julia Johnson, Halstad; and three nieces and seven nephews.

Special Meet Of Grygla FU Monday Night

Special meeting of the Grygla Farmers Union local will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Grygla community center.

Guest speaker Dennis Brekke, sheriff of Marshall county, will speak on "Rural Crime and the Rights of the Property Owner."

Meeting is in response to action taken at the East Marshall county Farmers Union annual convention on October 29. It was voted at that time to dissolve the inactive locals and reorganize into the Grygla local. Funds from the dissolved locals should be turned over to the new treasurer of the reactivated Grygla local at the Monday meeting.

Business conducted at this meeting will include election of officers, setting meeting dates and appointing directors for the local.

Nominating committee was appointed at a meeting held November 15 by members of the county Farmers Union board and past officers of the Grygla local. Those serving on the committee are Carl Sundberg, chairman, Juell Aune, Tim Prestebak, Lyndon Magnuson, Viola Wikstrom and Shirley Nordby.

All members of the East Marshall county Farmers union are urged to attend this meeting. Lunch will be served by the County Farmers Union officers.

Leadership Course Offered At Crookston

Course entitled "Organization and Leadership Skills" is being offered during the winter session of the ministry program at Mount St. Benedict center in Crookston.

Classes will meet seven Saturdays from 1 to 3 p.m. on January 21, February 4 and 18, March 3, 17 and 31 and April 14.

Parish council, board and committee members are being invited to attend the classes. The instructor will focus attention on the theology and spirituality of ministry and on particular pastoral concerns. Special attention will be given to the development of skills in time management, delegating, problem-solving and decision-making.

Instructor for the course is Sister Shawn Carruth. Sister Shawn is a Sister of St. Benedict from the Crookston priory. She received a masters degree in theology for St. Johns university in Collegeville in 1981. Sister Shawn has been on the teaching faculty for the ministry program, a four-year educational and enrichment program for the diocese of Crookston and the surrounding area.

Course "Organization and Leadership Skills", fulfills the requirement for "Leadership in the Christian Community", a practicum in the ministry program.

Course may be take for one credit in pastoral theology. The credit is being issued from the College of St. Benedict in St. Joseph. Mount St. Benedict center serves as an extension facility for the continuing education center in St. Joseph.

Tuition for the course is set at $58 if the course is taken for credit and $25 to audit the course.

Registrations for the course are due by January 1. Write or call S. Mary Beth Banken, Mount St. Benedict Center, Crookston, 56716 at 218-281-3441.

Right To Know Act Seminars Are Slated

Statewide series of seminars will be held by the Minnesota safety council on the new employee right to know act, which takes effect January 1.

Developed by the safety council in cooperation with the state department of labor and industry, the seminars are entitled "Employee Right to Know Act and Chemical Handling Safety: the Law, How to Comply, How to Get Results."

Under the right to know act, an employer is required to evaluate the workplace for the existence of hazardous substances and harmful physical agents and to provide training and information to any employee routinely exposed to them. Health care facilities also must be evaluated for infectious agents. Training programs must be ready by July 1 for current employees; new employees are to be trained as hired. In addition, the right to know act requires labeling of hazardous substances and harmful physical agents. After July 1 employees may refuse to work under certain conditions.

Seminars are designed to provide Minnesota companies with instruction on pertinent aspects of the right to know act. Each participant will be furnished with necessary resource materials including the hazardous substances list, right to know standards and complete right to know act as passed by the Minnesota legislature.

According to Robert L. Anderson, president of the Minnesota safety council, it is important for employers to have increased knowledge of chemical hazards and effective training techniques in order to derive accident prevention benefits from the new requirements.

Seminars will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the following dates: December 13 at the Ramada Inn, 4200 West 78 Street, Bloomington; January 18 at the Holiday Inn Capitol, 161 St. Anthony avenue, St. Paul; January 20 at Happy Chef North restaurant, Mankato; January 24 at Casa de Roma restaurant, Duluth; and January 26 at the Kahler Inn, Hibbing.

Others are planned later in Detroit Lakes, Red Wing, Rochester, St. Cloud, Willmar and Worthington.

Registration is limited to 50 participants at each seminar.

The $50 tuition includes lunch and materials and should be sent to the Minnesota Safety Council, 555 Wabasha street, Suite 102, St. Paul, 55102.

Scholarships Available To Teen Winners

Record $3 million in cash and tuition scholarships will be available through the Miss National Teen-Ager program in 1984, according to Sybil S. Shaffer, national director.

Program arrangements are being made at this time on both regional and state levels. Girls ages 13 through 18, who are interested may contact the Miss National Teen-Ager program at 215 Piedmont avenue N.E. Atlanta, GA 30308.

Each regional and state winner will receive a cash scholarship and a four-year tuition scholarship to Oklahoma City university with a value of $15,000. Oklahoma City university offers bachelor of arts, science and masters degrees in a number of areas including music. Judging is based solely on scholastic avhievement-leadership, poise-personality and appearance.

Each state winner will receive an all expense paid trip to compete in the national pageant where each state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will be represented.

National winner will receive a $10,000 cash scholarship, each of the four runners-up will receive $5,000, and ten $1,000 cash scholarships will be awarded for use at the college of the recipient's choice or in conjunction with a tuition scholarship.

National winner will receive a personal appearance contract and a trip to Hawaii, Alaska, Hollywood, New York and the Caribbean.

The Pilgrims Make Friends
by Robbi Relerson
(Mr. and Mrs. Lorris Relerson)

Once there was a little pilgrim who went out and got a turkey and it got away so he had to go home with nothing. But the Indians gave them a turkey for a present and they ate it on Thanksgiving and they thanked God for it.

The Thanksgiving Feast
by Kari Nelson
(Virginia Nelson)

One time there was a boy and a girl. The girl was an Indian and boy was a pilgrim. They didn't like each other. Once the boy was cooking a turkey. The boy was lonely so he called the girl and she was glad to come over. So by the time she got there the dinner was done. They had so much fun that they never thought they weren't friends.

Thanksgiving is Loving
by Kim Rupprecht
(Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rupprecht)

Once upon a time an Indian and a pilgrim met two turkeys. They shot them. They took them home. They cleaned them. They had fun too. Happy Thanksgiving.

The Little Pilgrim and the Indian
by Joby Looker
(Mr. and Mrs. Jon Looker)

Once upon a time there was a pilgrim and one Indian. They went to the store to get a turkey, and ate it for supper. Then they went to hunt for a turkey. Then they were tired. Then they went home to sleep. When they woke up they had found turkey for breakfast.

The Turkey
by Leah Cleven
(Mr. and Mrs. Vern Cleven)

The boy and girl went to find a turkey for Thanksgiving, and one day they found one and brought it home and ate it for Thanksgiving. They had corn and had a big feast. So they invited the Indians for their feast.

The Thanksgiving Feast
by Keri Holthusen
(Mr. and Mrs. John Holthusen)

Long ago there was the pilgrims and the Indians. They made a crop. They made corn. They had a big feast. The pilgrims and the Indians thanked God.

The Indian Boy Meets A New Friend
by Mark Tangquist
(Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tangquist)

One there was an Indian boy who didn't have a friend. One day a boy came along and said, "Are you alone." The boy said to the Indian, "Do you want to be friends." "Oh yes," said the Indian. All the time they had lots of fun.

Fire Destroys Two Businesses At Newfolden

The Sethre family has operated the Hartz store since 1943 and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Sethre purchased the business from his parents 20 years ago. They were planning a 20th anniversary celebration for January. Underdahl purchased the hardware store six years ago and has been in a nearly continuous remodeling process since that time.

CONTENTS AND DEBRIS from the Hardware Hank store in Newfolden continued to burn at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, as indicated by this Times photo taken of the northeast area of the store. Wood stored for use in the store's wood stove is burning at the extreme right of the photo, near the collapsed ductwork of the heating system. The fire was noticed by Earl Halfaday and reported about 7:45 p.m., just over an hour after owner Harvey Underdahl had left the building and noticed nothing wrong. Also totally destroyed in the blaze was the adjoining Sethre Hartz store.

Percey Obert Johnson, a son of the late Peter and Julia Landro Johnson, was born Dec. 29, 1907 at Grygla. He attended school at Grygla and Beltrami. On Thanksgiving day in 1936, he was ordained into the ministry at the Duluth Gospel tabernacle. Later, he served churches in Grygla and Goodridge.

He was married Nov. 30, 1939 to Agnes Joan Carlson at the Duluth Gospel tabernacle by Rev. E. C. Erickson.

After their marriage, they lived and served parishes at Milan; Patten, Maine; Sheldon, Wis.; Friend, Neb.; Breckenridge, and Beaver Dam, Wis. Since retiring in 1970, Rev. Johnson continued preaching wherever he was needed. The couple moved to Brewster in 1979, and since 1981, they had made their home at Worthington.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Dr. Alden P. Johnson, O.D., Fayetteville, N.C.; two brothers: Rev. Clifford Johnson and Russell Johnson, both of Seattle, Wash.; and three sisters: Mrs. Irene Blazer and Mrs. Norman (Gladys) Jorgenson, both of Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Theodore (Doris) Thompson, Babbitt.

Three brothers and three sisters preceded him in death.

Mary Breznay Rites Held At St. Bernard's

Mary Breznay, a resident of Thief River Falls since 1903, died Friday at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Mass of Christian Burial for Mary Breznay was offered Monday at 11:00 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church with Rev. Dave Super, Rev. James Bernauer and Rev. George Nintemann as concelebrants. Musical selections were by St. Bernard's Resurrection choir with Mary Amundson as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Odin Hanson, Thomas Garcia, Ray Vaudrin, Ambrose Wysocki, Larry Myhrer and Ed Fisher.

Mary Breznay, a daughter of the late Andrew and Mary Sopko Breznay, was born in Streator, Ill. She moved with her family to Indianola, Iowa and later to Minnesota, where they lived at Jackson before settling in Thief River Falls in 1903. Since then, she had lived here, spending the past five years at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

She is survived by two sisters: Julie and Ann Breznay, both of Thief River Falls, and a brother, Edward Breznay, also of Thief River Falls.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by five brothers: Peter, George, Andrew, Thomas and John, and two sisters: Verna Schmitz and one who died in infancy.

HALF A BLOCK of the Newfolden business district was destroyed by fire which started sometime after 6:30 p.m. in the Hardware Hank store and spread to the adjoining Sethre Hartz store. Both were older frame buildings which shared a common wall and had been covered with metal siding. Taken about 9:30 p.m., this photo shows the remains of the Hardware Hank store in the foreground and the Hartz store front at left. White spots on the photo are snowflakes reflecting light from the camera's electronic flash. While most firemen left the scene around midnight, several remained on duty through the night to guard against flare-ups.

Minn. Receives Federal Grant For Energy Aid

Minnesota will receive $74.3 million for energy assistance and conservation programs under a money bill passed on November 12 by congress, it was announced today by Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security.

Minnesota ranks seventh among all states in total energy assistance funding.

On October 31, the department of economic security received $58 million as a first installment toward the total $74.3 million award for the energy assistance program, Beerhalter said.

The $58 million figure represented 30 per cent of the total awards granted and was the largest partial allocation, Beerhalter said. The grants were made by the federal department of health and human services to 31 states. Pennsylvania received the second largest amount, $18.3 million.

Beerhalter expects that Minnesota's remaining $16.3 million will be awarded in early January.

Almost nine per cent of the state's 1.4 million households received some form of assistance from Minnesota's allocation for last year's heating season. More than 123,000 low-income households received fuel assistance and-or conservation services. An additional 10,000 households are expected to request assistance this winter to help pay rising heating costs.

Local agencies which administer the energy assistance programs began taking applications November 1.

Persons who are interesting applying for energy assistance should contact either their local community action program or county social service office.

Pastor Larry and Marie wish to publicly thank God for the congregation at First Baptist

Cy Carpenter Speaks At 42nd MFU Convention

Growing need for new directions in agricultural policy is evident through the need for national recognition of family farmers, and through the unacceptable fact that America and its government is complaining about stockpiles of food while millions of people in the world go hungry, according to Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter. Carpenter spoke to the 42nd annual MFU convention in St. Paul Sunday.

Continuing battle over future farm policy will come to a cross-roads with the writing of the 1985 farm bill, Carpenter said, and Farmers Union members must be prepared to be at the forefront as leaders in the discussion.

"We desperately need a family farm policy that is based on the real world values of the rural community that has built our country to what it is today," Carpenter said. "However, we must be careful not to repeat the policies of the past since they may not meet the new challenges we will surely face. We must prepare ourselves for a new, complicated situation both politically and economically.

"The 1985 farm bill allows us the chance to write our ticket for future success. If we sit idly back and let the Reaganauts and the office of management budget write it for us, we will dismally fail.

"Processors and others who claim a right to direct agricultural policy as agriculture becomes more important, have little recognition of what is really needed for farmers and the rural community. We — farmers and others who live in rural communities every day — should have our input in the decisions. In fact, we must demand our say."

Carpenter said farmers are not receiving the national respect due them, but instead face verbal attacks at budget drainers, rather than praise for the contributors they are.

"We need to develop new action and cause an awareness in the general public, on a national level, for the contributions of agriculture," he said.

In addition, Carpenter pointed out, he is worried about the growing concern over the disparity of a nation that complains about growing stockpiles of food while people in its own cities and around the world go hungry.

"To others in the world, that may be the basis upon which America is judged. This is a contition we in the United States would hold up to ridicule if it happened in a communist nation. We can not tolerate it. It is simply not an acceptable policy," he said.

"We cannot sit still while our government complains about one of the most productive segments of our economy — farmers — and allows others to starve. Solving the hunger-food surplus paradox should be a top priority for the future of agriculture, he said.

Carpenter spoke to a packed auditorium at the MFU headquarters, where delegates and members gathered to write the organization's 1983 policy statement. MFU represents more than 22,000 farm families across the state in legislation, education, and cooperation.

Happy Acres

Meeting of Happy Acres 4-H club was held November 14 at ValHall. Roll call was "What's your favorite kind of dog?" Thank yous were read from Oakland Park Nursing Home for raking and for painting wall murals, another was from the Kelly Swanson family for a sympathy card. Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and approved. It was said and approved that each member would pay $1 dues for lunch served after meetings. People who received awards were reminded to send thank yous to the donor.

Everyone in the Foods project must pay $1 for supplies that were used to bake for the Holiday Craft Fair. More project leaders are needed so please sign up. Thanks to those who made benches for the fair.

The 4-H plays were Friday, November 18 at Northland college. Anyone interested in UMC Ag Days, see Todd Carlson. 4-H Project Leader Training is in Crookston and costs $7.75. If anyone knows of a heated or partially heated building that can be used for the dog project, please contact Eloise Wheeler.

Ideas for Community Pride were discussed and it was decided to bring a toy to give to the needy and an ornament that you made or don't use so we can give a needy family a tree and ornaments. Sharon Bugge is in charge of the Christmas Party — it was decided to exchange presents — boys with boys and girls with girls. There is a limit of $1 on the gift or you can make it.

Clothing members meet with Arlene Thune after the meeting.

Demonstrations were by Jill Ellingson and Lynnae Broten on "How to Clean Horse Tack" and Jackie Thune, Susie Thune and Julie Finstad on "How to Give a Demonstration".

For the program, the play the club was having, was given after the meeting.

Meeting was adjourned.

Enrollment In Vo-Techs Up 1.3 Per Cent

Enrollment is up 1.3 per cent in Minnesota's 33 area vocational-technical institutes (AVTIs), according to state figures released recently.

"This is significant, especially when you realize that the number of high school graduates continues to decline," said Joe Graba, state director of vocational-technical education.

AVTIs in Minnesota had 32,186 full-time students at the end of October (enrollment fluctuates slightly from week to week because of open entry in many AVTI programs). Largest AVTI is Suburban Hennepin, the only institute with two campuses, at 2,880 students.

"Today's AVTI student is slightly older than the student of the past, and is more likely to be female," said Graba. "More men and women seeking training in occupations previously dominated by the other sex. And, more students come to an AVTI after other academic or work experience, rather than right out of high school."

The average age of students at some AVTIs runs as high as 26.

"We believe this enrollment increase demonstrates that AVTIs offer high quality technical training which fits the needs of students of all ages and backgrounds," said Graba. "We will continue to improve these programs to train, retain, and upgrade workers so they match the demands of employers in the age of technology."

For information on Minnesota's 33 area vocational-technical institutes and the programs they offer, contact the Division of Vocational-Technical Education, State Department of Education, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101 or call 612-296-6481.

Gas Prices In State Continue Slow Decline

Gas prices in Minnesota dropped three to four cents per gallon since late August, according to Minnesota AAA's latest fuel survey.

"There is no reason for prices not to drop," according to AAA spokeswoman Nita Beckman. "Supplies are fine and there are no immediate threats of cut-offs from oil-producing nations," she said.

Minnesota's gas prices are approximately eight cents higher than the national average of $1.22, but the state's gas tax is also one of the nation's highest.

Gas prices rose sharply in May due to the increase in the state gas tax, and continued to rise throughout the summer, Beckman said. At the close of the heavy travel season, normally around Labor day, gas prices leveled off and began to drop.

According to AAA's survey of 86 stations, average full-service prices in Minnesota are: regular, $1.353; unleaded, $1.413; unleaded premium, $1.580; and diesel, $1.291.

Average self-service prices are: regular, $1.196; unleaded, $1.257; unleaded premium, $1.357; and diesel, $1.191.

The gap between full-service and self-service prices is much wider in the Twin Cities area than in the rest of the state, Beckman noted, probably due to the high concentration of stations competing for business.

AAA's survey also found that more than half of the stations surveyed would be open on Thanksgiving day, but their operating hours would be shorter.

In northern Minnesota full-service prices included $1.347 for regular, $1.39 for regular unleaded, $1.589 for premium unleaded and $1.37 for diesel. Comparative self-serve prices respectively were $1.281, $1.331, $1.409 and $1.239.

FIREMEN from the Newfolden, Middle River and Karlstad fire departments joined in fighting the fire which totally destroyed the Hardware Hank and Hartz stores in Newfolden Tuesday evening. The fire apparently started in the central area of the hardware store and had gained considerable headway when first noticed about 7:45 p.m. The fire spread to the grocery store which shared a common frame wall with the hardware building.

LEC Reports 15 Cases Nov. 22

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, November 22, listed 12 cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and three cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following, by reporting date:

November 9 — Thief River Falls resident reported that a bank containing approximately $20 had been stolen from a bedroom in their home at approximately 12:15 p.m.

November 14 — Approximately $79 damage was done to a window at the Farmers Home Administration building, apparently as a result of an argument between two juveniles which resulted in one of them being pushed through the window. Dennis D. Knutson and Craig Hince, both of Thief River Falls, have been charged in the incident.

November 14 — Jeffrey W. Boe and Jeffrey Frank Johnson, both of Viking, were charged in connection with larceny and vandalism which occurred at the Best Western Inn on November 4.

November 15 — Red Owl Store personnel reported that they had apprehended a shoplifter. Scott L. Barstad, Thief River Falls, was charged with theft.

November 15 — Pamida store personnel reported apprehending a shoplifter. Louis W. Stine, Thief River Falls, is being charged in the incident.

November 15 — Fleet Supply personnel reported apprehending a 15 year old female for shoplifting. She is being charged in the incident.

November 16 — Glen Trickle, Thief River Falls, reported theft of various items, value $100, from his home. Case is under investigation.

November 16 — Rude Electric personnel reported theft of a stud driver gun, value $100, from a warehouse on north Main Avenue.

November 19 — Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute personnel reported that the front window of the building had been broken, causing approximately $200 damage. No evidence of theft was apparent. Case is under investigation.

November 19 — Steve Breiland, Thief River Falls, reported that a bicycle, value $146, had been stolen during the previous evening. It was later recovered.

November 19 — Alan Dougherty, Thief River Falls, reported that he had been assaulted and was treated for injuries at Northwestern hospital. Case is under investigation.

November 19 — Windshield on a vehicle belonging to Lori Amiot, Thief River Falls, was reported to have been broken, resulting in approximately $200 damage. Case is under investigation.

Cases handled by Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

November 12 — Two male juveniles, ages 16 and 12, are being charged as a result of a report from a Rocksbury township resident that he had observed them shooting out a utility light.

November 12 — Galaxy Twin Theater personnel reported that a locked storage building at the outdoor theater had been entered and a snowmobile removed from a trailer. Following investigation, charges were brought against three males, ages 17, 16 and 12.

November 19 — Trapper and Trader personnel in Goodridge reported that a lighted sign had apparently been kicked, resulting in approximately $100 damage.

Correction

Law enforcement center reported carried in the November 16 issue of the Times, incorrectly listed a vehicle involved in a November 12 accident as being owned by Orlin Hanson, Goodridge. Vehicle was owned and driven by Annamarie Lisa Noreen, Grand Forks, ND.

Agassiz Refuge Woodcutting Permits Issued

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is issuing woodcutting permits to cut wood now through December 1, and from December 11-31.

Ag Activities Day Is Set December 2

Fifteenth annual ag activities day, sponsored by the agriculture division of the University of Minnesota technical college-Crookston (UMC), is scheduled for Friday, Dec. 2. All members of the 4-H clubs, high school agriculture departments, and Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapters from Minnesota and eastern North Dakota are invited to participate.

Registration will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. in the Red River Valley winter shows building. Judging contests and workshops will be held during the morning in the following areas: crops, dairy cattle, general livestock, horse judging, agriculture mechanics, dairy products, farm management, wildlife, forestry, horticulture, meats, and soils. There is no limit on the number of students participating from any one school in each contest.

Tours of the campus will be given during the lunch period, followed by an awards assembly at 1:30 p.m. Plaques will be given to first, second, and third place teams; ribbons to fourth, fifth and sixth; a rosette to first individual; and ribbons to second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth individuals.

Last year approximately 1,000 students competed in the annual event, according to associate professor of horticulture Bruce Beresford, special events chairperson. In addition to local area schools, registrations have already been received for this year's ag activities day from as far south as Morrison and Grant counties.

There is no registration charge, but pre-registration is encouraged. Interested persons may call the UMC agriculture division at 218-281-6510, extension 302, for more information.

30 Youths To Participate In Leader Projects

Thirty young community leaders from throughout Minnesota will participate in a new leadership development program offered by the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service. Applications are being taken now at the Pennington county extension service office.

Minnesota emerging leadership project will provide 25 to 30 days of instruction over a two-year period beginning early in 1984. Instruction will feature a combination of seminars, group projects, lectures, tours and one-to-one discussions. Topics covered will include communications, functions of government, resource allocation, economic policies and related subjects.

Project is directed by Thomas Halbach, an area agent for community and natural resource development. Halbach explains the project goals as building leadership capacity among younger Minnesotans and helping to maintain Minnesota's tradition of strong local and state leadership.

Extension services in other states have some type of program similar to this, according to Halbach. "But we think our project is special in several ways," he said. "We're going to be statewide. We're intentionally looking for a diversity of background and experience in our participants. We're going to challenge participants to examine options on difficult issues; we're going to ask them to find new ways to induce cooperation among Minnesotans."

Participants will be asked to share the information and ideas they gather with other people in their communities. Through this approach, the project hopes to provide some additional resources for communities to use in local decision-making.

Project is designed for persons age 25 to 35. Application form asks candidates to summarize their leadership interests and experience. It also requests a written statement about several aspects of leadership.

There is a participant's fee of $500 per year for the cost of meals and lodging. All other costs are covered by the agricultural extension service and private donors. There are five scholarships available to people with financial need. Application forms are available at the Pennington county extension office (681-2116) or from Thomas Halbach, Minnesota emerging leadership project, Room 146 Classroom Office Bldg., University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108, (612) 773-1280.

Applications will be accepted through November 30. Participants will be selected and notified by December 30. First scheduled event is a seminar in St. Paul from February 2 to 4, 1984.

Crime Rate Drops Again In Minnesota

Minnesota's number of serious crimes declined by 5.8 per cent the first nine months of 1983 compared to 1982, according to John D. Erskine, superintendent of the bureau of criminal apprehension, a division of Minnesota department of public safety.

Total of offenses dropped to 112,919 during the period in 1983 from 119,893 in 1982 as listed on the statewide criminal justice information system report.

These were decreases in all categories, the largest being a 37.1 per cent drop in murders (44 from 70). Overall, violent crime was down 11.7 per cent and property crime down 5.5 per cent. Violent crimes include murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Property crimes are burglary, larceny, vehicle theft and arson.

Rural crime decreased 3.9 per cent (19,023 compared to 19,809 in 1982) and the urban figures were 6.2 per cent less (93,808 compared to 99,968). There were 578 arsons reported, a decrease of 17 per cent from 723 in 1982. Total property value of the arson related cases was $2,089,706.

Latest crime report continues a trend of the past two years of decreasing crime figures in Minnesota. Reports are made after three, six, nine and twelve-month periods each year with cumulative statistics compiled by CJIS. The total number of crimes was down 4.9 per cent for all of 1982 compared to the previous year. There was a 1.8 per cent increase for the first three months of 1983 compared to 1982. However, after six months of this year, the percentage decline was 2.5 per cent. Each report in 1983 showed decreases with the largest being a 19.8 per cent drop for the first three months of 1982 compared to the same period in 1981.

Steiner 4-H Club Notes Its Golden Anniversary

by Mrs. Alfred Solem

About 150 people attended the 50th anniversary celebration of the Steiner 4-H club at the Steiner hall recently. The hall had been decorated with green and white streamers and 4-H balloons.

The names of all former, as well as present, members and adult leaders and charter members had been posted, besides many newspaper clippings and pictures commemorating much of the fifty year history of the club.

Debbie Courneya was in charge of the guest book; Melissa Rausch, dressed as a clown, distributed printed programs; and Jared Mostrom-Ose and Wayne Rausch were parking attendants.

A program was presented at 2 p.m. with Scott Muzzy, past president of the club, and Monica Rausch, current president, as emcees. They expressed a hearty welcome to everyone, after which they led in the flag and 4-H pledges. Invocation was led by Rev. Kermit Solem of Rothsay, a former Steiner 4-H member. Two musical selections by Eldon Moe and Duane Vatsaas, also former members, and Dianne Klemetson were presented. Mike Jorde gave a reading entitled, "What Is a 4-H Leader," after which Alfred Solem read his 50-year history of he club. He stated that the Steiner 4-H club was organized in the spring of 1933, with about a dozen members enrolled. These charter members were LeRoy Copp, Irene Dowacter, Margaret Dowacter, Alva Grytdal, Bernice Halvorson, Annie Hillyer, James Hillyer, Olive Jorde, Joyce Meyer, Kenneth Muzzy, Cyrilla Reller and Opal Werner.

Dan Dowacter was very active in bringing about the organization and was assisted by Miss Nina Malberg, the teacher in the Steiner school district at that time. The first recorded election of officers was in April of 1934. President was Cyrilla Reller, now Mrs. Charles Rodekuhr; vice president, James Hillyer; secretary, Margaret Dowacter, now Mrs. Rusty Restamayer of Seattle, WA; and treasurer, Opal Werner, later Mrs. Harold Gavere (deceased). R. M. Douglass was county agent and Misses Verna Becker and Edna Hovie club leaders for Pennington county.

On May 29, 1934 the Steiner club entered its first play contest at the Sons of Norway hall. Starting early Sunday, July 29, 1934, the club had its first tour through the neighborhood, visiting all homes and inspecting the projects. From a small beginning these tours increased and for several years were big annual affairs of the community. By June, 1936, the club was financially able to send two of its members — Opal Werner and James Hillyer — to 4-H week in St. Paul.

By fall of 1938 the club met all the requirements necessary to receive a charter. It continued to increase in number and for a few years boasted of over 70 members. Trips have been awarded to the International Livestock exposition in Chicago, and to the citizenship short course in Washington, D.C., now called Washington Focus, as well as state fair, junior livestock shows in South St. Paul, and several others. Patricia Hornseth and Connie Hillyer were awarded the "God, Home, Country" award.

In his history, Alfred Solem gave special recognition to Mrs. Amanda Russell, who was adult leader for almost 20 years and gave so generously of her time and talent. His closing words were "1933 to 1983, 50 years of progress, 50 years of constructive endeavor to make the best better and to live by the 4-H pledge: I give my Head to clearer thinking, my Heart to greater loyalty, my Hands to larger service, my Health to better living, for my home, my club, my community, and my country."

Mrs. Alfred Solem, a former adult leader, read several letters received from former members, leaders and other 4-H clubs, expressing greetings.

Former leaders were introduced and pictures taken. Several 4-H songs were presented by a group of 1983-84 members, led by Mary Courneya, after which short talks were given by Lisa Anderson, on "4-H in Community Pride", Mary Courney on "What 4-H Does", and Mike Jorde and Melissa Rausch on "The Silent 4-H'ers, Clowning", a new project in the 4-H program.

A special recognition was given by Mrs. Bert Kron, a former Steiner club member, who read the poem "Afterglow", then listed former members and adult leaders now deceased, followed with a silent tribute.

Steiner 4-H club adult leaders who have served during the club's 50 years include the following: Eddie Anderson, Mrs. Eddie (Mabel) Anderson, John Anderson, Mrs. Lynn Brosseau, Mrs. Terry Courneya, Mrs. Lloyd (Emma) Haagenson, Harold Halvorson, Mrs. Robert (Mavis) Hillyer, Mrs. Ted (Hannah) Hornseth, Gordon Hunt, Mrs. Clifford (Marzella) Jorde, Mrs. Richard (Sharon) Jorde, Mrs. Vernon (Georgia) Malberg, deceased and Mrs. Eunice (Hillyer) McComas;

Also, Mrs. L. A. (Amy) Meyer, deceased, Mrs. Caster (Ethel) Moe, Mrs. James (Darlene) Muzzy, Mrs. Erwin (Leona) Muzzy, Kenneth Muzzy, Mrs. Lester (Violet) Muzzy, Mrs. Clifford (Maxine) Olson, Mrs. June Nelson (Harvey) Odegaard, Frank Passa, Mrs. Frank (Lucille) Passa, Mrs. William (Gloria) Pederson, Raymond Rausch, Mrs. Raymond (Florence) Rausch, deceased and Mrs. Robert (Marilyn) Rausch;

Also Mrs. I. J. (Amanda) Russell, Melvin Saugen, Mrs. Robert (Thea Saugen Casey) Casey, Mrs. Olaf (Nina Malberg Simonson) Simonson deceased, Mrs. Terry Solne, Alfred Solem, Mrs. Alfred (Rebecca) Solem, Mrs. Thornton (Maryanne) Stark, Mrs. Vernon (Fern) Stenberg, Curtis Swanson, Mrs. Curtis (Clara Mae) Swanson, Mrs. B. J. (Bernice) Vatsaas, Mrs. Henry (Lena) Williams, and Mrs. Leonard (Shirley) Yonke.

Mrs. Robert Rausch, current adult leader, presented several gifts from the club. Michael Drees, three-month-old son of Nick and Debi Drees, was honored as the youngest future 4-H member present. Frederick Meyer from Mitchell, SD, came the furthest distance, followed by Mrs. Betty Russell Larson from Carrington, ND. Both are former members. Tracy Lord received a gift for assisting with the history from the extension office, and Mrs. Amanda Russell and Mrs. Alfred Solem for their research in getting clippings, pictures, names of all members and adult leaders of the club during the 50 years, posting the information on the walls, and for their continued interest in the 4-H program.

Harold Halvorson and Melvin Saugen, former adult leaders, were awarded gifts for their janitor work and their continued support of the program, and Mrs. Bert Kron, a charter member, who has continued her interest in 4-H work, having been an adult leader for about 35 years. Mr. and Mrs. Edson Hillyer have had the most children enrolled in 4-H work during the years — Carol, Mrgaret, Shirley, Kenneth, Kathy, Susan, Henry, Delores, Martha and James.

Five former members — Irene Dowacter Nelson, Clara Mae Jorde Swanson, Harland Knutson, Joyce Meyer Kron and Lucille Williams Myer — have had children and then grandchildren enrolled. From this list Mrs. Nelson received the gift for being the three generation family three ways. About 50 former members are not two-generation 4-H families.

Recognition was also given the following extension office personnel present: Terry Courneya, Bill Penning, Deborah Matero, Beattie Mickelson, Peter Solem, Polly Prunuske, Tracy Lord and three former Steiner 4-H members who have been secretaries at the extension office — Dawn Swanson Berard, Debi Halvorson Drees and Joan Rausch Lubitz.

A cash gift was given to the Steiner 4-H club from Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Stark as an appreciation and in memory of their son Stuart, who excelled in the conservation project as a Steiner 4-H member and who died of Leionnaires disease at age 21. In closing, Mary Courneya led in a new table grace song.

Lunch, featuring two decorated cakes, was served following the program. Mrs. Lester Muzzy and Mrs. John Anderson cut and served the cakes. Kristina Adams and Monica Rausch served the green-colored punch and the coffee, while other current members assisted wherever they were needed.

Following the program and lunch a social time was held, giving everyone an opportunity to view the history of the club through the many clippings and pictures on display. The Steiner 4-H club has been awarded several plaques during the 50 years for being selected the "Club of the Year", now known, as an "Honor Club".

FREDERICK MEYER of Mitchell, SD, was the former Steiner 4-H club member to come the greatest distance to attend the club's 50th anniversary recently. He was presented with a gift from club president Monica Rausch and past president Scott Muzzy.

AMANDA RAUSCH, who had been an adult leader in the Steiner 4-H club for nearly 20 years and continued an active interest in the program, was recognized at the club's 50th anniversary recently at the Steiner hall. Monica Rausch, club president, and Scott Muzzy, past president, presented the award.

ALFRED SOLEM, a past adult leader of the Steiner 4-H club, read the 50-year history of the organization at its anniversary program recently in the Steiner hall.

KERMIT SOLEM, a former member of the Steiner 4-H club, gave the invocation at the 50th anniversary observance of the club recently at the Steiner hall. Rev. Solem was serving South Immanuel Lutheran church of Rothsay and has recently been installed in Duluth.

REBECCA SOLEM of rural Thief River Falls, a past adult leader of the Steiner 4-H club, participated in the 50th anniversary program of the club recently by reading letters of greetings and congratulations received for the event.

Council Raises Utility Rates, Ponders 3rd St

Thief River Falls city council held its regular meeting last night in city auditorium, following a hearing on revenue sharing fund allocations, with major topics including increases in utility rates, establishment of a site for a senior citizen center south of the library, and deadline for approval of the Third Street improvement project.

Revenue sharing hearing involved considerable discussion on certain proposed uses for funds. With anticipated available funds totalling approximately $93,500, council was faced with approximately $98,500 in requests budgeted for the account, even after placing a number of requests to purchase city equipment back in department budgets.

Among budget items questioned were a $13,000 request from the park board to rebuild east side tennis courts, a $15,000 request from Jobs Inc. to fund its director of economic development program; and a $5,000 request from the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance to fund operations of its shelter for battered women. After considerable discussion, the matter was referred to the finance committee, with instructions to balance the budget, leaving the Ripley Shelter request in, and bring a recommendation back to the council for approval at the first meeting in December. That motion was opposed by Aldermen Milan Borsheim and Don Goodrich.

Council spent a great deal of time discussing various matters relating to reserves within the utilities department budgets, before finally approving increases in water, sewer and electric rates for 1984. Water rate structure was changed by eliminating the 1500 gallon minimum on water usage, resulting in a $1.67 per month increase to all customers except those using less than 1500 gallons. Those users would receive a smaller increase.

Wastewater rates were increased by raising the service charge, resulting in an increase of 15 cents per month for normal residential service.

Electric rate increase varied according to the type of service, but amounted to approximately three to four per cent for most residential users. Superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson noted that due to anticipated increases in cost of purchased power within the next five years, rates could be expected to climb annually, as the department attempted to prevent an overly large increase at any one time.

Auditor Robert Poissant commented that the city council was in a rather unique position, acting as elected representatives of city residents, while also serving as the board of directors for a rather large utility corporation. He recommended the rate leveling program as a way of building a reserve fund to avoid sudden increases in rates, stating it was "just good business." Anderson noted that even with the increase, electricity was still a good bargain, comparing it to 73 cent fuel oil as a heating source.

In addition to the rate increases, council also approved an ordinance which drastically changes the way in which costs of maintenance, repair and replacement of sanitary sewer and water mains are paid. Costs of such activities will now be the responsibility of the city, and will be distributed among all users of the system through increases in the rates.

Previously, property owners adjoining individual lines requiring repairs or replacement were assessed for the work. Engineer Don Stewart noted that inequities had always existed in the assessment system, resulting in necessary maintenance work sometimes being voted down at hearings, against the advice of experts. This sometimes resulted in greater expense at a later date. Under the new ordinance, installation of utilities in new developments will still be assessed against the property owners, but maintenance and repairs will be the city's responsibility after that point. Property owners will still be responsible for the portion of water and sewer lines which are located on their private property.

Mayor Bob Carlson announced that as a result of input which he had received during the recent election, he was recommending that the property directly south of the Northwest regional library building be set aside for construction of a senior citizen center. Alderman Bill Penning suggested that the mayor was "overreacting" to the pressures of the campaign" and noted that the library board had expressed interest in developing the property of their own use. He also noted that the senior citizens group still appeared to be talking about a number of other options.

On being accused of dragging his feet by several senior citizens present, Penning emphasized that he was only questioning the choice of that particular lot, and not the need for a senior citizen center. Morris Howick noted that the seniors had looked at nearly every site in town, emphasizing that they had to have a location for the building before they could apply for grant money which is available for construction and equipment. He noted that the next most logical site, by the old Carnegie Library, was now tied up until May, by an option granted to Architect Gerald Mundt. After considerable discussion, council referred the matter to the finance committee, which is to meet with representatives of the library board and the senior citizens and report back at the December 13 meeting.

Status of the Third Street improvement project was discussed, noting that the Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) had left its plans for the final design of the street for the council to either accept or reject. Council members expressed concern over areas of the plan which call for closure of Red Lake Boulevard's access to the street and taking of a portion of the parking lot at Evangelical Covenant church. Noting that "they" (MnDOT officials) had stated there would be no project without the changes, council moved to request a written statement from the district engineer to that effect, and ask again if there was not some way that at least a one-way access to Red Lake Boulevard could be created.

Action was taken to hold a special meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, in order to hear opinions on whether they should accept or reject the Third Street plans. Council is caught between concern over the need for repairs to Third Street, and the concern over what will happen if approximately 3500 cars presently using Red Lake Boulevard on a daily basis are redirected to already congested Davis Avenue. MnDOT claims that the Third Street intersections of Davis and Red Lake Boulevard are too close together for safe traffic merging.

In other business the council:

— Referred a request to establish a 15 minute parking zone on LaBree Avenue, across from the post office, to the Pennington county safety council. Businessmen from the area noted that most of their customers could accomplish their business in that amount of time, and said that double parking in the area posed a safety hazard;

— Approved an engagement letter with Holcomb, Knudson and Company to perform the 1983 audit;

— Approved a progression raise for wastewater department employee Mitch Hams, moving him from the second to the third level with a salary of $1,355;

— Noted that a three year contract with American Linen would be terminated in August 1984, and rebid to allow a local vendor to compete;

— Noted that a $500 check had been received from Architect Gerald Mundt, granting him an option on the Carnegie Library building until May 1;

— Approved a contract with Northern State Bank to administer loans for Northern Outerwear and Polar Research.

Jones Named Chair Of Heart Fund Campaign

L.L. Jones, Thief River Falls, has been selected 1984 Pennington county chairman for the American Heart Association, Minnesota affiliate, according to Milon Schmid, Northwest regional chairman.

Jones will coordinate 1984 state Heart Fund campaign efforts by recruiting and conducting fund raising and community program activities in Pennington County.

Conducted year-round, the state campaign is highlighted in February, Heart Month, when 60,000 Minnesota volunteers call on neighbors to collect contributions and distribute lifesaving information on heart disease.

Last year's state campaign raised $2,020,927. These funds will be used to continue the Minnesota affiliate's programs of research, community service and professional and public education.

For the first time since 1948, the percentage of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease has fallen below 50 per cent on the national level. In Minnesota, deaths attributed to cardiovascular disease fell from 16,983 in 1980 to 11,917 in 1981.

Despite this progress, heart disease killed 979,500 Americans in 1982. In Minnesota, heart disease is responsible for 36.3 per cent of deaths, more than any other single cause.

American Heart Association, Minnesota affiliate is the only statewide health agency dedicated to reducing premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

1st Travelogue Of Series Set Here Monday

Stanley Paulauskas

First of four travelogues being presented by the Thief River Falls evening Lions club will be offered free of charge in the Lincoln high school auditorium Monday at 7:30 p.m. The additional three programs, scheduled in January, February and March, will be covered by season ticket.

Stanley Paulauskas will present his program entitled "Scotland — A Highland Fling" at the opening program Monday, which is intended to be an introduction to the type of family entertainment offered by the series. Season tickets for the remaining programs — featuring Canada, Hawaii and Mexico — will be $8 for adults, $7 for senior citizens, $6 for students or $20 per family. They are available at the Kmart sports department or by calling 681-1930, 681-5551 or 681-6411.

Jim Hallamek and Ken Kesterke of the evening Lions club noted that the series is educational in nature as well as entertaining and will be of value to people of all ages. Presenters are professional film makers who narrate their programs and provide informative dialogue along with the films.

Other programs in the series include "Wild Canada, Coast and Coast" by John Wilson on Monday, January 16; "Hawaii" by Dennis Cooper on Monday, February 20; and "Three Faces of Mexico" by Curt Matson on Monday, March 12.

Paulauskas program Monday will include film of such Scottish highlights as the Royan and Ancient golf club, salmon fishing, mountain climbing, Loch Ness, the Isle of Skye, Mam Ratagan pass, [illegible] the Shetland islands, Glasgow and the river Clyde.

A native of Cleveland, Paulauskas developed an interest in photography while traveling for a construction company and later concentrated on travel and photography.

Each of the programs will be about 90 minutes in length and presented by the film makers in person.

Caution Needed Using Kerosene Heaters Indoors

As we enter the winter heating season, the state health department is again strongly advising that users of unvented kerosene heaters take a number of specific precautions when using the units indoors. The measures are being recommended to reduce exposure to potentially harmful airborne pollutants produced by the heaters.

Authorities say the heaters can produce contaminants in concentrations which exceed recommended health guidelines, and which could threaten the health of sensitive individuals.

In making the recommendations, department authorities cited a number of studies which suggest that the heaters are "a significant source" of airborne contaminants. They expressed concern that many people are not buring the right grade of kerosene in the heaters, and are not providing proper ventilation when using them.

The department has recommended that users of the heaters always observe the following precautions:

+ Be especially careful about deciding to use an unvented kerosene space heater is anyone in your household if pregnant, has heart disease, lung disease, anemia, asthma or some type of allergy. Exposure to carbon monoxide produced by the heaters may require the heart to work harder, to compensate for lowered blood oxygen levels. A fetus, whose heart normally operates near peak capacity, or an individual with heart disease or anemia, may not be able to compensate completely, and may face special health risks.

Several of the gases emitted by unvented kerosene heaters are also respiratory irritants, and can aggravate existing respiratory diseases. Although authorities say there is still much to be learned about the health effects of air pollutants in an indoor setting, they believe the levels measured during the health department study of kerosene heaters, and those reported in the scientific literature, do pose health hazards for high-risk groups. They recommend that people in high-risk groups give serious consideration to using other heat sources.

+ If using an unvented kerosene heater indoors, always provide a ventilation opening to the outside of at least 44 square inches (equivalent to opening a window about 1½ inches for every 11,000 BTU of heating capacity.

+ Provide extra ventilation if you use an unvented heater in a specially constructed or renovated "energy efficient" home. These "tightly constructed" houses provide less opportunity for contaminants to escape.

+ Use only number one kerosene in your heater, even if other grades of kerosene are less expensive and easier to find. Its lower sulfur content serves to reduce production of sulfur dioxide, a major pollutant. Under Minnesota law, only number one kerosene can be sold for use in unvented heaters.

+ Do not purchase a larger heater than needed for the room in which it is to be used. Using an "oversized" heater can cause higher concentrations of pollutants to accumulate in the room.

+ Do not move your heater to a smaller room than the one for which it was purchased. You will, in effect, be using an "oversized" heater. The Minnesota building code prohibits the use of unvented heaters in bedrooms.

+ Always keep the wick of the heater properly adjusted. Studies have shown that improperly adjusted wicks can significantly increase the level of air contaminants released from an unvented kerosene heater.

The recommendations are based partly on a study conducted last year by the department of health, in cooperation with the department of energy, planning and development, and the state pollution control agency. It was found, during the study, that unvented heaters, produce a number of common air pollutants, including sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, nitric oxide, carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide.

It was also found that indoor use of the heaters can produce levels of contaminants which exceed accepted health standards. Most of the contaminants produced by the heaters are also present in the air of a typical urban area, and in certain occupational settings. In both cases, state and federal regulations limit permissible concentrations of these pollutants.

The study investigators measured the contaminant level which resulted when the heaters were used with and without proper ventilation. A survey conducted earlier in Pennsylvania found that users of unvented kerosene heaters commonly ignore manufacturer's recommendations regarding ventilation.

Number two kerosene has a sulfur content of up to 0.3 per cent, compared with 0.04 per cent for number one kerosene. Although it is illegal here to sell number two kerosene for use in unvented heaters, authorities believe there is a strong probability that the lower grade of fuel is being widely used, because it is cheaper and more readily available. The kerosene used in the health department study had a sulfur content of less than 0.1 per cent.

The study also looked at the effect of using a larger heater than necessary for a given room. Because heaters come in only a few fixed sizes and their output usually can't be adjusted, it is often necessary to use a heater which is larger than required. Many people also use the heaters in more than one room, often moving the units from a larger room to a smaller one. The study found that use of an oversized heater can result in even higher concentrations of pollutants.

Only convective kerosene heaters were tested in the health department study. Another study has found that radiant heaters emit the same kinds of pollutants, in different proportions.

Drunk Driving Awareness Week Is Set

Nationwide candlelight vigil in remembrance of victims of drunk driving crashes is planned for the evening of Sunday, December 11, as the beginning of "National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week." In Minnesota, a memorial ceremony will begin at 7 p.m. at the state capitol building in St. Paul.

Governor Perpich has likewise proclaimed the week, "Minnesota Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week." "The vigil comes just before the Christmas holidays at a time when drunk driving tragedies can reach their devastating peak," said Minnesota department of public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

"Over the years, hundreds of thousands have been killed in car crashes were alcohol or drugs were involved. We must explore every possible way to stop this senseless killing. The purpose of the vigil and this week is to take time to stop and remember those who have been victimized. That alone is an important step," said Tschida.

Anyone wishing to participate in the vigil is encouraged to assemble at the south entrance of the capitol at 6:30 p.m. on December 11. Starting at 7 p.m., the names of those killed by drunk drivers will be read. Participants are encouraged to bring pictures of loved ones. They may also bring their own memorial candles.

People unable to travel to St. Paul, but who would like to have a loved one's name read at the vigil can do so by writing MADD, P.O. Box 35012, Edina 55435, or call 612-938-0700.

Throughout the rest of "Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week: in Minnesota, December 11 through 17, other events including media appearances, press conferences and local speaking engagements will be conducted.

Other ways of protecting yourself and family from intoxicated drivers include:

— Report any suspicious driving to the police, especially on weekends. Wide turns, weaving, straying off the road or over the center line are good clues to intoxicated driving. A phone or CB call could prevent a crash.

— Be a responsible host at parties. Provide plenty of food and stop serving drinks early. Don't let friends leave if they have overdone it — let them spend the night, offer to drive them home or call a cab.

— Promote the idea of a designated-driver. Have a licensed driver in your group refrain from drinking so there will be a sober driver at the end of the evening.

Start buckling up for every trip and ask passengers do the same. Safety belts are the best protection against drunk and drugged drivers.

Sheep Day Set In Crookston On Tuesday

Annual sheep day at the Northwest Experiment station is set for Tuesday with registration and refreshments beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the agricultural research center.

Panel will discuss and answer questions on the feeding of salvage and distressed feeds to ewes and feedlot lambs. "Abortions in Sheep, — Causes, Prevention and Treatment" will be discussed. Dr. Robert Jordan, University of Minnesota animal science department, St. Paul, will speak on "Sheep Production Model for the 1980's".

Dr. Harvey Windels, Northwest experiment station, will report to sheep producers the results of a new trial "The Economics of Alfalfa Hay, Haylage or Pellets for Roughage in Lamb Finishing Diets" and briefly review the progress on the "fall shearing" and "replacement ewe lamb growth" projects. A tour of the sheep facilities and trials in progress at the Northwest experiment station will be conducted.

Producers, their bankers, vo ag men and county extension agents are especially encouraged to be on hand. Program details will be mailed out to all sheep producers and others who have previously attended sheep day at the Northwest station.

Medicaid Patients To Be Screened

Foundation for health care evaluation (FHCE) announced recently that its Medicaid cost containment contract with the Minnesota department of public welfare has been expended to 50 counties in Minnesota.

Under the contract, the foundation conducts screening of all Medicaid patients prior to admission to a hospital. The foundation began operating under a contract with the department of public welfare for pre-screening services for the seven-county Twin Cities area in early October.

FHCE executive vice president James Rosevear explained: "Preadmission screening of patients has proven to be a valuable tool in controlling unnecessary health care costs while maintaining quality care. Services we perform for Medicaid patients will be consistent with the private review program we provide for 43 local companies and organizations who share our dedication to quality health care at a reasonable cost."

The FHCE will provide mandatory pre-screening for all Medicaid patients for 107 hospitals in 50 counties of the northern two-thirds of Minnesota and will review approximately 43,000 Medicaid admissions annually. Program does not include general assistance, Medicare, or Medicare with Medicaid supplement. Emergency admissions, deliveries and newborns are excluded from preadmission screening.

Under the program, the physicians' office will have the primary responsibility of notifying the foundation by telephone of the necessity of admission of a Medicaid patient, as well as informing the hospital that preadmission certification was obtained. The foundation will screen the preadmission request against admission criteria which have been approved by physicians and are used by the nurses in conducting the screening.

Foundation nurses may either certify a request for admission using the criteria or pass requests on to a physician for a more indepth review. Notification of admission certification is sent to both the hospital and physician and is required for processing of claims and disbursement of Medicaid funds by the department of public welfare.

"Our initial month's experience in the metropolitan area was most encouraging," Rosevear stated. "With the cooperation and support of local physicians, the foundation was able to avoid 76 days of hospitalization without decreasing the quality of health care rendered to the patient. An additional 35 requests for inpatient admissions were referred to alternative care treatment such as same-day surgery, shelter care and outpatient treatment for psychiatry and chemical dependency."

The program will be conducted on an annual basis and will include an evaluation of the cost savings entailed.

Veterans To Get Increase On Pension Checks

Veterans and their survivors in Minnesota who are receiving veterans administration pension checks under the "improved" pension plan will receive a 3.5 per cent cost-of-living increase effective December 1.

Morris Nooner Jr., director of the VA regional office-insurance center at Fort Snelling, said that VA pensions are paid to wartime veterans totally and permanently disabled from circumstances unrelated to their military service. They are paid also to survivors of wartime veterans who are in need. Unlike compensation paid to those disabled because of military service, pensions are affected by income from other sources, he said.

First check to be received by beneficiaries reflecting the cost-of-living increase will be the check received on or about January 1. Nooner said that veterans and their survivors who are receiving benefits under the "improved" pension plan of 1979 will receive the increase. Pensions for veterans and survivors under the "old" plan remain fixed and payable at the rates in effect in 1978. But those rates are protected against termination that would otherwise result from cost-of-living increases in their income from Social Security, he said.

VA director said that "old" plan recipients may request transfer to the "improved" plan at any time and VA will carefully review each application to advise applicants to choose the plan which works best to their personal advantage.

Rates and details about the pension increase and the program in general are available from the Fort Snelling VA regional office, a representative of a veterans service organization or a county veterans service officer. Toll-free telephone service to VA regional offices is also available nationwide by consulting the "U.S. Government" listings in the local telephone directory.

National Home Care Week To Be Observed

National home care week will be celebrated November 27 through December 3 in cities and towns around the country. Week has been set aside to pay tribute to the many caregivers who serve the aged, infirmed and terminally ill in the comfort and security of their own homes.

In honor of home care week the Marshall county nursing service will hold an open house on Tuesday, November 29 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the nursing service office. Free blood pressures will be taken throughout the day.

Home care is a variety of health services provided by the Marshall county nursing service to patients and families in their homes. It covers skilled nursing, teaching, rehabilitation, and personal care services. Services are offered on a part-time, intermittant basis.

Variety of services are provided, by a Registered Nurse, under the direction of the patients doctor. For example:

— Nurse assists with shots, enemas, catheter care, monitor medications usage, dressing changes and health teaching and reports progress and changes to the doctor.

— The home health aide assists with bathing, shampoo, exercise programs and keeping the environment safe and clean. All aides receive 60 hours of training and work under the supervision of a nurse.

Home care is used when a patient has been discharged from the hospital and needs help at home during convalescence, or when a patient is chronically ill or disabled and with a little help could stay home rather than go to the hospital or nursing home. It is also used when a person with a terminal illness wishes to remain in his home.

Funding for home care services are available through medicare, medicaid, welfare, veterans administration, provate insurance or the patient can pay for the service.

For more information please contact the Marshall county nursing service at 745-5154.

Rux Family Has Every Day Thanksgiving

Bemidji where her cardiologist, Dr. George Lund, was a clinician. On August 20 of this year she had her regularly scheduled check-up in Minneapolis and no urgency was seen in any further procedure.

In September, however, Gary and Shirley received a call that a study group of cardiologists had reviewed Tari's case and the consensus was that another surgery should be conducted soon. It could be done within a short time or could wait until after school dismissed in the spring.

"We decided there was no way we wanted to wait until spring," Shirley said. "If the surgery had to be done, we wanted it done right away. Tari was in really good health, her weight was good and she was strong. With her susceptibility to pneumonia we thought it was best to have the surgery while she was healthy."

Tari was admitted again to Minneapolis Children's Medical center on October 16, and surgery was performed on Monday, October 17. Tari's recuperative powers amazed the hospital staff and even surprised her parents. The second day after surgery (Tuesday) the stomach drainage tubes were removed and she was able to sit in a chair in the room.

On Wednesday the intravenous tube in her arm and a tube in her neck were removed and she walked to the elevator to go to the playroom on the next floor. She even wheeled her 15-year-old roommate who had undergone foot surgery down the hallway in a wheelchair. On Friday she was discharged to go home and had been without pain medications since the final tube removal Wednesday.

After missing about six weeks of school, Tari is back in her first grade class taught by Mrs. Steinhauer. She rough-houses with her four-year-old brother T.J. (Trenton Jacob) and rides her bicycle moto-cross (BMX) bike in the basement.

Already the possessor of a number of trophies won in BMX racing last summer at the track in Thief River Falls, she is looking forward to the 1984 racing season. She competed with both boys and girls in the six to seven-year-old class and won the total points trophy. She has been riding bicycle since her first surgery as a two-year-old and says the last steep hill on the BMX course is the hardest part of racing.

Is there anything a youngster can like about hospitalization for surgery? "The presents," Tari smiles, tossing her long brown hair. Her companions in the hospital were her doll Krista (who even has a heart surgery scar provided with red marking pen) and her stuffed dog, "Al," given to her before surgery by her uncle Al Rux. And her special friend in the hospital was Diane, the child life specialist who was with her during her preparation and recovery. She received many cards from classmates in school and Sunday school and cards and gifts from other relatives and friends.

Tari's surgeon was Dr. Hovald Helseth, a former resident of St. Hilaire while his father was a practicing physician at the Bratrud clinic in Thief River Falls. He performed both of Tari's surgeries, the last one after returning from a three-week trip to China to instruct in heart surgery techniques there.

"Facing open heart surgery for your child is a scary thing," Mrs. Rux admits. "We know that there are a number of children in this area with some sort of heart problem and we have an idea of what their parents are going through. Having experienced the surgery twice, we would certainly be willing to talk to any of these parents, answer what questions we can that they may be reluctant to ask a doctor, and relate our experiences to them.

"With today's advancements in technology and equipment, kids with a problem like Tari really have a big chance at a normal life. Gary and I would take Tari's problem for our child over half of the other problems we see at Children's Hospital because it is a known problem that is correctable. We want other parents of children with heart problems to realize that there is certainly good reason to be optimistic about the child's future."

Thanksgiving day at the Rux household will consist of only Gary, Shirley, Tari and T.J. plus Tari's Godparents, David and Julie Larson of Holt and their daughter Kristie. It will be a quiet time — as quiet as a boisterous Tari will let it be — and it will certainly be a time of thanks.

A CARD GAME called "King in the Corner" is enjoyed by Tari Rux and her four-year-old brother Trenton Jacob, more readily identified as "T.J." Tari had her second open heart surgery in Minneapolis just over a month ago but is back to her active life style once again.

Mike Lundgren

Sports Editor

All 19 Section 8 high school hockey teams will be at the Thief River Falls sports arena Saturday for the annual preseason jamboree, with three new head coaches making their debuts that day. That group includes Jon Bittner, in his first year at Warroad after four years at Hallock; Wes Bolin, Bittner's successor at Hallock; and Pat Sullivan, who is directing the new East Grand Forks Sacred Heart program.

Mike Lundby of Crookston has the most tenure as a Section 8 coach, beginning his 11th year directing the Pirates. He is also serving as president of the Minnesota State High School Hockey Coaches Association.

Rest of the coaching line-up, as compiled by Section 8 secretary Frank Fee of Crookston, Mike Donahue, third year at Alexandria; Everett Goodwin, second year at Bagley; Bryan Grand, eighth year at Bemidji; Tom Younghans, sixth year at Brainerd; Joe Ernster, fourth year at Crosby-Ironton; Duane Earnest, fifth year at Detroit Lakes; Tony Palmiscno, fifth year at East Grand Forks; Tim Cullen, second year at Fergus Falls after four years at Alexandria; Tom King, sixth year at Indus; Doug Nosan, seventh year at Lake of the Woods, but first since 1978; John Wagner, fourth year at Little Falls; Terry Shercliffe, eighth year at Moorhead; Jeff Lindquist, fourth year at Red Lake Falls; Gary Hokanson, seventh year at Roseau; and Wendell Grand, eighth year at Thief River Falls.

Area hockey fans are encouraged to take in all or part of the jamboree, which has its first scrimmage session, featuring two 11-minute periods, scheduled for 11 a.m. and the final Thief River Falls vs. Crookston match-up set for 9:30 p.m. Admission price of $2 for adults and $1 for students is good for all day, with spectators welcome to come and go as they please. Proceeds will go to the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA).

This is the one chance to view all 19 Section 8 teams under one roof. Eight of them will be back in Thief River Falls for the 1984 Section 8 tournament, scheduled to be held here Feb. 24, 25, 27, 28 and March 2.

Section 8A Football Field

Competition in next year's Section 8A field for the new state-wide Minnesota high school football playoffs should be keen. The group includes Park Rapids, a team that reached the 1983 Class A state title game Saturday at the Metrodome; East Grand Forks, the Class A state runner-up in 1982; Crookston, the Class A state champion in 1980 and a playoff participant this fall; plus Fergus Falls, a team that missed the state playoffs this year despite an impressive 8-1 record as a Class AA independent.

Rest of the 1984 Section 8A field will include Thief River Falls, Staples, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Perham.

Eight of the nine teams will be seeded into the Section playoff by a vote of the coaches, with the winner advancing to the Minnesota State High School League Class A state quarterfinals.

Miscellaneous

+ Looking ahead to post-season play, Northland community college hockey coach Tony Dorn, Jr. is happy with this year's new state playoff format that will feature two-game, total-goal series at different sites instead of having the top four regular season Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) finishers gather at one arena for the state tournament semifinals, third place and championship games. First round 1984 MCCC state playoff series will be played the weekend of Feb. 17-19 with the No. 4 regular season finisher at the site of the No. 1 team and No. 3 at No. 2. First round winners meet in the state finals the weekend of Feb. 24-26 at the site of the highest regular season finisher. The 1984 NJCAA national hockey tournament will be played March 2-3 at the College of DuPage in Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

+ Thief River Falls freshman Tim Bergland made his first varsity appearance with the University of Minnesota hockey team in the Gophers' weekend WCHA sweep over North Dakota. He is expected to see more playing time for the Gophers, who have been hard hit by injuries.

+ Six Roseau high school products are members of the 1983-84 Concordia college hockey team in Moorhead, including senior forward Andy Odegaard, senior defensemen Mark Vatnsdal and David Larson, junior defenseman Rich Larson, sophomore forward Erick Grafstrom and freshman forward Larry Goos. Odegaard and Larson will serve as co-captains of the Cobbers this winter. Other Section 8 graduates with Concordia are junior Shawn Anderson and freshman Kirk Arnold of Moorhead, plus junior Dave Swanberg and freshman goalie Joel Duray of East Grand Forks.

NCC Player Named To All-Region 13 Squad

Northland community college sophomore Todd Graalum, a wide receiver from Fargo, N.D. who was earlier awarded with post-season all-conference recognition, received additional football honors this week when he was named to the 1983 All-Region 13 squad.

Graalum, who caught 33 passes for 425 yards this fall, was named to the All-Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northern Division honor squad last week, along with Northland teammates Greg Landerud, a sophomore defensive end from Edinburgh, N.D., and Wade Hruby, a freshman offensive guard from Thief River Falls.

Monday came word that Graalum's name is also included on the All-Region 13 listing that covers Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Four other Northland players were awarded honorable mention status on the All-Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division team, it was reported earlier, including sophomore offensive back-defensive back Bob Rockwood, Fargo; freshman quarterback Steve Blanc, Columbia Heights; freshman defensive lineman Steve Robinson, Westland, Mich.; and freshman defensive lineman Jay Weiber, Verndale.

Region 13 player-of-the-year honors were shared by Blaise Tomczak, an offensive lineman from Itasca, and Kevin Ronsen, a defensive lineman from North Hennepin.

Coach-of-the-year in Region 13 was Fred Moyer of Normandale.

NCC Recruiting Still Continuing

With the 1983-84 season opener against rival University of Minnesota-Crookston just two weeks away, second-year Northland community college hockey coach Tony Dorn, Jr. is busy on a last-ditch recruiting effort necessitated by late moves by team personnel that has left Dorn and the Northmen scrambling for bodies.

It was an unexpected twist for Dorn, who had anticipated having most of his freshman-dominated 10-10 team of a year ago returning. Sophomore Todd Gregoire led the team in scoring with 17 goals, 24 assists and 41 points, but the rest of the team's top scorers were freshmen, as was goalie Bill Bye, who started in 14 of the 18 regular season games.

But Bye (Fargo) decided not to return to school; Tom Raymond (Fargo), the team's third leading scorer, transferred elsewhere to begin studies in dentistry; and Tom Ose (TRF), the team's fifth leading scorer, transferred to UMC to take up an agriculture program.

Their absence in no way reflects on dissatisfaction with the Northland hockey program, explained Dorn. They were simply educational moves, but nevertheless will definitely affect the team.

"It looks like a bad time of the year to be recruiting," admitted Dorn, "but because of the situation we're in we haven't got any choice. I'm in contact with about a half-dozen players who would be eligible winter quarter to fill the void."

Among the players on hand, Dorn has two top-notch defensemen in Fargo North sophomore Todd Graalum and Bob Rockwood, and he's high on freshman Rod Harder of Thief River Falls and first-year sophomore Dean Cuno of Red Lake Falls. Graalum was No. 2 on last year's scoring list with nine goals, 17 assists and 26 points.

"I feel real good about our defense," confirmed Dorn, "and I think we've got two strong lines."

Those top units at this point include sophomore Ladd Bjugson of Fargo North, fourth on that scoring list with 17 goals, three assists and 20 points, skating with sophomore Jim Dillon of Thief River Falls and freshman Bob Martin of East Grand Forks. Meanwhile, freshman Chris Jorde of Thief River Falls is teammed with sophomore Scott Steinbach of Fergus Falls and freshman Terry Ohlund of International Falls, a player who is awaiting expected clearance from officials after originally beginning school last year at Rainy River.

Others on the squad include freshmen forwards Tom Thompson of Park River, N.D., Darin Gourde of Grafton, N.D. and Jason Bergeron of Argyle, along with freshmen goalies Jay Boomgaarden of Lake of the Woods and Pete Bothum of East Grand Forks.

"We need another good line of forwards," explained Dorn. "If we can pick up another line we'll be in good shape."

Thief River Falls Will Face Crookston . . .

Prowlers Host Section 8 Hockey Jamboree Sat.

Blessed with a strong group of wings and a number of veteran defensemen, Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand is searching for some centers and a goalie that would complement them and make the Prowlers a solid Section 8 threat during the upcoming 1983-84 season.

Graduation losses were minimal in terms of numbers, but costly in terms of talent, and the holes left by centers Tim Bergland and Tom Kenville, plus goalie Kerry Wollin, must be filled to make the Prowlers a contender.

"We certainly have a good nucleus back, but Kenville, Bergland and Wollin were very instrumental in our success last year," mentioned Grand. "They'll be hard to replace." Bergland, now at the University of Minnesota and Kenville, now at Clarkson, were the Prowlers' leading scorers last year. Wollin handled nearly all of the goal tending, finishing with a 2.7 goals-against average.

Thief River Falls finished the 1982-83 season with a 16-6-1 record and reached the Section 8 tournament finals before losing a heart-breaking 1-0 decision to Roseau.

"We've got six forwards returning who played a lot," pointed out Grand. "They played well last year and we expect them to play well and to improve this year. We've also got four defensemen back, and some of them have been playing (varsity) for a number of years for us. Experience is our biggest asset. We're encouraged by the experience factor at the beginning of the season."

Nine seniors who played regularly last winter include forwards Tim Bottem, Mitch Semanko, Ryan Bakke, Rick Spong and Steve Wiskow, along with defensemen Brian Johnston, Jim Geatz, Gary Cornell and Al Ness. Junior forward Joe Blankenfeld was also a starter most of his sophomore season.

That is a solid group of hockey talent, acknowledged Grand, but it doesn't include a goalie and it includes just one center (Bakke).

"That is a concern of ours," said Grand about the absence of experienced center icemen. "That's one of our most critical areas right now. We may have to try switching some people around."

In addition to experience on the wings and on defense, the Prowlers also have good size, a fact not lost upon Grand. "We feel we should be a good, strong club," he said of the team's physical attributes. "We feel we should be strong in the corners. We may play a more physical style of game than we have in the past because of that."

Jamboree Schedule
11:00—Sacred Heart vs. TRF JV
12:10—RLF vs. Hallock
1:20—Bagley vs. C-I
2:30—Indus vs. Little Falls

6:00—Warroad vs. Detroit Lakes
7:10—EGF vs. Bemidji
8:20—Roseau vs. Fergus Falls
9:30—Crookston vs. TRF

Rest of the varsity squad members who will be dressed for Saturday's Section 8 jamboree in the sports arena where the Prowlers close out the day-long activity with a 9:30 p.m. scrimmage session against Crookston, will include senior goaltending candidates Lee Genereux and Craig Thompson; junior forwards Dan Imgrund, Chad Bottem and Bob Huot; junior goalie Steve Solheim; sophomore defensemen Bill Desrocher and John Tranby; sophomore forward Al Erickson; and freshman defenseman Scott Novak.

Junior forward Bob Breiland was among the group, but was lost to the team when he suffered a broken arm in practice Monday.

Ever since Bill Jury graduated after owning the starting goaltending job for three successive years (1977-78, 1978-79, 1979-80), it's been a year-to-year search to find a goalie, noted Grand, "and in most years things have turned out reasonably well," he explained. It's a concern, he admitted, but figures the void left by Wollin, who played in every game a year ago as a first-year starter, will eventually be filled.

In addition to the goalie situation, the Prowlers are also searching for the right combination for a third line to go along with the experienced performers expected to make up two strong forward units.

"If we can come up with a third line to make us a three-line hockey team, we'll be in good shape," said Grand.

Thief River Falls opens its 1983-84 regular season schedule Sat., Dec. 3, with a 7:30 p.m. game against Grand Forks Central in the sports arena.

Prowlers Will Rely On Defense To Start Year

Defense will be the name of the game for the 1983-84 Lincoln high school basketball team, especially at the start of the season, according to head coach Tom Hunt.

Hunt said the Prowlers will utilize pressure defense in hopes of controlling the tempo of the game. There's enough depth and enough athletes on hand who fit into that style of play to make it effective, he says.

Besides, the Prowlers are suspect on offense. And until the offense comes around, the defense will have to carry a big part of the load.

"We can't relay heavily on our offense early in the year," admitted Hunt. "If we do, we're going to be in trouble. We don't have a lot of point production back from last year."

There are two starters returning — senior guard-forward John Brandt, who averaged 6.3 points per game, and senior forward-center Jeff Hamerlinck, who averaged 3.5 points and grabbed 93 rebounds, third on last year's team behind now-graduated Mark Gere and Randy Naeseth. Gere and Naeseth represented a bulk of the Prowlers' offense, too, with 12.1 and 11.6 scoring averages, respectively.

This year's offense will stress the team concept, suggested Hunt. "For us to be successful, we need to have a balanced attack, he explained.

Seniors Tim Kruse and Randy Erickson, plus junior Mark Bondy join Brandt and Hamerlinck as returning varsity performers from a year ago. In Hamerlinck, Kruse and Ericson the Prowlers have three solidly-built 6-2 front-liners.

Rest of the varsity squad that will be in uniform Saturday at the third annual University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) preseason high school basketball jamboree includes senior John Kinsman, Goodridge transfer Jeff Langan and German foreign exchange student Dirk Schulze; plus juniors Dean Brandon, Ryan Drees, Jeff Wilkens, Jeff Vanyo, Tim Nyland, Todd Anderson, Billy Bjerken and Scott Fowler.

Thief River Falls will play Warren at 7:20 p.m. in a jamboree session featuring two eight-minute quarters. In the 6:30 p.m. opener, Bemidji plays Stephen, while the rest of the schedule has East Grand Forks vs. Fisher at 8:10 and Crookston vs. Argyle at 9. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

"We plan on giving everybody a chance to play," noted Hunt. The Prowlers will open their 1983-84 regular season schedule Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 8 p.m. at Roseau.

Beginning his third year as the Prowlers' head coach, Hunt would like to improve upon the identical 7-12 finishes his first two Thief River Falls teams had, and he figures that's possible.

"It depends on our ability to put points on the board," explained Hunt. "It depends on what type of progress we make in the next month. If we respond, I don't see why we can't finish .500 or better. This is a hard-working group. They've made some progress in a short time, but we still have a long ways to go."

New Duck Stamp Design Is Chosen

Fifty years of federal waterfowl conservation will be celebrated next year as a pair of American wigeons on the water by Alabama artist William C. Morris grace the 1984-85 federal migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp, popularly known as the duck stamp.

Morris, 38, of Mobile, Alabama, captured the prestigious honor in national competition at the Interior Department in Washington, D.C., where his watercolor design won over 1,561 other entries in judging November 8-9. It was the first time that Morris had ever entered the federal contest.

His design will be reproduced on next year's 50th "golden anniversary" migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp, which must be purchased by all waterfowl hunters 16 years of age and older in the United States. Nearly two million of the colorful stamps are sold each year to hunters, stamp collectors, and a growing number of non-hunters who want to contribute to the nation's wildlife conservation effort.

Design for each year's duck stamp is selected through an art contest — the federal government's only regularly sponsored art competition. Revenue from the sale of the duck stamp is used to buy vital wetland habitat under a program administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service since 1934.

Morris' achievement follows his win in the 1984 Alabama state waterfowl stamp competition held earlier this year.

"I've won? I don't know what to say! What a delightful Christmas this will be! This is unbelieveable!" Morris said when he was telephoned by G. Ray Arnett, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, and informed of his first-place finish.

A Mobile native, Morris has had no formal art training except for a few weeks of in-studio instruction. "They wanted to make me something different than what I am and tell me what to paint. I wanted to paint wildlife, so I left," he said. He began painting various sports scenes.

"After a watercolor of University of Albama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant proved popular, everyone said I ought to take my art seriously. I became curious whether people would buy scenes other than the sports art I had been painting, and so I started into wildlife."

Morris is a graduate of the Mobile public schools. He attended Faulkner State College in Bay Minette, Alabama, for three years, where he studied drafting and design. He now works as a sales engineer for Borwnell Electro, a manufacturer of electronic instruments for industry, in Mobile. He is married and the father of two sons.

His design depicts male and female American wigeons on a still pool of deep blue water. The Wigeon is a moderately large species of duck, measuring up to 21 inches and weighing about one-and-three-quarter pounds. It has a white underside with a distinctive white crown in the drake that gives the species its common name — the baldpate. Wigeons are nervous birds, quick to take flight in fast, irregular flight patterns and bunched flocks that have been compared to those of pigeons.

"I knew I had to produce a design that would make a good engraving," says Morris. "The good black-and-white contrast on the head of the wigeon, and the iridescence of SEVERAL CHECKS resulting from the benefit hockey game sponsored by local law enforcement officers recently were presented late Tuesday to Supt. Robert Block of School District 564 in Thief River Falls. Steve Hagenah (left) and Bob Wold presented the checks in excess of $1,000 and noted that some additional money is likely to be forthcoming. The funds raised by the game were given to the school district to use in support of its community-funded extra-curricular programs.

Mille Lacs Lake

Department of Natural Resources has announced that Mille Lacs lake was opened to the netting of whitefish and tullibees starting Sunday, Nov. 13. The season will run through December 4.

Date selected for opening a lake to whitefish and tullibee netting is determined by checking water temperature and by testnetting.

Water temperatures near 42 degrees F bring these fish in close to shore and drive most game fish in deeper waters where they can avoid the nets. Testnetting confirms the extent of movement.

Flood Insurance Program

As the state coordinating agency for the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), the Department of Natural Resources has announced changes to the NFIP which became effective October 1.

Federal Insurance Administration (FIA), which administers the flood insurance program, says:

"Over the last 33 months, the cost of processing and issuing policies, in spite of inflation, has remained constant. However, increased costs and flood loss in our nation continue to produce large deficits for the National Flood Insurance Program. . . In an effort to bring the National Flood Insurance Program closer to a self supporting basis, rates have been increased. A genuine effort has been made to decrease the amount of tax dollars needed to subsidize the program, and, at the same time, to distrubute the rates more equitably among policyholders. The average increase in cost is $18 a year ($1.50 per month), with the largest average increase affecting V-Zones (beach properties subject to wave actions), where costs increase about $43 a year (3.60 per month).

FIA has also stated, "In addition to increasing rates, some insurance policy changes, for both new and existing construction, have also been introduced that will help to reduce the overall cost of the program." A noticeable aspect of these changes is that new and renewal policies do not cover damage to:

1. Finished walls, floors, ceiling or other similar construction or improvements to a basement area;

2. Enclosures and building components located below (at a lower elevation or level) the lowest elevated floor of an elevated building (except for the required utility connections and the footing, foundation, posts, pilings, piers or other foundation walls and anchorage system as required for the support of the elevated building);

3. Contents, building machinery and equipment located in a basement area or below the lowest elevated floor of an elevated building (except for stairways and staircases attached to the building and not separated from an elevated building by elevated walkways); except coverage is still provided for sump pumps, well-water tanks, oil tanks, furnaces, hot water heaters, clothes washers and dryers, food freezers, air conditioners, heat pumps and electric junction and circuit breaker boxes (located as mentioned above).

FIA has defined "basement area" for insurance purposes as, "any area of the building having its floor subgrade (below ground level) on all sides."

Another change, called "write-your-own" program, will allow commercial firms to begin providing coverage against flood loss under their own names. Historically, national flood insurance was only available through the NFIP which required a property owner to purchase a NFIP policy separate from and in addition to a standard homeowner's property insurance policy.

Only time will tell how many firms will take advantage of this opportunity; however, FIA to-date has been encouraged by the insurance industry response to the "Write Your Own" campaign.

In addition, effective April 1, 1984, increased deductibles will be available under the standard floor insurance policy. These increased deductibles will result in lowered premiums and may be attractive to those persons interested mainly in insuring against significant loss.

Questions concerning the NFIP can be directed to the NFIP toll-free at 1-800-638-6620.

TRF Elementary Basketball Will Start Winter Program December 5

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club will begin its sponsorship of the elementary school basketball program Mon., Dec. 5, with practices and games planned for boys and girls in the fourth and fifth grades.

"Since this program is not sponsored by the school, we are hoping to get as much parental and community support and involvement as possible," pointed out Backcourt Club officials. Volunteer coaches are needed to handle the practices and games.

Northrop school will have practice sessions from 3:15 to 5 p.m. Girls will practice Mondays and Wednesday, with the boys practicing on Tuesdays and Thursdays. They will alternate Friday practices.

Mark Twain students will practice at Knox school. Girls will practice Mondays and Wednesdays from 3:15 to 5 p.m. and Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8:15 p.m. Boys will practice Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 8:15 p.m.

St. Bernard's and Washington will share the Washington gym. Practice times haven't been set yet.

A permission slip and practice schedule will be issued to the program participants through their schools. Parents are asked to fill out the permission slips and return them to the coaches at the first practice sessions.

Anyone interested in donating time as a coach, or as a substitute coach, should contact Charlotte Bjorgaard of the Backcourt Club by calling 681-1131 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., or 681-5536 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Nuclear war is the ultimate environmental disaster, says the National Wildlife Federation. A major nuclear exchange would trigger firestorms that could plunge Earth into two or three months of darkness, causing temperatures to drop 36 degrees Fahrenheit, stopping photosynthesis, thereby destroying much vegetation, including the delicate ocean food chain that begins with phytoplankton. The impact on the biosphere could lead to the ultimate extinction of the human species.

Set Greenwing Banquet For December 4

Greenwing banquet, for youngsters 17 years of age and younger, will be conducted through the local Ducks Unlimited chapter Sunday, December 4, at 12:30 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls.

Tickets at $7.50 each will provide the youngster with membership in the DU Greenwing program, Ducks Unlimited magazine subscription, meal and a free cap. Parents will be served dinner at $2 each.

Program will include information on firearms safety, waterfowl identification and a film on conservation. Meal will include hamburger, French fries and soft drinks. Reservations may be made by sending $7.50 to Greenwing, Box 10, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or tickets may be purchased at Thune-Upham Insurance or TG Sporting Goods.

'84 Duck Stamp Design Is Chosen

the colors, I felt would stand out in an engraving." Morris spent nearly 100 hours over a four-week period producing his design.

Robert Bealle, of Waldorf, Maryland took second place in this year's duck stamp judging with an oil-on-masonite redition of redhead ducks, and Neal R. Anderson, of Lincoln, Nebraska won third place with a gouache painting of a single redhead.

Judges for this year's contest were Frank G. Harris, III, an independent geologist and national director of the Waterfowl Habitat Owners Alliance of Shreveport, Louisiana; George M. Barley, Jr., a real estate consultant and member of the Florida Environmental Regulation Commission of Orlando, Florida; Douglas E. Miller, president of Wildlife World, Inc., an art publishing company, and owner of the largest collection of wildlife art in the United States of Monument, Colorado; Patrick D. Nolan, president of a real estate consulting company and a cattle rancher of Scottsdale, Arizona; and C.D. Besadny, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources and president of the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies of Madison, Wisconsin.

Duck stamp designs are chosen through national competition open to all artists who are residents or citizens of the United States. Contestants are limited to one entry apiece each year and the competition is intense because of the growing popularity of the contest.

This year's total of 1,582 entries was the second highest total in the history of the "Duck Stamp" contest.

This year contestants entered from all 50 States and the Virgin Islands, with California (140) Minnesota (110) and Pennsylvania (85) producing the most entrants. There were seven other contestants from Alabama besides Morris. Wood ducks, Canada geese, American wigeons and redheads were the most popular design subjects.

Judges place importance on anatomical accuracy of the birds and suitability of the design for reproduction as a stamp, and consider visual impact, composition and design, style, lasting first impression, and distinctiveness in their selection. In addition, the Bureau of Engraving and printing advises judges on the technical requirements for good reproduction as stamp designs.

Federal government offers no prize or award to the winner other than a sheet of the following year's duck stamps autographed by the Secretary of the Interior. Commercial wildlife art dealers in the past, however, have been eager to market limited edition reprints of the winning design under private agreements with the finalist. Through this contest, the reputations of previously unknown wildlife artists have been established, and those of professionals have been enhanced.

These colorful stamps are the largest running, annually issued series in U.S. revenue stamp history. Since 1934, when duck stamps first went on sale, over 3.5 million acres of prime waterfowl territory have been acquired as national refuge system lands or waterfowl production areas with more than $270 million in revenue from the duck stamp supplemented by Wetlands Loan Act Funds. About $15 million in duck stamp revenue is generated by support this program each year.

Non-hunters and a growing number of stamp collectors are also discovering the duck stamp. Interior Department encourages outdoor enthusiasts who enjoy wildlife through photography, bird-watching, and other activities to join hunters in supporting the nation's conservation effort by buying an annual duck stamp. Post offices and U.S. Postal Service philatelic sales units sell duck stamps, as well as an increasing number of national wildlife refuges across the country. This year's $7.50 issue is currently on sale and next year's issue will go on sale July 2, 1984.

Winners Listed In State-Wide Fishing Contest

The $100,000 Minnesota Walleye Cup '83 has announced results of its awards ceremony held at the office complex of Upper Midwest Sports, Inc., sponsors of the tourney.

Walleye Cup was held opening weekend, May 14-15, on all statewide fishing waters. Although there were only 1,361 entrants in 1983, the 1984 contest expects to be much bigger and better.

Champions of the three categories were Darell Randolph, Rosemount, 11-lb., 8-oz. walleye — $25,000 winner; Dan Donafrio, Mounds View, 19-lb., 4-oz. northern — $10,000 winner; and Dwayne Terwey, Duluth, 2-lb. crappie — $2,500 winner.

Randolph received $5,500 in cash, Donafrio received $3,000 in cash. The balance, including interest, will be paid to them, in accordance with the terms of the promissory note from Upper Midwest Sports, Inc., from future tournaments.

One hundred sixty-seven other winners received boats, motors, trolling motors, fishing trips to Alaska, depth finders and reels. The smallest winning fish were a 4-lb., 12-oz. walleye, a 2-lb., 2-oz. northern and a 5-oz. crappie.

Sponsors are encouraged by the public's response to this unique concept of a statewide tournament, although they expect to lose up to $65,000 this year. They anticipate making some changes in the format based upon their experience this year, but are confident there will be a Walleye Cup '84 that will be bigger and more exciting. Details will be announced in a few months.

Fishing Group Plans Special Dec. Meeting

Minnesota Sportfishing Congress (MSC) has announced plans for a statewide meeting in December of fishing clubs and concerned fishing enthusiasts.

MSC field director, Gene Archambault, Mankato, said the meeting will be held Sat., Dec. 3, at the Hopkins House located one mile east of Interstate I-494 on Highway 7 in the Minneapolis suburb of Hopkins. The meeting is scheduled to start at 9 a.m.

Archambault said this is not the regular MSC statewide convention. It is a special meeting to give representatives of clubs, associations and individuals throughout the state, the opportunity to discuss their problems or specific projects with key legislators and officials from the department of natural resources.

Officials from the MSC, suggest that those attending the meeting with specific issues or projects and questions, write down their problem or recommendation, whether local or regional they feel worthwhile to sportfishing. The MSC will conduct a panel that will be staffed by legislators from the house environment and natural resources committee and the senate agriculture and natural resources committee. Joe Alexander and other officials from the Department of Natural Resources, including the new director of fish and wildlife Larry Shannon, will also be on the panel.

Meeting will also include a report from the Department of Natural Resources on their upcoming plans for the $2.50 surcharge passed by the 1983 legislature in the sportfishing improvement act.

Archambault said inqudries have been coming in from every corner of the state concerning the future of sportfishing and the MSC activity. This will also be a rare opportunity for fishermen from all over the state to discuss their problems, projects, etc., directly with top state officials, and the turnout is expected to be the largest thus far.

There will be no admission charge to attend the meeting. However, a buffet lunch will be available for $8.

Mark the date on your calendar, urge MSC officials, and send your letters to the Minnesota Sportfishing Congress, 159 LaFond, St. Paul, MN 55103; or to Gene Archambault, MSC Field Director, 1750 Candi Ln., No. Mankato, MN 56001.

New Wildlife Programs Used For Violations

When New Mexico state officials learned that 34,000 deer were being illegally killed by poachers, Operation Game Thief went into gear.

Anti-poaching program, started in 1977 by the state's Game and Fish Department, is a valuable tool in curbing wildlife crime by offering rewards for turning in game thieves, according to this month's issue of National Wildlife, the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Its success has spawned similar programs all over the country, including the states of Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Operation Game Thief is an effective deterrent to illegal game killing, according to Dan Pursley, who directs the program. Of 539 citations or arrests that have been generated by the program thus far, the department has lost only 10 cases in court. The other 529 cases have resulted in $142,980 in penalities, after paying $51,825 in rewards.

Other states have had similar successes, according to National Wildlife.

Idaho's Citizens Against Poaching program has led of 273 poachers and paid out $82,450 in rewards since its start in 1981. "A poacher knows there's a rewards system, and people who ordinarily wouldn't turn him in will now do it for the reward," says Idaho game official Frank NeSmith.

Nebraska game and parks officers convicted 35 poachers in their anti-poaching program's first four months of operation — yielding $8,599 in fines and damages, after spending $1,550 in rewards (10 informants refused to be paid for their information).

New Mexico's program is guided by a citizens advisory board, which recently convinced the department to increase rewards. Increases, instituted last January, reflect inflation and a need to offer what Pursley believes are more equitable rewards.

Under the new schedule, tips that lead to a conviction for the illegal capture of fish, small game, raptors and furbearers now pay a $150 reward, up from $100. The reward for successful prosecution of a case involving deer or antelope was raised from $250 to $350.

Department has also retained a $250 reward for convictions involving endangered species and game such as turkey, bear, mountain lion, ibex and javelina. Board rules, however, permit even higher rewards when there has been a flagrant violation or a multiple kill.

Operation Game Thief was the brainchild of an Albuquerque sportsman named Tom Reinhardt, who believes the program may also benefit hunters and hunting in general.

"Since 1979, there's been a slow recovery of the deer populations," he says. "Part of the reason may be the stratified hunting season, but I certainly think Operation Game Thief has had something to do with it. And I think it has helped the general behavior of hunters in the field, in terms of littering or poaching.

"Indeed, Operation Game Thief has made the sport better for all of us."

Minnesota has nearly one half of the total peatland acreage in the lower 48 states.

Nitrogen And Plant Growth Being Studied

by Deane Morrison
'U' M News Service

The energy crisis that began 10 years ago has had a profound impact on agricultural research. Large quantities of natural gas are used to manufacture nitrogen compounds for fertilizers, without which many field crops cannot grow. A reduction in farmers' dependence on nitrogen-containing fertilizer would mean reduced costs and conservation of a limited petroleum resource.

One way to reduce the need for nitrogen fertilizers is to rotate crops with legumes. Nodules in the roots of legumes — alfalfa, peas and soybeans, for example — contain bacteria that can remove nitrogen gas from air or soil and make it available to other plants through the process of nitrogen fixation. After the legume dies, decomposition releases useable nitrogen from the plant's tissues into the soil, where it becomes available to the next crop. Thus the next crop will use some nitrogen that originated in the air, which means a smaller requirement for nitrogen fertilizer.

University of Minnesota scientists Gary Heichel, Donald Barnes and Carroll Vance — all members of the agricultural research service of the U.S. department of agriculture — have developed methods of breeding alfalfa for a high ability to fix nitrogen.

They are part of a large research team whose work is supported by the Minnesota and federal governments as well as by the university. The team is unique in studying both basic and applied aspects of nitrogen fixation and in "packaging" their findings for use by farmers and industry.

"To be of maximum benefit, our knowledge must be put into a plant breeding program that breeders anywhere, including developing nations, can adopt," said Barnes. "We also hope that our research in alfalfa will be applied to similar programs with other legumes."

Team's work has taught them a great deal about how alfalfa and other legumes grow. "We used to think that most of alfalfa's nitrogen supply came from fixation in root nodules," said Heichel. "But now we've found that only about 60 per cent comes from fixation. The rest comes from organic matter in the soil."

But nitrogen in organic matter — decayed plant and animal material — has already been fixed. A legume could not contribute to a net enrichment of nitrogen in the soil by relying on organic sources of nitrogen.

Barnes explained why a high capacity for fixation is not the only desirable attribute for a legume. "We can breed alfalfa to take 80 per cent of its nitrogen requirement from fixation, but it may compensate by taking less nitrogen from organic matter. If the total nitrogen intake remains the same, the plant won't necessarily be larger."

Theoretically, a small legume taking 80 per cent of its nitrogen requirement from fixation might fix less nitrogen than a larger plant taking only 60 per cent of its requirement from fixation. This means that the small plant will probably make a small contribution to the soil nitrogen content when it decomposes. Breeding plants whose nitrogen-fixing capabilities result in greater enrichment of soil nitrogen requires specific knowledge of the fixation process, which must be coupled with sound crop management.

The association between plant and bacteria begins when bacteria of the genus rhizobium infect the plant's roots from the outside. Once inside the root cells, the bacteria stimulate root cells to divide and form visible growths called nodules. The bacteria in the nodules change into membrane-bound bacteroids, which can fix nitrogen.

Fixation of nitrogen involves a joint effort between the bacteroid and the plant. The bacteroid contains enzymes that convert nitrogen gas to ammonia. Plant enzymes then use the ammonia to manufacture amino acids — the raw materials for the production of protein. The plant also supplies the energy — derived from photosynthesis — that drives the fixation process and the manufacture of amino acids.

Many traits affect a plant's ability to fix large quanities of nitrogen. Size and number of nodules are certainly factors. But the scientists have discovered that plants can select different strains of rhizobium as partners. Plants that are good at fixing nitrogen are that way because they select good strains of rhizobium. The system of recognition between plants and bacteria is not well understood, but is being researched by William Ellis, a scientist at the University of Minnesota and the USDA.

Another desirable trait is high levels of the enzymes that convert nitrogen to ammonia and that manufacture amino acids. Vance is working to determine the precise biochemical mechanisms by which legumes carry out these functions. "We're interested in identifying plants with a high ability to assimulate nitrogen that's been fixed by the bacteroid," he said. He has already developed procedures to measure the levels of some of the enzymes, which enables plants having high levels of these enzymes to be selected for breeding.

An economically valuable plant must not only fix large quantities of nitrogen, but must also be able to use its nitrogen-containing compounds — amino acids and the protein made from them — for growth. To do this, plants must be vigorous and disease and insect resistant and must be adapted to the climate.

Further, harvesting must be planned so that sufficient nitrogen is returned to the soil. "The upper parts of an alfalfa plant contain, on a weight basis, about twice as much nitrogen as the roots," said Heichel. "Thus, hay harvesting leaves behind the nitrogen-poor part of the plant. management of an alfalfa crop must include putting back sufficient plant tops to result in a net increase in the nitrogen content of the soil."

Jim VanSchaick Is Speaker At Scout Council

A Thief River Falls Eagle Scout, Jim Van Schaick, was honored by being invited to speak to scouts and scouters at the recent annual recognition meeting and banquet of the Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America, held in Bismarck, N.D.

Jim represented all 1983 Northern Lights Council recipients of the Eagle scout award. He received his award from Lord Robert Baden-Powell at a ceremony held July 4 at the 15th world scout jamboree in the Kanaaskis county near Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

Van Schaick was the first American Scout ever to have this award presented by Lord Baden-Powell, grandson of the founder of the Boy scout movement. This event was a dream come true for the local scout after having seen the World scout leader at the Canadian national scout jamboree two years ago.

At the Bismarck banquet, Jim described his thoughts and feelings about this exciting and rewarding event. He introduced and showed the video film he had edited of the award ceremony and the closing ceremony remarks by Lord Banden-Powell, to which Jim had added his own computer graphics.

Following his presentation, Jim was given a May, 1918, issue of the Boy Scout handbook as a token of appreciation and acknowledgement of his achievement. The handbook was inscribed by council president Al Kramer and presented by master of ceremonies, Dr. Kermit Lidstrom, president of Bismarck junior college.

Dr. Lidstrom said the Northern Lights council has a distinct place in the history of the Bout Scouts of America. William Boyce was the Chicago newspaper publisher who brought Scouting to the United States after being assisted by an unknown scout in finding his way in the London fog. Boyce was originally in business in Lisbon, N.D.

Jim is the son of Bonnie Van Schaick of Thief River Falls. He is a member of Troop 59, chartered by Zion Lutheran church and a member of the Voyageur Trails district, Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America, a member of the United Way.

Film Service At Log Church

Gospel film services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, November 27, at the Bethesda log church, but Rev. A Ortmann of Warroad. Services are open to the public.

Motorists To Be Careful Of RR Crossings

November, December, January and February are the months motorists face the greatest risk of being involved in a railroad crossing accident. During 1982, 55 per cent of the 164 car-train crashes in Minnesota took place in these months. Four traffic deaths and 92 injuries resulted from these crashes.

Motorists approaching railroad crossings are urged to be alert, said Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety. He noted that the most commonly cited factors contributing to car-train crashes are driver inattention and failure to yield the right of way.

"Drivers should turn down their car radio and heater while watching and listening for approaching trains," said Tschida. "Also heed the bells, stop signs, flashing signals and lowered traffic gates that indicate a train is coming. Do not drive around gates or speed across a crossing to beat a train."

It is almost impossible for a train to stop for a car that races across the tracks in front of it. An eight-car passenger train traveling at 60 miles per hour requires 3,500 feet to stop while a 150 car freight train traveling at the same speed needs 8,500 feet to stop.

Tschida also urges motorists to use extra caution when crossing a double set of train tracks. "A train on the track nearest you could be hiding another on the tracks behind it," he said.

Minnesota department of public safety suggests that motorists remember these other safety tips when approaching a railroad crossing:

+ When in a line of cars waiting to cross the tracks, allow enough distance to get safely to the other side. Otherwise your vehicle may be pinned between two other cars in front of an oncoming train.

+ Never assume that the empty tracks you cross every day will never be used. Train schedules change. Always look and listen.

+ If you vehicle stalls in the middle of a track, get everyone out of the vehicle and toward the oncoming train, but far away from the active track.

+ Motorists should not overdrive their vehicle's headlights at night. This reduces the chance that their vehicle will run into the side of a train.

Safety Gifts Show You Care At Christmas

Starting your holiday shopping? The Minnesota safety council suggests giving safety this year!

Here are some specific safety gift suggestions for the important persons on your shopping list.

For motorists: road flares or other emergency signal devices, an auto first-aid kit, a fire extinguisher for the car, a folding shovel for the trunk.

For cyclists: a helmet.

For bikers: Leg lights, flourescent rain suit for greater visibility on gray days, biker's helmet, reflectors and bike lights for night biking.

For sports enthusiasts: protective goggles for racquet sports.

For do-it-yourselfers: safety gloves, safety goggles, safety shoes.

For all homeowners: a fire extinguisher for the kitchen or a smoke detector to be installed outside bedroom door.

For parents-to-be: an approved child-safety restaint, required by Minnesota law for every infant as he or she leaves the hospital.

For everyone: a subscription to "Family Safety" magazine, which can be ordered through the Minnesota Safety Council, 555 Wabasha street, Suite 102, St. Paul, 55102.

Energy Dep't. Reports Other Heating Plans

Manure-to-energy digestion on large feedlots, passive solar and superinsulation construction and direct burning of free wood and biomass are the most cost-effective alternative energy technologies in Minnesota's residential sector, according to "The Economics of Alternative Energy Resources and Technologies in Minnesota," a report by the Minnesota department of energy and economic development.

Other alternative technologies that the report finds to be currently cost effective for residences are active solar when compared to electricity costs, burning of wood and biomass that costs $2 to $4 per million BTU ($40 to $80 per cord) and wind energy in some, primarily southern and western, parts of the state.

These findings are in one of the five papers that comprise the report. The other papers address the economic impacts of alternative energy development, the effectiveness of various government incentives to alternative energy development, the cost-effectiveness of alternative energy technologies for commercial and industrial applications, and the costs and benefits of alternative energy for Minnesota utilities. In the most optimistic scenario presented in the first paper, alternative energy development could produce $4.5 billion in gross state product and 151,000 jobs in the year 2000.

Government incentives to alternative energy that appear most effective are state income tax credits and taxation of conventional fuels. Sales tax exemptions and loan and grant programs appear to be less effective, and property tax exemptions appear to be ineffective, according to the report.

Some of the alternative energy technologies that appear to be currently cost effective in certain situations for commercial and industrial applications include solar, wind, direct burning of biomass, biomass gasification, and liquefaction of biomass to methanol.

Hydropower at specific dam sites, and wood residue combustion at existing coal-fired power plants, where technically feasible, are currently cost-effective alternatives for utilities.

Report was prepared for the legislative commission on Minnesota resources. Interested persons can get a copy of the report by writing the Department of Energy and Economic Development.

Children And Playing Topic Of Footsteps

Theme of the "footsteps" program for the week of November 28 is "Truce Blue." Program will illustrate why children put so much energy into play.

Footsteps is a parenting program sponsored by community education which involves video tape presentations followed by group discussion. Tapes are broadcast over KTRF cable channel three at 6:30 p.m. each Monday and are shown again Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in room 114 at the AVTI. Group discussion is held from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday after the video presentation.

Parents may attend any of the sessions at no charge. Preregistration is required and can be done by calling adult education at 681-5424 before 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

Conference Will Seek Unity For RRV Water Policy

Red River Mayors and Reeves association has summoned the Red River Valley's political and economic leadership to a water summit conference next month. Their theme is "Unity".

The two-day meeting is called "The Red River Valley International Water Summit Conference," and it will be held December 8 and 9 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The invitation has gone out to over 1,500 people "whose job is to represent affected interests in any relevant area of (valley) water policy." These include elected officials, corporate directors and the boards of public and private interest groups or associations." The valley's water resource professionals have also been invited to help guide the discussion.

The mayors association formed last spring under the auspices of The International Coalition for Land and Water Stewardship. A group of concerned citizens and public officials formed the coalition in the aftermath of the 1979 flood. The conference will be chaired by TIC president Lance Yohe, a Lutheran pastor from Perley.

The mayors association is chaired by Morris Lanning, Mayor of Moorhead; H.C. "Bud" Wessman, mayor of Grand Forks, N.D. and Albert St. Hilaire, reeve of the rural municipality of Montcalm, Manitoba. All three have been in the forefront of efforts to provide unified policy direction for water use and management on a valleywide scale.

In letters seeking Conference co-sponsorship, the three mayors state that "our immediate goal is not collective policy direction for the valley as a whole. Nor do we seek to develop a working consensus on any substantive policy issue at this time." The mayors seek, instead, "to uncover shared perceptions among different interests, on the need for community and governance, which can provide a working foundation for forward movement toward these goals. We seek to identify collective goals and to build a bottom-up constituency for achieving them".

The scale of this initiative and its "bottom-up" approach have attracted national interest. U.S. Sen. Dave Durenberger is one of five conference speakers who think the valley is a possible prototype for the bottom-up approach to unified national water policy. Durenberger co-chairs the National Water alliance, a new coalition of U.S. Senators and Congressmen who want to stimulate a unified response to the nation's critical water needs.

Whether the mayors create a "voice of the valley" on water policy depends in part on whether Winnipeg, the valley's largest city, joins their initiative. The valley's grain, sugarbeet, potato and other agri-businesses, which operate the region's multi-billion-dollar agricultural economy, will also have an important say.

JUNIOR VOLUNTEERS at Northwestern hospital services who have provided 10 to 100 hours of service were recognized at an awards program recently at the hospital. Left to right are Kim Lofberg, Teresa Gunderson, Candy Canfield, Dena Sund, Anissia Brown, Lynn Novak and Melinda Heaton.

Perspectives on these key issues will be presented at the conference by William Norrie, mayor of Winnipeg, and by Donald Henderson, vice president of the Manitoba chamber of commerce. Henderson also chairs Manitoba's economic summit, a coalition of public and private interests.

If the response is positive, the mayors will seek a formal resolution at the conference to form a committee which represents the valley's political and economic leadership.

The mayors believe the process and structure which have been developed for this initiative should clearly distinguish it as a new departure. "We don't propose to add yet another actor to an already crowded stage, and we are not trying to reinvent the wheel," their letter states. "Nor are we advancing a hidden agenda for imposing a regional water management authority on an unreceptive public."

Yohe says the international coalition is committed to making this initiative work. "Unless those who are responsible for only a part of the picture have access to a broader perspective, which embraces the interests of all who share this special resource, we can't assume that basic water needs will be met," he said. "Our theme is unity simply because we have no other choice."

600 HOURS or more of volunteer service at Northwestern hospital service have been provided by Betty Tauer (left) and Debra Dietz. The girls were recognized for their volunteer efforts at the awards program conducted recently at the hospital.

Council Says To Use Safe Decorations

Proper use of decorations is crucial to a safe holiday season, according to the Minnesota safety council, which warns against overloading circuits, using damaged or worn lightstrings and leaving candles unattended.

Lighted candles never should be used on a tree or near flammables. If Hanukkah candles are placed in windows, be careful to position the memorah to avoid contact with drapes. And be sure to keep candles and matches out of reach of kids.

When selecting a natural tree at the tree lot, try to find a fresh one with deep green color and a strong pine scent. Fresh needles bent between fingers do not break; they are hard to pull from branches. If many needles fall off when the butt of the tree is bounced on the ground, it's too dry — select a fresher one, the safety council advises. Keep the tree outside, with its trunk in water, until ready to decorate it.

When setting up tree, cut off two or more inches of trunk and mount it in a sturdy water-holding stand with legs widespread for stability. Place it where it doesn't block traffic and well away from heat sources such as fireplaces, radiators or stoves.

Use only lights that have been tested for safety. These can be identified by the UL label from Underwriters laboratories. Each year before using, check all strings for broken or cracked sockets, frayed or bare wires and loose connections. Use no more than three sets of lights per extension cord — overloading a circuit with too many lights could cause a fire. Turn all lights off when leaving home or returing at night.

For safety's sake, flame-retardant paper or plastic ornaments are recommended. Avoid placing breakable ornaments or those with small detachable parts on low branches where small children or pets can reach and possibly swallow them.

Keep the tree watered the entire time it's indoors. Remember that in heated rooms trees dry out rapidly. When needles begin to fall off tree in large quantities, dispose of it — this means the tree is dangerously dry.

Persons purchasing artificial plastic trees should select one labeled as fire-resistant.

Metal trees don't present a fire hazard in themselves; however they can be a source of shock hazard if electric lights are attached to them. To avoid the danger, decorators suggest using colored spotlights above or beside a metal tree.

13 Fatalities In State From Bike Accidents

Most Minnesotans won't bother putting snow tires on their bicycles. Instead they are more likely to put their bikes into storage. While there are a growing number of bicyclists who ride year around, the major bicycling season is "unofficially closed."

Preliminary figures compiled by the Minnesota department of public safety show that for the first nine months of 1983 there were 13 fatalities involving bicycles on Minnesota roadways. A breakdown shows eight male and five female fatalities. Six fatalities occurred in urban settings and seven happened in rural areas. Approximately 90 per cent of the fatalities happened in the summer season.

While the number of fatalities for the first three-quarters of 1983 exceed the entire year total of 12 for 1982, it is still well below the recent high number of 24 bike fatalities in 1977. It is also below the 10-year average which is 18 fatalities a year.

"Any highway fatality is tragic," commented public safety commissioner Paul Tschida, "but an increase in bicycle crashes is especially troublesome because young people so often are the victims." While final figures are not available for 1983, the 1982 statistics show that 71 per cent of the bicyclists injured were age 19 or younger. The same age group was involved in 64 per cent of the fatal accidents.

Tschida also added that bicycle safety is a shared responsibility involving both motorists and bicyclists. Local community education and information and bicycle enforcement campaigns are an absolutely essential part of reducing the number of injuries and fatalities involving bicycles.

Fireplace Tips Are Offered By Safety Council

Half the fun of Minnesota holidays is eating popcorn or roasted chestnuts while relaxing in front of a blazing fire. The Minnesota safety council hopes you'll take some time before you relax to check these fireplace precautions.

Inspect your fireplace. If necessary, clean the chimney and repair loose-fitting damper, loose bricks and decaying mortar joints. Clean the ashpit too. Consider installing a mesh screen on the chimney to prevent small animals from falling in and burning materials from being sucked out the chimney.

Install a protective screen in front of the fireplace and be sure it's closed when a fire is burning. Glass doors will help keep sparks from landing on the carpet, will help distribute heat from the fire more evenly and will keep out drafts from the chimney when fireplace is not in use. Keep flammable materials such as pillows, furniture, rugs and paper away from the fireplace area.

Open the damper before lighting the fire; keep it open until the ashes are cool to avoid build-up of poisonous gases. Avoid using gasoline, charcoal lighter or other liquid fuels to light the fire — vapors from these chemicals can explode.

Build your fire to fit your fireplace, splitting all logs larger than six to eight inches in diameter. Too large logs can lead to overheating of wall or roof materials, especially if the fireplace is made of metal.

Avoid burning soot-producing materials such as green wood, plastic-coated materials, leaves, plywood and giftwrap. Read and follow instructions when using artificial logs. Use only one artificial log at a time, and never add an artificial log to a natural wood fire that already is burning. Never burn pine boughs.

And always make sure that the fire is completely out before leaving home or retiring at night.

Minn. Housing Finance Loans Are Available

Minnesota housing finance agency rehabilitation loans are being distributed through Northwest Community Action, Inc., Badger, a subcontracting entity of Northwest Minnesota multi-county housing and redevelopment authority, Mentor.

To qualify for a rehabilitation loan:

— You must own the property you are improving and it must be your principal place of residence.

— You must have an annual adjusted gross income of $7,000 or less.

— The property must have no more than two dwelling units.

— The net value of your assets must be no greater than $25,000. (This excludes "personal" property, the property being improved, and two surrounding acres.)

Households with incomes of less than $6,000 may be eligible for a deferred loan without interest or monthly payments, which need not be repaid unless the borrower sells, transfers or moves from the property within 10 years of the loan date. Households with incomes of $6,000 to $7,000 may be eligible for either a deferred loan or a three per cent loan with small monthly payments. The type of rehabilitation loan received depends upon the borrower's ability to repay a loan.

Minnesota housing finance agency rehabilitation loan may be used for basic and necessary improvements that make your home more livable, accessible and energy efficient. You may receive up to $7,500 to make basic repairs on your home.

If interested in the Min*nesota housing finance agency* rehabilitation loan program and a resident of Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Roseau or East Marshall county, call (218) 528-3258 or write to a pre-application at Northwest Community Action, Inc., post office box 195, Badger, MN 56714.

All applications will be considered until November 4, 1983.

Real Estate Can Motivate

Americans have been overcoming obstacles to home ownership from the first settlements to the present day. And even with the current climbing costs, most Americans still think it's worth the effort to afford a home.

Why? All the benefits. Good housing. Good investment. Good inflation hedge. Good tax benefits. What incentives for saving enough to make the down payment and the monthly mortgage installments!

When you're ready to buy a home, ask a member of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® for assistance. REALTORS® have the professional training and valuable information available from a national organization plus the local knowledge and contacts you need in the community.

Owning a home is a great goal. To wind up with a prize property, talk to a REALTOR® today.

Card of Thanks

Our most sincere thanks to all relatives, friends and neighbors who so thoughtfully helped ease the shock and pain of David's death.

A special thank you to Pastor Ken Losch for his prayers and comforting words, to James Wallace - the organist, to Dan Streed - the soloist and to the active casket bearers.

Thank you for the many cards, memorials, flower arrangements and for the food which was brought to the home. Thank you to the ladies who served dinner and to Hughes Funeral home.

The family has given a memorial gift in David's memory to the Kittson county area diabetes unit in place of sending local thank you cards.

Your many acts of kindness and love shown to the family in the loss of David will always be remembered.

May God bless each of you.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Leonard Larson, who departed this life November 23, 1981:

We give to those we hold most dear,
No greater help and care,
Than when we give them to the Lord,
Surrounding them with prayer.
Grief will not last, joy will return,
For through the tears I clearly see,
That while we part but for a time,
With Christ we'll spend eternity.
Although your soul is now at rest and far from care and pain,
We do so dearly miss you,
And will day after day.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
but you did not go alone.
A part of us went with you,
When God called you home.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank Dr. Jim Langland, Dr. Bray, the nurses and hospital staff for the care I received to make my stay in the hospital more comfortable.

Thank you to all my friends and relatives for their many visits, cards, gifts and all the beautiful flowers I received.

Thank you to my friends and neighbors who brought food to the house to help my family. It was greatly appreciated.

A special thank you to Fr. Patnode, Fr. Bernauer, Fr. Super and Sister Caroline for their many visits and special prayers.

God bless each and everyone of you.

Caramel Kraut Cake

With our dessert idea, it's impossible not to have a balanced meal — even with a simple picnic of fried chicken and fresh fruit. The cake alone contains something from all four food groups: enriched flour from the bread and cereal group; milk from the dairy group; eggs and nuts from the meat or protein group; and sauerkraut from the fruit and vegetable group.

Remember enriched, then you're guaranteed three B-vitamins — niacin, thiamin and riboflavin — plus the mineral, iron.

Caramel Kraut Cake
one 13 x 9-inch cake

- 2¼ cups enriched flour*
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- ½ cup butter
- ¾ cup dark brown sugar
- 3 eggs
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup sauerkraut, rinsed, drained and chopped
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Stir together dry ingredients; reserve. Cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs to creamed mixture, one at a time beating well after each addition. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour. Add vanilla. Stir in sauerkraut and nuts. Pour into greased 13 x 9-inch pan and bake in preheated 350° F. oven 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Frost with Whipped Caramel Frosting.

Whipped Caramel Frosting:

- 2½ tablespoons enriched flour
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup dark brown sugar
- ½ cup butter
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla

Cook flour and milk in saucepan over low heat until very thick, stirring constantly. Cool completely. Cream sugar and butter until light. Add vanilla. Add creamed mixture to cooled flour mixture; continue beating until of consistency of whipped cream.

*Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Or follow directions on bag.

STEINER . . .

Robert Hillyer's Thirty-fourth Anniversary

Friends and relatives are invited to send Robert and Mavis Hillyer greetings in honor of their 34th wedding anniversary, which is December 4. Their address is 737 N. Young St., Mesa, Ariz. 85203. They are both in poor health and a delivery of mail in commemoration of their anniversary day would be fun and much appreciated by them, I'm sure.

Congratulations are extended to the Silverton 4-H club who won first place in the annual 4-H play contest held last Friday evening, Nov. 18 at Northland community college. Selected as best actor was Dale Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Nelson and one of the two best actresses was Kristi Rupprecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rupprecht. Their play was entitled, "What'll We Give Dad".

Mrs. Shirley Yonke, Mrs. Olive Rondorf and Mrs. Rebecca Solem were among the members of the Rebekah circle of Trinity Lutheran church that served a variety of sweet breads to the residents at Valley Home Wednesday afternoon, November 16.

Emil Koglin Passed Away

Funeral services for Emil Koglin, a former resident of the Steiner community will be held at the Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Friday afternoon, Nov. 25 at 2 o'clock. Sincere sympathy is extended to his wife, Viola and family.

Steiner

Mrs. Alfred Solem, Rt. 2, City, 681-3897

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larson attended funeral services for Otto Haarstad at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden Wednesday forenoon, November 16, with Rev. Stephen Estrem officiating. Mr. Haarstad died Sunday at his home in Newfolden.

Christina Gerardy Died

Word was received by the Rausch families Tuesday, November 15 that Mrs. Matt Gerardy (Christina), mother to the late Mrs. Florence Rausch, had passed away in her sleep that morning at the Fairfax Nursing Home in Fairfax. She was born February 14, 1894. Attending her funeral services at 1:00 o'clock Friday afternoon at the St. Andrew's Catholic church in Fairfax were Mr. Raymond Rausch, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rausch, Monica, Wayne, Melissa and Kristina, and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lubitz and Marie and John Rausch from our area. Others attending were Mrs. Gerardy's family, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gerardy from California, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Keifenheim of Red Lake Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Cy Chaplewski of Bloomington. Father James Devorak officiated at the services. Robert Rausch was one of the casketbearers. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rausch also attended the Wake prayer service Thursday evening. The Robert Rausch family were Friday overnight guests at the home of her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Bud May in Brainerd. Saturday they attended the Pete Hanson-Mary Kay Davis wedding at the Catholic church in Pine River. Mary Kay is a cousin to Mrs. Rausch. The Rausch family returned home Saturday evening.

The West Steiner Homemaker club met at the home of Mrs. Clara Jaennette Friday afternoon, November 18, with only four members present, namely-Darlene Muzzy, Evonne Moe, Olive Rondorf and Rebecca Solem. Following the recital of the Minnesota Homemakers creed, roll call was answered by plans for Thanksgiving. Appreciation was expressed for memorial gifts in honor of Mrs. L.A. Meyer and Mrs. Emma Copp from the Helping Hand club sponsored by The Farmer magazine. The spring banquet has been tentatively set for February 13th at the community center in Newfolden and is open to homemaker members and friends. Craft tables will be furnished. The full meal will again be catered. Each club in the East Council is asked to bring a $3.00 gift to be used as a door prize. No work assignment was given to the West Steiner club. 1983 cook books were distributed. Plans were made for the Christmas party for all members and their families at the home of Nina Halvorson Sunday, December 11. Table grace was sung after which Olive and Clara served a good lunch. Door prizes were won by Evonne Moe and Darlene Muzzy.

Mrs. Lloyd Larson attended a meeting of the Esther circle of the Nazareth Lutheran church of Holt at the home of Mrs. Julian Rodahl Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Larson was also a luncheon guest.

Solem Installed

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem were Saturday overnight guests at the Stuart Solem home at Grand Rapids. Sunday morning Mrs. Stuart Solem and Craig, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem and Mrs. Colleen Hawk and baby Garrett drove to Duluth to attend installation services at the Kenwood Lutheran church. Pastor Kermit Solem, who has been the minister at the South Immanuel Lutheran church at Rothsay for the past eight years, has transferred to Duluth. The sermon delivered was by assistant bishop Rev. Art Rimmereid, who conducted the installation services following the sermon. The Solems were all dinner guests at the home of Pastor and Mrs. Solem. They returned to Grand Rapids in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem returned home Monday.

Mrs. Mario Solberg of Thief River Falls was a Saturday forenoon visitor at the home of her folks, the Lloyd Larsons. In the afternoon she visited at the Eugene Kleinwachter home at Strandquist.

Dinner guests at the Clifford Jorde home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rondorf of Rocksbury, and Mrs. Louise Iverson.

Luncheon guests Saturday afternoon at the Harold Halvorson home were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Halvorson of North and their house guests, Nancy Saupe of Anchorage, Alaska. Sunday afternoon they visited at the Stanley Wick home in Grand Forks.

Paul and Chad Helgeland of Thief River Falls were supper guests at the Lloyd Larson home Tuesday and Wednesday evenings last week. Hope Kleinwachter of Strandquist visited with her grandparents all day Monday.

The Senior Citizen's Rhythm band played several numbers for the residents and staff at the Valley Home Friday evening.

Mrs. Ethel Moe, Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas, and Mrs. Ida Omlid attended the movie showing "The Prodigal Son" Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson accompanied by Mrs. Debi Drees, Nicholas and Michael were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Alvin Larson home at Oklee.

Benefit Ham Supper

A ham supper will be served for the public at the National Guard Armory Sunday, November 27, for Daryl and LuAnn Lewis, who have large medical expenses, as a result of a leg amputation. There will be a free will offering. Entertainment by music groups has been arranged.

Tuesday evening company at the Eldon Moe home were Dean Broten and Roger Anderson of Viking, and Arlynn Tunheim of Newfolden.

A Monday afternoon luncheon guests at the Alfred Solem home was John Solem from Grygla.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe, Mrs. Diane Klemetson, Mrs. Julie Steinert and Robin Asp were Thursday evening visitors at the Duane Vatsaas home.

Coffee Can Holds Auto Survival Kit

Here's an idea for an inexpensive but useful gift that children can make — a "survival kit" to be carried in the car during the winter.

Items to pack into a large coffee can include, at a minimum: Quarter for a phone call, taped to inside of plastic lid; small candle and matches or disposable lighter; bandanna or piece of bright red or orange fabric, approximately 18 inches square, which could serve as face mask or signal banner as well as makeshift bandage for first aid;

Also couple of safety pins; few adhesive bandages; small pack facial tissues or few paper towels; large plastic garbage bag; a stock of chewing gum, which could serve as adhesive;

Also small box raisins or bag of peanuts; wrapped hard candies or chocolate bar; packets of dehydrated tea, cocoa, coffee and-or soup; plastic spoons to stir and eat with; piece of wire, which could be used in heating food to suspend can from rearview mirror (punch holes near top of can).

Estimated cost of a kit is about $2, based on purchasing items in a typical Minnesota discount store. Out-of-pocket expense will, of course, be lower if materials from your own cupboards are used.

Other useful items would include road flares, flashlight, compass, windshield scraper, plastic whistle, canned heat, plastic cups, can opener, knife, work gloves, memo pad, pencil and 30 feet of cord or heavy string, which becomes a homing line for anyone who must check outside the vehicle during blizzard conditions.

Tuck in this note signed by the kids:

"We love you and want you to be safe in your car this winter, so here's a survival kit to carry in the interior passenger compartment. Add your scarf and mittens and cover the can with a stocking cap. For safety you should carry road flares; fire extinguisher; nonmetal flashlight (with batteries reversed); spare batteries; snow brush; windshield scraper; first-aid kit; sharp knife; can opener; granola bars or other high-energy, nonperishable foods. In an emergency, the coffee can and candle could serve to heat food or melt snow.

Before a winter trip, please let someone know where you're going and the route you'll take. Put booster cables, shovel, tow chain and sand or traction mat in your trunk. If your passenger compartment (in a large plastic bag) pack nonalcoholic beverages, canned food that could be eaten cold out of the tin, boots, snowmobile suit or other warm clothing and sleeping bag or blankets.

The plastic bag could serve as an improvised wind and water-repellant poncho if holes are cut for arms and head.

If they wish, children may paint the outside of the container or cover it with giftwrap or paper from a grocery bag turned inside out, perhaps decorated with crayoned safety slogans.

You haven't read all of the bargains 'til you've read the Times Classified Ads.

Safety Council Advises Good Toy Selection

When you shop for children, choose toys that are suitable for the age and maturity of the child, the Minnesot safety council advises.

According to the safety council, no toy is meant for every child. As children grow older they reach higher levels of development and need different toys. It offers several suggestions for purchasing safe toys.

— Select toys without small removable parts which can be swallowed by infants and young children.

— Make sure that paint on toys is nontoxic and that electrical toys carry the UL label of Underwriters Laboratories.

— Don't choose toys which are too heavy for your child.

— Look for smooth, rolled edges and toys made of materials which won't splinter or shatter easily.

— Test the stability of riding toys and larger play equipment.

In general, well built, good quality toys from reputable manufacturers or dealers will hold up longer, require less repair and be safer.

BSU Receives State Grant On Peat Research

Center for environmental studies at Bemidji state university (BSU) has received an $85,000, two-year state grant to conduct research on the uses of peat.

Project will deal with three areas in the study of peat: the extraction of chemicals from peat and its effect on the dewatering process used in the production of peat fuels, the treatment of peat water that may be released into the environment during the dewatering process, and the production of single-celled protein from peat or peat water.

To be useful as a source of energy, peat must first be dewatered by various processes, such as wet carbonization. This process may be completed in a variety of temperatures and pressures.

As the first part of the project, BSU researchers will identify the best conditions of temperature and pressure for the extraction of chemicals which may be useful as commercial products or chemical intermediates. Selected chemical fractions of whole peat, dewatered peat, and peat water will be analyzed to determine the presence and quantity of these chemicals. Most promising chemicals will be selected and procedures for extraction will be developed which are compatible with the procedure for producing fuel-grade peat products.

Researchers will also look into the possibility of extracting these valuable chemicals before the dewatering process, and whether this extraction will make the dewatering process easier and improve the peat fuel product.

It is well-established that peat is a highly efficient absorbent of various materials, including a number of wastes and pollutants. This will be the concern of the second set of experiments. Dewatering under extreme conditions of temperature and pressure may result in the release of bound pollutants into extracted peat water. If it does, the large volume of potentially toxic water will present unique problems of disposal and treatment. The potential impacts of discharging these effluents into surface waters will be investigated.

Changes in peat absorption properties during the dewatering process could result in the creation of a peat product which would be valuable as an absorbent for heavy metals and organic contaminants. The possibility of using modified peats for water treatment will be investigated.

Production of single-celled protein from peat water is the third part of the project. Peat water, if found to contain high level of carbohydrates, could be useful as a growth medium for yeasts. If it proves to be a good medium for the culture of microbial proteins, the addition of this "treatment" may serve two purposes: the production of protein for feeds and the reduction of effluent treatment necessary to meet water quality standards.

Research, conducted by Dr. Steve Spigarelli and Dr. Fu-Hsian Chang of the BSU center for environmental studies and Dr. Ken Lundberg of the BSU chemistry dept. will start in late November.

Center has been conducting research on peat since 1970 and recently hosted the second international peat symposium on utilization of the resource.

Minnesota has the largest supply of peat in the contiguous 48 states. Peat is commonly used as a fuel in European countries, but has only recently been considered for fuel or other uses in the United States.

The first pension was established in 1636 by the Plymouth Colony for disabled soldiers, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

Loan Programs For This Area Get Approval

Two sets of loans for disaster stricken farmers in Red Lake and Pennington counties have been announced by Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"This was vital for farm families that have been hit by five consecutive years of natural disasters," Congressman Stangeland said. "This will provide important short-term help."

The first set of loans is a product of the disaster declaration which Agriculture Secretary John Block issued Thursday for 1983 rain damage to crops in the two counties.

The loans will cover 80 per cent of farmer's losses, up to $500,000. The normal interest rate on these loans is eight per cent. But at the Chicago summit on drought relief on September 2, Stangeland persuaded Block to drop the rate on disaster loans to five per cent on the first $100,000 of loans.

"That increases the purchasing power of these loans by up to $3,000," Stangeland said, adding that he had persuaded FmHA officials to offer loans from their "Limited Resources Fund" program to severely-stricken farmers in the area.

In the meetings with FmHA administrator Charles Shuman, Congressman Stangeland pointed out the devastation created by perennial disasters in the area. Thursday Shuman assured him that loans would be offered to eligible family farmers hit hard by disasters.

Operating loans for up to $100,000 will be available at 7¼ per cent instead of the usual 10¼ per cent. Real estate loans for up to $200,000 will be available for 7-and-seven-eighths per cent, instead of the usual 10¾ per cent for FmHA ownership loans.

These loans may be applied for at the local FmHA offices now. In late December, farmers can apply for a portion of the $600 million in economic emergency loans that Congressman Stangeland said he persuaded Block to release last week.

"Congress failed to act on my amendment for long-term loans to area farmers," the House agriculture committee member said. "But these three loan programs should help farm families for now. I intend to fight hard for the long-term loan amendment when Congress re-convenes next year."

LARRY LUNDSTROM, associate evangelist of Lowell Lundstrom Ministries, Sisseton, SD., will appear with his family at 7 p.m. Friday, December 2, at Lincoln high school auditorium. Admission is free and open to the public. The family has traveled throughout the United States and Canada for the past 23 years, and presently includes Larry, his wife Gloria, son Lee Donovan, and daughters LaShawn (right), and LaDawn (left).

White Earth Claims Heard By Committee

Congressman Arlan Stangeland led off a series of witnesses at a hearing Wednesday by the House committee on interior and insular affairs on the land claims disputes around the White Earth Indian reservation.

"Everyone is hurt by the current stalemate, and no one wants to rely on the protracted judicial process," Congressman Stangeland said.

"The current landowners are trapped," he said. "Farmers who need loans, resorters who want to invest, retirees who want to sell their land, all have been hurt.

"There are less visible victims, as well," Congressman Stangeland testified. "The Indian heirs are less visible victims because most of them don't realize they are affected by this problem."

Although several other government officials testified, hearing chairman Jim McNulty said that the testimony of land-owners and Indian heirs were the most effective.

"After listening to your testimony, I am persuaded of several things," said Rep. McNulty. "I am persuaded that the federal government has failed in its role as a trustee of the Indian allottees. I am convinced that some restitution should be made to the heirs. And I feel that anyone who has lived on and worked their lands for a number of years should have their titles cleared."

Field hearings in Minnesota were suggested by Rep. John McCain of Arizona. Chairman McNulty and Rep. Bruce Vento of Minnesota suggested that Minnesota hearings be considered for January.

"We seem much closer to a resolution today," Congressman Stangeland said after the hearings. "Federal, state and county officials and representatives of the land-owners and Indian heirs all indicated that they do not want a judicial solution.

"Now we can work together for a legislative compromise that will correct federal failings and clear up these land title disputes," the four-term House veteran concluded.

To Be Thankful

It used to be that a picture like this could only mean harvest time—big orange pumpkins, shiny red apples, colorful stalks of Indian corn. And, of course, a turkey in the pantry.

But what about today? You can buy apples almost any time. Pumpkins are available in a can twelve months of the year. And you can buy a frozen turkey as easily in July as in November.

We Americans take for granted what was a real treat in our parent's time. But in the midst of this material plenty, there is danger of spiritual famine. To keep the proper perspective, to appreciate the gifts of life to the fullest we need the Church and the story it has to tell us.

Maybe you can't be a pioneer—a Pilgrim. But you can follow your forefathers' example at Plymouth that first November. You can utter genuine thanks in the church of your choice.

Risk Of Food Poisoning High During Holiday

It is estimated that every year a significant number of people suffer from mild cases of food poisoning and don't know it.

"That's because the symptoms are very similar to the flu," said Samuel Hall, M.D., Minnesota poison control system (MPCS), medical director. The symptoms are headache, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea and usually develop within 12 hours after the patient's eaten the contaminated food. In some types of bacterial food poisoning, signs and symptoms can be delayed up to 36 hours after the exposure."

For most people food poisoning is not severe and the symptoms disappear within 24 hours, Hall said. However, Hall warned that for senior citizens, children or persons with other illnesses as well as certain types of bacteria, food poisoning can be fatal.

According to MPCS staff there is a higher incidence of food poisoning around the holidays because people tend to eat more foods than they did not prepare themselves, food is kept at room temperature for a longer-than-normal period or foods are served that tend to be more prone to bacteria such as mayonaise-base salads, eggnog or smoked fish.

There are four common bacterial sources of food poisoning, explained Hall. They are: salmonella, clostridium perfrigens, staphylococcus and clostridium botulinum. While most of these names are not familiar to the average person, the bacteria is everywhere in the environment and found in all types of food. Also a warm, moist environment helps these bacteria grow rapidly.

Salmonella is one of the most common sources of food poisoning, according to Rick Kingston, Pharm. D., MPCS managing director. While it is usually not fatal, it is widespread. "It is estimated that more than two million cases of salmonella poisonings occur each year in the U.S.," he said. Salmonella is most commonly found in raw meats, poultry, eggs, milk, fish and processed foods such as chocolate, yeast, casein and spices.

Clostridium perfrigens is another common bacteria and can cause illness when foods are stored in large quantities at improper temperatures for several hours or overnight, Kingston explained.

Staphylococcus, more commonly known as staph, is spread from humans or animals and grows in a wide variety of foods. All meats, poultry, and salad, like tuna, egg, chicken, potato or macaroni as well as cream-filled pastries and sandwich fillings can be likely carriers of staph germs. And if the staph germs are allowed to multiply to high levels, Kingston said they form a toxin that can't be boiled or baked away.

Clostridium botulinum, probably the rarest form of the four bacteria, is the most fatal if contracted, Hall said. These bacteria are abundant in the environment and usually harmless. But when they are not destroyed by heat they form a poisonous toxin and even the smallest amount of botulism toxins can kill you. Symptoms of botulism include double vision, inability to swallow, speech difficulty and progressive paralysis of the respiratory system. Medical attention must be obtained immediately, Hall cautioned.

Although all this might spoil one's appetite, the MPCS staff agreed that all food poisoning can be avoided by following some simple rules. Together with Joann Slavin, Ph. D., U.S. agricultural extension program, University of Minnesota, MPCS has developed these guidelines:

— Wash hands before preparing meals. A person with acne, a boil, a hand cut, a cold or flu should be especially careful around food. Keeps hands away from mouth, nose and hair. Wash hands thoroughly after going to the toilet, smoking or blowing your nose.

— Scrub containers and utensils used in handling uncooked foods with hot, soapy water before using ready-to-serve foods. Use separate cutting boards to help prevent contamination between raw and cooked foods.

— Keep foods to be served hot above 140 degrees F (60 degrees C) and foods to be served cold below 40 degrees F (4.4 degrees C).

— Refrigerate food promptly after meals or cooking.

— Thaw frozen foods in refrigerator or under cold running water.

— Do not allow meat, poultry, fish, egg dressings or sandwich fillings, potato salad, cream-filled baked goods or ham to stand at temperatures between 40 degrees to 140 degrees F.

—Stuff meat, poultry or fish just before toasting — never the night before. Never partially cook stuffed meat, poultry of fish.

— Used pasteurized milk and milk products.

— Do not use dirty or cracked eggs in raw or slightly-cooked egg products such as eggnog.

— Cook home-smoked fish or meat at 180 degrees F for at least 30 minutes. Do not refrigerate smoked fish in an airtight plastic pouch.

— Do not put food (especially milk, egg or cheese casseroles) in the oven with a timer set to begin cooking later.

— Heat leftovers thoroughly, boil broths and gravies several minutes when reheating them.

— Discard leftovers having off-color and-or foul odor.

— Preserve low-acid foods in a pressure canner at correct pressure according to altitude. Use correct time for each product. Be sure pressure gauge is functioning well.

— Boil all home-canned vegetables and meats 15 to 20 minutes before eating.

— Avoid food in containers with leaky seal, and bent, broken or bulging cans.

When preparing you holiday turkey remember these tips:

— Ideally, thaw in refrigerator (several days).

— Do not pre-stuff.

— If slow cooking, no lower than 225 to 250 degrees F.

— Serve hot; leftovers should be immediately put in refrigerator.

— Turkey meat leftovers can be refrigerated up to a week and frozen up to six months.

Your county agricultural extension office has general information on recommended cooking procedures, as well as the causes and prevention of food poisoning.

If you suspect a case of food poisoning, or are concerned about any symptoms that last longer than 24 hours, call the Minnesota poison control system emergency hotline anytime. Numbers to call are 221-2113, Twin Cities, and 1-800-222-1222, outstate toll-free.

FESTIVE FUN WITH FRUITY HOLIDAY DRINKS

From the fun-filled, apple-bobbing frolics of Halloween, through Thanksgiving's turkey feast, to the celebrations of Christmas and New Year's, the emphasis is on festive dining and drinking.

Many folks, young and old, are pleased to know that there's a variety of delicious beverages available to toast all the holidays with nary a drop of alcohol.

An array of delicious drinks can be prepared to suit almost any occasion, using as a base the fruit-flavored Frost Drink mixes. They're from Libby, and you'll find them in the fresh produce section of the supermarket in such taste-tempting varieties as banana, pineapple and orange.

So raise a cup to toast any and all of the holidays with these delicious recipes:

Fresh fruit teams with frost beverage mixes in these delicious non-alcoholic holiday drinks.

CHOCO-BANANA FROST

1 cup prepared chocolate milk
1 package (2 oz.) Libby's Banana Frost Drink Mix
1 large banana, peeled and sliced
1-1/2 cups cracked ice or 8 good-sized ice cubes

Combine milk, Banana Frost, banana and ice in blender container. Blend at high speed for 30 seconds or until well blended. Garnish with additional banana slices and chocolate curls, if desired. Yields approximately 28 fluid ounces.

SPICED FRUIT FROST

1/2 cup pineapple juice
1/2 cup apple juice
1/2 cup Libby's Apricot Nectar
1/2 cup orange juice
1 package (2 oz.) Libby's Pineapple Frost Drink Mix
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Dash ground cloves
1-1/2 cups cracked ice or 8 good-sized ice cubes

Combine juices, Pineapple Frost, spices and ice in blender container. Blend at high speed 30 seconds or until well blended. Garnish with orange peel twist and cinnamon stick, if desired. Yields 26-28 fluid ounces.

CRANBERRY ORANGE FROST

1 cup orange juice
1 cup cranberry juice
1 package (2 oz.) Libby's Orange Frost
1 cup cracked ice or 6 good-sized ice cubes

Combine juices, Orange Frost and ice in blender container. Blend at high speed 30 seconds or until well blended. Garnish with orange slice and fresh cranberry, if desired. Yields 26-28 ounces.

Repossession May Violate Private Rights

If unemployment, a decreased income or rising living costs are making it difficult to keep up payments on a loan or credit agreement, you may be in danger of defaulting on a credit contract and may face efforts by a creditor to repossess or attach your property or garnish your wages or bank account.

You may be able to avoid such problems by contacting your creditor to explain your situation. Often, he or she may prefer to work out a reasonable payment plan with you. Waiting until a huge amount is past due will only make the problem more difficult; however, making partial payments without the creditor's okay will not necessarily stop collection problems.

If you cannot work out a new payment plan and face any kind of collection problem, learn about your rights. Seek legal help if you need advice or help to protect those rights. If you are facing repossession, some of your rights include:

(1) A creditor cannot repossess any of your property unless he or she has a written security agreement signed by you giving him or her a "security interest" in that property. That agreement has to clearly describe the property to be covered by the "security interest."

(2) Some of your property is "exempt" property and cannot be repossessed (or attached) unless your debt was credited by its purchase. Such "exempt" property is, regardless of their value, all family clothing, foodstuffs, cooking utensils and one watch; and, in addition, the first $4,5000 of your family's household furniture, appliances, phonographs, radio and TV sets. (This amount is to be calculated at the actual fair market value, that is, what you can actually sell it for — not the replacement cost.)

If you own more than $4,500 in this kind of property, you can choose — when first signing a secrity agreement — which items will be exempt. These items must be listed on the agreement, and the creditor can take a security interest in the remaining items. Threats to repossess your "exempt" property are not enforceable under law.

(3) Your creditor can repossess your property by asking you to surrender it, by taking it without notice (in both cases only if it doesn't "breach the peace"), or by court action. If the creditor does not have a court order to repossess (served by a deputy sheriff), you have the right to stop the repossession. This may include refusing to allow the repossession, ordering the repossessor off your property, or calling the police. Resisting the repossession if there is no court order is a good way to test whether the creditor really wants to repossess, and may be your best and cheapest defense against immediate repossession.

(4) If repossession has already taken place, you may have certain rights you can exercise. Some of them are that the creditor must sell your property and apply the money received to your debt; if the initial debt was less than $3,000 the creditor must cancel the debt upon repossession; you must get reasonable notice of the sale before repossessed property can be sold; such a sale must be reasonably designed to get a fair price for your property, and must take place within a reasonable time after the repossession.

(5) If your rights were violated during or after repossession, this violation may be a defense to a lawsuit by your creditor, and might even entitle you to recover damages or return of the property.

If you think repossession efforts will occur, try to get legal help to be sure you actually have defaulted, that the security agreement is valid and legal, and that these and other rights are protected. It pays to know the law!

Classes Are Set In The Area On Ministry

One hundred people from the diocese of Crookston and the surrounding area are registered for the courses in theology and Scripture and the practicums in leadership and ministry for the fall session ending December 3.

Classes are being hosted at Mount St. Benedict center in Crookston and at St. Philips parish community in Bemidji.

Fall semester classes include "The Synoptic Gospels", "The Church Today Marriage and Family", and "Liturgical Ministries" taught by S. Shawn Carruth, OSB, Rev. Donald Krebs, Tim Schmaltz, and S. Mary Ellen Proulx, CSJ, respectively. Classes at Mount St. Benedict center meet every other Saturday between 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

S. Shawn Carruth is teaching "Old Testament Theology" in Bemidji on 10 consecutive Tuesday evenings between 7 and 9 p.m.

Winter session of the ministry program will be sponsored between January and April, 1984. Classes begin at Mount St. Benedict center on January 21 and will meet every other Saturday through April 14.

S. Mary Anne Welsch and Rev. Jerry Rogers from Sacred Heart parish in East Grand Forks will be teaching "Theology and Ministry" and "Sacramental Theology" respectively between 9 and 12 a.m.

Rev. Simeon Thole, OSB, and S. Shawn Carruth, OSB, will be the instructors for the Saturday afternoon classes at Mount St. Benedict center. Rev. Simeon's class is entitled, "Theology and Spirituality". The course, "Organization and Leadership Skills", taught by S. Shawn, may be taken for one undergraduate credit in pastoral theology.

Other host sites for the winter session include St. Philip's parish community in Bemidji and St. Stephen's parish in Stephen.

"Christianity for Adults" will be taught by S. Eleanor Mueller, OSB each Tuesday evening in Bemidji from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning February 14 and ending April 17.

S. Petronilla Hermann, OSB, will be conducting a practicum on "Prayer Ministry every other Saturday morning, January 14 through March 10, in Bemidji.

Classes in "New Testament Theology", taught by S. Shawn Sarruth, will meet in Stephen from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays beginning February 9 and concluding April 12.

Brochures and registration forms are available from Mount St. Benedict center in Crookston, Judy Pilsner in Stephen or Jean Malone in Bemidji.

Awareness Of Winter Danger Is Emphasized

Some people believe that the oncoming winter, another of many they have experienced, only brings snow and cold weather for skiing, snowmobiling or is just an inconvenience that we all could do without. The following true incidents demonstrate that winter is a season that can be tragic. Consider the following:

— Trying to make his way home during a snowstorm, a man slips and falls and dies of exposure one-half block from his home.

— A woman wanders from her farmhouse, confused in the snowstorm and loses her way. She is found frozen to death in a snowbank two hours later.

— A woman and her husband, on their way home, get stuck in their car in a ditch 2.7 miles from their home. As they try to go for help, the woman cannot keep up with her husband. Her body is found less than a mile from their car.

These three people were among nine who lost their lives in 1982 due to exposure to Minnesota's cold, according to David Lundberg of the Minnesota department of public safety's emergency services division. Winter awareness week has been set for November 27 to December 3, in a proclamation signed by Governor Rudy Perpich.

Each year an average of 38 per cent of the winter storms reported in the United States affect Minnesota. On Nov. 11, 1940, the Armistic day blizzard caused 49 deaths and heavy loss of livestock. In 1975, the Jan. 10 to 12 "storm of the century" dropped 12 to 23 inches of snow on the state. Whipped by 80 mile an hour winds, the storm left thousands of stranded motorists.

Emergency services this year is cooperating with the national weather service and the American Red Cross in recognizing the need for a broad public education program on winter storms.

As it has the past several years, the division will emphasize winter storm survival through possession of a storm survival kit. Designed for stranded motorists, the kit is reasonably priced and easily acquired. The pamphlet is available by writing to the Division of Emergency Services, B-5, State Capitol, St. Paul, 55155.

Your Dealer Knows

Home Comfort Is More Than Degrees

Total home comfort! What is it?

When your heating and air conditioning dealer uses the term, he's talking about four critical environment considerations: heating, cooling, humidification, and air cleaning.

Heating, of course, is essential in all colder climates. Summertime cooling, whether by a central system or one or more room air conditioners, is relatively common.

It's easy to take these two essential systems for granted. When was the last time you had a heating and air conditioning dealer to the house to give your systems their annual check-up?

Talk to a local dealer about buying a service contract for this valuable inspection and filter replacements. It's a lot better to catch a problem before it turns into an expensive breakdown.

While he's taking a look at your heating and cooling systems, ask him about the last two environmental considerations, humidification and air cleaning.

If you've had it with the damaging effects of dry air and annoying dust and pollen in your home, it's time to install a central humidifier and a high-efficiency air cleaner.

The benefits of controlled indoor humidity during the heating season can be enjoyed in any home, regardless of the type of heating system used. In one line of humidifiers, the Aprilaire, there are units available for installation with a forced air heating system or for homes heated by steam, hot water or electricity.

Your dealer also can discuss with you the advantages of a non-electronic high-efficiency air cleaner over a more expensive electronic unit. Not only is the installation and operation of the non-electronic cleaner less, its efficiency increases with use.

A Space-Gard® unit, for example, will remove more than 90 percent of all household dust, tobacco smoke and smudging particles, and 99 percent of all pollen from the air circulating through it.

Here's a money-saving idea. Have your heating and air conditioning dealer install both a central humidifier and an air cleaner during a single visit.

There's more to total comfort in your home than simply regulating the temperature. Your local dealer can show you how to improve the quality of the air you and your family breathe.

During Membership Drive...

Public Television To Air Special Programs

In December, Prairie Public Television has a line-up to light up the evenings — specials of all kinds for family viewing during public television's winter membership drive, say station officials.

From "Star Wars" to "Jedi": The Making Of A Saga reveals how George Lucas created one of the biggest box-office hits in movie history. It's a behind-the-scenes look at the making of a blockbuster, from the initial storyboard stage to location filming throughout the world. Lavishly illustrated with film clips from the movies "Star Wars," "The Empire Strikes Back" and "Return of the Jedi," this documentary reveals how special effects were created, such as the climactic space battle in "Star Wars." There's also a visit to the Lucas film workshop where the Ewoks, Jabba the Hutt and other remarkable intergalactic creatures first came to life.

The program will be aired Saturday, December 3, at 9 p.m.

Fans of Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, take heart: modern counterparts of the high-stepping couple can be seen on the 1983 United States Ballroom Grand Championships. Popular entertainer Julie Prowse hosts the program, bringing her own high-kicking style to the dance floor as she demonstrates international and American styles of dancing. Now in its third year on public television, this competition is one of the most important and exciting for ballroom dancers, since it selects the couples who will represent the U.S. at the World Professional Championships. Prairie Public Television will present the program Wednesday, December 7 at 8:35 p.m.

Gospel music is no longer limited to church music alone: it ranges from blues to bluegrass, from country to rock. I'll Fly Away: A Gospel Celebration is a 90-minute special starring some of the biggest names in contemporary gospel music. Al Green, a major pop artist who turned to gospel a few years ago, and Amy Grant, gospel's reighning "high priestess," co-host this spirited review of the best of the gospel sound, scheduled Thursday, December 8 at 8:35 p.m.

Harmonies of a different stripe — barbership stripes, that is — will be heard on Barbershop Jamboree. Taped at the 33rd Annual Barbershop Jamboree, the program features members of the Society for Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, or S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., a group notorious for breaking into four-part harmony at the slightest provocation. Sunday, December 4 at 10:35 p.m. is air time.

In An Evening With Mark Twain, actor Roger Durrett gives a tour-de-force performance as America's greatest humorist. Durrett captures Twain's many personae — as riverboat captain, journalist, writer and traveler — in a presentation of the best of Twain's humor Sunday, December 4, 9:35 p.m.

A daughter presents the story of her father's heroism in A War Story, a moving docudrama about a Canadian doctor and his imprisonment in a Japanese war camp during World War II. Filmmaker Anne Wheeler tells the real-life story of Dr. Ben Wheeler, who risked his own health and life to save his fellow prisoners. Actor Donald Sutherland narrates this moving testimony to one man's courage and compassion on Friday, December 9, at 8:40 p.m.

More than a dozen of the world's greatest opera singers and conductors perform in an unprecedented international tribute to the late Maria Callas in Callas: An International Celebration. The only "prima donna assoluta" of this century, Callas combined brilliant operatic interpretation with extraordinary dramatic acting in each of her roles. A veritable galaxy of opera stars, including Placido Domingo, Renata Scotto and Dame Kiri Te Kanawa, will honor Callas with performances originating from the world's great opera houses — Milan's LaScala, Paris' L'Opera, Chicago's Lyric Opera and London's Convent Garden — on this two-hour special, scheduled Monday, December 12, at 8 p.m.

Another favorite from the world of opera is spotlighted in Luciano Pavarotti In Concert. Taped during a sold-out performance at San Francisco's Opera House, Pavarotti sings an all-Italian program featuring songs by Respighi, Tosti, Rossini and Bononcini and arias from operas by Verdi Cilea, and Donizetti on Saturday, December 10, at 9 p.m.

For more musical entertainment, The Lettermen In Concert present many of the tunes that made them the premiere vocal group of the late '50s and early '60s, including "Going Out of My Head," "Put Your Head On My Shoulder," "When I Fall In Love," and "The Way You Look Tonight." The show is scheduled Sunday, December 11, at 10:10 p.m.

Together In Concert: Tex Beneke And His Orchestra is a salute to the music of the '40s. Joined by Helen O'Connell and Bob Eberly, hits from the Big Band era, including "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" and "In the Mood," are performed at Wolf Trap Farm Park in Virginia on Thursday, December 8, at 10:05 p.m.

Ballet has always held a special place on public television, and this December, The Nutcracker and The Snow Queen: An Ice Ballet return. The Nutcracker stars Mikhail Baryshnikov, Gelsey Kirkland and Alexander Minz in this American Ballet Theatre production of the enchanting holiday story on Friday, December 2, at 8:45 p.m. Olympic medalists John Curry, Dorothy Hamill, Toller Cranston, Janet Lynn and JoJo Starbuck head the stellar cast of "The Snow Queen: An Ice Ballet, based on Hans Christian Andersen's classic fairy tale Wednesday, December 7, at 7 p.m.

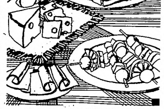
For nature lovers, public television presents three fascinating programs. The Man Who Loved Bears is naturalist-Filmmaker Mary Stouffer's documentary on the raising and release of a bear cub in the Colorado wilderness, to be shown Thursday, December 8, at 8 p.m. River Of Sand captures the extraordinary animal behavior which results when a four-year drought strikes the Riva River in Kenya, and creatures are forced to adapt to new circumstances or die. It will be seen Saturday, December 10, at 8 p.m.

The Glory Of The Garden is stunningly photographed history of the gardens of Exbury in England, designed and created by banker Lionel Nathan de Rothschild, planned Sunday, December 11, at 4:10 p.m.

Rounding out December's special presentations is Mirage, a thrilling drama of the true story of an espionage coup that shifted the balance of power in the Middle East, scheduled to be aired Monday, December 5, at 10:30 p.m.

Prairie Public Television operates six stations in the state of North Dakota — KFME (13) Fargo; KGFE (2) Grand Forks; KBME (3) Bismarck; KSRE (6) Minot; KDSE (9) Dickinson; and KWSE (4) Williston.

Guide Kids To Healthy Snacking



After-school snacks — those tasty tidbits that keep active kids active until the dinner bell rings — are the greatest disappearing act of all! But children are fickle about snacks. The same old thing gets boring after awhile, even if it used to be a favorite.

So it's up to the resident kitchen magician to have a few kid-pleasing tricks tucked in the chef's hat — some innovative treats when hunger pangs strike and young snackers plead for a change.

Always a boon to cook and snacker alike are individually packaged foods, which can be kept safely in the cupboard and are easily tucked in the lunch box or carried out to play. No preparation is necessary for these snacks that are especially handy when the children are on their own.

An example? Fruit Corners Fruit Roll-Ups — a wholesome, chewy fruit leather snack in a variety of flavors. Kids have great fun unrolling and peeling the treat, pulling off just the right amount to satisfy their appetites.

Other ideas are small boxes or packets of dried fruit like raisins, canned fruits, granola bars, other granola-based snacks and one-serving size boxes of cereal.

Another treasure trove for snackers is the refrigerator. Even young snackers can open the door to a smorgasbord of delights—cheeses, juices, yogurt, milk, fresh fruits, veggies, luncheon meats and, of course, all manner of leftovers.

Fresh fruits are very congenial with cheeses. Try slices of apple or pear with cubes of Cheddar, a favorite cheese spread or string cheese for a hearty and nutritious snack. Wrap fruit leather around cheese for an equally tasty treat.

A banana sliced lengthwise with peanut butter spread on the halves makes an innovative fruit sandwich. Carrot curls to go with the box of raisins make both more fun. Celery is great stuffed with deviled ham, cream cheese or peanut butter.

Fruit juices may not seem exciting to the youngster who has them every morning for breakfast, but add a dollop of sherbet for a fruit shrub and presto — new look and new taste. Dressing up a glass of milk is simple, too, by adding flavoring, fresh fruit, ice cream, yogurt or syrup.

If there is no supervision at snack time, it is important that any preparation steps that might be dangerous be done ahead when an adult can help or handle them completely.

Children can be guided in snacking by making foods easily accessible. Seldom will a hungry, hurried youngster bother with a snack that requires tedious preparation. However, if that same snack is ready to eat (like Fruit Roll-Ups) or can be combined in a few simple steps (like stirring fresh fruit into yogurt), it becomes just as appealing as another less desirable choice.

Here's another thought. Have the children take turns handling cleanup after snacking — milk back in the refrigerator, peanut butter in the cupboard and crackers rewrapped properly. These are practical, easy ways to learn about food safety and kitchen courtesy and leave the kitchen clean as a whistle for the next snacker or cook.

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Give Thanks By Helping

One thing that has long impressed us about Americans in general and rural Americans in particular is the willingness to help others and to show support and understanding.

Such was the case locally just a few weeks ago when a benefit supper was successfully held to aid the family of a young man who was facing a trip to the west coast for bone marrow transplant surgery. And such will be the case this Sunday when another benefit is held for a local woman and her family.

Mrs. Daryl (LuAnn) Lewis of rural Thief River Falls has been the Times' Norden correspondent for a number of years. She was also one of our early typesetters — and a very good one — shortly after our switch to offset printing and computer typesetting. She has been active in the Oak Ridge Lutheran church and the Norden community, always among the first to help others when they had a problem or need of any kind.

Now LuAnn has a problem of her own. Because of diabetes she has had three surgeries, the last to amputate a leg above the knee. Her friends and neighbors decided it was time to repay some of the past kindnesses which LuAnn has lavished on others.

The Good Cheer club and Oak Ridge church members have organized a benefit ham supper Sunday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls. Musical entertainment will be provided and baked goods will also be sold. A free will offering will be accepted rather than a specific charge being made.

Those among us who have had the good fortune to be healthy could do worse than to show our thankfulness by supporting this community effort — and others like it, for that matter. But this is the Thanksgiving season and it would be totally appropriate to display that thankfulness for LuAnn's benefit Sunday. The Thief River Falls community is a community of good neighbors and good friends.

Business Climate Schizophrenia

Following editorial was written by Donald Q. Smith of the Monticello Times:

This whole business could give us an identity crisis.

Minnesota's business climate, long a debate at home between Republican critics and Democratic supporters, has often fared unfavorably on outside reports made of America's 50 states.

In fact, for many Minnesotans, it's become a given fact that Minnesota's ability to attract new business, or keep what we have, isn't all that great.

Along comes a report by Inc. magazine. This week it ranked business climates of the 50 states. The business publication ratings were based on availability of capital resources, labor, taxes, state support and business activity.

If you've traveled recently to Texas — and particularly to the bustling cities of Houston and Dallas — you wouldn't be surprised that the Lone Star State ranks number one.

But what may shock Minnesotans is the Gopher State's rank.

Inc. views Minnesota as number five in the nation for business. That's five, not 15, not 50. In order, Minnesota follows Texas, California, Colorado and New York.

Until Wednesday morning, I had not seen the article; my initial information came from a seven-paragraph story in Tuesday's USA Today, plus an accompanying chart.

My copy of Inc. came Wednesday. In a paragraph devoted to two states, the magazine wrote:

"Fourth ranked New York and fifth-ranked Minnesota both overcome comparatively stiff tax rates and average or higher-than-average wage rates to improve their positions substantially over last year, when they ranked 12th and 19th, respectively.

"Both states benefit from their strengths in the lending activity of their banks and their small business investment companies. But, importantly, New York and Minnesota compare well with other states in their small business suport systems."

All of this is enough to astound a Minnesotan. Interesting, also, was that two neighboring states didn't fare nearly as well. South Dakota, which has waged a war against Minnesota in attracting business from here to relocate, registered No. 43 on the Inc. scale. Wisconsin, a state to which Minnesota is frequently compared because of our many similarities, finished second to the bottom at No. 49. (North Dakota was 18th; Iowa was rated 34th).

All of this may be only of passing interest to many, especially those who build a convincing case that Minnesota's state income tax rates, corporates taxes and workers' compensation rates place us as a highly unattractive place to expand or relocate.

And as I read the business chart Tuesday night, one Twin Cities television channel reported that two additional businesses were packing up for South Dakota, and that California was making a concerted effort to attract Minnesota business.

The debate will go on. Meanwhile, individual Minnesotans may develop split personalities on the issue, depending on whether we're employed perhaps and whether the company or institution is thriving, surviving or failing.

And I suppose Inc.'s ranking gives credence to the adage that if you take a position, you can probably find some statistical data in support.

But, Minnesotans, we may be last in big-time college football this year, but one poll shows us number five in business climate.

Makes Sense, But . . . .

Following editorial is from the Lapeer Co. (Michigan) Press:

Rare indeed is the student who is unfamiliar with the hijinks of Tom Sawyer, that creative entrepreneur from the imagination of Mark Twain.

Who could forget the imaginative and pragmatic methods Tom employed to get his aunt's "thirty yards of board fence nine feet high" whitewashed without lifting a finger?

Well, there exists a modern day Tom Sawyer in the person of Carlsbad (California) school superintendent Philip Grignon. It seems two of the elementary schools in his district need painting but the school board didn't have the funds it would take to hire outside contractors.

Mr. Grignon approached some of the students looking for summer jobs and interested them in painting the two schools for the minimum wage — $3.35 an hour rather than the local union wages of $18 to $25 an hour. The students would work and the schools would be painted for about $10,000 rather than $50,000.

The eager youngsters were putting the finishing touches on one school and preparing to move on to the second when Ms. Patricia Gates, an attorney for Painters' Local Union 1906, arrived on the scene. She threatened the school board with a lawsuit for failing to contract the work out to union workers through the competitive bid system required by the State of California. All work was halted.

Ms. Gates didn't succeed in putting one union painter to work on the schools — the board still couldn't afford it. The school needs a fresh coat of paint.

The lawyer defended her actions when she argued an important principle was involved: "If we don't enforce the laws on the books, the next thing we'll see is city hall being painted by county jail workers."

Gee whiz! As Tom's buddy, Huckleberry Finn, once noted: "Persons attempting to find a motive in this narrative will be prosecuted; persons attempting to find a moral in it will be banished; persons attempting to find a plot in it will be shot."

Suffering Stress

According to a report from the University of Nebraska, the nation's 3.7 million farmers suffer more severe stress than high-level executives.

"A lot of people think that farming is a secure business," stated Dr. Robert Eliot, a cardiologist and stress expert. "In fact, farming is the number one gamble. . . . it makes Las Vegas look like a sure bet."

Of the 1,400 farmers studied, the family farmer with up to 500 acres ranks highest on the stress list. Twenty-two per cent feel excessive fatigue and irritability, 19 per cent have nervous stomachs and 14 per cent experience depression.

That information is probably nothing new for the farmers of Pennington, Red Lake, east Marshall, western Beltrami and part of Polk counties. The stress level for many of those folks must border on hysteria, having faced three, four or five years of cropless seasons. The stress level here would make that University of Nebraska computer light up like a Las Vegas casino.

Borrowed Nonsense:

First Girl: "Why do you go out with that guy? He can't carry a conversation."

Second Girl: "He can't carry a tune, either, but can he handle expenses!"

LEGAL BRIEFS

Trial By Jury Gives Better Justice For All

By David S. Shrager
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

At the heart and core of the American system of justice lies the right to trial by jury in civil actions. It is a right which has persisted through the centuries and reached its legal maturity in this country as an institution central to the dispensation of justice.

David S. Shrager

The American jury has provided an important safety valve for American society. It lifts our best dispute-resolving institutions above politics, ambition, favor, and corruption without putting them beyond the reach of the people.

But the jury system is now the subject of rising criticism from those forces in the private sector who do not wish to be called to the Bar of Justice by a jury of average people off the street who can demand an accounting for the infringement of the rights of an individual.

More ominous still is the criticism by a certain few high judicial office holders who challenge the jury as an unnecessary, expensive, and rather inefficient vehicle for the dispensation of justice, especially in "complex" cases.

These critics fail to understand that the courts exist for the benefit of the litigants and not the other way around. They equate speed with justice. These critics also neglect to volunteer that only a small percentage of cases actually go to a jury verdict, but that the availability of this vehicle for dispute resolution acts as the catalyst to settlement.

The debate on trial by jury has largely been waged in a vacuum. The only real experts, the jurors themselves, are heard from almost never. This nameless and faceless crowd of citizens who are called upon daily to engage in the finest form of participatory democracy are not and cannot be organized into a consumer group in support of the system.

The jury system works because the vast majority of those who are really involved know and believe that it works — the judges, the jurors, and the attorneys.

When the jury renders its verdict, it gives justice to winner and loser alike. More importantly, it gives justice, each time, to all of American society. The sum of its contributions to the legal system protects and nurtures our whole way of life.

The American jury gives better justice to us all.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to make a correction in my 11-16-83 letter responding to the Times editorial "Wildlife Funds Threatened". I said the Pittman-Robertson Act collected excise taxes on hunting, trapping and fishing items purchased. This is not the case. The P.R. Act collects excise taxes on sporting arms and ammunition only.

I should have included the following excise taxes that support fish and game departments; the Dingell-Johnson Act with a 10 per cent tax on fishing tackle, the Dingell-Hart bill with a 10 per cent tax on handguns (the focus of the "Wildlife Funds Threatened" editorial) and the Dingell-Goodling bill with an 11 per cent tax on archery equipment. These monies are held by the general treasury and disbursed only to state fish and game departments, according to their areas and numbers of licensed sportsmen.

Sincerely,
John Wengeler

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Economic Growth: Antidote to High Deficits

There they go again.

The Washington politicians on both sides of the aisle, Republicans and Democrats, are doing it again. Doing what? Demanding higher taxes, of course.

Last year during the recession, the politicians clamored for higher taxes to fix the economy. Now as the economic recovery continues to surge ahead Republicans and Democrats in Congress want to clip taxpayers for some $50 to $70 billion in higher taxes over the next three years. This year's reason: to lower the federal deficit. The reasons change, but the demand is always the same: more money for Washington and less for the working men and women of America.

Deficits, as bad as they are, are not an argument for higher taxes. If we look back to 1974, we find that taxes and government spending were both roughly 19 per cent of the Gross National Product (GNP). Today, federal taxes remain at about 19 per cent of GNP but federal spending has jumped to almost 25 per cent of GNP. Some simple subtraction tells us that the national deficit is six per cent of the GNP. As Ed McMahan is fond of saying, "A child can plainly see" that the culprit is on the spending side of the equation.

Still we face this relentless drive for higher taxes.

Can higher taxes close the deficit? Let's take a quick look at Sweden where marginal tax rates at the lowest income levels begin at 65 per cent. The top rate is 85 per cent. Here we have tax rates significantly above those in the United States where our federal marginal tax rates range from 11 per cent at the low end to 50 per cent at the top.

Now according to our raise-taxes-to-close-the-deficit friends, Sweden should be enjoying large budget surpluses. They are not. The Swedish deficit is over 12 per cent of GNP — twice that of the United States.

We shouldn't be surprised. In Sweden, as in America, higher taxes have two results: They encourage politicians to continue spending more money and they slow down economic growth by draining resources out of the productive sector of the economy and by reducing incentives to save, work and invest.

Moreover, the politicians in Washington know this. Their goal is not to reduce the deficit, but rather to bring in enough cash to increase spending further.

This is not to say the deficit cannot be cut down to size. If we can maintain the present low-tax, low-inflation policies that produced the present recovery, then economic growth will continue to expand the tax base and reduce the demand for social spending as people go back to work. Already the recovery has created some three million jobs.

It is critical that we avoid any new tax increase that would slow down the rate of economic growth. Indeed, every one percentage point increase in real economic growth reduces out-year deficits by more than $200 billion over a five-year period. Now that is real deficit reduction. The Japanese know this. Like Sweden, the Japanese government faces large deficits. But unlike the Swedes who have responded with proposals for large tax hikes, the Japanese have decided to cut income taxes by some $5 billion. That's right. The Japanese government understands that lower taxes create economic growth and that only vigorous economic growth can bring down projected deficits. (The opposition parties in Japan are upset by this latest tax cut proposal. They are demanding an even larger tax cut!)

President Reagan was right on the mark when he pointed out that "We did not get those deficits because Americans are undertaxed. We got those deficits because government has overspent."

Now if someone would only tell Congress.

Talking Turkey

Using Your Turkey "Planned Overs"

If you've planned ahead you'll probably have leftover turkey. Since leftover turkey should be used within 3 days or frozen, you might want to try this new recipe.

Turkey Almondada

3 c. cooked turkey cubed or diced
1 c. sliced celery
1 c. mayonnaise
½ c. toasted almonds, chopped
2 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tsp. onion grated
½ tsp. salt
⅓ c. grated cheddar cheese

Combine all ingredients except cheese. Sprinkle cheese on top. Bake at 450° for 10 minutes. Fills 8-10 omelets or crepes and is also a delicious hot salad.

More recipe sheets featuring delicious "planned over" recipes are available free by sending a stamped, self-addressed business size envelope to:

NOTICE TO CITY RESIDENTS

TO: Residents of Thief River Falls.

SUBJECT: Change in residential garbage pick-up service to once (1) a week during the winter months.

Effective the 1st Monday in December, 1983, (12-5-83) and extending to March 31, of each year, the City Sanitation Dept. will change their residential garbage pick-up to once a week in an attempt to reduce operating costs and avoid possible increases in the current monthly garbage rates. In the month of April through November of each year, the normal twice (2) a week pick-up service will apply.

Your pick-up day will be in accordance with the following description and attached map.

MONDAY: The residential area north of Sixth Street on the west and north side of the river (includes Sherwood Forest Addition).

TUESDAY: The residential area south of Third Street and west of Crocker Avenue on the east side of the river. This includes the residential area west of the Soo Line tracks from County Road 62 to County Road 61 (Noreen's, Thyren's, and Heinze Additions).

THURSDAY: The residential area south of Sixth Street on the west side of the river.

FRIDAY: The residential area north of Third Street and east of Crocker Avenue on the east and south side of the river.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hottis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

A purchasing agent for a large company calls about an order, but the form doesn't arrive. In checking, it is obvious that the man is hunting for a payoff. A foreign country customs officer delays issuing export permits for weeks so that inventories stack up until there is no storage space. He's waiting for his "tip."

Some bad product is shipped to a supermarket chain and accepted by an employee who expects a gift. A car, traded in by a salesman who had many accidents in his 75,000 miles with that vehicle, is represented as having been owned by an old school teacher who used it for commuting to work, which explains the low 7,300 miles on the odometer.

A shipment of product sold by weight is "wet down" to increase that weight. An individual represents that he has the clout to get a contract for his customer, if that customer will pay a fee. A product is advertised by the piece instead of the pound because the pound price is outrageous.

All of these examples of ethical problems in business have occurred. Determing what is right, what is wrong, and what should be done, some say, is new, a subject not covered in school. Others say, business ethics are really based upon what can be afforded.

I don't believe that business ethics is a new subject. Nor do I think that determining the right or wrong is that complex. I recently received some calls from old students who asked for guidance, and my response was simple, "Just apply the old 'golden rule' of doing unto others as you would like them to do unto you. Or ask, can this be duscussed at the dinner table with your family and friends present?"

After 30 years of business experience, I believe that business ethics, doing the right thing, makes good business sense because of the good will created with your customer. You might get away with cheating him once, but you won't get away with cheating him repeatedly!

I remember visiting one of the companies in a group that I oversaw. In going through the accounts receivable (what customers owed), I found that the company had routinely written off credit balances (amounts due to customers for overpayments or credits due), but aggressively pursued debit balances (amounts due from customers). In one instance, a large customer had overpaid more than $63,000, had gone through an audit, and a year had passed without any claim being received for double payments. Can you imagine the goodwill created when I delivered to them a check for $63,000 plus interest?

Today business has an obligation to its customers, employees, owners and the nation, to do the right thing. The right thing is being fair. Many of us forget that business is composed of lots of individuals, and the morals and ethics of those individuals are what determine the morals and ethics of a business.

I don't think that business ethics are a theoretical subject to be discussed by philosophers who have never been tempted. As I have traveled, I have asked many students whether they would be willing to pay off a purchasing agent at the rate of a penny a pound to get him to buy enough of your product to provide an annual income of $150,000 per year. I found a universal acceptance of this concept of bribing a purchasing agent to get a top standard of living.

I believe that business ethics are a significant subject requiring top level attention from business people who should understand that it is good business to be honest!

One successful and respected businessman told me that if our schools could teach the businessmen and women of tomorrow the significance of doing the right thing, rational and logical thinking, written and oral communications skills, along with human relations, the rest of the training task, which is really vocational training, could be accomplished on the job. Thirty years of actual business, not "book" business, make me agree!

That's Straight Talk!

A Collection Of Raisin Favorites

Flaky, hot Raisin Scones, the favorite of the Scottish tea table, turn up fresh and warm from the oven.

Naturally sweet California raisins are the popular choice in an assortment of simple-to-do creations. A breakfast of hot and flaky Raisin Scones is a delightful and easy way to start the day. An ancient Scottish classic, scones were traditionally made on the griddle. This baked version is much simpler, fitting into even the busiest of modern-day schedules.

Using biscuit mix and a few basic ingredients, Raisin Scones mix up fast and take only 12 minutes to bake. These scones are just right for special morning fare or with afternoon coffee or tea.

RAISIN SCONES

- 2½ cups prepared biscuit mix
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ¾ cup seeded muscat raisins, coarsely chopped
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ cup milk
- Milk and sugar for topping

Stir together biscuit mix, sugar and raisins. Blend egg and milk; add to dry mixture, stirring thoroughly. Turn out onto floured board. Pat and roll into an oblong about ½-inch thick. Cut in diamonds by making diagonal cuts with knife. Prick tops with fork, brush with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Bake on greased baking sheet at 450 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Serve hot with butter. Makes 12 scones.

Sprinkle raisins into your winter baking and enjoy the delightful difference they make.

The goodness of raisins complement a range of sweet treats. Ten delightful cookie recipes are available in a special booklet — "Raisins Bake a Better Batch." This collection of cookie favorites is yours free by writing to: "Raisins Bake a Better Batch", CALIFORNIA RAISIN ADVISORY BOARD, Dept. NI, P.O. Box 5335, Fresno, CA 93755.

Senior Citizen News

Thursday, Nov. 17th nineteen of our senior citizens members were on hand at the Lumberjack Cafe to feast on the delicious chicken dinner Linda had prepared for us. Thank you Linda. After the dinner we met at the hangout for visiting and afternoon coffee and goodies which Mildred and Polly supplied.

Some Christmas items were unpacked and put up for sale. We hope to have a sale in December closer to Christmas when we will also raffle off our feather stitched crazy quilt.

We were happy to have Bertha Fredrickson at our dinner and also Anna Brekke, who has been hospitalized recently. Ruth Harper gave a door prize that Bertha won.

There will be no meeting next week as it is Thanksgiving Day on Thursday so our next meeting will be December 1st. See you all then.

You can own a house with charm, comfort and . . . heat bills under $200 a year!

Buy a superinsulated home.

It looks like a typical house but superinsulation is the difference.

You feel more warmth in winter, extra coolness in summer. Walls are insulated to R-30, ceilings to R-60 . . . about double the insulation in most houses. A vapor barrier seals out drafts while a heat exchanger provides fresh air.

Talk to your architect or contractor. Hundreds of superinsulated homes have been built in Minnesota since 1977. Or, call the Minnesota Energy Information hotline for more information, fact sheets and house plans. In the Twin cities, call 296-5175, outside the metro area call toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

Art Adventure Program Begun In TRF Schools

Marge Green has returned and Bonnie Poissant, Linda Spyhalski and Marilyn Adams have joined as new volunteer leaders for the "Art Adventure" program in the schools.

Under the program, prints of famous paintings are distributed to elementary classrooms, with a different painting presented each month, through April. Paintings and the artists who created them are then discussed with the students. In addition, this year, at the request of teachers, art adventure volunteers have compiled written information about each framed painting which is being distributed in public schools by Edith Etter and in private schools by Mary Evans.

Volunteers are still needed for the program, especially for grade two. Interested persons may call 681-3706 or 681-2075 for further information. Present volunteers at Mark Twain school include: Diane Krepp, grade 2; Linda Spyhalski, grade 3; Gretchen Beito, grade 4; and Marge Green, grade 5. Washington school volunteers include: Judy Dimich, grade 3; Marilyn Adams, grade; and Bonnie Poissant, grade 5. Volunteers at Northrop school include: Ina Thorsgaard, grade 3; Malvine Dagg, grade 4; and Margaret Saetre, grade 5. St. Bernard's school volunteers include Mary Evans, grade 4; and Carol Tranby, grade 6.

Assistant Extension Director

Shirley Baugher Reception Set

Shirley Baugher, home economics educator and educational administrator for the state of Missouri, has joined the University of Minnesota as assistant director of extension for home economics and family living and assistant dean for extension in the college of home economics.

A reception in Baugher's honor will be held on Wednesday from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls.

On October 1, Baugher assumed statewide leadership for home economics and family living programs within the agricultural extension service. She also will help facilitate working relationships between extension home economics specialists and other faculty members of the college of home economics.

Before coming to Minnesota, Baugher was director of home economics education for the state of Missouri. Prior to that, she served on the faculty of the college of education at the University of Missouri-Columbia and as a member of the counseling department at Webster college in St. Louis, MO. In addition, she has directed the home economics department in a Missouri school system and has been an educational diagnostician in Texas.

Shirley Baugher

A Missouri native, Baugher holds a Ph.D in home economics education from the University of Missouri-Columbia, a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Northeast Missouri state university, and a bachelor's degree in home economics, also from Northeast Missouri state.

Norman Brown, director of the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service, said, "We are indeed fortunate to attract someone of Dr. Baugher's professional stature to our extension team. She brings a wealth of experience to her position here and will certainly provide strong leadership and creativity to extension home economics programs statewide."

Keith McFarland, dean of the college of home economics, says Baugher's appointment as assistant dean for extension is further evidence of the close ties among on-campus teaching research, and extension field staff teaching. "The effectiveness of our college program is enhanced by a high level of interaction between extension field staff and resident faculty research. Shirley Baugher will be in a unique position to stimulate and encourage this vital interaction," he added.

Baugher succeeds Evelyn Quesenberry McDonald who retired from the agricultural extension service in 1982 after 31 years of extension service in several states.

WOLF-DOG HYBRID has many of the characteristics of each. This female from the pack owned by Rod and Kathy Twito of Grygla is 87 per cent wolf from the Lycoan, Tundra and Arctos subspecies. She is paired with a full Eastern Timber Wolf and as such produces 93 per cent wolf cubs.

STRIKINGLY BEAUTIFUL in light coloration and ease of movement, this pure Canadian timber wolf named "Beth" is the largest and most dominant female in the pack of 10 wolves on the Rod and Kathy Twito farm near Grygla. The only partner she will tolerate is a male named "Cole", an 87 per cent hybrid which Twito has taken to grade schools, football games and even a few Halloween parties as a "sidekick" for his wolfman costume. Their cubs are 93 per cent wolf with Beth's conformation and wolfish appearance and Cole's easy temperament.

Twitos Raise Wolves In Midst Of Deer Country

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Add to your list of unusual occupations the business operated by Rod and Kathy Twito of rural Grygla. In the eastern Marshall county area where predation is a potential worry and the whitetail deer is almost sacred among the residents, Rod and Kathy raise timber wolves.

Why would someone want to raise timber wolves?

"A well kept wolf is a pleasure to behold," Rod explains in the letter he provides to prospective customers. "It represents the highest form that humans are able to coexist with peacefully, safely and happily aside from fellow humans.

"Our wolves produce what we feel to be some of the finest specimens of their species known today. With the proper care and attention, they will give (their purchasers) many satisfying years of companionship and loyalty."

The Twito pack presently includes 10 wolves — three males and seven females. Two of the males and three of the females are 100 per cent wolf, although three of these are species crosses. One of the males is 100 per cent Eastern Timber Wolf and one female is 100 per cent Canadian Timber Wolf.

The other members of the pack range from 87 per cent wolf-dog hybrids, but so resemble wolves in appearance that it is virtually impossible to tell them from full wolf. Their habits are primarily wolf, but their association with humans and the trace of domestic dog in their background makes them an interesting mixture of wild yet socially adaptable animal.

Twito got started with wolves about six years ago when he bought a hybrid which was half wolf and half collie. A year later he heard there was a young male wolf for sale in Iowa. He acquired it and a gray female, and later bought two males in Iowa which were seven-eighths wolf.

One of his pure wolves came out of a small town in northern Iowa where it had been rescued along with three others from someone who had apparently abused them. The black male had a broken left front foot as if it had been chopped with a shovel. The Twitos kept it bedded with two feet of straw and it gradually responded and now seems well. It is distrustful of men, however, and responds much better to Kathy than to Rod.

The Twitos advertise with a small classified ad in "Fur, Fish and Game" magazine. They have easily sold the 21 hybrids and three full wolves they have produced for sale and have a waiting list for the next nine cubs to be produced. The buyers will pay $350 each for the hybrids and $400 for pure wolf cubs, plus any shipping required.

Rod prefers that buyers pick the cubs up at the farm at 21 days of age. That is considerably earlier than domestic dogs are ready to leave their mother, but the wolves are weaned faster and mature younger. Rod weans his wolf cubs at 17 days, the time when the female wolves begin to regurgitate food for their cubs. He starts them on a diet of baby food and moves quickly to a mush of canned and dry dog food. By two months of age the cubs are eating meat scraps and bones along with dry dog food.

When two of his females whelp in the winter (wolves breed only once a year and usually in the early spring), Rod brings them into his [illegible] He makes a point of making noise and commotion, keeping a radio playing and handling the cubs as much as possible to acclimate them to humans and activity. He wants the cubs to adapt well into the human environment wherever they are sold.

There are no regulations or permits necessary to have hybrids in possession, but an endangered species permit from the state of Minnesota is necessary to have pure wolves. The permit is relatively easy to obtain, requiring only an annual fee of about $15 and an inspection of pens and approval by an area conservation officer.

As might be expected, it takes a large quantity of food to keep a pack of 10 wolves healthy and happy. Twito feeds dry dog food on a free choice basis and finds that the wolves eat it heavily when it is first introduced but they reduce their intake. He gets [illegible] locker plant in Grygla, feeding a football-sized ball of the material to each animal daily. During 1983 he fed 7,500 pounds of the [illegible], and the wolves are just beginning their heavier winter feeding. He will also occasionally feed a car-killed deer carcass if the area conservation officer has one available.

Rod spends an average of two hours a day with his wolves, feeding and cleaning the roomy pens. While he is cleaning he turns the animals

ROD TWITO of rural Grygla says there are no really large wolves among his pack of 10 animals. This male is listed in a letter to prospective purchasers from the Twito Wolf Farm as weighing 120 pounds, however, and is by far the largest of the group. The animal has the tall, long-legged appearance characteristic of timber wolves. It has been handled extensively since a cub and, although an armful of muscular energy, is still capable of being handled for a short time.

Council Meets On 3rd Street Plan Tuesday

Thief River Falls city council will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers at city auditorium to consider whether to accept or reject a Minnesota department of transportation plan for reconstruction of Third Street between First Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Of primary concern to the council are objections raised to the closing of Red Lake Boulevard under the plan, which some claim will raise traffic levels on Davis and Horace Avenues by 1500 cars per day. MnDOT personnel have rejected several alternatives to the complete closure on grounds that the intersections of Davis Avenue and Red Lake Boulevard are too close together to provide a safe turning area without confusing drivers.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Roger Roadfeldts Are At Home In St. Cloud

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Morris Roadfeldt are at home in St. Cloud following an exchange of marriage vows August 20, at Zion Lutheran church, Thief River Falls, and a wedding trip to the Twin Cities.

The bride, the former Gretchen Lynn Fredeen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Fredeen of 1526 Castway Drive. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Morris Roadfeldt, 446 South Maple.

Rev. Richard Larson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organist was Elaine Idso, a friend of the family. During the ceremony, Marie Roadfeldt, a sister-in-law of the groom, played the flute solo "Your Song."

Candelabra and arrangements of red roses and babies' breath graced the chancel for the six o'clock ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white voile gown styled with a lace bodice and puffy, elbow-length sleeves. At the scalloped neckline, accented with minature seed pearls, she wore her mother's diamond-gold heirloom necklace. A headband of seed pearls held her tiered veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and babies' breath.

Nikki Olson and Lisa Carlson were the bride's personal attendants.

Maid of honor was Karen Fredeen, Moorhead, sister of the bride. Other attendants were Heidi Fredeen-Ortloff, Duluth, sister of the bride; Jill Torfin, Grand Forks, N.D., Dee Dee Johnson, city, friends of the bride; and Deb Ehrenstrom, Warroad, sister of the groom. All wore street-length dresses of white polished cotton in the 1950 style with black designs, accented by black pumps. Their bouquets were of red roses and babies' breath.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Jeff Roadfeldt of Paynesville. His groomsmen were friends: Milo Olson, Brian Peterson, Roger Rogalla and Steve Storhaug, all of Thief River Falls. Serving as ushers were friends of the groom, Paul Storhaug, city; Jeff Kosel, St. Cloud, and Murray Dicken, city. All wore white dinner jacets, black trousers with red cummerbunds and red rose boutonnieres. The groom wore all white attire featuring a tuxedo with tails, accented by a black bow tie.

The mother of the bride was attired in a white linen suit complemented by a lace blouse and a corsage of red roses and babies' breath. The mother of the groom wore a red street-length dress with cape sleeves, red purse and shoes, and a red and white corsage featuring silk roses and carnations.

Honor guests were Mrs. Eleanor Sims, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Mabel Bergland, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Cheryl Williams and Fancha Storhaug, friends of the couple, as hostesses. They also served as waitresses. Marie Roadfeldt served the punch, and Sandy Kosmoski, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book.

The all-white wedding cake, decorated with white roses and doves, was cut and served by Mary Lou Carlson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Phil Bergland, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Karen Fi and Mrs. Elmer Roadfeldt, also aunts of the bride and groom. At the gift table was Chris Roadfeldt.

The evening prior to the wedding, the groom's supper, in picnic style, was held at the groom's parental home with 40 guests attending.

For her going-away attire, the bride wore a white, two-piece dress.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and are employed at St. Cloud, the bride at The Ground Round, and the groom at Americanna Inn. The groom is also attending school in St. Cloud. Photo, Glen's studio, Warroad.

DID YOU KNOW?

LET'S HAVE A DRINK!

Glass number one — just for fun,
Glass number two — The other fellows do;
Glass number three — it won't hurt me,
Glass number four — only one more;
Glass number five — before a drive,
Glass number six — brandy in a mix;
Glass number seven — stars up in heaven,
Glass number eight — stars in his plate,
Glass number nine — whisky, not wine,
Glass number ten — the Lord knows when;
[illegible]
Drinking with boys — drowning his joys;
Drinking with men — just now and then,
Blighting his youth — ruined his truth;
Spoiling his life — killing his wife,
Helpless at last — a friendless outcast.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." (Isaiah 1:18)

WCTU Notes Alcohol Is No. 1 Drug Problem

"Alcohol is America's Number one Drug Problem," and "Total Abstinence the Positive Approach," were the topics discussed at a meeting of the Thief River Falls Woman's Christian Temperance union held November 17 at the community room at the Riverside Terrace apartments.

Reading the latest information on the two topics were Mrs. Hildur Lian, Mrs. Anna Johnsrud and Valborg Hanson. It was noted that while addicts of other harmful drugs in America are numbered in the thousands, alcohol addicts are numbered in the millions. The most conservative estimate places the number of alcoholics now at 17 million, an increase of more than 507 per cent over 1945. It is estimated that the total number of alcoholics is growing by at least 500,000 year.

It was also reported that 10 years ago, one out of every six persons with an alcohol problem was a woman. Today, it is one out of three, and climbing. The correlation between alcohol intoxication and violent behavior shows that one-half of the homicides and one-fourth of all suicides are drug related, and at least 36 million people share alcohol problems secondhand. In the nine year span in the under-18-years-of-age category, the driving under the influence showed an increase of 289.9 per cent. Females in this same age group and time span showed an increase of 842.8 per cent.

According to the National Safety Council, on any Friday or Saturday night, one in ten cars on the road has a drinking driver at the wheel.

To combat the problem, the first essential element is for the Americans to realize that Alcohol is a drug, that it is not some beneficial product misused by a few unthinking people, but a habit-forming depressant which destroys brain cells when consumed in any quantity.

If total abstinence were the rule of life, there would be no alcoholics to rehabilitate, no alcohol-involved accidents on the highway, fewer divorces and broken homes, less child abuse and a decrease in crime rates. The group upheld the belief that the total abstinence practice would bring about the preservation of physical, mental and spiritual qualities and the conservation of person and public health, economy and ideals of the American way of life.

It was also felt that laws should make the liquor industry responsible for the use of its products. At present the taxpayer foots the bill.

Mrs. Mavis Besserud was in charge of the devotional mediation, reading Psalm 118: 14-24, declaring "The Lord is my strength and song," and Psalm 92:1, Luke 18:1, and I Thes. 5:17, noting that prayer is an important element in a Christian's life.

During the business session, plans were made for the annual Christmas meeting at Valley Home. The event was scheduled for 1:00 p.m., December 5 with the program to be given by Our Savior's Christian academy. Lunch, featuring Christmas breads and cookies, will be served by members of the WCTU.

Videodiscs And Player Offered By NW Library

Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls announced that a new service to its patrons will begin December 1, with videodiscs and videodisc players available for check-out from the library. Two videodisc machines, and 30 different videodiscs are available.

In order to check out a videodisc machine and-or discs, a person must be a resident of the area served by the Northwestern regional library system (Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties) and must be at least 18 years old. Patrons will be required to pay $4 a day for the videodisc player, only one of which may be checked out to a person at a time. Fee of $2 per day will be charged for each videodisc. Loan of both videodisc players and videodiscs is for a maximum of 24 hours or until the next day the library is open, and they may not be checked out for two consecutive 24-hour periods. Minimum of four hours must elapse between check-out periods. Failure to return the player and-or discs when due will result in a $5 per day fine and forfeiture of all rights to use the machine for six months. Users will be held responsible for any loss or damage (beyond normal wear and tear) which occurs to equipment while it is in their possession. Further information is available from Northwest Regional Library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls; phone 681-4325.

Videodisc titles available include: A Charlie Brown Festival; Charlotte's Web; Dr. Suess; Disney Cartoon Parade — Volume IV; Dumbo; The Pink Panther; Arsenic and Old Lace; 9 to 5; Oh, God; Casablanca; Cat on a Hot Tin Roof; The Champ; Chariots of Fire; The Grapes of Wrath; Kramer vs. Kramer; Lady Sings the Blues; On Golden Pond; Swiss Family Robinson; Jane Fonda's Workout; King Creole; Viva Las Vegas; Fiddler On the Roof; Mary Poppins; My Fair Lady; Oklahoma; Singin's In the Rain; South Pacific; West Side Story; 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea; and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. Short descriptions of the videodiscs are available at the library.

Memorial Gifts Help Heart Research

Research and programs for the prevention and control of heart disease have been aided by the gifts in memory of: Leland Knight; Ellsworth Gillespie; Karen Askeland; Mary Ueland; Adeline Langseth; Benjamin Bendickson; and Clarence Carlson.

In reporting the contributions, the Heart Fund Memorial county representative stated, "A memorial gift to the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate is a thoughtful way to express sympathy while also doing something positive to aid the fight against heart disease. It not only comforts those in grief, it also helps reduce the toll of heart disease — the killer of more Americans than all other causes combined." In Minnesota, over 52 per cent of all deaths are from heart disease. Even in the 45-64 age group heart disease is the leading cause of death.

The representative explained, "Memorial gifts to the Heart Fund are promptly acknowledged by the Heart association with a dignified card naming the person making the memorial and person being honored. The amount of the gift is not stated unless otherwise requested. A receipt is sent to the donor. All gifts to the Heart Fund are 100 per cent tax deductible. Memorial gifts are also being used more and more as get-well wishes for victims of heart attack or stroke or as a thoughtful remembrance on a birthday, anniversary or other special occasion.

Memorial gifts including the name and address of the person making the gift, the person being honored, the occasion, the name and address of the person who should receive the acknowledgement should be made to either:

Memorial Chariperson, Pennington County: Mrs. Florence Drotts, 106 Parkview Drive, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or American Heart Association, 1007 Westside Drive, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Goodrich Notes Opposition To Rate Increase

Alderman Don Goodrich has called attention to the fact that the story in Wednesday's Times, on last Tuesday's city council meeting (inadvertently) failed to mention that he voted against a four per cent increase in electric rates, to become effective January 1.

Goodrich says that building of large reserves in the utilities department is a questionable practice, adding that he feels people would rather "hang onto their money themselves and face larger increases in rates when they became necessary." He states that he would prefer raising taxes (to raising utility rates and then making transfers to the general fund from the power company) on the basis that local taxes can be deducted from income taxes while utility rates cannot.

Superintendent of Utilities John T. Anderson and Auditor Robert Poissant recommended the increase in rates, on the basis that reserves are necessary, both to keep the power company operating in event of emergency, and to prevent having to raise rates sharply as costs of purchased power increase. Council approved the rate increase on a six to one vote, with Alderman Jim Womack absent.

SCSU Graduate Course Offered At Northland

St. Cloud state university (SCSU) will offer a graduate course in school administration at Northland community college this winter.

"Overview of educational administration" will meet from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. alternate Saturdays December 10 to February 18 in room B20 at the college. It will be taught by Dr. Donald Holden, SCSU professor of educational administration and leadership.

Three-credit course will provide a survey of current trends in theory and practice of school administration in the United States, with emphasis on the role of local, state and federal agencies and boards.

Registration will be conducted at the first meeting. For more information, contact Richard Laurenson in Thief River Falls at 435-2650, or the office of continuing studies, St. Cloud State University, St. Cloud, MN 56301. Phone (612) 255-3081.

FmHA Taking Disaster Loan Applications

Russ Bjorhus, state director of Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has announced that Pennington, Red Lake and Wabasha counties were designated to receive emergency farm loans effective November 18.

Designation is based on natural disasters, which caused 30 per cent or more crop losses to farmers from excessive rains, heat and high winds.

Action means that farmers in those counties may apply for FmHA loans to cover part of their actual losses. Loans for individual farmers can be made up to $500,000 at five per cent. Farmers have six months after the disaster occurs to make application for emergency loans, however, Bjorhus advises making application early to avoid a last minute rush at the county offices.

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of Mrs. Rude Christenson

Holt

Coconut Crunch Dessert
1 cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
1½ cup coconut, angel or fine cut
½ cup butter
one 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
two-thirds cup powdered sugar
two 9-oz. cartons frozen topping, thawed
2 pkgs. instant chocolate pudding
2½ cups milk

Method: Mix first four ingredients until crumbly. Spread on cookie sheet and bake in 350 degree oven until golden brown. Watch closely as it burns readily. Cool, crumble and line a 9x13 inch pan, saving one-half cup for topping. Set aside.

Mix cream cheese and powdered sugar until fluffy, blend in one carton topping and spread on cooled crust. Combine pudding mix and milk, beat and spread over first mixture. Top with the other carton of topping. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over top. Chill. Keeps well in refrigerator. May be frozen, but thaw before serving.

The Christensons live northeast of Holt. They have two sons: Elray and Alan, both married, and living on the Iron Range. They also have six grandchildren (four boys and two girls) and one great-granddaughter, Christina Mae. Mrs. Christenson stated that she is enjoying retirement (after 18 years with Sears) sewing, making piece quilts, gardening, and card playing.

She and her husband attend services at Nazareth Lutheran church at Holt.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Readers:

As we've discussed in other columns, cancer occurs most often in older people. The National Institute on Aging has put together an excellent summary of cancer facts for people over 50. We are printing it here for you.

Cancer Facts for People Over 50

Most people know something about cancer, but fear keeps many of them from finding out what they can do about it. Because many cancers occur more often in people 50 or older, it is this age group that has the most to gain from learning about symptoms of the disease.

When cancers are detected early, they are more likely to be treated successfully. The chances of surviving cancer today are better than ever before. You can help safeguard your health by learning the early warning signs of cancer and having regular checkups.

What Are Common Cancers and Symptoms In People Over 50?

Lung: Cough that won't go away; coughing up blood; shortness of breath.

Breast: Lump in the breast; change in breast shape; discharge from the nipple.

Colon and rectum: Changes in bowel habits; bleeding from the rectum; blood in the stool which appears bright red or black.

Prostate (men): Difficulty or pain while urinating; the need to urinate often, especially at night.

Uterus, ovary, and cervix (women): Bleeding after menopause, unusual vaginal discharge, enlargement of the abdomen; pain during intercourse.

Skin: Sore that does not heal; change in shape, size, or color of a wart or mole; sudden appearance of a mole.

What If I Have One of the Symptoms?

If you have one of these symptoms, contact your doctor as soon as possible to find out if an office visit is necessary. Your symptom may indicate an illness other than cancer. Remember, pain usually is not an early warning sign of cancer.

Some people, as they age, attribute medical symptoms to "growing older." Because of this many illnesses go untreated. Don't fail to mention symptoms to your doctor just because you think they are unimportant or normal for your age. Also, feel free to ask your doctor questions, and ask for further explanation if you don't understand. List your questions before an office visit and take time to record the doctor's answers.

Are There Regular Medical Tests I Should Have?

Even if you don't have symptoms, there are certain tests needed periodically after you reach 50. It is even recommended that some begin at an earlier age.

Your doctor can tell you how often you should have specific tests, based on your medical history and generally accepted guidelines for the frequency of these tests. Some may be required more often if you have had cancer before, have a family member with cancer, or have other medical conditions. If you are over 50, the following are some suggested tests and examinations that you should have as often as your doctor recommends.

Breast self-exam: All women should practice breast self-examination (BSE) monthly to detect lumps or other changes in their breasts. To learn how to do BSE, ask your doctor or nurse, or call the Cancer Information Service 1-800-4-CANCER for a free booklet.

Rectal exam: This test, an examination of the rectum with the doctor's gloved finger, can detect prostate tumors in men and rectal tumors in men or women.

Sigmoidoscopy or "procto": This is an examination of the rectum and part of the colon with a lighted instrument.

Guiac test: One or more small stool samples are examined for possible traces of blood. Blood in the stool can be a symptom of colon or rectal cancer. There are simple kits for collection of samples at home and mailing or delivering to the doctor. These tests should not be used as the only form of examination for cancers of the colon and rectum.

Pelvic examination and Pap test: The pelvic exam is a check of the female reproductive organs. The doctor, using a small instrument and gloved fingers, checks the vagina, uterus and ovaries for any sign of a problem. A Pap test, also called a Pap smear, is usually done at the same time. It is a painless test which involves removing cells from the cervix and examining them through a microscope to see if they are abnormal. Your doctor may recommend stopping the tests after 60 if you've had two consecutive normal tests or if you've had a hysterectomy.

Breast examination and mammography: Women should have their breasts examined periodically to check for changes such as a lump or thickening. A mammogram (and x-ray of the breasts), which can detect tumors even before they can be felt, is recommended for all women over 50.

A positive result on any of these medical tests does not necessarily mean you have cancer, but it may indicate a need for more testing. If a tumor is suspected, a test called a biopsy is done. A piece of the tumor is removed surgically and examined with a microscope to determine whether it is cancerous (malignant) or noncancerous (benign).

What If I'm Told I have Cancer?

If tests show that you have cancer, you should begin treatment as soon as your doctor recommends. Cancer is a disease in which cells grow abnormally. If left untreated, the cells continue to grow and eventually invade healthy tissue. Some types of cancer grow more quickly than others and therefore must be treated more promptly.

There are a number of treatments that may be used for cancer. To ensure that you will be comfortable with your decision to have a particular treatment, you may want to seek the opinion of more than one doctor. Ask your doctor if you should see an oncologist (a cancer specialist). It is important to ask questions about your diagnosis and what results are expected from the treatment.

How Can I Get More Information?

The Cancer Information service (CIS) is available to answer your cancer-related questions. Call, toll-free, 1-800-4-CANCER. CIS staff can confidentially answer your questions and mail you free booklets about your cancer concerns.

Q: Are women more susceptible to cancer of the uterus during and after menopause? What are the signs of uterine cancer?

A: Women are more likely to develop cancers of the lining of the uterus (endometrium) after menopause. However this increased risk seems to be related to age rather than menopause. Women are at greatest risk for endometrial cancer between ages 50 and 64. Women in this age group who have never been pregnant or who have diabetes and high blood pressure have an increased risk.

Fortunately cancer of the endometrium usually can be cured when found early. Signs are unusual vaginal bleeding or unexplained abdominal or back pain.

The other type of uterine cancer occurs in the cervix (the mouth of the uterus). This type is most common in women at ages 40-49. Cancer of the cervix does not seem to be related to menopause either.

Symptoms of this type of uterine cancer are unusual vaginal bleeding or discharge or pelvic pain. Cancer of the cervix is easy to detect with regular Pap tests. It can nearly always be cured when found early.

All women, before, during and after menopause should have regular pelvic examinations and Pap smears to protect themselves. Ask your physician what the best schedule of examinations is for your.

Q: My six-year-old son's best friend has a younger sister who is being treated for cancer. Lately my son says his friend has been behaving badly in school and picking fights. Could this behavior change have something to do with his sister's illness?

A: It certainly could. As you can imagine, a long-term serious illness causes great stress for all the family members. Young children often are confused and angry over the sudden changes an illness can cause in the family's normal life. The child resents these disruptions, and at the same time feels guilty for being angry.

When a brother or sister is ill, the child may also feel jealous of the extra time and attention parents are spending with the sick child.

All of these conflicting emotions are difficult for the child to express. Often he doesn't feel he can let his parents know he's feeling angry and jealous, so these feelings come out in his behavior in school and with his friends.

You and your son can help his friend through this difficult time by trying to keep their friendship as normal as possible. See to it they continue to do the things together they did before the sister's illness.

Don't let him get by with bad behavior. Even unusual leniency and tolerance is a sign to the child that things have changed, making him feel less secure.

Q: Is it necessary to go to a comprehensive cancer center or a cancer detection clinic to get a good check up for cancer?

A: No. A thorough physical examination by a physician whose specialty is family practice of internal medicine is a good cancer check up. If you have symptoms that may indicate cancer, the doctor may refer you to other specialists as well.

In general, people are referred to a comprehensive cancer center for treatment after cancer has been diagnosed.

The examination methods used at a cancer detection clinic are no different than those available at other clinics and medical centers.

Q: You frequently mention risks for different types of cancer in your column. Could you please summarize all the risks.

A: Cancer risk factors are difficult to summarize because they vary according to the physical characteristics and general health of each person. An individual's hereditary makeup and exposure to certain substances could increase their chances of getting cancer. But many people with apparently high risks for developing cancer never do.

The American Cancer society lists about a dozen general risks.

+ Everyone's risk for cancer increases as they get older.

+ People who drink a lot of alcoholic beverages regularly have a higher risk for some types of cancer — and an even higher risk if they also smoke.

+ Cigarette smokers have a ten times greater risk for lung cancer than non-smokers.

+ People who smoke cigars, pipes or chew tobacco have an increased risk of mouth, larynx and esophageal cancers.

+ Workers who are exposed to asbestos and also smoke have a five times greater risk of lung cancer than other smokers.

+ People who have family histories of breast or colon cancer have a higher risk for those types of cancer.

+ Daughters of women who took DES while they were pregnant have an increased risk of vaginal cancer.

+ Women who have taken estrogen replacement medication for menopausal symptoms have an increased risk of endometrial cancer. The risk is greatest for women who took estrogen for a number of years.

+ People who spend a lot of time in the sun and do not use sunscreen protection increase their risk for skin cancer.

+ Children who had radiation therapy may have an increased risk for cancer when they become adults. This is true only for radiation used to treat disease, not for x-ray examinations.

+ Workers who are exposed to certain industrial agents like nickel, chromate, asbestos and vinyl chloride have a higher risk for some types of cancer.

If you think you may have any of these general risks, discuss them with your doctor so that he or she can watch for early signs during your regular physical examinations.

Q: There's been so much in the news about AIDS and the rare type of cancer that people with AIDS get. Is there really an epidemic? How are AIDS and cancer related?

A: Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is not an epidemic among the general population. It is a new and serious health hazard for four groups of people in this country. These are homosexual and bisexual men with numerous sexual partners, intravenous drug abusers, recent immigrants from Haiti and people who are receiving treatment for hemophilia.

Since 1981 the center for disease control of the U.S. public health service has received reports of 2,094 cases of AIDS, the majority of them on the east and west coasts; 805 of these patients have died.

AIDS is not a single disease. It is a complex group of health problems. All people who have AIDS lose most of their natural immunity against disease. They are then more susceptible to infectious diseases which normally would not be serious. Since their immune systems can no longer fight infections, these patients become seriously ill.

A rare type of cancer, Kaposi's Sarcoma has been diagnosed in 551 patients who have AIDS. Medical scientists do not know precisely why this type of cancer develops in AIDS patients. They believe it is related to these patients' lack of natural immunity.

Kaposi's Sarcoma is not occuring more frequently in people who don't have AIDS. Furthermore, people who are not in any of the four risk groups mentioned have virtually no risk of ever developing AIDS.

The U.S. public health service has a national toll-free AIDS hotline. People with questions about AIDS can call 1-800-342-AIDS.

Q: The surgeon told us my wife's cancer is Stage I. He said that was good news, and the chances are excellent that the surgery cured her. Can you tell us what "Stage I" means?

A: Stage is a system doctors use to describe how extensive a patient's cancer is. Generally cancers are categorized in four stages. The specific definitions of these categories are different for each type of cancer. They include the size of the original tumor, the extent of any spread to lymph nodes and any spread to other body organs.

The four general stages can be described in this way.

Stage I — Cht cancer is confined to the organ where it began. There is no spread to lymph nodes nor other organs.

Stage II — The tumor has begun to spread to adjacent organs or lymph nodes.

Stage III — The original tumor is large and involves surrounding tissue and lymph nodes. There may also be metastasis to other organs.

Stage IV — Cancer has spread throughout the body.

Most types of cancer discovered and treated in States I and II usually can be cured or controlled. Cancers in Stages III and IV are much more difficult to treat effectively.

Q: My husband has prostate cancer. A friend told us about a book she read written by a doctor who cured his prostate cancer with a special diet. What can you tell us about this book? Does the diet really work?

A: The book your friend told you about was written by Dr. Anthony Sattilaro. Following his diagnosis of prostate cancer, Dr. Sattelaro was treated with surgery and hormone therapy. After six weeks of treatment, he decided he was not improving and placed himself on a "macrobiotic diet." He continued on hormone therapy for one year while also on the diet.

Dr. Sattilaro's prostate cancer was controlled. He believes the "macrobiotic diet" stopped his cancer. Doctors at the national cancer institute, however, state that 70 to 80 per cent of prostate cancer patients are treated successfully with the type of surgery and hormone therapy Dr. Sattilaro had. These cancer researchers believe there is no evidence in Dr. Sattilaro's case history to show that the "macrobiotic diet" has any affect on cancer.

The American Cancer society warns that the "macrobiotic diet" can be a serious health hazard — especially for patients already weakened by cancer. The ACS further states that the diet is not effective when used alone as a treatment for cancer.

The American Medical association and the U.S. Food and Drug administration also agree that this diet can be harmful. All of these organizations and agencies urge cancer patients to remain in the care of qualified physicians who use accepted and proven methods of treatment.

Exercise and the Ailing Heart

Physical inactivity is a major risk factor in the development of heart disease, the leading cause of death in the United States. Most Americans just don't get any vigorous exercise on their job. Even many sports, such as bowling, golfing or baseball, do not benefit the heart and lungs. To improve the condition of the heart and lungs, exercises must have three key characteristics: They must be brisk—raising heart and breathing rates; be sustained—done at least 15 to 30 minutes without interruption; and be regular—done at least three times a week. Jogging, jumping rope, biking and brisk walking all fit that description.

People recovering from heart attacks are often afraid of exercise because physical effort may bring on chest pain—the warning signal that the heart is not getting enough blood to do its work. Yet exercise is just what heart patients need to reduce their risk of having subsequent attacks. Most cardiologists start their heart attack patients on walks up and down the hospital corridors as soon as their condition is stabilized. Later, a gradually increasing exercise program should be designed with the aid of a physician.

Motivation is a necessary ingredient for any long-term exercise program. For the heart patient, staying motivated is particularly hard, because some commonly prescribed heart medications lower the heart rate in order to reduce work load. The by-product is fatigue. Now there are new medications, calcium channel blockers like Cardizem®, or diltiazem, which not only allow patients to exercise longer before the onset of chest pain, but also make it easier for them to stick to a medically structured program, because the medication does not make them tired.

Heart patients must be content with lower levels of exercise than their healthy counterparts, but the benefits are real, as shown in the National Exercise and Heart Disease Project funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. In that four-year project, 651 middle-aged men who had survived heart attacks, were divided into exercisers and nonexercisers. Those who exercised had significantly fewer cardiac events, and when general well-being was considered, the exercise group had an 87% edge over the sedentary group.

Fortunately, over the past decade there has been a dramatic increase in America's interest in physical fitness. Perhaps this healthy trend will help to improve the heart disease statistics of the future.

Production Of Milk High But Check Is Small

Minnesota's September milk production was the highest on record for that month, but dairy farmers received the smallest monthly milk check in more than three years, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Gross September milk check shared by Minnesota's 28,000 dairy farms plunged to $88.7 million, although the market value nearly equalled the year earlier gross of $96.3 million.

Accounting for more than $7.5 million of the shrinkage was the federal $1 per 100 pounds assessment imposed in September on all milk commercially marketed. That boosted to $29 million the federal assessments deducted in Minnesota since mid-April.

Commissioner Nichols said that the $1 assessment apparently is going to continue until Congress and the Reagan administration resolve their wide differences on all farm price supports, with the biggest hassle thus far focused on the dairy sector.

Minnesota's September milk production was an estimated 87.6 million gallons (753 million pounds), a modest less than one per cent increase compared to a year ago.

Average market price this September, $1.10 per gallon or $12.80 per 100 pounds, was more than a penny a gallon lower than a year ago.

Milk production in this fourth leading dairy state through September this year totaled nearly 956 million gallons, a less than three per cent increase compared to a year ago.

While the increased production made the gross market value of this year's Minnesota milk production an estimated $1.06 billion, the $29 million federal assessment reduced the "take home" pay of dairy farmers to more than $3 million less than the year ago cash flow.

Commissioner Nichols added that the actual take home pay of dairy farmers is even less, because of marketing fees, cooperative reserve deductions, and other charges also deducted along with the federal assessments from the average milk check.

Surveys indicate that the average dairy farmers receives about 40 cents less than the average market price for milk just to pay the hauling costs between the farm and the bulk receiving station or dairy processing plant. Thus far this year that probably cost Minnesota dairy farmers another $33 million deductior from the milk checks.

Who do you call when the phone doesn't work?

With the break-up of the Bell System just around the corner, the days of Northwestern Bell one-stop phone repair service are over. Different companies will be responsible for repair of different portions of your telephone service.

While you won't be able to call Northwestern Bell for all your repair needs, keeping your phone service in working order will still be easy. Basically, you need to know who to call for what.

Lines: Northwestern Bell will continue to maintain all central office switching equipment and phone lines up to the point where they enter your home or business. When problems arise, just call the Northwestern Bell repair number in your directory's Customer Guide.

Equipment: If you own your telephone equipment and have problems with it, follow the instructions on the warranty or contact the manufacturer or retailer for repair.

If you lease your equipment from AT&T, call the company at these numbers: 1-800-555-8111 for residence and single-line businesses; 1-800-526-2000 for multi-line businesses.

Wiring: For repair of wiring inside your home, you can continue to call Northwestern Bell.

To have new wiring installed or existing wiring changed, you have these options: Northwestern Bell, another supplier, or doing it yourself. (Do-it-yourself equipment and instructions are usually available where telephones are sold.)

For tips on how to avoid unnecessary repair bills, or for more information on the changes occurring in the AT&T break-up, write for our free brochure: "The NEW Phone Book." Write Northwestern Bell, P.O. Box 226, Downtown Station, Omaha, Nebraska 68101 (include your name, address, phone number and whether your phone service is residential or business).

We hope these notes have been helpful. But if you still have questions about repair service, feel free to call us during normal business hours at this toll-free number:

Research Yields Clues To Having A Healthy Heart

New findings on the effects of certain chemicals on metabolism of copper point to the importance of adequate amounts of this trace mineral in the diet. The research may yield clues to a secret for maintaining a healthy heart and cardiovascular system.

Normal diets contain hundreds of naturally occuring chemicals, says research physician Leslie M. Klevay, M.D., of USDA's agricultural research service (ARS). Research is leading to understanding of the physiological effects of some of these, such as phytic acid, calcium and ascorbic acid.

Studies at the ARS Grand Forks human nutrition research center on a class of chemicals, that Dr. Klevay calls cholesterotropic and cuprotropic, may put researchers one step closer to understanding how coronary heart disease develops.

Latest study was on the drug, clofibrate, that doctors often use to lower cholesterol concentrations in the blood plasma of humans in hope of reducing the risk of heart attacks. Dr. Klevay says his general approach to using drugs in research is not to learn more about pharmacology but to use them as tools for identifying new aspects of how trace minerals are utilized. The new knowledge may encourage other researchers to study the mechanisms that affect nutrition.

Clofibrate may produce its cholesterol-lowering effect by altering copper metabolism, says Dr. Klevay. In his studies, the drug increased plasma copper and liver copper concentrations while lowering plasma cholesterol levels. The same effects may be produced by either sodium phytate or dietary calcium.

Dr. Klevay has seen opposite effects when animals have been fed histidine, cholesterol plus cholic acid, or large quantities of ascorbic acid commonly known as vitamin C. In his latest two experiements, Dr. Klevay fed laboratory rats low-copper diets with about 500 times as much clofibrate as copper.

In the first experiment, diets that contained the clofibrate and 0.4 micrograms of copper per gram of feed led to copper concentrations in the livers that were about 47 per cent higher than copper concentrations in rats that did not receive clofibrate. Plasma cholesterol concentrations dropped by about 20 per cent.

Second experiement confirmed results of the first. In this experiment, involving a diet with clofibrate and 0.9 micrograms of copper per gram but still copper deficient, copper concentrations in liver increased by 77 per cent over concentrations in livers of rats on the control diet. Plasma cholesterol concentrations dropped nearly 30 per cent.

In the 33-day and 34-day experiements, clofibrate administration was associated with higher plasma copper concentrations. These concentrations were 25 per cent and 19 per cent higher respectively than were concentrations in rats on the control diet.

"We don't know if all cholesterol-lowering drugs lower the animals' requirement for copper," says Dr. Klevay, "but that was the effect of clofibrate." "Also, we don't know if copper is absorbed through the intestines more efficiently or whether the drugs block excretion of copper or take copper from the kidney or muscle and put it in the liver."

Pioneering research in which Dr. Klevay found a relationship between copper deficiency in animals and high concentrations of plasma cholesterol has been confirmed in five additional independent laboratories.

In one of the latest studies, led by ARS chemists Sheldon Reiser and James C. Smith, Jr. of the Carbohydrate and Trace Minerals Nutrition laboratories, Beltsville, Md., rats on a low-copper diet developed plasma cholesterol concentrations that were about 60 per cent above concentrations in rats fed a control diet. The copper deficiency in these rats was not severe enough to produce anemia, the most commonly recognized tell-tale sign of deficiency.

"As we see new functions for trace minerals such as copper, perhaps we should consider studying these new functions as a way to revise our estimates of copper requirements," says Dr. Klevay.

Balance and depletion studies with human subjects has led the U.S. National Research council to suggest that adults should consume at least two milligrams of copper per day. Dr. Klevay's studies and studies led by chemists Wayne R. Wolf and Walter Mertz, of the ARS Human Nutrition Research center, Beltsville, Md., have shown that diets with less than this amount are not uncommon in the United States.

It should be possible to avoid copper deficiency without relying on mineral supplements, says Dr. Klevay. And careful menu planning with a wide variety of foods may allow diets to have ample copper without excluding any particular food.

"We know that beef liver, nuts, seeds, and some breakfast cereals contain relatively large amounts of copper," Dr. Klevay says. "Most nutrition tables, however, provide dietitians with inadequate information on the amount of copper in various foods and the extent to which this trace mineral can be digested, absorbed, and used by humans."

More information on planning menus adequate in copper will be needed if low consumption of copper in diets is proven to be a public health problem, Dr. Klevay says.

Ag Statistics From PCA, Not FmHA Office

An article in Wednesday's Times listing the number of farm loans facing liquidation noted that the statistics were received from Northern and Norwest banks of Thief River Falls and Farmers Home administration.

The statistics were actually received from the two banks and Production Credit association rather than FmHA. Pennington county extension director Terry Courneya, who compiled the statistics, called the error to the Times' attention and noted that FmHA may still be a source of funds for some of the farmers whose loans and financial position are in jeopardy.

EASTERN TIMBER WOLF named "Blackman" is one of several pure wolves in the pack owned by Rod and Kathy Twito of rural Grygla. This animal is quite black with silver muzzle and silver inside the ears. The Twitos obtained him from someone who had rescued a malnourished and abused litter of four wolves. His right front leg had been broken as if by a shovel and he is distrustful of men, but responds well to Kathy who gave him the most care during recovery.

Tips Offered To Help Keep Burglars Out

Joining operation identification, participating in a neighborhood watch group and locking doors and windows with deadbolt locks are commonly known ways to reduce home burglaries. But there are less publicized techniques for keeping the burglar out, according to Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety. (DPS)

When moving in to a new residence, consider changing locks on all outside doors, said Tschida. There is no way to know how many people have keys to existing locks because it is not uncommon for previous owners to lend keys to relatives, friends, neighbors and repair personnel. It is just as important to change locks when moving into a previously unoccupied house. Housing development contractors have master keys to all the homes under construction at any one time. Locksmith can usually change a lock by replacing the cylinder and providing homeowners with new keys.

Homeowners should use one-way screws when installing locks on windows and doors with glass panes. This design makes it possible to tighten the screw but almost impossible for an intruder to remove it after breaking the glass.

Heavy duty strike plates receiving bolts from locks can be used to secure door frames against a kicking attack, said Charles Rix of the Minnesota crime watch, a program of DPS. "The strike plates are secured with at least four, three-inch long wood screws that fasten to the first stud behind the door frame," said Rix.

Installing high privacy fences around property to keep out intruders can backfire. These fences give burglars the seclusion they need to work. Instead homeowners are encouraged to install exterior lighting that make intruders visible to neighbors.

Additional tips on preventing home burglary can be found in the free Minnesota crime watch booklet, "What to do before the burglar comes." It is available from local police and sheriff departments along with other crime watch booklets on preventing personal assault, vehicle theft, rural crime and business theft and robbery.

Woodburning Devices Need Special Care

With winter approaching, homeowners will again use woodburning stoves, fireplaces and furnaces to ease the burden of high fuel costs. Woodburning equipment must be installed, used and maintained properly to avoid fatal house fires, said commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety.

In 1982 fires caused by woodburning stoves and fireplaces took seven lives, or almost 10 per cent of all fire deaths for the year. Figures for 1983 are not yet available.

Woodburning equipment becomes a fire hazard when it is not properly installed or maintained and there is not enough space between the combustible materials, stoves and chimney connectors. State fire marshal Wes Werner recommends a 36-inch distance between the woodburning stove and walls, ceiling, carpenting and furniture.

Older installed woodburning equipment should be checked to see if combustible materials are clear for the recommended distances, said Werner. When installing new equipment, follow the manufacturer's instructions and check local building and fire codes.

One of the major concerns regarding wood stove operation is the problem of creosote and carbon collecting in chimneys and starting fires. The buildup is accelerated when stoves or fireplaces maintain a fire for long period of time at low firing rates. One suggestion to lessen the accumulation of deposits is to maintain a relatively high level of combustion in woodburning appliances. This means products of combustion exit the chimney before condensation of creosote or carbon occurs. Also creosote buildup can be reduced if wood is properly dried.

Periodically have the chimeny and chimney connector cleaned by a professional chimney sweep as deposits can be safely removed only by a mechanical process.

Werner recommends these additional suggestion to insure the safe use of woodburning equipment this fall:

— Only purchase woodburning stoves that are tested and approved by a testing laboratory. Make sure the unit to be bought is free of cracks or other defects and that it is made of sturdy material such as iron or steel.

— Units purchased for use in mobile homes must be specifically listed for use and installation in mobile homes.

— If problems with woodburning equipment are suspected, call the local fire department for an inspection of the unit and its installation.

— Make sure each heating unit has a separate chimney flue.

— Make sure each heating unit has the right kind of chimney.

— Install smoke detectors.

In 1946 the first full employment act was passed; it called for the federal government to maintain maximum employment and purchasing power, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

There's little doubt that each individual person has a right to be on this earth. If we lose that belief we lose the respect and dignity all living things deserve. Celebrate life with your whole being, greet each new morn with joy and a determination to make each hour full of purpose and vitality. The secret to happiness is to live as fully and joyously as we can, showing appreciation for all creatures great and small.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

I just lost a dependent and gained a married daughter and a son-in-law. As the father of the bride, I am told that I was in a state of shock, partially because I'd had that daughter for 26 wonderful years, and also because of the massive effort and cost of what started out as a small mid-week wedding.

As I looked down the aisle at Bill, and then escorted my Kay to his side, and really observed that beautiful and lovely young lady he was marrying, a whole panorama of memories went through my mind like reruns of old movies that were so meaningful.

I remember Kay's birth day, nine minutes after her twin sister, checking in at just under five pounds, with fat cheeks and bird-like bony legs... the "kid" birthday parties... the sick and the good times... the trek for "tricks or treats" for 12 Halloweens.

Once I returned from a business trip to find that she had (with her sister) "gentle-broke" our Arabian foal, Starkist. Then there was the time we took Starkist to a county horse show expecting our prize horse to come up with a blue ribbon for conformation, and she didn't even place, which broke two young hearts. When Kay started showing her horses and didn't win, I remember finding her back in the stall with the horse, in tears over having let Starkist down. Later, when she started winning, she found how much easier it was to be a winner than a loser, and that being gracious didn't cost anything (something her predecessors had not understood).

There was the time she was graduating from junior high school and needed a dress for the ceremony. As an only parent without much talent for dress selection (Thank God for jeans!), I remember giving the girls one hour to find what they needed, with the threat that I would then make the selection (That threat did it!).

She (and her sister and brother) accompanied me to Haiti, where one of our companies was located. Living at a hotel with two swimming pools, a golf course and tennis courts, and lots of good weather and good food, I remember her as the spokesperson for the "group," telling me that the poverty and physical problems of the Haitians had so upset them, that they wanted to go home, even though home meant snow and lots of bad weather.

Then she selected the university of her choice. When the calls home increased in frequency to five times a day, I hopped into my car, met with her, walking for miles, driving for more miles, eating our first gyros, and trying to come up with answers on why she was experiencing a mental block (homesickness) that kept her from working. Back at her dorm room, trying to break the ice by writing her first draft on the meaning of a 16 line poem, I knew we were okay when she said, "Dad, that's terrible!" She sat down and tapped out her paper and the "block" disappeared.

With school done, she got her first job in education, at the same school employing her sister. At the end of that year she decided to attend law school, and I remember driving down to see her school and building where she was to live, and getting her enrolled. On the day she was to leave, I checked her car's oil, antifreeze and windshield washer fluid. I then walked into the house and found that she had changed her mind and wasn't going.

A year later, she made the second decision to attend law school. This time it stuck. A brother and I drove her to school, helped get her apartment in order and everything in place. There were visits home after that, but she had met her young man in law school, and they were just married, with law school being completed this academic year at Bill's expense. (Upon graduation, he was fortunate enough to get a job.)

I've heard all of those jokes about the father of the bride being a neglected guy, except for the bill-paying. I don't think that fathers are so neglected. I believe that the shock of realizing how fast time flies and the many changes that had been lost for being with the family instead of concentrating on business and communities activities is hard to accept.

Sure I was there (the only Dad) to hear the fourth grade orchestra play "Sidewalks of New York" (Kay and the others sounded like they were playing a funeral march)... or the time she found our St. Bernard protectively carrying a live baby rabbit in his mouth, which we, unsuccessfully, tried to save... or when she dislocated her hip falling off her appaloosa, Red Fox. At my office, a few miles away, I sensed I was needed at home, and, unable to get through on the phone, for the first time, just took off for my home!

There are lots of additional memories, and regret about opportunities lost. Maybe some other Dads and Moms can learn something from this. I hope so!

That's Straight Talk!

Red Lake DHIA Top Producers Are Reported

Twitos Raise Timber Wolves In Deer Area

loose into a large exercise area, releasing only a single pen's contents at a time. He is able to handle most of the aimals, and even uses one 87 per cent hybrid to pull a sled and for visits to grade schools and football games. Rod says he also makes an impressive "sidekick" when Rod dons a wolfman costume for Halloween parties!

The Twitos intend to purchase another male wolf this year to introduce new genetics in the pack, and to provide a mate for one or more of the females. It is Rod's intention to have five pairs of wolves and to produce from 25 to 30 cubs a year. He has developed six outdoor pens with boxes, added small buildings including one with two large pens for whelping and developed the exercise area. The pack appears to be extremely clean and well-kept.

Rod is originally from Luverne, and his wife is the former Kathy Payne of Goodridge. They have a daughter, 14 months old, and Kathy works in the kitchen of the Roseau hospital.

They don't object to anyone stopping by to look at the wolves but ask that they receive a call first. The telephone number is 294-6286 and the farm is located about eight miles southeast of Grygla, about two miles from the Bethesda Log church.

We wondered how the area people who have an aversion to wolves react to having them raised in the area.

"We have a lot of people who come by to look at the wolves and say, 'That's where they all should be — in pens!' " Twito laughs.

Twito opposes a wolf season as has been proposed in Minnesota, because he is overly protective of wolves.

"I feel that the wolf's days in the wild are numbered," Twito said. "A wolf season would open a legal pelt market, and that would logically lead to a domestic market. Since you can't tell a domestic wolf pelt from a wild one, there would be a likelihood of illegally taken wild wolves entering the domestic fur market. I recognize the need for wolves to be removed where they are a problem for farmers' livestock."

Rod and Kathy are concerned enought about their cubs finding proper homes that they require prospective buyers to fill out a questionnaire before they will consider a sale. They ask why the buyers want a wolf or wolf hybrid, if they are financially able to keep it for its lifetime, have a maximum security pen, realize that it can not run free, are able to provide a comfortable, unstressed home and if the entire family is agreeable to the purchase.

They emphasize that wolves are not dogs, that they have different habits and thought processes, must have a diversity of food and require a large, secure pen. And they clearly state on their questionnaire that they have the right to refuse sale to anyone whom they feel cannot supply the animals with a suitable environment.

"Wolves certainly aren't for everyone," Rod emphasizes. "I happen to like them better than dogs. They are extremely intelligent but they aren't submissive. They are never really tame or domesticated and they have to be confined. It's their nature to run, and that usually means trouble. Our wolves in their pens have caught and killed a crow, a magpie and our black cat."

Even in their pens, wolves will be wolves.

PLAYING WITH WOLVES is a daily occurrence for Rod Twito of rural Grygla. He is shown with one of his full-flooded wolves in the exercise area of the farm. Rod is married to Kathy Payne of Goodridge and they live on a farm about eight miles southeast of Grygla, near the Bethesda log church. They raise and sell wolves and wolf-dog hybrids.

New Zip Code Incentives Are Put In Effect

U.S. postal service governors recently approved price incentives for use of zip plus four, the expanded zip code, on qualified first-class mail.

Incentives — a half-cent per piece for presorted mail and .9 cents per piece for mail that is not presorted — were announced by Chairman of the Board Robert L. Hardesty.

Action, which follows a postal rate commission recommendation became effective in October.

Price incentives for zip plus four mailings are based on the lower costs to the postal service of handling such mail. They are available for mailings of first-class letters or cards that are at least 500 presorted pieces or 250 nonpresorted pieces. To qualify for price incentives, the mail must be of a size and addressed in a manner that permits sorting with the postal service's new optical scanning equipment.

"Use of zip plus four — consisting of the present five-digit zip code, a hyphen and four additional numbers — will be entirely voluntary for both individuals and businesses," Postmaster Generl William F. Bolger said. "Most business mailers will find it cost-effective to use zip plus four while others may not, but either way it will be their choice. Use of zip plus four should never become mandatory," he said.

Governors also acted recently to establish zip plus four as a rate category. Mailers who already qualify for price incentives for presorting to three or five digits of the zip code can receive an additional half-cent incentive for using zip plus four on qualified first-class mail.

New code is expected to be used primarily by business mailers. They can get conversion assistance directly from the postal service by contacting their local customer service representative or postmaster.

Postmaster General Bolger noted that service standards for the delivery of zip plus four mail will be identical to those of five-digit zip coded mail. Expanded codes already are appearing on some mail generated by businesses.

Individual householders are not expected to notify business correspondents of the four-digit add-on to their zip codes or send change of address information. Business mailers who choose to use zip plus four will generally obtain such zip plus four codes for all addresses from postal sources.

Postal service officially activated its automation program last September, when the first computer-driven optical character readers and bar code sorters were installed in a Los Angeles mail processing facility. By mid-1984, the postal service expects to have similar equipment in 118 mail processing centers across the nation. These facilities handle 75 per cent of all outgoing mail and 68 per cent of incoming mail.

Automation can increase productivity significantly when used with the five-digit zip code. Whe used in tandem with zip plus four, far greater productivity gains come within reach. Extra four digits make it possible to sort mail automatically to individual letter carriers as opposed to the less efficient methods of distribution currently in use. This will help contain postal operating costs and hold down future rate increases, the postal service said.

Agri-Growth Council Asks Help For Area

At its annual meeting in Bloomington on November 14, the Minnesota Agri-Growth council, a non-partisan group of farmers and agri-business people interested in promoting Minnesota's agricultural products passed a resolution calling on the U.S. Congress and President Reagan to support federal legislation to provide emergency debt relief to northwestern Minnesota.

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, a member of the senate agricultre and natural resources committee, said the disaster relief resolution is "just one action we can take to improve the conditions of our farm and small business region. We also need the support of local people to contact their Congressmen, and the President, in order to turn our economy around and rally support for our area."

The Agri-Growth council has become widely-known for its member-supported resolutions on a wide-range of public policy issues, such as farm chemicals, Seaway Port authority of Duluth, Fargo preference laws and pending legislation, U.S. agricultural export policies, excise tax transfers, waterway user fees, federal highway user taxes and support for the state's agricultural commodity research and promotional counsils.

The resolution on disaster assistance passed at the meeting states:

Whereas, many of Minnesota's agricultural producers have suffered economic losses due to recent natural disasters; and

Whereas, these natural disasters have occurred repeatedly jeopardizing the viability of many producers, particularly in the Red River Valley; and

Whereas, Congress is considering legislation that would provide relief through rescheduled Farmers Home administration loans for producers in areas that have been officially declared disasters three years running;

Be It Resolved, that the Minnesota Agri-Growth council urges the Congress and the President to support legislation providing relief through rescheduled FmHA debts for areas officially declared disasters three years in a row.

How To Record Your Personal Family Folklore

Professional folklorists offer the following advice for those who may want to collect the folklore of their own families:

Start with a question or topic that you know will elicit a full reply from the subject, such as a story you have heard the relative tell in the past. This will give the person confidence in his ability to contribute something of value to your collection.

Avoid generalities. "Tell me about your childhood," for instance, often elicits nothing more than a list of names and dates.

Ask evocative questions. Nothing can kill an interview faster than a long series of questions that require only yes or no answers.

Face up to the fact that there will be some information you will not get. You may be the wrong age or sex. A relative may simply not trust you with sensitive details. If you feel you must have the missing material, you may be able to solicit help from another relative as an interviewer.

Be aware that role switching will occur. You have changed from a son or daughter to an interrogator, and both you and your informant may feel uneasy in these new roles.

Show interest. Encourage your informants as much as possible. Interject remarks whenever appropriate and learn to be a creative listener as well as a good questioner.

Never turn off the tape recorder unless asked to. It breaks that conversation and suggests that you think some of the material is not worth recording.

Use props whenever possible — photos, letters and so on that can stimulate memories.

Be sensitive to the needs of family members. Don't slight family members who show interest in your project; interview them, even if you have reason to believe their material will be of minimal value.

Prepare some sort of report for the family as a tangible result of participation.

Before publishing diaries, letters and other written artifacts, check on copyright regulations that govern the writer, not the recipient or present owner, of the material.

The Legislature Changes

Do you sometimes wonder if just maybe you're getting a little more government than you would really like to have? It certainly seems that way to us every once in awhile — and recently the feeling has been increasingly frequent.

We can remember quite well when the members of the Minnesota House and Senate were elected without party designation. Oh, sure, once they were elected they chose to caucus with either the "Liberals" or the "Conservatives", and most of them pretty well let the voters know where they stood before the elections. But while the Liberal and Conservative labels were often interpreted as DFL and Republican, there were no really direct party ties.

It was a healthy situation, we felt, because legislators could concentrate on the issues at hand instead of sniffing the political wind before every potential action. They were directly responsible to their people and their districts, instead of to the party line. To our way of thinking, opting to give party designation to state legislators was a tragic mistake.

We can also remember when the legislature was in session only once every two years to transact the business of the state. What didn't get done during that session had to wait for a two-year period until the next session came around. The legislators knew that, and they faced up to decisions on controversial issues and got the job done by adjournment. It has now been about a decade since annual sessions were initiated, and procrastination is the name of the legislative game.

What is next to be lost in the movement to provide Minnesotans with all the government they can handle? Probably the citizen legislator; the man or woman who left a farm or a business or a profession for a few months every other year to serve his or her state in a public-spirited service role.

House minority leader David M. Jennings sums up the situation quite well:

"Since the advent of annual sessions... Independent-Republicans have been attempting to warn the voting public that our citizen legislature is steadily evolving into a full-time, professional lawmaking body. The diversity of expertise and the good, old common sense that were once the hallmarks of the legislative branch of government are eroding in the wake of the trend toward a new breed of young, professional politicians whose only experience has been in government," Rep. Jennings writes.

"As recently as 1978, the job paid $8,400 per year and was clearly understood to be part-time. Legislators needed to have other income and it was possible to do so. Being a member of the legislature was as much a public service as serving on the school board is today.

"In the few short years since that time, things have changed dramatically. The size of legislative staff has increased; a $19 million remodeling of legislative offices has been undertaken; and legislative pay is now $18,500 a year, with an almost certain pay raise on the way in 1985.

"At the same time, length of sessions has increased and, in addition to regular sessions, we have seen six special sessions in the last three years. For House members, week-long mini sessions have also become a result part of the interim schedule. In addition, each member has responsibilities in his or her legislative district and must find time to campaign as well. A mere glance at the schedule shows why more and more legislators are becoming full-time.

"The change in our system is a fundamental one and the implications are far-reaching," Rep. Jennings adds. "Many people, including me, would argue that the need for full-time lawmakers does not exist. I am convinced that there has been a decline in the quality of government as a result of these changes. I think most Minnesotans would agree. Unfortunately, they have never been given a voice in the matter."

Minnesota has been ill-served by the partisanship and manipulation of party designation and the procrastination created by annual sessions. Further movement toward full-time legislators would be another step backward, away from responsible and responsive government. We already get more government than we need.

Brown Mackie college in Salina, Kansas, refunds tuition to students who are unable to find a job within 120 days after graduation! In the past year, 97.9 per cent of its graduates found jobs in their fields or related fields.

To be eligible for the refund, a student must be available for work and make a genuine effort to obtain it.

After "The Day After"

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

According to national news stories, many Americans were thankful just to be alive Monday morning after watching ABC's television presentation of "The Day After" Sunday night.

This wasn't the first national network program dealing with the possibility of sudden, fiery destruction from nuclear war. NBC produced two in recent years. The first took two nights and five hours to get the job done, but both Russians and Americans fired their rockets and we were left knowing nothing would be left anywhere. However, that program ended with the rockets taking off. Nobody had to see the results.

Last spring NBC tried it again on a Sunday night movie made to look like a newscast. That shot included far shots of the sudden explosion and aftershock. We weren't, however, treated to views of humans disintegrating or left without skin.

Anti-nuclear supporters seem to feel "The Day After" is going to help their cause more than that of the pro-nuclear groups. But when the show as over and Monday morning discussions over coffee and in classrooms completed, we're convinced most people still feel the same way they did before the broadcast began.

We don't want to kill the world to save it. Nobody wants to grow up with nuclear threats hanging over their heads. But how can we be sure, if we take the fence down, our neighbor will keep his bull tied up? Many a football game has been won as much through a strong defense as an unstoppable offense.

The thought of death in a nuclear holocaust is frightening to us. The thought of being touched by the fallout but not killed is even more frightening. But so are thoughts of burning to death in an auto accident or being struck by an incurable form of cancer. So far they haven't made a two-hour movie on those topics.

We watched "The Day After" and we're going to try to learn from it. But we watched it with a grain of salt. Like everything printed, recorded or filmed, it includes a bit of propaganda. Even this editorial, because it reflects our background and beliefs, is a form of propaganda.

Paul Harvey once said it is impossible for a journalist to keep personal opinion out of anything he writes or says. "Just a simple thing, like where you pause in a sentence, reflects your personal view," he said.

It's nice to know, however, that we live in a country where everyone is free to express that view without fear of oppression or physical harm.

A Cord of Wood

We all know that a cord of wood measures 4x4x8 feet, right? But did you know that a cord of wood can, on the average, produce the following:

— 12 dining room tables (each seating eight people)
— 30 Boston rockers
— 942 one-pound books
— 1,000 pounds of kraft pulp
— 4,000 one-gallon milk cartons
— 460,000 personal checks
— 4,384,000 commemorative-size postage stamps
— 7,500,000 toothpicks

To build the average 1,800-square-foot house, you would use about 10,000 feet of lumber — or about 20 cords length. In Minnesota last year, about 3,600,000 cords of wood were harvested. If all those cords went for a single purpose, they could build 180,000 homes, or print 3.4 billion books, or make 27 trillion toothpicks.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Employee: "Boss, about that raise..."

Boss: "Sorry, Dugan, I'm busy right now. Get back to me in a few days... if you're still with us."

One Dairy Farmer to Another: "My hired man got so good at spreading manure that he quit working for me and went into politics."

WASHINGTON EVENTS AFFECTING OUR COMMUNITY

A number of concerned members of Congress are trying to protect consumers across the country by opposing a proposal to tax everybody who pays an electric bill. The tax would pay for more power plant emissions controls in the Mid-West and East in order to try to solve acid rain problems in the Northeast.

The experts at WEST Associates, a group of 21 Western utilities, say the government should form any acid rain programs with regional differences in mind.

The cost of controlling acid rain in the East should not be charged to people in the West as a proposed across-the-board national electricity tax would do, the Association says.

In the Western part of the U.S., serious acid rain problems similar to those in the East do not exist.

The proposed tax ignores the fact that Western power plants have a fraction of the emissions of those in the East, and use low-sulfur coal. It also ignores the fact that the West has more than four times the East's percentage of power plants that already have installed equipment to cut pollution.

The tax would force Western consumers to pay billions of dollars for pollution control equipment in the East.

Many concerned consumers, who oppose unfair taxation which discriminates against one region's consumers for the benefit of another's, are expressing their objections to their legislators by writing to the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As most of the hunting seasons of northwestern Minnesota come to a close for 1983, I would like to extend an expression of appreciation to the Minnesota Legislature, present and past, for the provision of such a great public resource as our state game management areas. Their wisdom and investment in prior years has preserved for the average citizen of this state an opportunity to share the pleasure and excitement that sport hunting provides.

It is also appropriate to extend this thank you to the personnel of the various divisions of the Department of Natural Resources. They are the people whose dedication and hard work, often without thanks, make high quality hunting possible. Along with their management and enforcement responsibilities to wild game, they are a friend and servant of the sportsman.

A particular incident that typifies what I mean is a situation that occurred during the deer season just completed. A local conservation officer went considerably out of his way quite late into the evening to assist a hunter who was stuck off the ditch grade with a 4-wheel drive vehicle. He could easily have said, "Sorry, my job doesn't involve working into the night to assist someone using poor judgment in driving off the roadway."

It is good to see that such men get rewarded by advancement in their organization.

Gophers High On Bergland

University of Minnesota assistant hockey coach Dean Talafous couldn't find enough complimentary things to say about the Gophers' Tim Bergland when asked about the freshman from Thief River Falls during Saturday's annual Section 8 high school hockey jamboree played in the sports arena.

Talafous was among the large number of professional and college scouts on hand for the event that featured all 19 Section 8 teams. "There's lots of talent in Section 8 this year," he mentioned. "We'll be keeping our eye on a number of kids up here this year."

Talafous said he couldn't be happier with the progress made to date by Bergland, who played almost a dozen junior varsity games for the Gophers this year before injuries opened up a spot on the varsity for him the previous weekend in a Saturday night win over the University of North Dakota. He was with the team Friday and Saturday for a two-game series in San Diego, Calif. against U.S. International University.

"He came in and played so well against North Dakota in a 1-0 hockey game," pointed out Talafous. "He was centering our top line and he was as good as anybody on the ice in the third period. He's won himself a spot on the team."

A 6-2, 185-pounder who was the first Minnesotan taken in last spring's NHL amateur draft when Washington selected him, Bergland found a strong, deep Minnesota line-up facing him when he joined the Gophers this fall. It was difficult to crack the line-up, acknowledged Talafous. But Bergland has apparently made the most of an opportunity when knee injuries sidelined Wally Chapman and Steve Orth to move on a line with junior Tom Rothsein of Grand Rapids and freshman Todd Okerlund of Burnsville.

"It didn't hurt him to play junior varsity," said Talafous, "and we had no doubt he would fit into our program. He's even better than what we expected. He's a classy kid, very knowledgeable on and off the ice. He represents Thief River Falls and the University of Minnesota in a tremendous way."

There are some freshmen mistakes for Bergland to overcome, admitted Talafous, but the coaches aren't worried. "He's playing with confidence now," mentioned Talafous. "Any mistakes he makes he covers up for with hard work. As the competition gets better, he becomes a better hockey player. He rises to the level of competition."

"Nobody knows how good Tim Bergland can be," added Talafous. "He has a real future in hockey."

Miscellaneous

+Officials at Plummer and Oklee have decided not to follow through with plans to form a cooperative high school football program for the Nine-Man North Tri-County Conference. Plummer won the league title this fall with an 8-0 record, while the new Grygla-Goodridge cooperative program came up with a second place finish for the Blue Devils at 7-1. Oklee was 2-6. Besides Grygla-Goodridge, the North Tri-County Conference has a cooperative program member in Erskine-Mentor, and recently school officials at Clearbrook-Leonard and Gonvick-Trail met to discuss the possibility of the Hornets and Bulldogs fielding a cooperative team.

+Crookston is expected to field one of the strongest basketball teams in the area in 1983-84 as the Pirates compete as a Class A entry in District 31 after leaving Class AA status, and Fergus Falls is expected to challenge Moorhead for top honors in Region 8AA, but one of the tallest line-ups in the area will take the floor at East Grand Forks where the Green Wave have 6-6½ junior Warren Menge, a season-long starter as a sophomore a year ago; 6-6 sophomore Dave Vonesh, who saw spot duty on the varsity late in the 1982-83 season; and 6-3½ junior Lloyd Schneider, another part-time player a year ago; plus 6-4 Paul Gravseth, 6-2 Sean O'Gorman, 6-2 Troy Hammargren and 6-2 Rich Loomis off last year's junior varsity. "Overall, this is the tallest team I've had," East Grand Forks coach Ray Stinar told Warren Strandell of the East Grand Forks Exponent. But the Green Wave did lose 6-5 center Dale Johnson, last year's leading scorer, and 6-3 John Miller, a three-year regular and the leading rebounder, to graduation. But back with those others is 5-6 senior captain Rod Mosher, the team's point guard.

POINT-PRODUCERS for the Lincoln high school hockey team during Saturday's Section 8 jamboree scrimmage session against Crookston, senior wing Steve Wiskow (12) and freshman center Scott Novak, looked for each other for congratulations after Wiskow scored at the 5:06 mark of the first 11-minute period. The Prowlers out-scored the Pirates 3-0 in the 22-minute scrimmage, with Wiskow scoring all three goals and Novak assisting on all three. The Pirates' David Holmquist (23) and Mike Bang (25) skated off the ice after the goal. All 19 teams were on hand in the sports arena for the annual preseason Section 8 jamboree. Thief River Falls opens its 1983-84 regular season schedule Saturday.

Hockey Jamboree Is Played On Sat.

Senior Center Steve Wiskow scored all three goals and freshman center Scott Novak had an assist on all three Saturday as Thief River Falls out-scored Crookston 3-0 in the tenth and final 22-minute Section 8 preseason high school hockey jamboree scrimmage played in front of a large Thief River Falls sports arena crowd.

Wiskow scored on a slap shot from the face-off circle to the left of Crookston goalie Derek Bray at 5:06 of the first 11-minute period; scored again when he flipped the puck up and over the shoulder of a second Crookston goalie, Troy Brekken, at 6:50 of the second period; and cranked up a slap shot from short range that ripped into the net as the final second clicked off the clock.

At the other end, Thief River Falls goalies Lee Genereux, a senior who worked the first period, and Steve Solheim, a junior who played the second period, combined for the shutout.

There were four ties among the ten jamboree sessions featuring all 19 Section 8 teams, plus the Thief River Falls junior varsity, a 6-0 winner over first-year Section 8 member East Grand Forks Sacred Heart in the 11 a.m. jamboree opener.

Ties during the 11½ hours of hockey included a scoreless deadlock between Bagley and Crosby-Ironton; a 3-3 stalemate between Warroad and Detroit Lakes; a 2-2 draw between East Grand Forks and Bemidji; and a 1-1 standoff between Roseau and Fergus Falls.

Other winners included Red Lake Falls, 1-0 over Hallock; Indus, 2-0 over Little Falls; Alexandria, 3-1 over Lake of the Woods; and Moorhead, 1-0 over Brainerd.

Thief River Falls opens its 1983-84 regular season hockey schedule Saturday when the Prowlers host Grand Forks Central at 7:30 p.m.

Jamboree Scores

Thief River Falls JV 6, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 0; Red Lake Falls 1, Hallock 0; Bagley 0, Crosby-Ironton 0; Indus 2, Little Falls 0; Alexandria 3, Lake of the Woods 1; Moorhead 1, Brainerd 0; Warroad 3, Detroit Lakes 3; East Grand Forks 2, Bemidji 2; Roseau 1, Fergus Falls 1; Thief River Falls 3, Crookston 0.

Mariucci Joins Jamboree Scouts

by Mike Lundgren,
Times Sports Editor

John Mariucci, regarded by many as the symbol of hockey in Minnesota, was one of the many professional and college scouts floating through the Thief River Falls sports arena Saturday during the day-long preseason Section 8 high school hockey jamboree. All 19 Section 8 teams were on hand, affording the fans, coaches and scouts an opportunity to see all the available hockey talent in northwestern Minnesota.

Mariucci, who is the assistant general manager of the National Hockey League Minnesota North Stars, was obviously here to keep tabs on that talent. Looking for the next Neal Broten, perhaps? The Roseau product who went on to fame at the University of Minnesota and the Gold Medal-winning United States Olympic hockey team before establishing himself as an NHL standout with the North Stars is one of Mariucci's favorites. He more or less laughed at the prospects of finding another player of that caliber in the high school ranks.

"You just don't see many Neal Brotens", smiled Mariucci. "He's a great one. He is a very talented individual. He's a strong skater, has great hands and good hockey sense. It's not fair; you can't compare these kids to Neal Broten."

At the same time Mariucci was lavishing praise on Broten, his prize player was collecting a hat trick in a 7-6 Minnesota win over Toronto. He scored the tying goal with just three seconds left in regulation time and got the game-winner 1:42 into the five-minute sudden-death overtime.

Actually, Mariucci wasn't watching for just the most-obvious Section 8 standouts Saturday night.

"You look for a multiple of things," he said between the scrimmages. "You look for improvement. You remember how well someone played last year and compare it to how well he's playing this year. You look for the players who improve every year. You see some kids who are good high school players and you wonder what happens to them, but they reached a plateau and didn't get any better. You're looking for the good one who is improving every year."

A perfect example, said Mariucci, is current Roseau high school senior Paul Broten, the younger brother of Neal and the New Jersey Devils' Aaron Broten.

"Two years ago he barely made the team," explained Mariucci. "Last year he came on and played good hockey. This year they say he is outstanding."

That improvement rests with the player himself; improvement that requires more than just attending regularly scheduled games and practices in indoor arenas.

"Today there are great facilities for the players," mentioned Mariucci, "but the kids who have the desire to improve have to get outside and become a better skater on outdoor ice; they can practice shooting in the basement; and they can work on their stickhandling with a tennis ball in the street."

Mariucci put special emphasis on the players' stickhandling ability. "You got to have good hands," he said. "You have to have the ability to control and puck — you can't teach that. The easy thing to do is to teach skating. You can't teach a kid to have good hands."

Physical size is very important, too, according to Mariucci. "A player has to be smart, have good hands, be a good skater and have good size. There's room for the smaller player, but you've got to be exceptional in all those things if you don't have the size."

And, too, you have to have the talent to begin with, he noted: "You have to be blessed," Mariucci said. "If you don't have the talent, you're in trouble. You can spend 22 hours a day on the ice, but unless you have the hockey talent to begin with, it won't do a whole lot of good."

Mariucci, a 67-year-old native of Eveleth, has been in hockey for more than four decades. He has been a guiding force behind the rise of high school and college hockey in the United States. He has played a major role in establishing the Minnesota high school hockey program and helped lead the University of Minnesota hockey team into national prominence.

He was an All-American for the Gophers in 1940 and played five years with the Chicago Black Hawks as a defenseman when only a handful of Americans were employed in the National Hockey League.

In 1952, Mariucci began the first of 14 seasons as head hockey coach at the University of Minnesota. He directed the U.S. Olympic team to a Silver Medal in the 1956 Winter Olympics at Contina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

Mariucci joined the North Stars in 1967, serving the team in various positions, largely in the field of collegiate scouting before being appointed to his present duties that include a heavy scouting schedule in the United States, Canada and Europe.

Lincoln high school girls basketball team opens the 1983-84 Thief River Falls winter sports season schedule Tuesday when the Prowlers host Marshall County Central in an 8 p.m. game that will be preceded by freshman and junior varsity games at 6 o'clock. The freshmen play at Franklin middle school and the junior varsity game will be played at Lincoln.

Neither team expects to generate much offense in the opener. "If we can play some good defense we'll be all right," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It's going to have to be our defense that pulls us through, though, because our offense won't," he added.

Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde echoes similar thoughts as he tries to replace three graduated seniors who combined for an average of 40 points per game.

Thief River Falls' season-opening starting line-up will have seniors Paula Wilkens and Shari Larson at the guards; junior Michelle Olson and sophomore Connie Grovum at forwards; with senior Colleen Cullen at center.

Rec. Skaters To Begin Classes Here This Week

Recreational skating season at the Thief River Falls sports arena begins this week with classes for pre-school children at 9 a.m. Tuesday, and afternoon and evening classes starting on Thursday. Classes will meet at the same time each week.

Scheduled times for the various Thursday classes are as follows: Badge 1 and beginner — 3:30 and 6 p.m.; Badge 2 — 3:30 and 6 p.m.; Badge 3 — 3:30, 4:15 and 6 p.m.; Badge 4 — 3:30, 4:15 and 6 p.m.; Badge 5 — 3:30, 4:15 and 6 p.m.; Badge 6 — 4:15 and 6:45 p.m.; Badge 7 — 5 and 6:45 p.m.; Badge 8 — 5 p.m.; Badge 9 — 5 p.m.; Badge 10 — 5 p.m.; Badge 11 — 6:45 p.m.; Badge 12 — 5 p.m.; Jump and spin — 6:45 p.m.; and precision — 7:45 p.m.

Students who have not registered may do so by picking one of the times available for the badge level they are working on and signing up at the first class. Registrations for the ninth annual Fantasy On Ice show will be issued at these first sessions, and will have to be returned by December 15. Cost for the season is $5 for 10 lessons, plus a $5 user fee if it has not already been paid.

DNR hotline

1. Is it legal for a person who shoots his or her deer the first part of the season to continue to hunt with friends, helping them to fill out their tags?

Yes. Party hunting is allowed in Minnesota. The regulations for party hunting are: 1.) A party is any group of two or more licensed deer hunters all of whom are afield hunting together at the same time-all using firearms or all using bow and arrow. Therefore, a mixed weapons group would be two separate parties. 2.) Any member of a party may kill a legal buck for any other member of the party who has an unused tag. Any member of a party may tag a legal buck killed by any other member of the party. 3.) Antlerless deer may not be shot at by anyone other than the party members licensed to take antlerless deer. Antlerless deer may be tagged only by party members licensed to take antlerless deer. Byron Dyrland, regional enforcement supervisor.

2. While hunting deer in northern Minnesota this 1983 season, we observed dogs chasing deer. Is it legal to shoot these dogs or what should be done?

Under Minnesota statute 100.29 sub. 19, any person may, and it shall be the duty of every conservation officer to, kill any dog pursuing or killing deer or moose, and no action for damages shall be maintained against the person for the killing. Owner of any dog which is found pursuing or killing a deer or moose, or domestic livestock shall be guilty of a petty misdemeanor. Byron Dyrland, regional enforcement supervisor. forcement supervisor.

3. How do you tell the age of a moose, deer or bear?

Ages are determined by collecting the front incisors of moose and deer, and the first premolar of bear. By preparing the root of these teeth in a special solution and then staining them with a special dye, growth rings can be counted similar to counting growth rings on a tree. Each year a new layer of cementum is deposited on the root of each tooth, and it is these layers of cementum that appear as growth rings when examined under the microscope. Jim Breyen, assistant regional wildlife supervisor.

CROOKSTON GOALIE Troy Brekken was out of position, but Thief River Falls center Ryan Bakke couldn't locate the bouncing puck at his feet and failed to get off a shot on this play during Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey jamboree action in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Prowlers out-scored the Pirates 3-0 in the tenth and final 22-minute scrimmage of the day-long event featuring all Section 8 teams.

Prowlers Play In Jamboree At Crookston

Warren out-scored Thief River Falls 19-12 Saturday in a pair of eight-minute quarters during the fourth annual University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) preseason high school basketball jamboree.

In other match-ups, Bemidji blitzed Stephen 41-22, East Grand Forks handled Fisher 34-18 and Crookston got by Argyle 30-24.

Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt said he went into the jamboree with the idea of giving everyone a chance to play.

"We accomplished what we wanted to do," he explained. "Everybody got a chance to play. We would have liked to put more points on the board in two quarters, but we played pretty tough defense and we got up and down the court pretty well."

While a number of teams opened their 1983-84 regular season schedule this weekend, the Prowlers will wait until Tues., Dec. 6, to begin play with an 8 p.m. game at Roseau.

"We'll be ready," promised Hunt. "We've got three extra days of practice to get ready."

FIFTY YEARS OF federal waterfowl conservation will be celebrated next year as a pair of American widgeon on the water by Alabama artist William C. Morris grace the 1984-85 federal migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp, popularly known as the duck stamp. Morris' design was chosen over 1,581 other entries for the annual art competition. Morris, 38, was a first-time entrant in the nation-wide contest, but he was a winner in the 1984 Alabama state waterfowl stamp competition held earlier this year. The duck stamps are the largest running, annually issued series in U.S. revenue stamp history. Since 1934, when duck stamps first went on sale, over 3.5 million acres of prime waterfowl territory have been acquired as national refuge system lands or waterfowl production areas with more than $370 million in revenue from the duck stamp supplemented by Wetlands Loan Act funds. Interior Department, the contest sponsor, encourages outdoor enthusiasts who enjoy wildlife through photography, bird watching and other activities to join hunters in supporting the nation's conservation effort by bying an annual duck stamp.

Area Basketball Teams To Open 1983-84 Schedules This Week

Area high school basketball teams open their 1983-84 schedules this week, with Middle River at Roseau, Grygla at home against Oklee and Plummer hosting East Grand Forks Sacred Heart in Friday night openers.

Goodridge will wait until Tues., Dec. 6, to open at home against Clearbrook while Marshall County Central begins play Fri., Dec. 9, at Badger.

MCC

Despite losing five of his top six players of a year ago to graduation, Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland still expects to field a solid 1983-84 ball club.

"We're optimistic," he said. "The district (32) and conference (North Border) will be awfully good with some really good teams, and I hate to make predictions on how we'll do. But I do know we'll be a good basketball team. We'll be a good, competitive basketball team. We have quality ball players; we have depth; we have some quickness; and we have some good ball handlers."

Only true varsity veteran back from last year's 8-12 team — the Nordics' poorest record in Ueland's 17 years of coaching — is 5-11 junior Kevin Boe, and Ueland says he's a good one. "He has a 36-inch vertical jump. He's a super athlete who does a lot of things well," he said of Boe.

Rest of the squad includes seniors Brent Magner, Ken Krohn and Ross Olson; juniors Chad Swan, Scott Gustafson, Robbie Hestlkind, Jay Nelson, Randy Dahl and Brian Rud; plus sophomores Mike Anderson, David Larson and Darren Stokke.

Once again, a lot of them will get playing time in the Nordic's liberal substitution system. "We'll play 82 feet of floor for 32 minutes," says Ueland. "We'll go after them both offensively and defensively."

Still, it might take a while for everything to fall into place, he admitted, and for that reason the Nordics will take things slow at first, waiting a week more before opening the year and playing just two games prior to the Dec. 27-30 Thief River Falls Invitational.

Middle River

Young, inexperienced and small describes the 1983-84 Middle River Skippers, reports head coach Eldon Sparby.

Only players back from last year's 12-8 team are Kevin McKeever and Tom Neumann. McKeever, a 5-9 senior, averaged 11.4 points per game a year ago, but missed part of the season with back problems. Neumann, a 6-2 sophomore, broke into the line-up the second half of the 1982-83 season.

McKeever and 5-11 Sheldon Peterson, who did not play last year, are the only seniors on the team. They'll likely be joined in the starting line-up by sophomores Darrin Peterson, Dan Cwikla and Neumann.

Others on the team include junior Brian Cwikla and sophomores Duane Cwikla, Brian Gillund, Kevin Halme, David Koehmstedt and Shawn Wagner.

"We've got some quickness and we have some pretty decent shooters," mentioned Sparby. "We'll have to try to speed up the game."

Both with youth, inexperience and size against them, the Skippers will have to work hard for many wins this winter.

"Two years down the road we'll have a fine team," pointed out Sparby, "but this year I'm being realistic. We're hoping we'll have a .500 season, and we'll have to beat a couple of teams we're not suppose to beat to do that."

Middle River

Fri., Dec. 2 — at Roseau; Fri., Dec. 9 — at Lake of the Woods; Thurs., Dec. 22 — Strandquist; Dec. 27-30 — at TRF Invitational; Sat., Jan. 7 — Hallock; Tues., Jan. 10 — Marshall County Central; Fri., Jan. 13 — at Warroad; Tues., Jan. 17 — Badger; Tues., Jan. 24 — Roseau; Tues., Jan. 31 — at Grygla; Fri., Feb. 3 — Lake of the Woods; Sat., Feb. 4 — Tri-County; Tues., Feb. 7 — at Red Lake Falls; Fri., Feb. 10 — at Marshall County Central; Sat., Feb. 11 — at Thief River Falls; Tues., Feb. 14 — at Badger; Fri., Feb. 17 — Warroad; Fri., Feb. 24 — at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Grygla

Short. That's Grygla's basketball team. Coach Vern Johnson doesn't expect to have a starter that measures six-foot this winter.

"We'll be the shortest team in the (North Border) Conference," confirmed Johnson. "Our girls' team is taller than our boys' team this year."

Still, it's not a completely dark picture for the Eagles, who have three starters back from last year's 7-14 team in seniors Tony McLean, Jeff Klein and Wayne Byklum, plus juniors Bill Neuschwander and Rick Carlson, who were part-time starters as sophomores.

"I feel we'll surprise some people," said Johnson. "We're eight-nine deep, we have good team quickness, they're good ball handlers and they are strong kids."

Rest of the squad members are senior Lon Englund; juniors Tim Iribeck, Milo Cleven, Dave Lunsetter and Scott Hamilton; sophomores Brian Holte, Brian Byklum and Darrin Byklum; plus freshmen Reed Engelstad and Brad Monson.

Key for the Eagles will probably be their shooting. They were erratic a year ago, and without the height of rebound, they better plan on making their shots count in 1983-84.

Grygla

Fri., Dec. 2 — Oklee; Fri., Dec. 9 — at Roseau; Tues., Dec. 13 — Warroad; Dec. 17-20 — at Goodridge Invitational; Fri., Jan. 6 — at Lake of the Woods; Tues., Jan. 10 — Goodridge; Tues., Jan. 17 — at Warroad; Fri., Jan. 20 — at Badger; Sat., Jan. 28 — at Gonvick-Trail; Tues., Jan. 31 — Middle River; Sat., Feb. 4 — at Greenbush; Tues., Feb. 7 — at Marshall County Central; Sat., Feb. 11 — Lake of the Woods; Tues., Feb. 14 — at Goodridge; Fri., Feb. 17 — Roseau; Mon., Feb. 20 — at Plummer; Tues., Feb. 21 — Badger; Fri., Feb. 24 — Strandquist.

Goodridge

First-year head coach Dan Brinkman inherits a veteran team that he figures will make Goodridge a formidable basketball opponent this winter. He was an assistant coach under Rick Nelson the past two years and he's familiar with the Huskies who are back off last year's 12-6 team.

"We should have a good season," predicted Brinkman. "We should be able to stay with the Argyles and Warrens and I think we'll be able to play with people like Crookston and East Grand Forks (newcomers to District 31A after switching classes from Region 8AA)."

Reason for the optimism is the return of three full-time and another part-time starter from 1982-83. Back are seniors Tony Wiseth, Ross Parnow and Tim Bakken, all starters throughout the year, along with junior Scott Groven, who was in and out of the line-up.

Other varsity squad members are seniors Rodney Haugen, Jeff Kriel, Brian Jones and Mike Scheef, along with juniors Jared Sjulestad, Brian Johnson, Tim Wayne and Roy Sunsdahl.

"I expect a lot of outside scoring from Groven," pointed out Brinkman, who figures Parnow and Bakken will be effective inside.

He doesn't plan a lot of changes in the Huskies' attack. "We'll try to speed it up a little more, but we'll keep our pressure defense we've had success with in the past."

Goodridge

Girls Begin Basketball Season On Tuesday Around The Area

Tuesday will mark the start of the 1983-84 high school basketball season for area girls, including a Marshall County Central visit to Thief River Falls for an 8 p.m. opener in the Lincoln gym.

Elsewhere that night, Grygla will be at Hallock, Goodridge visits Middle River and Plummer drives to Strandquist.

MCC

Search for some offensive punch is a high priority item at Marshall County Central practice sessions as coach Tom Mjelde tries to replace the 40 points per game supplied by now-graduated Sue Olson, Brenda Dahl and Debbie Peterson.

Starters back from last year's 18-3 team that lost to Middle River in overtime in the District 32 finals are Shelly Anderson, a 5-6 senior, and Barb Garthus, a 5-8 junior.

"We're going to be really inexperienced," acknowledged Mjelde. "I think we'll be ready for the tournaments, but right now we're looking for a leader. Somebody is going to have to pick up the scoring for us."

Rest of the squad members include senior Nancy Nelson; juniors Jodi Nelson, Betty Blawat and Tonya Brodersen; sophomores Becky Knutson, Karen Busch and Patty Odberg; plus freshmen Paulette Yutrzenka, Jodi Foss and Mary Erickson.

"We'll have to rely heavily on defense, especially at the beginning of the year, to win a few games for us until our offense comes around," mentioned Mjelde.

Marshall Co. Central

Plummer

Four starters are back from last year's 13-7 team, but it's still a young Plummer squad for coach Rick Koivisto.

Coming back after holding down starting jobs a year ago will be junior Jody Pahlen and sophomore Sheila Jaeger, plus freshmen Janelle Konickson and Robin Brantl.

"We hope to be competitive," offered Koivisto. "We're small. We hope to rely on quickness."

Pahlen averaged 18.5 points per game and Jaeger averaged about 10 points per game, and will be a strong rebounder for the Cardinals.

Only starter lost to graduation was Bonnie Fisher, but that translates into 20 points and 13 rebounds per outing.

Rest of the squad members include seniors Helen Jaeger, Robin Myhre and Sheila Sorenson, who was in the line-up before hurting her back last year; junior Linda DeHate; and sophomores Nancy Jo Hesse, Ericka Treitline and Joleen Madoll.

Plummer

Tues., Nov. 29 — at Strandquist; Thurs., Dec. 1 — Warren; Tues., Dec. 6 — at Red Lake Falls; Fri., Dec. 9 — Alvarado; Tues., Dec. 13 — vs. Clearbrook at Gonvick; Thurs., Dec. 15 — Argyle; Thurs., Jan. 5 — at Climax; Thurs., Jan. 12 — Fisher; Tues., Jan. 17 — at Mentor; Thurs., Jan. 19 — at Goodridge; Thurs., Jan. 26 — Oslo; Mon., Jan. 30 — Oklee; Tues., Feb. 7 — Goodridge; Thurs., Feb. 9 — Red Lake Falls; Mon., Feb. 13 — at Oklee; Thurs., Feb. 16 — East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; Fri., Feb. 17 — at Stephen; Tues., Feb. 21 — Middle River.

Goodridge

A young Goodridge team took its lumps a year ago with a 1-18 record, but that year of experience should prove beneficial to the Huskies in 1983-84.

"We set a goal for a .500 season," noted Huskies coach Patti Johnson, "and we're going to give it everything we have to reach that goal."

There were no losses to graduation, and the list of returning veterans includes seniors Diana Troska, who averaged 8 points per game last year, and Dawn Anderson; junior Sheri Vettleson, who is expected to be the team's top inside performer; and sophomores Jennie Boutain, Jennifer Race and Lori Sjulestad.

Those sophomores were rotated in and out of the starting line-up last year as freshmen, when Boutain led the team in scoring with 14 points per game and Sjulestad led the team in rebounding with 9 per game.

Newcomers expected to make a varsity contribution this winter are freshmen Cindy Vettleson, Becky Johnson and Bridget Sjulestad.

"We're not very tall," acknowledged Johnson, "but we're real quick."

Goodridge

Grygla

First-year head coach Mike Gast, who served as an assistant coach for the boys last year, figures the Grygla girls have a shot at duplicating last year's 13-5 record under Bill Raduenz.

"I'm pretty optimistic," said Gast. "I don't know if I'm being realistic, but I think we can match that (13-5). We're young and small in numbers, but I think we'll do pretty well once we get a little experience."

Seniors Kathy Foss and Judy Verbout were starters a year ago. Foss is an all-conference performer. Verbout is sidelined right now with back problems and will likely miss the season opener.

There are no juniors on the team. The rest of the squad includes sophomores Debbie Klein, Penney Wikert, Carol Verbout, Kari Klamar, Derel Engelstad and Laura Carlson; plus freshmen Nikki Lian, Michelle Hjelle, Cindy Carlson, Pam Aune and Tiarra Porch.

"We're going to run more and we're going to pressure the more, too," explained Gast.

Middle River

Five seniors and four starters back from last year's fine 21-2 District 32 championship team should insure a winning record at Middle River, but coach Tom Neibauer isn't convinced the Skippers will be able to duplicate the success they enjoyed a year ago.

"I'm sure we'll win more than we lose, but it'll be tough to match last year's record," explained Neibauer. "I'm sure, though, by tournament time we'll be a contender."

Just one senior starter was lost to graduation, but the absence of Kari Skoglund leaves a big hole in the Middle River line-up. Skoglund was the team leader, the Skippers' best defensive player, most effective passer and top ball handler.

Complicating matters is the status of Diane Black, a senior who has been slowed by illness. Her full-strength availability is a key factor in the Skippers' success, said Neibauer.

Rest of the small six-member squad includes seniors Vonda Peterson, Tammy Sorter, Paula Rantanen and Jody Christofferson, plus junior Lisa Maertens. The lack of numbers doesn't overly concern Neibauer, since the Skippers went through the same situation last year. The future, though, is cloudy.

"The future is now," he said.

Moose Hunt Tally Listed For Northwestern Minnesota Zones

Overall hunter success for the 1983 moose season in the northwest area was 94.4 per cent for a total of 702 moose, according to figures released recently by George Davis, area wildlife manager.

Of these, 466 were males and 236 were females. This does not include Zone 2, the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, which will be open to successful applicants December 3-11.

Hunter success in the northeast area was 84.5 per cent for a total of 442 moose — 273 males and 169 females.

Minnesota's next moose hunt will be in 1985.

Summary of the moose harvest in the northwest area zones includes:
